-S. 13 (3)-Judgment debtor applying to Debt Relief Court after preliminary decree for foreclosure—Instalments not paid—Order of Deputy Commissioner that balance is recoverable as if final decree passed-Effect of-Right of decree-holder to be placed in possession of property.

After a preliminary decree for foreclosure was passed, the judgment-debtor applied to the Debt Relief Court which made the decretal amount repayable by instalments. The first two instalments were not paid and the Deputy Commissioner passed an order under S. 13 (3) of the Relief of Indebtedness Act that the balance remaining due should be recoverable as if a final decree had been passed.

Held, that the order had the effect of a final decree for foreclosure and the decree-holder was entitled to be placed in possession of the mortgaged property. (Pollock, J.) VITHAL RANGRAO V. LAXMAN. 1945 N.L.J. 462.

S. 23.

Deputy Commissioner there is no appeal against it as the Act makes no provision for appeals and appellate powers. The Deputy Commissi ner is given powers under S. 15 as persona designata and not as a Revenue Officer under the Revenue Act. Hence his order cannot be revised under S. 39 of the Land Revenue Act because the only orders revisable under that section are those of a subordinate officer passed in his capacity as a sed on ground that he is able to pay debts-Question of jurisdiction, if arises.

If the Debt Relief Court decides that the debtor is able to pay his debts and dismisses his application, it cannot be said that any question of jurisdiction has arisen, and it is impossible to hold the view that owing to some lack of jurisdiction, which has existed, any part of the proceedings has become a nullity or any stage of the proceedings was vitiated and rendered null by jurisdictional defect. The jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in the matter of executing an award (having the force of a decree under the provisions of the Co-operative Societies Act) whereby a liability is created and the sum becomes due to a society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act is not barred by S. 23 of C. The jurisdiction of the Civil Courts to deal with the matter pending before that Court is barred by S. 23 of the Act, as is made clear in S. 26-A (3). Therefore, the time which intervenes between the date when the D. #### CENTRAL PROVINCES RELIGIOUS AND CHARITABLE TRUSTS ACT (1937) -If ultra vires

The C. P. Religious and Charitable Trust Act 1937, is not ultra vires of the Provincial Legis-lature. This Act was passed with the previous sanction of the Governor-General as required by S. 80-A (3) of the Government of India Act and came into force on the 1st March, 1937, by virtue of a notification published in Central Provinces Gazette. (Puranik, J.) GOPALAS v. DAN PARMANAND. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 837=1945 N. L.J. 335=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 266.

-S. 17 (1) (b)-Exemption under-Effect of -Act, if dead letter. Under S. 17 (1) (b) of the C. P. Religious and Charitable Trusts Act, any public trust or institution to which the provisions of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act of 1920 apply is exempted from the operation of the former Act. As both the Acts apply to the same class of trusts the former Act is not operative by virtue of the exemption contained in S 17 (1) (b). Reading S. 1 (2) proviso of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act of 1920 and S. 17 (2) of the C.P. Religious and Chartiable Trusts Act, it may be held that the Provincial Government wanted to classify public trusts or institutions to which the latter Act should apply and the specified trust or class of trusts to which the former Act (Central Act) should apply and to issue notifications accordingly but that the notifications were, for some reason not issued. This is the only plausible explanation that can be thought of for the existence of the provision in S. 17 (1) (b) of the latter Act. The mere fact that the Deputy Commissioner has not maintained a list of public trusts under S. 13 of the C. P. Religious and Charitable Trusts Act, is not sufficient to enable any Court to hold that that Act has not come into force. It is only by reason of the exemption given in S. 17 (1) (b) of that Act, that Act is v. Dan Parmanand. LLR, (1945) Nag. 837=1945 N L.J 335=A I.R 1945 Nag. 266 Increase under of "takoli" fixed under Gordon's Settlement-Validity-Act, if ultra vires- Government of India Act, S. 299 (2).

A ramindar holding some estates in Central Provinces was assessed for 'takoh' as part and parcel of the last periodical settlement of land revenue, known as 'Gordon's Settlement' and completed in accordance with the provisions of the C. P. Lan I Revenue Act, 1917. The relevant kabuliyats and orders purported to make the assessment binding for a period of 19 years and thereafter till a fresh settlement is made. As a result of the enactment of the C. P.Revision of the Lind Revenue of Estates Act, 1939, the 'takoli' assessed on the zamindar's estates was increased. On a contention by the zamındar that the 'rights' conferred on him by the Settlement of 1921, the provisions of the Act of 1917, and the relevant kabuliyats and orders, amounted to statutory or contractual, rights of which only a new settlement carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 1917 and the C. P. Settlement Act of 1929 could deprive him and that the alteration of his right to hold the estates subject only to the payment of the amount of 'takoli' fixed in 1921 on the terms of that settlement could not be made, as it was purported to be made by the Act of 1939, to his detriment without complying with the provisions of S. 299 (2) of the Constitution Act and as such the Act of 1939 was ultra vires and void.

Held, that there was nothing in any of the Acts or documents referred to which amounted to any contractual or statutory rights of the zamindar which could not at any time be varied, suspended or repealed, by enactment of the competent Legislature. The settlement was made an I took effect under and by virtue of statutory powers and provisions which could at any time be repealed, varied or replaced by other statutory provisions duly enacted. There was nothing to prevent the Legislature of the C.P. and Berar to which under S. 100 and item 39 of List II in the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution Act are given powers to legislate in regard to land revenue. acting directly in the matter and enacting in respect of all or some existing assessments that the same should be increased as from a specified date to a specified amount. It is impossible to hold that the mere increase of an assessment for land revenue involves any 'acquisition' of the land or any rights in or over immovable property. Further the word 'acquisition' implies that there must be an actual transference of, and it must be possible to indicate some person or body to whom is or are transferred, the land or rights referred to. It cannot be said that when land revenue is increased, there is any transference to the Provincial Government or any other person of any land or rights in or over immovable property, which remain in the same posses-

CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY ACT (I OF 1920), Ss. 2 (5) (d) and 25 -Prection of building on agricultural land--Improvement of land - Burden of proof.

Prima facie the erection of a building on land which is let for agricultural purposes, that is to say for the purpose of being cultivated and for no other purpose, is a diversion for non-agricultural uses, an bonce the fact of the erection of a substantial building is established it is for the tenant to show that it has been built in circumstances which make it an improvement on the land which is permitted or that it is not in fact a diversion from agricultural purposes. Any building on any agricultural land which is not of a temporary nature and is not easily removable is a diversion for non-agricultural purposes. It cannot be anything else, and ejectment can only be avoided, if the landlord objects, by the tenant showing that it is an improvement, that is to say that it adds materially to the letting value of the holding, that it is suitable thereto and consistent with the purpose for which the holding is held; and if the improvement is a building that it is required for the covenient or profitable use or occupation of the holding. În 1938, a tenant gave a notice under S. 6 (2) of the Tenancy Act to his landlord of his intention to transfer his absolute occupancy land in two villages, A and B. In this single notice relating to two villages, the number of the fields, their rents, the consideration money and the name of the transferee were not mentioned. prescribed, a period of over 2½ years cannot be considered as reasonable. These defects must be deemed to invalidate the notice at the time of transfer in 1941. As a fresh notice was not sent, the landlord's application under S. 6 (3) was good. He cannot be deemed to have waived in 1941 the right he had in respect of another transfer in 1938 and that no question of estoppel arose. (Ramsden, F. C.) 1945 N.L. J. 101. YAMUNABAI V. RAM RAO.

Starting point—Possession lost by tenant before transfer.

Limitation for an application by the landlord for pre-emption under S. 6 (3) of the Tenancy Act starts from the date on which possession is lost by the tenant after a transfer. If possession has been lost before a transfer is complete, then Imitation runs from the date of the transfer.

not paid within time allowed Effect Filing of appeal—If extends time.

The right of pre-emption is a very special right and the person who claims it must comply strictly with all the conditions imposed on him. Where under S. 6 (6) of the C. P. Tenancy Act the value has been fixed and directed to be deposited within a particular time and it is not paid, the right is lost. An appellate Court in an appeal against the order has power to stay execution of the order. But the Court must be asked to do it. The filing of an appeal will not by itself operate as a stay. (Greenfield.) SHESHRAO v. MORESH-WAR. 1941 N.L.J. 50.

-S.6(6)—Price not deposited by landlord within prescribed time—Appeal filed by him with request for extension of time—No specific order passed by appellate Court-Landlord, if must be deemed to have waved his right.

Under S 6 (6) of the Tenancy Act, 1920, the landlord must be deemed to have waived his right, if he does not pay within the prescribed time the price fixed by the Naib Tahsildar and no order for stay has been obtained from the appellate Court. The fact that he made a request for extension of time in the memorandum of appeal filed before the Deputy Commissioner and the latter passed no specific order thereon, makes no difference. When a request is made to a Court and no order is passed, the only inference that can be drawn is that it has been rejected. (Rau, F.C.) RAMDAS GOVIND v. SHIVPRASAD. 1945 N. L.J. 165.

- - Ss. 6-A and 12-A-Fixation of price by Revenue officer When necessary,

The intention of the Legislature is that the tenant should mention in the notice the price offered to him in the open market and that the landlerd should pay it, leaving him free to file a civil suit in the case of fraud—It is clearly not the intenti n that the landlord who finds the price mentioned in the notice too high should be able to challenge the genuineness of the price quoted and apply to the revenue officer for fixation of a fair price. On the contrary, it wants him to purchase the right for the amount stated in the notice, if he wants to purchase at all, and it has provided safeguards to protect him from unscrupulous and dishonest tenants. It is necessary for the revenue officer to fix the price in the following cases among others:—Under S. 6-A (absolute occupancy right) sub S 5 (a). If the landlord is entitled to purchase the right and if the transfer is by sale, if the consideration is either (a) not mentioned in the sale deed, or (b) cannot be determined from it whether it is sold along with other property or for other reason. Sub-S. 5 (b).-If the intended transfer is otherwise than by sale Sub-S. 8 (b) - (1) If the tenant transfers in contravention of the law and the consideration cannot be determined from the sale deed, or (2) if the transfer is otherwise than by sale. Under S. 13 A. (occupancy right) sub-S. (5).—If the landlord is entitled to purchase the right and if the consideration carnot be determined from the sale deed. Sub-S. 8 (b),—As per absolute occupancy (1). The revenue officer is also required to fix the price in the circumstances indicated in sub-sections (9) and 10 (b). (Rau, F.C.) NARAYANRAO V. -- S 6-A-Notice not signed by tenant-Vali-

The mere omission by the tenant to sign the notice given by him to his landlord does not invalidate it if the surrounding circumstances unmistakably point to its authenticity. Where the notice which is sent by registered post is written on a post card with the name and address of the tenant printed thereon, and the postal form of acknowledgment also shows that the notice is from the tenant, and the landlord is not left in doubt as to the identity of its sender, the notice is not invalid although it is not signed either by or for the tenant. -S. 6-A-Notice omitting name of prospective purchaser-Validity.

A notice given by a transferring tenant to his landlord is invalid if it omits the name or names of the intending purchasers. The object of the Legislature in conferring the right of preemption on landlords is to enable them to prevent the entry of strangers and undesirable persons into the ranks of the village tenancy, unless the landlord knows who the prospective purchasers are, he would not be in a position to decide whether to exercise his right or not. Rights of succession--Crucial date.

An act which affects vested rights and is not merely procedural, that is to say, one that affects merely the method of the enforcement of the rights, cannot be presumed to have retrospective operation. The amendment of 1910 deleted the proviso cont ined in S. 11 of the C. P. Tenancy Act and is silent as regards its retrospective operation. Hence rights of succession to a tenant who died prior to the amendment would be governed by the Act as it stood prior to its amendment (Nivogi, J.) TULARAM V. TEJIRAM I. L.R. zvith-Duty of Court.

Ss. 12, 13 and 14 of the C. P. Tenancy Act are designed to protect the heirs of a tenant and to preserve to them, as far as that can be done, the very special estate of inheritance which the Tenancy Act and its predecessors have created. That is the broad aim of the legislature. It therefore behoves Courts when interpreting the Act to give effect to that object as far as they can bearing in mind of course all the usual rules of interpretation. Whenever there is doubt or room for reaching a decision either one way or the other, the endeavour should be to further. as far as that is practicable, the aims of the legislature as gathered from the Act itself. ——Ss 12 and 13—Sale by tenant of holding worth Rs. 100 by unregistered deed-Landlord's remedy for ejecting transferee-If lies in Revenue or Civil Court—Transfer of Property Act, S. 54.

A tenant who purports to transfer his holding which is of the value of Rs. 100 and upwards by an unregistered deed, does not offend against the provisions of S. 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act as the sale is a nullity in view of the provisions of S. 54 of the Transfer of Property Act. The landlord has, therefore, no locus standi to apply to a Revenue Officer under S. 13 of the Tenancy Act. His remedy against the transferee lies in the Civil Court, and the basis of its jurisdiction is that the transferee is relegated to the position of a trespasser claiming under a void sale-deed. (Grille, C.J. and Hemeon, J.) CHINDHU PATEL DADU PATEL I.L.R. (1945) Nag 433=1945 N.L.J. 94=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 119.

S. 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act does not render transfers in contravention of its provisions void. They are only voidable, and that by a limited class of persons and in a very special and limited way. Hence there is no determination of tenancy that it would not be altogether ineffective as on such a transfer. Now by virtue of Ss. 13 and 14 the heirs of the transfering tenant steps into the shoes of the transferee and thus acquires the tenancy subject to all its liabilities, just as much as he would have done had he succeeded as an heir on death. The usual rule that the assignee of a tenant's rights is liable for arrears in the same way as the original tenant because of the privity of estate between the landlord and himself, would apply (Bose, J) GANPAT GOVIND V. When a proprietor's entire interests in a village is sold excluding khudkasht, it is doing that which is legally impossible so far as khudkasht is concerned. The khudkasht is not his to be so reserved or excluded. The sale of the share would be good and would stand. The reservation or exclusion would be bad in the sense that no right, title or interest in the land would remain in the proprietor or transferor. It may well be

It may be that an estoppel would arise as between them but it would not anext the rights of third parties and it would not make the transferor a tenant of some sort so as to claim exemption from attachment and safe so for as the khudkasht is concerned. An occupancy tenant gave to his landlord a written notice of his intention to sell his holding. The landlord replied that he was prepared to purchase but that the price was too much and not reasonable. The landlord then applied to the Tabsildar that the land should be sold to him at a reasonable price. The Tahsıldar ordered the landlord to deposit the original consideration money and the tenant to execute a sale deed in favour of the landlord. Overruling the contention that the landlord's application should have been rejected in the first instance as it was not accompanied by a deposit,

Held, that as it was not indicated anywhere in S. 12-A of the C. P. Tenancy Act in what circumstances a revenue officer was required to fix the value of the right when he was dealing with an application under sub-S. (5), it was not surprising that the landlord considered that he was entitled to question the reasonableness of the consideration mentioned in the notice and that in the circumstances it was not justifiable to hold that the Tahsildar had no jurisdiction to proceed with the application owing to his failure to insist on the deposit being made at the time the application was presented to him. Held, that the application did not lie, that the sale deed did not differ materially from the notice, that the purchase money was as stated in the notice and the property transferred was the respondent's share, that there had been no contravention of any of the provisions contained in sub-Ss. Where a surrender of an occupancy holding is accepted by a co-sharer who was for long working as joint lambardar and taken to be such by all including the lambardar appointed it is not open to the latter to seek to set aside the surrender as being in contravention of 5, 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act inasmuch as he himself had acquiesced in treating the other as joint lambardar, though not really appointed as such. The latter must be taken to have acted as a co-sharer on behalf of the proprietary body and with the implied consent of the lambardar (Binney, F. C.) SAMIULLAH KHAN v. KEDARNATH. 1942 N. L.J. 69.

-S. 13-Heir born subsequent to transfer-Whether can apply.

Applications under S. 13 of the C. P. Tenancy Act are not restricted to the heirs in existence at the time of the transfer. Even heirs born subsequent to the date of the transfer can apply under the section (Binney, F.C.) SOBHARAM v. ITWARI 1943 N.L. J 258.

The transfer of proprietary share of a gaontia in a village situate in Sambalpur territory includes by necessary implication the bhogra land. Gaontiahi right comprises the right to collect rent and pay a fixed sum to the Government, the right to hold bhogra land in ownership and the right to hold non-bhogra land as an occupancy tenant or a lessee. If, therefore, the proprietary share of a gaontia in a village is sold in execution of a decree, the purchaser acquires a proportionate share in the bhogra land. (Niyogi, J.) No Civil Court can dictate to a Revenue Officer as to the granting or withholding of sanction to transfer sir. It can only dictate to the party concerned what he is to do. The proper order would be that the party should take all necessary steps to obtain sanction, the other party being given liberty to apply to Court for further directions should it appear that steps are not being taken to carry out Court's orders. It is for the Revenue Court to decide whether sanction should or should not be given. (Stone, CJ) HIRALAL v. MUNSHI RAHMANLAL. 1942 N.L. J. 340.

appropriate sale proceeds.
Under S. 95 of the C. P. Tenancy Act, a tenant is entitled only to clear his land of scrub-jungle. He is not entitled to appropriate it in the sense of making it a marketable commodity and selling it as fuel and appropriating its sale proceeds for himself. Scrub-jungle is of spontaneous growth and is not the result of human labour and is not thus a part of agriculture. That spontaneous growth which is on the land is a part and parcel of the land and belongs along with the land to the landlord. But as it interferes with the proper cultivation of the land the legislature considered it proper to grant the privilege to the tenant to whom the land is let of clearing his land of that wild and spontaneous growth. The tenant may clear it up in any manner he chooses-either by uprooting and throwing it out or by burning it on the spot or by cutting it and absorbing it for purposes subscrient to agriculture. The law has not undergone any change by reason of the amendment of 1940. (Grille, C.J., Niyogi and Puranik, JJ.) GOPALDAS V. MST. MALLA. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 298=207 I.C. 539=116 R.N. 42= 1943 N.L. S. 100 of the C. P. A civil suit is not barred by S. 105 of the Act Where the landlord has created occupancy tenant right in favour of third persons, the proper remedy of a tenant who has been excluded from possession is a civil suit against them in time under Sch. II, Art 1 of the Act and not an application under S. 100 of the Act against the landlord who had already parted with possession Any order that may be passed under that section will not bind the occupancy tenants simply because their landlord was a party thereto. ——If may be issued only to correct judicial or quasi-judicial acts—Test of such acts—Order under R. 51-F (6) of Defence of India Rules—If can be corrected by writ.

A writ of certiorari does not lie to correct purely executive or administrative acts but only acts of a judicial nature. In this connection the term 'judicial' does not necessarily mean 'acts of Courts' in the strictest sense but may be acts of body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of subjects and having the duty to act judicially. The duty of 'acting' judicially implies something more than mere application of the mind by the authority on the materials before him. If the doing of the act is left entirely to the discretion of the authority as a purely subjective matter or if the official act is "discretionary and in some respects facultative", it is purely an administrative or executive act. In such a case the authority alone has to form his own opinion, in good faith of course, on the materials before him. A judicial or quasi-judicial act, on the other hand, implies more than mere application of the mind or the formation of the opinion. It has reference to the mode or manner in which that opinion is formed. It implies "a proposal and an opposition" and a decision on the issue. It vaguely connotes "hearing evidence and opposition." R 51-F (6) of the Defence of India Rules does not involve the doing of any judicial or quasijudicial act as distinguished from an administrative or executive act and therefore cannot be corrected by a writ of certiorari. (Ameer Ali, A. C.J. and Das, J.) BANWARILAL ROY, In re. 48 C. W.N. 766.

-If may issue against Province of Bengal-Order passed under Defence of India Rules-Government of India Act, Ss. 176 and 306.

A writ of certiorari to correct an order made under the Defence of India Rules cannot issue against the Province of Bengal. "Province of Bengal" or "Provincial Government" or "Government of Bengal", whichever name one may use, is not a legal entity, a body corporate which can sue or be sued in that name. S. 176 of the Government of India Act authorises the use of the name of the province only in respect of certain suits and proceedings specified therein. Further, assuming the "Government of Bengal" can be proceeded against in that name, surely that name will mean or at any rate include the The issue of a writ against the 'Gov-Governor. The issue of a writ against the 'Government of Bengal' will therefore mean issuing process against the Governor which is prohibited by S. 306 of the Government of India Act. (Ameer Ali, A. C. on election petition-Power of Supreme Court to direct writ against such order.

A Court having jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari will not and cannot issue it to bring up an order made by a Judge of that Court. Nor will a Superior Court issue the writ directed to another Superior Court. While the ordinance constituting the Supreme Court of Ceylon does not confer upon it original, but only appellate jurisduction in civil cases, the cognizance of elec-tion petitions under the Ceylon (States Council Elections) Order in Council, is a special jurisdiction conferred upon the Supreme Court by the latter order in Council. An election petition is a proceeding in the Supreme Court. Cognizance of these petitions is an extension of or addition to, the ordinary jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and consequently certiorari cannot be granted to bring up any order made in the exercise of that jurisdiction. Even if the election Judge is to be regarded as a special or independent tribunal, his Court would be a Superior Court. (Lord Goddard.) GOONESINHA v. HONOURABLE O. L. -Jurisdiction of High Court to issue-Board of Revenue-Order enhancing rent in revision in proceedings under Ch. XI, Madras Estates Land Act—Power of High Court to call up and quash.

The Supreme Court at Madras by its charter of 1860 had no general power or control over the Courts of the East India Company in the mofussil or over their officers acting judicially even though they were British subjects. It had no jurisdiction to issue the prerogative writ of certiorari to any Court or officer in the mofussil, dealing with disputes between Indians independently of its jurisdiction over the Presidency Town and over British subjects or their servants. The High Court which has inherited the powers of the Supreme Court has not been given such a power by any later enactments. The respondent zamindar applied under Ch. XI of the Madras Estates Land Act for the settlement of fair and equitable rent in respect of land in the villages in his estate in the District of Ganjam. The Special Revenue Officer made an order doubling the previous rents. On appeal to the Revenue Board by the appellant-ryots, a member of the Board sitting alone reversed the decision of the Revenue Officer and allowed an increase of only revenue Omer and anowed an increase of only 12½ per cent. considering himself bound by proviso (b) to Cl. (1) of S. 30 of the Estates Land Act. The respondent zamindar moved the collective Board by way of revision, and the collective Board by a majority held that the proviso did not apply to the case but held that an enhancement by 37½ per cent. would be an appropriate increase. The ryots petitioned to the High Court of Madras for a writ of certiorari to quash the order of the collective Board on the ground that the enhancement was beyond that permitted by the proviso to S. 30 (1) (b). The High Court held that if the proviso applied so as to make an increase beyond 12½ per cent. illegal, then the ment of India Act (1935), S. 306.

ryots would be entitled to the issue of the writ prayed but that in the circumstances of the case the Board of Revenue had the power to enhance the rent by 37½ per cent. and dismissed the petition. The ryots appealed to the Privy Council.

Held, (1) that even if it was assumed that the collective Board exceeded its powers in exhancing the rent by  $37\frac{1}{2}$  per cent the High Court had no jurisdiction, either independently of the local civil jurisdiction which it exercised over the Presidency Town, or solely by reason thereof as an incident of the location of the Board of Revenue within the City of Madras, to issue a writ of certiorori to the collective Board of Revenue to bring up, in order to be quashed, its order enhancing the rent; (2) that the collective Board of Revenue did not exceed the powers entrusted to it under S. 172 of the Estates Land Act by enhancing the rest by 371 per cent. inasmuch as proviso (b) to cl. (1) of S. 30 did not apply to the case; (3) that the duty imposed by S. 168 (2) of the Act to "have regard to the provisions of the Act for determining the rates of rent payable by a ryot" had no more definite or technical meaning than of ordinary usage, and only required that those provisions must be taken into consideration and that it was impossible to say that the duty to have regard, inter alia, to the prohibition contained in proviso (b) to S. 30 (1) was a duty to keep rigidly within the limit there imposed for cases to which the section of its own case applied. When giving directions under S. 172 of the Estates Land Act, the Board of Revenue is to be considered not as a Court or the highest Court in a hierarchy of Revenue Courts, but as the official body specially entrusted with particular duties which included duties of a judicial character (Lord Chancellor.) ## CERTIORARI.

The power of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari is statutorily limited and cannot be issued to as to affect the Government. The High Court has no jurisdiction to issue a writ against a Provincial Government including the Governor or against the Central Government including the Governor-General, in view of S. 306 of the Government of India Act, 1935 (Coyajee, J.) DINBAI PETIT v. M. S. NORONHA. 1945 F.L.J. 170=47 Bom.L.R. 500=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 419. — Jurisdiction of Nagpur High Court to issue. See Government of India Act, S. 224 (2). I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 397.

- Jurisdiction of Patna High Court to issue

-Proceedings under-Ordinance 2 of 1942. The Patna High Court has no power at all to issue a writ of certiorari. Even if it has the power, S. 26 of Ordinance (2 of 1942) has taken it away, except possibly in cases where the High Court could more suitably act under S. 491, Cr.P. Code, upon the ground of lack of jurisdiction. (Fazl Ali, C.J., Manohar Lall and Meredith, IJ.) GOPAL MARWARI v. EMPEROR. 22 Pat. 433=209 I C. 482=16 R.P. 114=10 B.R. 193=1944 P.W.N. 420=45 Cr.L.J. 177=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 245 (S.B.).

-Locus standi to apply-Person not aggrieved.

A writ of certiorari can be issued even on the application of a man who has not suffered any injury. In such a case, the Court has a discretion to grant or refuse the application according to the circumstances of the case, whereas in the case of a man who is personally aggrieved, he can ask for the writ almost ex debito justifiae. Certiorari—Power to issue. See Government of India Act, S. 224 and S. 226.

-When can be issued—Election declared under Calcutta Municipal Act.

Writs of certiorari and prohibition can be issued only in respect of judicial or quasi-judicial acts, and they have no application to executive acts. No application for the issue of these writs will, therefore, lie against the Calcutta Corporation in respect of elections declared under the Calcutta Municipal Act. (Sen, J.) Arun Bhusan Roy v. CHAR. & REL. TRUSTS ACT (1920) CHARITABLE AND RELIG CHARITABLE AND RELIGIOUS TRUSTS ACT (XIV OF 1920)—Applicability —"Public trust"—Dedication of properties to— Thakur or idol-Provision for worship and ceremonies-Incidental provision for feeding of sadhus and travellers—Effect.

In order that the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act of 1920 may apply, the trust must be substantially for public purpose. It is not sufficiently the substantially for public purpose. cient if one of the purposes of a trust is public. A mere provision for the service of sadhus, occasional guests and way-farers in a dedication to an idol does not render the dedication substantially for public purposes. A deed of dedication to a Thakur or arpanama after providing that the Government demands, and the zamindar's rent were to be the first and important expenses out of the income, provided, "whatever may be the residue after meeting the expenses of pujapath, ragbhog, occasional utsavas, sevas of sadhus, atithis and abbyagatas it shall be spent in making improvement in the property of the said Thakurji.

Held, that the main purpose of the trust was making provision for the due worship of the idol and the performance of the necessary ceremonies; that the seva of sadhus, guests and travellers was not the main object of the trust but was merely incidental or ancillary to the worship of the idol; that by the terms of the arpanama nothing was dedicated to the public and the trust created was therefore a private trustand not a public trust falling under the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act of 1920. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lall, J.) RAMSARAN DAS v. JAIRAM DAS. 21 Pat. 815=206 I.C. 214=9 B.R. 273=15 R.P. 320=A.I.R. 1943 Pat.

——Applicability—Trust for public purpose— Property granted to Mahant as "Gurudakshina" to be held generation after generation—Grant described as 'Bishunprit'—Effect—Public trust—

If created.

To constitute a trust "created for a public purpose of a charitable or religious nature" within the meaning of Act XIV of 1920, the author or authors of the trust must be ascertained and the intention to crate a trust must be indicated by words or acts with reasonable certainty. Moreover, the purpose of the trust, the trust property and the beneficiaries must be indicated so as to enable the Court to administer the trust if required. The fact that the property is recorded in the Lakheraj register as Bishunprit land is not conclusive to show that it is property gifted to the idol for public purpose. Nor would the description of the grant as gunudakshina be conclusive of the grant being for public purposes. Gurudakshina means a gift by a disciple to his Guru, and when the property is granted to the Mahant to be held by the grantee generation after generation, the gift must be taken to be a gift to the Mahant personally. Such words are not reconcilable with the view that grantor was in fact making a dedication. Even if the grant is taken to be a grant to the idol and not to the mahant, that in no way shows that the property is trust property held for public purposes. the evidence at the utmost only suggests that the properties were possibly debottar and no more, the fact that the property belongs to an idol would in no way establish that the trust was public. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lal. J. RAM SARAN DAS v. JAI RAM DAS. 21 Pat. 815-206 I.C. 214=9 B.R. 273=15 R.P. 320=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 135.

-S. 3-Applicability-Requirements-Dedication to idol-Nature of trust.

S. 3 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act sets out what must be established in order to bring the matter within the purview of the Act. Put shortly there must be a trust. It must be either express or constructive. It must have been either created or it must be existing for a public purpose. And that public purpose must be of a charitable or a religious nature. Though the trust which arises in the case of a dedication to an idol is not the exact kin l of trust which the English law contemplates, nevertheless, they are trusts, though of a special and particular kind and they are the sort which the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act is intended to cover. S. 5 (6) would seem to prohibit it except in the (Stone, C.J. and Bose, J.) Byankat Paikajt v. circumstances mentioned in the section itself. RAM CHANBRA I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 468=197 (Sinha, I) Myhomed Ibrahim v. Karam Ilahi. I.C. 602=14 R.N. 179=1941 N.L.T. 396=A.I. 1944 A.L.W. 488. R. 1941 Nag. 317.

-S. 5-Jurisdiction of District Judge to decide if a trust was a trust to which the Act applied.

S. 5 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act confers powers on the Court to arrive at a decision on the question whether the trust was a trust to which the Act applied, upon a summary enquiry and it is clearly necessary where objection is taken to the applicability of the Act, that the Court shall decide this question. But this is subject to the provision in S. 5 (3) which provides for stay of proceeding to enable the con-testing party to file a suit for a declaration. Where a party fails to file a suit within the time allowed the District Judge is perfectly justified in making a summary enquiry and coming to a finding that the Act was applicable. (Bennet, I.) NAGESHWAR DASS v. HARNAM DASS. 200 I.C. 611=15 R.O. 29=1942 O.W.N. 337=1942 A. W.R. (C.C.) 225=1942 O.A. 246=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 387.

-S. 5-Question of title-Power of Court to decide.

Under S. 5 (4) of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, the Court has power to decide a question of title raised if no undertaking is given to file a declaratory suit under sub-S. (3), although the order of the Court does not operate as res judicata and does not preclude the persons aggrieved from filing a suit. (Sen, J.) Kubrabi v. Shuberati. I.L.R. Suit to declare that trust is not public trust— Onus.

In a suit by a trustee under S. 5 (3) of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act for a declaration that the trust in dispute is not a public trust and that the Act does not apply thereto, it being common ground that the property originally stood in the names of the various mahants and now stand recorded in the name of idol with the reigning mahant as shebait, and in possession of the shebaits on behalf of the idol, the onus is on the defendant alleging that the property is trust property held for public purposes to prove affirmatively that a trust of a public character was imposed upon the property. By mere acquisition by a mahant a property does not lose its secular character and assume a religious character, and the descent of property from guru to chela does not warrant the presumption that it is religious property. The plaintiff can be defeated only if the defendant establishes affirmatively that a trust of a public character was imposed upon the Property. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lall, J.)

The District Judge is not to make an elaborate inquiry into questions of title in proceedings under the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act.

CHARITABLE SOCIETIES ACT (1860), S. 20 -Applicability-Some objects of a Sabah though religious, dominant intention charitable-Overriding powers given to head of Sabah if invalidates registration.

S. 20 of the Charitable Societies Act does not clearly mention whether a purely religious purpose may be a charitable purpose within the meaning of the Act. But where though some of the objects of a Sabah are religious the dominant intention is charitable it can be validly registered under the Act. The mere fact that the head of the Sabah for the time being is given powers to override the Sabah could not invalidate its registration. (Bajpai and Dar, JJ.) CHILD MARRIAGE RESTRAINT ACT (XIX OF 1929)-Marriage of minor (subject of Native State) to be performed in Native State-Application for liberty to spend monies for-If can be granted in an administration suit pending in British India.

It will be wrong in principle for a British Indian Court to facilitate conduct which the Legislature has made penal as being socially injurious, on the ground that the promotion of the contemplated marriage is not punishable by the law of the place where it is proposed to celebrate it. Though the parties to an intended marriage are subjects of an Indian State an application in an administration suit pending in British India on behalf of one of them a minor for permission to withdraw and spend money for the marriage to be performed in the Indian State cannot be allowed. ## CHILD MAR. RES. ACT (1929), S. 6.

-S. 6-Applicability-Persons liable under. It cannot be said from the words "where a minor contracts a child marriage" occurring in S. 6 of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, that the section applies only to cases where the child himself or herself entered into an agreement for the marriage. The liability rests on any parent or guardian who in any way is responsible for the marriage of his minor child, by whomsoever the agreement and arrangements for the marriage may be mide. Further the responsibility is laid by S. 6 on the person who has charge of the minor. Hence where a father is alive and the daughter is living with him, he alone can be made liable under the section and the grandfather would not be liable though he might have in fact made all the arrangements. not a 'chin'-Law applicable.

Where a person who is not a 'chin' as defined in the Chin Hills Regulation is accused of the offence of illicit manufacture and possession of spirit, by virtue of Ss. 4 (1) (4) and 34-A, he is to be tried under the Excise Act and not under the Regulation. If it is found that the liquor was the product of the manufacture complained against, the accused need not be charged with and convicted of two offences, for the offence of manufacture necessarily includes possession of the article manufactured. It would be otherwise where the accused was not found manufacturing but only in possession of apparatus for manufacturing plus the article manufactured. (Moseley, J.) THE KING v. The alienation referred to in S. 3 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act is an alienation inter vivos, and the prohibition against alienations in the section is directed against alienations inter vivos, and not against a devise by the bolder by will. The holder is not therefore incompetent to make a will by reason of the prohibition in S. 3 of the Act.

Manohar Lal, J.—The combined effect of Ss. 3 and 9 of the Act shows that the object of the Act is that the manager shall have unfettered power of management and control over the property so that he may apply the rents and profits of the land to speedily relieve the holder's estate from the burdens created on it by the holder. The Act does not make the manager, the holder of the estate, but merely prohibits the holder in his own interest from exercising the acts of ownership so that he may not interfere with the wide powers given to the manager to manage the estate. A will speaks from the death of the testator only and the mere execution of a will by the holder is not an alienation of property and in no way affects the possession of the estate by the manager. If an alienation or charge is made without such previous sanction, by a person not competent to make it, the alienation or charge is void in view of S. 12-A (3). It is not cured by sanction given subsequently. Subsequent sanction cannot transform what was a nullity into a valid transaction. (Harries, C. J. and Chatterji, J.)

-Ss. 3 and 32—Record of rights—Entry— Construction-"Non-resumable" tenure- Meaning of.

Where a tenure is entered in the Record of Rights as "non-resumable." the term "non-resumable" must be interpreted in the light of the definition of resumable tenures contained in clause (xxiv) of S. 3 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act; and it must be taken to mean that the tenure does not lapse to the e-tate of the grantor either on the failure of male heirs or on the happening of any other definite contingency. Ss. 4 and 7—Scope—Khunt-Katti tenureholders-If recognised under and consistent with Act—Enumeration of tenants—If exhaustive.
The existence of Khunt-Katti tenure-holders is not consistent with the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act; they are merely a sub-class of the first class of tenants enumerated in S. 4, namely tenure-holders. Besides, S. 7 (2) of the Act clearly recognises the possibility of there being Khunt-Katti tenant other than raiyats having Khunt-Katti rights.

Quaere: Whether the list of classes of tenants in S. 4 of the Act is exhaustive. (Facl Ali, C.I.) and Reuben, J.) Kamakshya Narain Singh v. Hiro Mahton. 23 Pat. 233=219 I.C. 20=18 R.P. 62=11 B.R. 333=1944 P.W.N. 566=A.I.

S. 7 (1)—Khunt-Katti tenancy—Nature of rights—If confined to lands actually reclaimed. A Khunt Katti tenancy is a tenancy for the reclamation of jungle areas; but there is no reason why the interest of a Khunt-Katti tenant should be confined to the lands actually reclaimed. Khunt-Katti rights extend not only to reclaimed Lands but also to unreclaimed lands. (Fazl Ali, C.J. and Reuben, J.) KAMAKSHYA NARAIN SINGH V. S. 17—Settled raiyat—Continuous holding of same land for 12 years-If necessary.

Under S. 17 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. a settled raiyat is a raiyat who has continuously held as a raiyat land in the village; it is not necessary that a raiyat to become a settled raiyat should hold the same land continuously for 12 years. -S. 22—Scope—Occupancy raiyat sub-letting land for building purposes—Suit by landlord to evect tenant and sub-tenant from portion of holding on ground of misuse—Maintainability.

A suit by a landlord to eject an occupancy raivat and his sub-tenent from a part of his holding on the ground that he had misused it in a manner contrary to the provisions of S. 21 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, i.e., by sub-letting it for building purposes, is not maintainable under S. 22 of the Act or under the general law of landlord and tenant. There cannot be a suit for ejectment from a portion of the holding. (Manohar Lall and Meredith, JJ.) JAGDISH CHANDRA DEO DHABAL DEE 2. GAYA PRASAD SINGH. 22. S. 26 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act was designed to legalise in certain circumstances enhancements which under the old law had been illegal. There is further a distinction between the rent payable and the rent paid. Where in a proceeding under Chapters XII and XIII of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, the finding was that from 1954-1961 Sambat, the prevailing rent was Rs. 14-4-0 that from 1961 to the time of inquiry in 1913 A.I), the prevailing rent was Rs. 15, and Assistant Settlement Officer in those proceedings re-established Rs. 14-4-0.

Held, that the Rent Reduction Officer was clearly justified in acting on this finding and in taking 1954 Sambat as the year in which the rent first became payable, and it was wrong to take 1913 A.1). as the year when the rent first became payable for purposes of reduction. (Swanzy.) CHOTA NAGPUR BANKING ASSOCIATION, LTD. v.

ASHUTOSH PATHAK. 8 B.R. 830.

-S. 33 (2) (v)—Construction and scope of-Rent-Date when it originates-Burden of proof. The time given in S. 33 (2) (v) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is an artificial time which is to be treated as the time when the rent is to be regarded as having originated in default of satisfactory evidence of when it actually originated. It might be the case that it was known that the rent did not originate then. If receipts are available for the same rent for the five preceding years, unless it can be proved that the tenancy was created at the existing rent in the first of those five years, then the year when the record of rights was first prepared must still be taken. It would thus be correct to take the year when the terii was prepared if the terii rent and the finally published rent are the same. But it is not enough for the landlord to prove that the rent entered in the record of rights was paid in a particular earlier year unless he can prove also that the rent originated then. If the landlord can prove that the existing rent dates back from a period of low prices which do not admit of any reduction, then no reduction is admissible, even if the landlord cannot prove the exact year when the rent originated; for this, however, the landlord must strictly prove that the same rent for the same holding has been coming on continuously since the period of cheap prices (Middleton) Kamakshya Narain Singh v. Habib Mian 9 B.R. 229.

-S. 35, Proviso (v)-"Current prices"-Ascertainment of -Yearly averages.

The words "current prices" are not defined in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act; the officers administering the Act are bound to take the average over a considerable period. It would have to be decided whether the price at the date of the institution or at the date of disposal was to be considered. It must have been the intention of the Legislature that as far as possible there should not be a great deal of difference in the relief admissible in cases otherwise similar. The best course is to take yearly averages (Middleton.) KAMAKHYA NARAIN SINGH v. ANUP MODI. 1941 P.W.N. 456=7 B.R. 798

-Ss. 46 and 47—Scope—Under-raiyat — Right to claim benefit of Ss. 46 and 47.

Ss. 46 and 47 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act are intended to protect the rights of a raiyat only and not of an under-raiyat. A person who does not claim to hold land under a proprietor, tenure-holder, or a Mundari Khunt-kattidar cannot be held to be a raisat, and cannot claim the benefit of Ss. 46 and 47 of the Act, though he is RAMPRATAP MARWARI v LACHMAN MISTRY.

-S. 46 (4) (a), (as amended in 1938)-Scope — Retrospective operation — Transfer invalid under old law-If validated.

S. 46 (4) (a) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act has no retrospective operation. There is nothing in the language of the clause to justify such a view. Neither expressly nor by necessary implication does it lead to the conclusion that it was the intention of the legislature to validate trans fers which under the former law were invalid when they were made. (Agarwala, I.) DHANNA MUNDA v KOSILA BANIAN. 193 I.C. 851=13 R. P. 635=7 B.R. 624=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 510.

Where a raiyat makes a transfer in contravention of S. 46 (6) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, as it stood before its amendment in 1938 it should have been raised by himself. The inafter taking the consent of the Deputy Commistention of the legislature is to make the pro-sioner on false representations, he is not estopped. from afterwards challenging the validity of the transfer by showing that the transferee was not a person to whom a transfer of a part of it could be validly made, more especially when the transferee was aware that he was not of that category of persons to whom a transfer could be sanctioned by the Deputy Commissioner. --- S. 47-Scope-Occupancy raiyat-Money decree against-Appointment of receiver in execution-Jurisdiction of Court.

S. 47 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act only prohibits the sale of a holding of an occupancy raiyat in execution of a decree against him; it does not, however, prevent execution of a decree, against an agriculturist in any other way open to the decree-holder, such as, by the appointment of a receiver, which is one of the modes permitted by S. 51, C.P. Code. The Court has, therefore, jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in execution of a money decree against an occupancy raiyat, although a sale of his holding in execution is prohibited by S. 47 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. S 48-Scope—Bhuinhari Pahrai lands -Alienation before 1908-If void-Suit to avoid —Limitation.

Before the 1st January, 1908, Bhuinhari Pahrai lands were not inalienable by law, and it was only by the provisions of S. 48 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act of 1908 that such lands were made inalienable. Hence an alienation or transfer made before that date cannot be questioned in a suit instituted in 1941. The lands originally belonging to the village community and then made over to the family of the pahan as reward for services in the past and as a remuneration for services to be rendered in future as village priest, vests in the family of the pahan. Since the pahan is neither elected nor nominated by the village community, apart from the alienor, any member of the family or of the village community canchallenge the alienation. But there is no fresh cause of action, accruing to each successor to the office of pahan. Hence a suit instituted more than 12 years after the alienation would be out of time. – S. 48-A (2), (as amended in 1938)—Scope -Rent decree—Attachment and sale of crops on land of judgment-debtor-Objection on ground that crops were raised by under-tenants-Sustainability.

S. 48-A (1) imposes a bar against execution of a rent decree by sale of the tenure itself, but sub-S. (2) of S. 48-A gives the landlord his remedy by the attachment and sale of produce of the land comprised in the tenure. S. 48-A does not anywhere say that in order to be attached and sold the produce must be still in the possession. of the judgment-debtor (tenure-holder) or that it should have been raised by himself. The induce of the land liable to be proceeded against in the hands either of the judgment-debtor or of any transferee from him or his under-tenant. Where therefore a decree for rent in respect of a bhumihara tenure is sought to be executed under S. 48-A (2) by attachment and sale of the produce of the land comprised in the tenure, the fact that the crops standing on the land had been grown not by the bhumihar judgment-debtor but by some under-tenants is no bar to execution, and an objection raised to execution on that score ought to be disallowed. Bhumbari lands, which are referred to in S. 48 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act include Palmai lands; hence the provision in S. 49 for the transfer of Bhumbari tenures includes transfer of Palmai lands. (Middleton.) Zahlook Ali v. Nandu Pahan. 1941 P.W.N. 744=8 B. R. 223.

S. 49 (2) and (a)—"Reasonable and sufficient purpose"—Meaning of—Transfer of part of encumbered tenure—If can be sanctioned.

It cannot be said that the examples of "reasonable and sufficient purpose" given in S. 49 (2) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act are solely for the benefit of the tenure itself, and not for the benefit of the tenure-holder as well. It is difficult to make an abstraction of what benefits the tenure but does not benefit the tenure-holder. It is not unreasonable to say that as only a part of the tenure is being transferred, the transaction is to the benefit of the remainder which will be the unencumbered property of the proprietors, whereas otherwise the whole tenure would be rencumbered. (Middleton.) Zanoor All v. Nandu Pahan. 1941 P.W.N. 744=8 B.R. 223.

——8. 60, Proviso — Scope and effect— Purchase of tenure by landlord in execution of money decree—Effect on arrears of rent due.

Where a tenure is sold in execution of a money decree against the tenant purchaser who acquires only the right title and interest of the judgment debtor takes the tenure subject to the charge for the arrears of rent remaining due at the date of the sale. Where the landlord himself purchases the tenure in execution of a money decree passed in his suit for arrears of rent after another decree for money in a second suit for arrears of rent for a subsequent period has been passed the landlord takes the tenure subject to the liability for arrears of rent due under the second though such liability may not have been notified in the sale proclamation. The second money decree must be deemed to have been satisfied when the landlord purchased the tenure in execution of the first money decree. (Faal Ali, C.J., Chatterji and Shearer, JJ.) KALYANI PRASAD SINGH v. SURENDRA NATH. 24 Pat. 9=26 P.L. T 66=1945 P.W.N. 123=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 33

S. 60—Scope and effect—Sale of holding— Purchaser—Liability for rent for period prior to sale.

CHOTA NAGPUR TEN. ACT (1908) S. 64.

It is clear that by virtue of S. 60 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, liability for rent for a period prior to the date of sale cannot be imposed on the purchaser of the tenancy whatever may be the contents of the sale proclamation. (Rowland, J.) MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO., LTD. v. CHINTAMONI MONDAL. 196 I.C. 33=14 R.P. 169=7 B.R. 989=A.I R. 1941 Pat. 600.

S. 61—Applicability—Under-raiset—Right to apply for commutation.

S. 61 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is restricted to tenure holders or occupancy raiyats and it mentions specifically the rent of a tenure or a holding. The land cultivated by an under raiyat is neither a tenure nor a holding. An under raiyat with occupancy rights has not got all the rights of occupancy raiyats: and unless the under-raiyat can prove that a custom of commutation exists, he has no right to apply for commutation of his rent under S. 61 of the Act. (Middleton) RANKI URAIN v. STRAJUDDIN. 7 B. R. 929=1941 P.W.N. 430.

S. 62 of the amended Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is a bar to reduction of rent of a holding which was commuted in 1926, as S. 33-A (e) is not included in S. 62 (2) (i). (Swanzy.) KAMARHYA NARAYAN SINGH v. DHUPLAL RAM. 8 B. R. 828.

——S. 63—Scope—Suit for ejectment of tenant and possession—Compromise—Agreement by tenant to pay amount over and above rent—Enforceability—Suit to recover such amount. Jurisdiction of civil court—Such amount, if rent.

Where in a suit for ejectment of a tenant and for recovery of possession, a compromise is entered into by which the defendant tenant agrees to pay to the plaintiff a certain sum of money over and above the rent which he has been paying in consideration of the plaintiff agreeing not to further proceed with the suit, such agreement to pay is perfectly valid and enforceable and does not come within the mischief of S. 63 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. Such additional payment is not rent or a payment by a tenant to a landlord as such, but an amount which is payable under a personal covenant and a suit for recovery of the same is therefore cognizable by the civil court. person not Mundari khuntkattidar - Effect-

Acquisition of right of occupancy.

S. 64 (3) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act does not strictly speaking, apply to lands in a Mundari khuntkattidari Tenancy. If a landlord merely gives his consent to the creation of korkar in a particular village or area to a particular person, such consent does not create any tenancy and does not, therefore, amount to any transfer or alienation of any portion of his interest by the landlord. There is, therefore, nothing in S. 240 which will prevent the landlord from giving consent to a person who is not a Mundari khuntka-tidar for converting the land into korkar in the Mundari khuntkattidari Tenancy. When such person actually creates korkar in the land, S. 64 (3) would apply; if no application to eject him is filed before the Deputy Commissioner within two years of the commencement of the conversion, he cannot be ejected as he acquires a title under the provisions of the Act by the application of S. 67. (Beevor, J.) THAKUR MRITUNJAY SINGH v. JUGAURAON. 1945 P.W.N. 370.

-S. 74-A—Applicability—Purchase of tenure at sale in execution-Right of raiyat to apply for Pradhan service.

There is no warrant for holding that when a tenure is extinguished the rights which existed under it, including the right of the raiyat to apply for a Pradhan service, still survive. S. 74-A of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is concerned with a case in which a Pradhan has been evicted by a landlord; a case of purchase of a tenure at an execution sale does not come within the terms of S, 74-A. -Ss. 84 and 132—Applicability—Settlement record—Presumption of correctness.

Supposing S. 132 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act to be inapplicable to the settlement record, the statutory presumption of its correctness would still attach to the record under S. 84 of the Act, and the onus would be on the person alleging the record to be incorrect. -S. 133-Principle of-Nature of tenancy-Determination—Matter to be ascertained.

In order to determine the nature of a tenancy it is necessary to ascertain the terms under which the tenancy is held, and Courts should not be guided merely by descriptions of the tenancy contained in documents executed subsequent to its inception. S. 133 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act recognises the principle and does not lay down any new principle. (Fazl Alt, C.J. and Reuben, Jr.) Kamakshya Narain Singh v Hiro Mahton. 23 Pat. 233—219 I.C. 20—18 R.P. 62—11 B.R. 333—1944 P.W.N. 566—A.I.R. 1944—Pat. 348 Pat. 348.

S. 139-Applicability-Suit for rent of homestead land held by raiyat-Jurisdiction of civil Court.

A suit for rent of homestead land held by a raiyat is cognizable by the Civil Court. S, 139 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act does not apply to such a case and does not oust the Civil Court's jurisdiction to entertain and try such a suit. (Fazl Ali, C. I. and Chatterji, J.) RUPRANI v, DURGA. 23 Pat. 654=217 I.C. 7=17 R.P 161=1944 P.W.N. 570=11 B.R. 168=26 P.L.T. 93= A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 391.

-S. 177, proviso-Suit for mere declaration without consequential relief-Maintainability.

S. 177 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act does not suggest that the suit which may be brought under the proviso should not be merely a declaratory suit, but, there should also be a prayer in, such a suit for some kind of consequential relief (Fazl Ali, J.) Ss. 198 and 210, (2) (as amended)— Relative scope and application of Decree for money-Execution against property other than tenure-Right of decree-holder-". Iny immovable property"-Meaning of.

Prima facic, the words "any other property." in S. 210 (2) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (as amended) must mean any property other than the tenure itself. One of the requisites of the application of the clause is that the decree must be a decree for arrears of rent due in respect of a tenure, that is to say, it must be a rent decree under the Act. Where the sum for which the decree has been passed is not recoverable as an arrear of rent, the decree has to be regarded as a decree for payment of money, which would be covered by S. 198 of the Act. That section contemplates that where a decree sought to be executed is a decree for money, application may be made for execution against any immovable pro-perty belonging to the debtor. The words "any immovable property" in this section are obviously wider than the words "any other immovable property" in S. 210 (2). But under S. 198, sanction of the Commissioner is necessary, and in the absence of such sanction the property cannot be sold. (Fazl Ali and Shearer, II.) LAL INDERTIT NATH v. CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE ACT (XV OF 1872), Ss. 19 and 42 (c)—Construction - Guardian for giving consent to marriage of minor—appointment of—Permissibility—Power of Court.

The words of Ss. 19 and 42 (c) of the Christian Marriage Act cannot be construed as meaning that if the parents are dead and there is no person resident in India authorised to give consent to the marriage of the minor, a guardian of the minor for the purpose of giving such consent should be appointed which guardian would exercise his mind in the matter of the desirability or otherwise of the marriage of the minor and would be in a position to enter a protest with the Registrar within the meaning of S. 44 of the Act. Such a construction involves the importing into the sections of provisions which are not there and which would create a class of guardians who presumably would know nothing about the status and position of the minor concerned and the desirability or otherwise of the marriage of the minor. The proper and correct construction of the sections is to read them as meaning that where the father of the minor is dead or where the guardian of the person of such minor, either testamentary or otherwise appointed by the father or by any competent authority, is not in guard has been called out for duty until the existence, or where in the absence of any such order calling them out for duty has been notified guardian the mother of the minor is also dead, it in the Calcutta Police Gazette and until such cannot be stated that there is any person authorised to give the consent to such marriage of the any of the special powers of a Police-officer.

any of the three categories above mentioned is in existence and happens to be "not resident" in India that the latter part of S. 19 comes into operation and the consent of such guardian is dispensed with. There is no provision for the appointment of a guardian for the purpose of giving consent to the marriage of the minor in case any of the persons answering any of the above three categories is not in existence. -S. 88-Scope-"Personal law"-Marriage of Roman Catholic with Protestant wife in Protestant Church without dispensation solemnised by Protestant Pastor-If void-Release by wife in favour of husband according to custom—If dis-solves marriage—Subsequent marriage with Protestant wife—"Bigamy"—Offence.

A marriage between a Roman Catholic husband a d Protestant wife solemnised in Protestant Church by a Protestant Pastor and without a dispensation under the canon law of the Church of Rome, is not invalid or void under S. 88 of the Christian Marriage Act. Such a marriage is a valid marriage. A marriage to attract the provisions of S. 88, must be a nullity according to the personal law of a party; the "personal law" contemplated by S. 88 is only that part of the personal law which relates to absolute impediments to any marriage at all between the parties, even marriage according to the rites of their own churches, impediments such as prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity. 'Personal law' in S. 88, means the personal law of either party which relates to absolute impediments to any marriage between the parties. Such a marriage being legal and valid, if the husband marries another woman a Projestant, during the subsistence of that marriage, he is guilty of the offence of bigamy under S. 494, I. P. Code. A release executed by the protestant wife in favour of the husband, before his subsequent marriage with a protestant wife, cannot operate as a dissolution of the first marriage with the Protestant wife under S. 10 of the Indian Divorce Act, though the custom of the community might allow it. The custom is not a part of the personal law of the parties which invalidates the marriage ab initio and there is nothing in the Divorce Act which permits the dissolution of a legal marriage between Christians by reason of any custom applicable to either or both of the parties to the marriage. The release deed would not therefore validate the second marriage or afford a valid defence to a charge of bigamy. (Happell, I) GNANASOUNDARI. Proceeding if one in execution.

In a case where the special provisions of O. 20, R. 12, C. P. Code, can be properly applied, S. 2 (2), C. P. Code, cannot be invoked. Nor would S. 47, apply for a proceeding under O. 20, R. 12, C. P. Code, i.e., an inquiry into mesne profits, is not a proceeding in execution but one in the suit itself. An order for an enquiry as to mesne profits must necessarily be embodied in a preliminary decree which must ordinarily be followed by a final decree. Where a preliminary decree awards mesne profits from a specified date and gives a direction under R. 12 of O. 20, there has to be a final decree drawn up in accordance with R. 12 (3). Until that final decree is drawn up there is no right of appeal against the order for mesne profits (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) SAHIJRAM RUPCHAND v. ALU TUNDU. I.L.R. Although a finding by the trial Court that the pre-emption of the entire pre-emptible property, namely, the zamindari rights as distinguished from the mortgagee rights, though it is part of the property conveyed under the sale deed, is permissible, is conclusive as regards that Court on the question whether the plaintiff could maintain the suit for partial pre-emption, it cannot that adjudication. Hence it does not amount to a decree under S. 2 (2), C.P. Code, and is not appealable under S. 96. Where a preliminary point raised in defence in a suit may possibly he decided against the plaintiff and may terminate in dismissal of the suit on that point alone, the adjudication would no doubt amount to a formal expression conclusiely determining the rights of the parties, but where such an adjudication does not put an end to the suit, no right of appeal against such an adjudication will come into existence as the adjudication does not amount to a decree as defined in S. 2 (2) of C.P. Plaintiff sued the defendant for partition of certain joint properties and for his share of profits of those properties till the disposal of the suit. There were among the properties a putni taluk and certain plots of land held in khas by the putnidars. The plaintiff's case was that these lands were comprised in the holdings of tenants holding under the putnidars, but those holdings had been purchased with the income of the putni and so belonged to them in equal shares. The Court found that some of these lands were acquired by the defendant with his own money and not with joint money. The plaintiff claimed to have the profits of even these lands assessed on the basis of khas cultivation.

Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to profits calculated only on the basis of the cash rent and that would be payable by the subordinate tenants holding under the putni and not on the basis of the actual crops raised on those plots. But before a stay can be ordered it must be made out that the matter in issue in both the suits is the same, although the reliefs asked for in the one is not of the same character as in the other. The real test whether the two suits are parallel is that if the first was determined, the matters raised in the second suit would be res judicata by reason of the decision of the first suit. There is nothing in law to prevent a judge on the original side of a chartered High Court from granting an injunction to restrain a defendant from proceeding with a suit in another Court in a different province, provided it is shown on the face of the plaint that the High Court has jurisdiction to try the suit before it. It is no objection to the Court granting an injunction because the defendant does not reside within the jurisdiction or carry on business within the invisdiction of the Court. (Kania. J.)

Though S. 11, C. P. Code, does not in terms apply to execution proceedings, the principle of res judicata applies. Where an execution application against a surety is enquired into and on its being found that he did not stand surety to the judgment-debtor, the application is dismissed and the proceedings 'struck off', there is an adjudication on the merits in respect of the surety's liability and hence it would operate as res judicata in subsequent execution proceedings against the surety. An order 'striking off' an execution application cannot be always regarded as legally ineffective. (Bennett, J.) RAM GOPAL v. BANSIDHAR. 17 Luck. 366=197 I.C. 305=1941 O.W.N. 1227=1941 A.W.R. Though in view of the Explanation appended to R. 2 of O. 2, C. P. Code, successive claims in respect of rent for several years arising out of the same obligation are deemed to constitute one cause of action, it cannot be said that a composite cause of action relating to arrears of more than one year is a different one from that relating to one year. If it is possible to treat the entire cause of action upon which the later suit is founded as divisible and if in the earlier suit one of the component parts of the cause of action was relied on then the previous decision will stand as a bar to the extent of the matter involved in the previous suit. If an earlier decision bars a suit to recover arrears of rent for one year, it must logically bar a suit in respect of any other year. Hence, a decision in a suit for arrears of rent for one year would operate as res judicata in a later suit between the same parties for the recovery of arrears of rent for a number of years filed in a Court of a grade higher than that in which the earlier suit was filed. The competency of the Court to try the subsequent suit refers to its competency at the time when the first suit was brought. (Niyogi, J.) TEKCHAND KAPURCHAND v. BIRZABAI, I.L. R. cessary.

Per Nasim Ali, J.—The limits within which the doctrine of res judicata should be applied as between co-defendants are these:—(a) that the co-defendants were necessary or proper parties in the former suit; (b) that there was a conflict of interest between them; (c) that there was a necessity to decide that conflict in order to give the plaintiff appropriate relief; and (d) that there was a decision of the question between the co-defendants. S. 11—Co-defendants—Res judicata bet-

Where there is a conflict of interest between the defendants and it has to be decided to give relief to the plaintiff and the question is decided, the defendant adversely affected by the decision has a right to appeal against it even if he was only a pro forma defendant, and the decision would operate as res judicata. (Ross, J. M.) DEVI PRASAD v. SITABALLABH JI MAHARAJ. 1944 R.D. 42=1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 9.

-S. 11-Co-defendants-Points for consideration.

In order to see whether the doctrine of res judicata may be invoked in a subsequent suit by persons whose predecessors had been impleaded as co-defendants in a previous suit or who were themselves co-defendants in such previous suit, it is necessary to consider the following points: (1) What was the relief claimed by the plaintiff in the previous suit? (2) Were the codefendants proper parties to the suit? (3) Was there a conflict of interest between them? (4) Was it necessary to decide that conflict in order to give the plaintiff the relief that he claimed? (5) Was the question in issue between the codefendants actually decided. (Edgley and Biswas, II.) FATEH NASIB v. SWARUP CHAND HUKUM CHAND. 73 C.L.J. 475.

-S. 11-Co-defendants-Res judicata between—Conditions.

In order that a decision may operate as res judicata between the co-defendants, three conditions must be fulfilled, namely, there must be (1) a conflict of interest between the co-defendants, (2) the necessity to decide that conflict in order to give the plaintiff appropriate relief, and (3) a decision of the question between the codefendants. The first condition will be satisfied if the pleadings on record raise the conflict of interest as between the defendants no matter whether the co-defendants pleaded anything inter se or not. (Nasim Ali and Pal, JJ.) CHANDU-LAL AGARWALA v. KHALILAR RAHAMAN. I.L. R. (1942) 2 Cal. 299=205 I.C. 344=15 R.C. 599=75 C.L.J. 301=46 C.W.N. 729=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 76.

-S. 11-Co-defendants-Res judicata bettween—Conditions.

In order that a finding may operate as res judicata as between co-defendants three conditions are necessary: (1) There must be a conflict of interest between the defendants concerned; (2) it must be necessary to decide this conflict in order to give the plaintiff the relief he claims; and (3) be give the plantin the relief lie Claims, and (9) the question between the defendants must have been finally decided. -S. 11—Co-defendants—Res judicata between—Conditions.

In order that a decision should operate as res. judicata between co-defendants three conditions must exist: (1) There must be a conflict of interest between those co-defendants; (2) it must be necessary to decide the conflict in order to give the plaintiff the relief he claims; and (3) the question between the co-defendants Where a plaintiff have been finally decided. claimed to be entitled to a charge on an estate left by a testator and the defendant pleaded that certain other villages in another's hands were also charged and that the other person should be impleaded and he was so impleaded and the question as to the existence of the charge on that person's property was finally decided by the appellate Court, held that the question of the existence of the charge on the other villages was: directly raised and had to be decided before the Court could determine what relief claimed by the plaintiff could be given to him and hence such a decision would operate as res judicata in any

-S. 11-Competent Court- Decision by District Judge on reference under S. 30, Land Acquisition Act, as to title to land acquired—

Res judicata.

A decision by a District Judge on a reference to him under S. 30 of the Land Acquisition Act on the question of title to the acquired land is a decision of a competent Court and operates as res judicata in a subsequent civil suit. N's holding was sold under S. 112 of the Madras Estates Land Act and purchased by the predecessor-intitle of P. Subsequently the Government acquired a part of the holding under the Land Acquisition Act. N and P both claimed the compensation money. On a reference to the District Judge, the latter decided that P was the owner of the holding and entitled to the compensation money. N was not present at the hearing of the enquiry. N afterwards filed a suit for a declaration that the sale for arrears of rent was null and void for want of notice to N as required by S. 112 of the Estates Land Act. P raised the plea of res judicata.

Held, that the decision of the District Judge on the reference under S. 30 of the Land Acquisition Act was a decision by a Court of competent jurisdiction and therefore operated as residudicata. -S. 11—Comfetent Court-Decision Insolvency Court that properties of Hindu in-solvent are self-acquired—Direction that sons claiming them as joint family properties may file separate suit—Subsequent suit claiming properties as joint family properties- Res judicata.

If there is a final and conclusive adjudication by a competent Court of any issue between the parties, a mere direction by that Court that another proceeding (such as a regular suit on title) might be taken for having the point more adequately considered and decided, is of no availwhen a plea of res judicata has to be considered. A decision by the Insolvency Court under S. 4 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is final and conclusive between the parties. Where, there-fore, on an application by a purchaser at a sale by the Official Receiver of the properties by a Hindu father who has been adjudicated insolvent, to remove the obstruction by the ansoivent's sons in taking possession, the Insolvency Court makes an order holding the properties to be the self-acquired properties of the insolvent, such an order, being within the jurisdiction of the Court under S. 4 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, operates as res judicata on the question of title to remove the obstruction by the insolvent's sons in a subsequent suit by the sons for partition, and the sons cannot agitate the question of the pro-perties being joint family properties, in spite of a direction by the Insolvency Court that a separate suit might be filed. Where a decision has been given by a competent Court in a previous suit, regarding part of the claim in the subsequent suit, and between the same parties, then so much of the claim, which is common to the two suits should be excluded from the subsequent suit as barred by the principle of res judicata. -S. 11—Competent Court—Test.

In order that a decison in a former suit may operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit, it is necessary that the Court which tried the former suit must have been a Court competent to try the subsequent suit. The decree in a previous suit cannot be pleaded as res judicata in a subsequent suit unless the Judge by whom it was made had jurisdiction to try and decide not only the particular matter in issue but also the subsequent suit itself in which the issue is subsequently raised. In a suit for rent in the Court of the Sub-Collector under the Madras Estates Land Act, the plaintiff applied for leave to amend the schedule of land attached to the plaint on the ground of a clerical error in the description. Leave was refused and a revision application to the District Collector under S. 205 of the Estates Land Act was also dismissed. The suit was tried and eventually dismissed by the Sub-Collector the main ground that no decree could be granted on a defective plaint. On appeal, the District Judge, holding that there was a clerical error, allowed the amendment and remanded the suit to the Sub-Collector for disposal according to law, overruling the objection to his jurisdiction to allow the amendment. In appeal to the High Court from the order of remand it was contended that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to allow the amendment, as the matter had already been decided by the District Collector in the revision application and his decision operated as res judicata in the present proceedings.

Held, that there was a clear distinction between the decisions of Courts which had an inherent jurisdiction to come to those decisions and cases in which Courts had no jurisdiction at all and while the decisions in the former were merely voidable, in the latter they were void and could not be relied upon as constituting res judicata; (2) that in the present case there was no question of inherent jurisdiction lying in the Court of the District Collector, as his jurisdiction was severely limited, not only by the fact that it was conferred upon him by a particular Act (the Estates Land Act) and therefore dealt with a very restricted subject-matter, but also by reason of the very terms of S. 205 of the Act; (3) that since S. 205 related only to a proceeding in a suit from which no appeal lay and since an appeal clearly lay from the decision in the present suit, the District Collector had no jurisdiction to pass the order in revision which he passed in so far as it decided on the merits that no amendment should be allowed; (4) that it therefore could not and did not operate as res judicata in the appeal to the District Judge from the dismissal of the suit, so that the decision of the District Judge could not be attacked on the ground of res judicula. (King, I.) Pullayya v. Zamindar of Ratnavaram. 219 I.C. 46= 18 R.M. 52=57 L.W. 152=1944 M.W.N. 147=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 257=(1944) 1 M.L.

It is open to a plaintiff to fix any value for jurisdiction, provided he does not exceed the maximum laid down in S. 4 of the Suits Valuation Act. But the plaintiff cannot deliberately increase the value (though still below the maximum) in a subsequent suit on the same cause of action in order to avoid the bar of res judicata. ciple—Limits to—Earlier order on claim under O. 21, R. 63—Suit not filed within one year to set aside order—Later contrary decision—If prevails over former order.

Where there are conflicting decisions or judgments inter partes the later adjudication should be taken as superseding the earlier for purposes of res judicata. But this principle cannot be applied in a case where the earlier decision is an order on a claim petition which under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, has become conclusive, O. 21, R. 63, is a statutory provision and the Court must apply it. The provision being mandatory there is no room for the application of the principle of res judicata as regards conflicting decisions in such a case. (Leach, C. J. and Byers, J.) AKRAMMAL v. KOMARASAMI CHETTIAR. I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 40=208 I.C. 32=16 R. M. 145=55 L.W. 511=1942 M.W.N. 567=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 36=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 315.

Connected Cases.

8. 11—Connected cases—Appeal against decree in one only—Res judicata—Application of rule,

Where several suits are tried together and disposed of by one judgment, different decrees being passed in each, but only one decree is appealed against and the decrees in the other suits have become final, if the object of the appeal is in substance, if not in form, to get rid of the very adjudication which is put forward as constituting res judicata that adjudication should not be held to bar the appeal. It would lead to startling results if it were held that an appellate tribunal is precluded from dealing with a question which comes before it on appeal because an inferior Court upon the same facts but in a case other than the one under appeal had given a decision which had not been appealed against at the same time as the decision in the case under appeal. Three suits in which the same question arose for decision, viz., whether the plaintiff, the admitted half-sister of the last male-holder was entitled to his estate under Act II of 1929 in preference to the admitted agnates' were tried together and disposed of by a common judgment. Only this issue was decided in all the cases and all the suits were dismissed without deciding the other issues and separate decrees were passed in each. An appeal was filed in the High Court against the decree in one of the suits and two appeals were filed in the District Court against the decrees in the other two suits. The appeals in the District Court were withdrawn later to the High Court, in view of the pendency of the appeal in the High Court; but as it was found that the appellant had not paid sufficient Courtfee on the two appeals withdrawn from the District Court and had failed to make up the deficiency, those two appeals were ultimately rejected. It was pleaded that in as much as the decrees in the other two suits had become final as a result of the appeals therefrom having been rejected, the other appeal was not maintainable, because the decision in the other two suits operated as res judicata.

Held, that the doctrine of res judicata had no application when the object of the appeal was in substance if not in form, to get rid of the decision which was pleaded in bar, and the appeal in the High Court was therefore competent and not barred. Where a suit for redemption of a kanom and an application for renewal of that kanom are disposed of by a common judgment, and an appeal is preferred against the decision in the latter and no appeal is preferred from the decree in the redemption suit, it cannot be said that the appeal is barred by res judicata. The very object of the appeal, in substance, if not in form, is to get rid of the adjudication which is said to constitute res judicata and the appeal, if successful, would have the effect of superseding the adjudication in the suit. The plaintiff sued for partition of certain plots of land against three defendants who opposed the suit on the ground that the properties were the debuttar properties of a deity of whom they were the shebaits. The Court found that all the plots except one were absolute debuttar property and dismissed the suit in respect of them inasmuch as the deity was not made a party. On appeal, the High Court did not disturb this finding but dealt with the other plot in suit. The plaintiff subsequently brought a suit for a declaration of his title to the same plots of land which were found to be debuttar in the earlier suit impleading the same defendants both in their personal capacity as well as in their capacity as shebaits of the deity along with their tenant.

Held, that the suit was barred by rcs judicata on the following grounds:—(i) The question whether the land sought to be partitioned in the earlier suit was debuttar, or not was not one which was merely incidental. It was a vital question and it must be taken to be a question directly and substantially in issue inasmuch as if the property was debuttar, the suit for partition would necessarily fail. (ii) The suit for partition was not dismissed for defect of parties. The reason for the dismissal was the finding that the property was debuttar and the other finding that the suit was bad for defect of parties was merely a consequential one. (iii) The defendants, although they were impleaded only in their personal capacity in the partition suit, contested that suit as shabaits on behalf of the deity. They were, therefore, litigating under the same title in both the suits. The addition of the tenant of the defendants as a party made no difference as he was not asserting any independent title himself. (iv) The decision of the Court in the earlier suit as regards the land which it held to be debuttar had not merged in the decision of the High Court. (Sen, J.) NABENDRA KISHORE Roy v. -S. 11—Execution proceedings—Constructive res judicata—Failure of judgment-debtor to object to saleability of property before sale-

Effect of.
Per Bhide, J.—Where the judgment-debtor had notice of the attachment and sale but had failed to raise the objection that the property was not liable to be sold under S. 60, C. P. Code, before the sale, he is precluded from raising it after the sale on the principle of constructive

res judicata.

Per Tek Chand, J.-Where the order for sale is passed under O. 21, R. 64, C. P. Code, after notice had been given to the judgment-debtor and he has not objected that the property is not liable to sale, and in furtherance of that order the property has been sold, the judgment-debtor is precluded from questioning the propriety of that order and impugning the sale on the ground which he might and ought to have taken before sale. (Tek Chand, Bhide and Beckett, JJ.) GAURI v. UDE. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 559=203 I.C. 166=44 P.L.R. 302=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 153 (F.B.).

-S. 11-Execution proceedings-Constructive res judicata-Failurc of judgment-debtor to raise objection as to absence of personal decree under O. 34, R. 6—Estoppel.

It is well established that the principle of constructive res judicata applies to execution proceedings. The failure of the judgment-debtor to object at the proper time to the proceedings for attachment and sale of his properties other than those mortgaged on the ground of the absence of a personal decree under O. 34, R. 6, C. P. Code, estops him from taking the objection at a later stage. (Bhide, I.) JOGINDRA SINGH v. SHIB NARAIN SINGH. 195 I.C. 288 = 14 R.L. 54=43 P.L.R. 60=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 171.

on that appplication. When the parties proceed on the footing that the application was a good one and one which the executing Court had jurisdiction to entertain, and is disposed of by the Court, it must be held that the question of jurisdiction and maintainability of the application is by implication deemed to have been decided against the judgment-debtor. It is not open to him to raise this objection on a later occasion and to plead that a subsequent application for and to plead that a subsequent application for execution is barred by limitation as the former application was not in accordance with law. (Fast Ali and Shearer, JJ.) HARBANS NARAYAN SINGH v. UMA SHANKAR PRASAD, 196 I.C. 621=14 R.P. 215=8 B.R. 63=22 Pat.L.T. 809=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 68.

-S. 11-Execution proceedings-Constructive res judicata—Notice to judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 66—Judgment-debtor declining on frivolous ground—Non-apperance and failure to object to execution—Order "proclaim and sell"
—Operates as res judicata in subsequent pro-

Where a judgment-debtor fails to appear and raise objections to the executability of the decree (e.g. on the ground of limitation) and the Court passes an order on the execution petition, "proclaim and sell" in his absence such order is final and conclusive against the judgment-debtor who has failed to raise a defence to the executability of the decree, despite the fact that the execution petition on which such order has been passed is subsequently dismised. Such an order would operate as constructive res judicata in a subsequent execution petition against the judgmentdebtor on the question of executability of the decree. The fact that the execution petition is dismissed shortly after the date fixed for the appearance of the judgment-debtor would not mean that the earlier order is not an order binding on him with its implication of executability. The mere fact that the executing Court before passing the order, had failed to declare that service on the judgment-debtor was suffi-cient and to declare him ex parte does not lead to the inference that he was not properly served and therefore the principle of constructive res judicata cannot be applied. It is no doubt the duty of the Court to declare the service sufficient if the service is not a personal one, but the omission to expressly declare a service sufficient does not mean that there has been no due service. The Court has to consider the facts of each case and decide on those facts whether the failure to declare a judgment-debtor ex parte was a mere omission and the subsequent procedure made it clear that the Court did consider the service sufficient, or whether the facts of the case left in some doubt the question whether there was a sufficient service or not. Where on the facts it is found that the judgment-debtor had refused to accept service on a frivolous and evasive ground, and that the executing Court, after noting it, immediately ordered "proclaim and sell," it must clearly be held that the Court did consider service sufficient before it passed the order. The judgment-debtor must consequently be held bound, on the principle of constructive res judicata, by all orders passed which impliedly decided any question that he might have raised with regard to the executability of the decree. (Horwill, J.) Adhilakshmi Ammal v. Srinivasa Goundan. 219 I.C. 344=57 L. W. 40=1944 M.W.N. 94=18 R.M. 75=A. Where a notice given to the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 66, C. P. Code, does not contain the list of properties which are sought to be sold, but merely that the date had been fixed. for settling the terms of the sale proclamation it cannot be said that he has definite information as to what the properties are that are brought to sale. If he does not appear in Court and raise objections to attach and sell the properties, the order settling the proclamation in his absence would not operate as res judicata so as to estop him from disputing the liability of the properties to be attached and sold, at a later stage of the execution, merely by reason of the fact that he has failed to be present on the date of hearing fixed for settling the proclamation. Although the execution of a decree may have been actually barred by time at the date of the application made for its execution yet, if an order for such execution had been regularly made by a competent Court having jurisdiction to try, whether it was barred by time or not, such order although erroneous, must, if unreversed, be treated as valid and will operate as res judicata. Where the surety has been made a party to the execution proceedings and has raised a defence that has been decided, then it is not open to him to raise again the same defence in a separate suit. Where the objections of a judgment-debtor to the execution of a decree have been dismissed for default, but the execution proceedings have not fructified, it would yet be open to the judgment-debtor to file fresh objections to execution based on the ground of limitation not raised before. He must do this at the first suitable opportunity, and if he does not. then the point must be deemed to have been raised and decided against him, by reason of the principle of res judicata which applies to execution proceedings as much as to other legal proceedings. Where, however, previous execu-tion applications are found to have never been made the subject of a proper contest and decision, but to have been settled by reference to private arbitrations, it cannot be said that the question of the executability of the decree was ever heard and decided or that it was, by necessary implication, heard and decided. S. 11—Execution proceedings—Failure of judgment-debtor to appear on notice under O. 21, R. 22—Effect—Res judicata.

The rule of constructive res judicata must be applied with great caution against a party to the execution who had no direct notice of a point and therefore no opportunity to raise it. The failure of a judgment-debtor to dispute the amount of the claim made in the application for execution after he had received a notice under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, does not operate as a bar to his raising the dispute at another stage of the same execution proceedings on the principle of res judicata. The failure of the judgment-debtor to appear in answer to a notice under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, would not preclude him from contending afterwards that there had been a partial satisfaction of the claim under the decree sought to be executed. (Broomfield and Wassoodew, JJ.) MITTASAHEB HIRAMA v. GURUNATH HANMANT. 208 I.C. 418=16 R.B. 85=45 Bom.L.R. 519=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 252.

Notwithstanding the absence of an express decision, the order operates as res judicata, and the judgment-debtor is precluded from raising in a subsequent execution petition an objection that the decree is not executable or that the Court has no jurisdiction to execute the decree. On an execution application filed more than three years after the date of the decree, a notice under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, was served upon the judgment-debtor and the execution case was put down for hearing on a certain date. In the meantime the decree-holder filed a petition, obviously at a time when the judgmentdebtor was not present, stating that he had received a certain sum from the judgment-debtor in part satisfaction of the decree. On the day of hearing no objection as to limitation was taken by the judgment-debtor, and the execution case was dismissed on part satisfaction with costs. Some time later, the decree-holder filed another execution application.

Held, that the judgment-debtor was precluded at that stage from raising the objection that the previous application was barred by time. (Khun-dkar and Biswas, JJ.) PROMATHA NATH v. HALU MIA. 49 C.W.N. 260=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 335.

——S. 11—Execution proceedings—Plea of limitation raised and abandoned—If can be raised at later stage—Res judicata.

It is a well established principle that a party is not entitled to raise at a later stage of a procoeding a plea in bar which was open to him at an earlier stage and which he had an opportunity of raising, or which, having been raised, has been overruled. When a plea in bar of execution is not taken or is overruled, the judgmentdebtor is not a later stage entitled to challenge the validity of the proceedings on that ground. Where a point of limitation is raised and apparently abandoned or is not pressed, it cannot be raised again at a later stage, by reason of the principal of res judicata. (Harries, C.J. and Agarwala, J.) SITLA SAHAI v. GOURI NATH. 202 I.C. 264=8 B.R. 866=15 R.P. 106=23 Pat.L.T. 361=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 477.

—S. 11—Execution proceedings—Res judicata—Attachment of properties—Objection by debtor—Order cancelling attachment—Observation that decree-holder had right to attach such right as debtor had in properties under will—If decision barring plea in bar of attachment of such rights.

Where on a petition by the judgment-debtor objecting to an attachment of his properties the Court cancels the attachment on the ground that the will under which the judgment-debtor derived title to the properties attached does not disclose any such right as was specified in the application for attachment, but the Court observes that the decree-holder would be entitled to attach and proceed against such interest as the judgment-debtor has in the properties under the terms of the will, such observation does not amount to a definite finding or decision that such rights as he had are attachable, so as to operate as res judicata and preclude the judgment-debtor from pleading that his right in the properties under the will is not liable to be attached and sold in execution in a subsequent execution ap-plication filed by the judgment-creditor to attach such right, title and interest as he had in the will. (Kuppuswami properties under the Ayyar, J.) SOOMANARAYANA CHETTIAR v. SHEN-BAGATHAMMAL. 1944 M.W.N. 588=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 77=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 114.

Where the judgment-debtor in answer to a notice of sale proclamation objects to the proposed sale of a particular item of property on the ground that the property is not included in the decree under execution, but fails to substantiate his objection, he cannot afterwards raise the same plea in another stage of the execution, although no sale was held under the prior proclamation and a fresh proclamation is taken out for a sale. The matter in issue, being resjudicata, cannot be re-agitated. (King, J.) MAHARAJA OF COCHIN v. THUPRAN. 200 I.C. 324=15 R.M. 76=1941 M.W.N. 805=A.I. R. 1941 Mad. 861=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 792.

ing as to jurisdiction, if implied finding—Findpassed in suit—Such implied finding, if res judicata.

A Court is competent to decide an issue of jurisdiction, if raised. If, therefore, it entertains a suit and passes a decree without any objection being raised to its jurisdiction, it must be taken that it came to an implied finding that the facts giving it jurisdiction were in existence. Such an implied finding as to jurisdiction, be it right or wrong, is one given in the exercise of the court's jurisdiction, and would operate as wes judicata in a subsequent suit. (Sen, J.) HARIRAM SARAOGI v. RAMESWAR LAL. 49 C.W. N. 354.

———S. 11—Findings—Several issues framed—Décision on each—If res judicata.

Where several issues have been framed, the decision on each issue which supports the ultimate decision in the case must be regarded as res judicata between the parties to the suit. But if a decision on an issue does not support the ultimate decree, such decision cannot operate as res judicata. (Edgley and Biswas, JJ.). FATEH NASIB v. SWARUP CHAND HUKUM CHAND. 73 C.L.J. 475.

Heard and finally decided.

S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Application to set aside ex parte decree under 0. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code—Dismissal—Subsequent suit to set aside on same ground—Res judicata.

Where an application is filed under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, to set aside an ex parte decree on the allegations that the summons had been fraudulently suppressed, that the plaintiff, though a minor at the date of the suit, was impleaded as a major, and that the claim in the suit was entirely false and supported by false evidence, but these were found against and the application was dismissed by the Court which was competent to decide the matter, the decision operates as res judicata, and no separate suit to set aside the decree on these grounds can be maintained. (Harries, C.J. and Fasl Ali, J.) LAGANMANI KUER v. RAM GOVIND SINGH. 199 I.C. 736=14 R.P. 626=8 B.R. 623=1942 P. W.N. 88=23 Pat.L.T. 225=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 357.

S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Award of interest in prior suit on particular facts—If res judicata in subsequent suit on question of interest.

Where in a previous suit between the parties the Court for some reason or another, on the particular facts of the case, awards interest to a party, it cannot be said that the question of interest is decided for all time. It is impossible to hold upon such materials that the Court in a subsequent suit is bound by the principle of resignation of the later suit. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lall, J.) Shiva Prasad Sinch v. Sris Chandra Nandi. 22 Pat. 220=210 I.C. 426=16 R.P. 147=10 B.R. 259=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 327.

——S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Award under Bombay Co-operative Societies Act—Execution—Award not invalid or without jurisdiction on face of it—Execution ordered—Subsequent suit to declare award ultra vires—Question of validity of award—If res judicata.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 11.

When there is nothing on the face of an award under the Bombay Co-operative Societies Act, to indicate that it was without jurisdiction, the executing Court is not competent to go into the validity of the award and refuse to execute it. The question as to the validity of the award cannot therefore be deemed to have been decided so as to operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the parties to have the award declared null and void. (Broomfield and Lokur, JJ.) KARASHIDDAYYA SHIDDAYYA V. GAJANAN URBAN CO-OPERATIVE BANK., LTD. I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 400=212 I.C. 205=16 R.B. 332=45 Bom.L.R. 553=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 288.

S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Claim not adjudicated upon in prior suit—Plaintiff not proceeding with claim—Choice to wait for a different action.

Where a claim made in a prior suit is not judicially considered or adjudicated upon between the parties and all that happened is that the party elected not to proceed with the action for that purpose but to seek a judicial decision thereon in other proceedings, there is no bar of resjudicata to that claim being adjudicated in a different suit. (Lord Russel.) Okusanya v. Akanwo. 197 I.C. 27=54 L.W. 618=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 781=1941 O.A. 735 (P. C.)=8 B.R. 174=14 R.P.C. 75=1941 O.L. R. 835.

A decision may be wrong and a decision may be on a pure point of law, but if the matter has been put into issue, then the decision will bind the parties and their privies in a representative suit. Where a suit as framed under Mahomedan law is held to be barred by O. 22, R. 9 (1), a subsequent suit, based on customary law will not be barred by res judicata by reason of the previous decision, if the question of customary law was neither heard nor decided in the prior suit. (Tek Chand and Dalip Singh, JJ.) JAN MOHAMMAD v. MOHAMMAD KHAN. 196 I. C. 130=14 R.L. 132=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 169.

-S. 11—"Heard and finally decided"—Decree subject to final decision of Privy Council in another case.

A decree in a suit which is expressed to be "subject to the final decision of the Privy Counschill in another case is not a final decree within the meaning of S. 11, C. P. Code. (Lord Thankerton.) KUMAR CHANDRA SINGH v. MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARY CO. 69 I.A. 51=I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 1=8 B.R. 627=14 R.P.C. 128=46 C. W.N. 802=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (P.C.) 23 =199 I.C. 545=A.I.R. 1942 P.C. 8 (P.C.).

-S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Execution application impleading surety-Plea of adjustment of decree between creditor and debtor discharging surety-Court not going into question as adjustment was uncertified—Suit by surety for declaration of discharge—Res judicata.

Where in execution proceedings a surety for the judgment-debtor is impleaded as a party and sought to be proceeded against, and a plea that the surety is discharged from liability on account of an adjustment between the creditor and debtor is rejected on the ground that the adjustment, not being certified, could not be recognised by the executing Court, and the executing Court makes no finding on the question as to whether the surety had been relieved from his liability on account of the adjustment, it would be open to the surety to agitate that question in a regular suit by him to have it declared that he is discharged from liability. Such a suit is not barred by res judicata. (Divatia, J.) BONDRU AVASU v. DAGADU EKOBA. I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 382=209 I.C. 435=45 Bom.L.R. 438= A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 246.

S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Finding of trial Court—Res judicata when appeal preferred against decree.

No finding of a court of first instance can be said to have been "finally decided" any matter in issue, when a competent appeal has been preferred from its decree and hence such finding cannot operate as res judicata. (Wadsworth and Patanjali Sastri, II.) JANIKAMMA v. VENKATA RAJAGOPALA CHINNARAO. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 62=(1944) M. W. N. 702 (2)=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 62=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 384.

-S. 11-Heard and finally decided-Finding without issue.

The appellant executed a sale deed and a lease as well as a mortgage in favour of the plaintiff's whose case was that the consideration was the balance of remittances made by the plaintiff. In a suit to recover possession by the plaintiff if the property covered by the sale-deed and lease the defence in the suit was that the two transactions were benami and that no interest passed to the plaintiffs. The plea of benami was accepted and the suit dismissed and plaintiff's story that the remittances were loans was rejected. In a subsequent suit to enforce the mortgage on the issue whether the remittances were loans by the public, Held, the finding in the previous suit did not operate as res judicata. (Henderson, J.) -S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Question of estoppel decided by trial Court but left open by appellate Court—If can be raised in later suit.

Where a question of estoppel is raised and it is decided by the trial Court but the appellate Court leaves the question open, there is no bar to the same question being raised in a later suit between the same parties. (Sathe, S.M.) MARWA v. JAGESHWAR. 1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 240=1943 R.D. 393.

Issue of Law.

-S. 11—Issue of law—Decision on—Change in law-Effect.

There is no res judicata when the law has changed since the decision in question was given. If the law has been altered since the decision on a particular question of law, that decision on that issue in the earlier suit would not operate as res judicata with regard to the same question in a subsequent suit. Hence a decision in regard to land which was grove-land under Agra Tenancy

Act of 1901 would not operate as res judicala in a subsequent suit with respect to the same land after the law has been altered by the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926, in regard to the status of such a tenant. (Dible, J.M. and Ross, A.M.) ASHT-EHUJI DEVI v. GOPAL KHATIK. 1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 296=1943 R.D. 470.

-S. 11-Issue of law-Decision-Change in law-Effect.

A previous decision between the same parties does not operate as res judicata when there has been a change in law made by the Legislature subsequent to that decision. (Roxburgh, J.) JHARURAM DASS MANDOL v. HAZAR MAHOMED SHEIK FAKIR. 211 I.C. 33=16 R.C. 489=77 C.L.J. 137=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 13.

-S. 11—Issue of law—Decision on question good law-If res judicata.

A decision on a point of law which has ceased To decision on a point of raw winth has ceased to be good law, will not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit. (Sathe, J.M.) BASUDEO v. DATWA. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 480 (2)=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 439 (2)=1941 O.W.N. 691=1941 R.D. 373.

-S. 11-Issue of law-Decision on question of jurisdiction-Rights of parties not decided-

Decision, if ree judicata.

A decision of Court that it has no jurisdiction to deal with the case without deciding anything regarding the rights of the parties, is not res judicala. (Henderson, J.) MEGHRAJ GOLAB CHAND C. CHANDRA KAMAL BHUIYAN. 196 I.C. 534=14 R.C. 257=73 C.L.J. 410=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 493.

-S. 11-Issue of law-Decision on-Operation as res judicata—Decision as to non-executability of a maintenance decree—Subsequent execution application—Res judicata, bar of.

It is only in regard to cases where there is a decision on a pure question of law quite irrespective of the facts of the two cases involved that it may be said that such a decision does not operate as rcs judicata in a subsequent suit on a different cause of action. Where a decree for future maintenance is once held to be not executable, that decision would operate as res judicata when a subsequent application is made for execution of the same decree though in respect of later arrears. (Allsop, J.). DULARI V. SAHDEL. 1942 A.L.W.

-S. 11—Land registration proceedings— Decision as to possession-If res judicata in subsequent proceedings.

It is not proper that a decision as regards possession in land registration proceedings should be treated as an absolute bar to a subsequent adjudication on the point. The fact that a person was not in possession in 1913 cannot by itself be any proof that he or his representative in inte-rest is not in possession in 1942. The claims of the parties should be investigated and it is undesirable to have the name of a person recorded who is certainly not in possession if it can be avoided. (Middleton.) Jagannath Swamiji v. Chhabiraj Kuer. 9 B.R. 195.

A later suit for a declaration of the validity of the plaintiff's adoption in 1935 cannot be held to be barred by res judicata by reason of his adoptive mother's right having been negatived in an earlier suit of 1928 in respect of an adop-tion made in 1927, the adopter and adoptee being the same, when in the meanwhile there has been a change in the law. The Official Liquidator of D & Co. having a claim against the estate of D in respect of the property in question would be barred from property in question would be barred from reagitating the same question in the administration suit. He is only in the position of a creditor attempting to assert the title of his debtor and hence must be held to be claiming under him. (Bennett and Agarwal, JJ.) ——S. 11—Litigating under the same title— Lessor and lessee becoming Sadar lambardar and lambardar after decision in rent suit—Later suit between same parties in respect of rent for subsequent years—Bar of res judicata.

The mere fact that the lessor and lessee had subsequent to a decision in a suit for rent between them acquired the additional capacity of sadar lambardar and lambardar would not alter their capacities in a later suit between them, for rent capacities in a later suit between them, for rent in respect of later years. Nor would it bar the application of the rule of res judicata. (Niyogi, J.) Tekchand Kapurchand v. Birzabai. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 721=202 I.C. 317=15 R.N. 77=1942 N.L.J. 423=A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 119.

-S. 11—"Litigating under same title"—

Meaning of.

The expression 'title' in S. 11, C. P. Code does not refer to the cause action on which the suit is brought but to the interest or capacity of the party suing or being sued. If the plaintiff in both suits is suing in his individual capacity and in his own interest then he is litigating under the same title. Where in a rent suit the plaintiff sued as landlord for rent and subsequently sued as owner of the land for ejectment against alleged trespassers it must be held that in both the suits he is suing in the same capacity. It is not the suit as a whole which operates as res judicata but the findings on individual issues which do so. Hence the question to be considered when a plea of res judicata is raised is not to look into the question whether the previous suit was dismissed in default or decreed ex parte but to consider whether the particular issue the finding on which is alleged to operate as res judicata was finally decided after a hearing. -S. 11-Plea of res judicata-When not oben.

In a suit for arrears of rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act the defendant alleged that the tenancy was a niskar one. But the Munsif found the holding was already assessed to rent under S. 105-A Bengal Tenancy Act and as that assessment had the effect of a decree it was not competent to the defendant to agitate the matter in the suit. The suit was decreed. On appeal by the defendant the District Judge finding that the S. 105 proceedings were decided ex parte and did not bar the tenant from claiming niskar title in the subsequent rent suit set aside the decree and remanded the suit for rehearing with liberty to parties to adduce fresh evidence when the case heard after the remand, the plaintiff contended that on the issue whether the jama was a miskar one the defendant cannot agitate the matter as he raised the same objections in an application by the plaintiff under S. 26-J, Bengal Tenancy Act but did not contest it at the hearing and allowed an ex parte order to be passed. This contention was accepted and the defendants' plea was rejected as barried by res judicata. On appeal the subordinate judge held that after the decision of the Court of appeal remanding the suit the question of res judicata was no longer open for decision by the Munsif. On further appeal, held: As only a particular decision was incidentally considered as a bar by the trial court and no bar by the appellate Court, the plea of res judicata is not wholly excluded in the trial on remand specially when the whole suit is directed to be tried on fresh evidence. Where during the pendency of an appeal against the finding in a suit, the same issue had been raised and decided differently in another suit in the same Court later by a different Judge and such later decision had been allowed to become final it will operate as res judicata in the appeal against the earlier decision. A decision in a former suit, which affects the interests of a firo forma defendant against whom no relief had been claimed, can operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the same parties. It is immaterial that no express issue was framed in that suit with regard to his rights, when it is clear from the pleadings that his interest was identical with that of the plaintiff. The onus would lie on the party who asserts to show that he was colluding with the plaintiff. (Edgley and Biswas, JJ.) Fateh Nasib v. Swarup Chand Hukum Chand. 73 C.L.J.

Where the question of a tenant's right to benefit of S. 41 of the U. P. #### Rent Suit.

Where in a case no plea is raised as regards the rate of rent and no specific issue is framed and the Court decrees the suit at a certain rate of rent, the decision would no doubt not constitute as res judicata in a subsequent suit, but where the question has been pointedly raised and embodied in the form of a specific issue as to the proper rate of rent, then the decision arrived at by the Court upon such issue will be res judicata in subsequent suits for rent. (Ghulam Hasan, J.) MAHABIR SINGH v. TIRBHAWAN BAHABUR SINGH. 192 I.C. 75=13 R.O. 308=1941 O.L.R. 57=1941 R.D. 332=1941 O.A. 30=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 75=1941 O.W.N. 30=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 259.

——S. 11—Rent suit—Decree in—Issue as to relationship of landlord and tenant—Res judicata—Tenure sold in execution.

A decree for arrears of rent obtained against a defendant tenant will not bar the issue as to relationship of landlord and tenant between him and the plaintiff by the principle of res judicata, if in execution of that decree the tenure is sold. After the execution sale the old tenancy right of the defendant ceases to exist. If he succeeds in remaining in possession as against the auction-purchaser or in regaining possession, the old relationship between him and the plaintiff does not thereby revive. It will be a new legal relation between the parties constituted by a new set of facts. The decision in respect of the old relationship will not debar the issue in respect of this new legal relation. (Akram and Pal, JJ.) Woomesh Chandra Dutta v. Jabed Ali. 211 I.C. 388=16 R.C. 529=77 C.L.J. 155=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 42.

Rate of rent—If res judicata—Such decree and executed—Evidentiary value.

A previous cx parte decree in a rent suit will not operate as res judicata on the question of the rate of rent in a subsequent suit between the same parties unless a declaration was asked for in the plaint as part of the substantive relief claimed that the rate was at a specific figure. But such a decree, whether or not it was executed, is admissible in evidence to establish the rate of rent although the fact that it has not been executed will be one of the circumstances to be taken into consideration along with other facts of the case in determining the value to be given to it. Res judicata.

S. 11—Res judicata and estoppel—Distunction between.

Per Pal, J.—The doctrine of res judicata no doubt resembles the doctrine of estoppel in some respects; but the two are materially different. The doctrine of res judicata differs from 'estoppel' chiefly in not resulting from an act of party himself but from a decision of the Court. The plea of res judicata amounts to an assertion that the very legal rights of the parties are such as they have been determined to be by the judgment of a competent Court and no other Court should proceed to determine this again. That which has been delivered in judgment must be taken for established truth. In all probability it is true in fact; even if not, it is expedient that it should be held as true none the less. The operation of the doctrine is thus the transformation of a question of fact into a question of law. (Syed Nasim Ali and Pal, II.) Srimathi Radharani Dassi v. Srimati Binodamoyee Dassi. I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 169= 200 I.C. 216=14 R.C. 685=46 C.W.N. 245=74 C.L.J. 180=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 92.

Where parties to a litigation join issue upon a certain matter and adduce evidence and invite a decision by the Court, that decision, even when it happens to be one on title, will operate as res judicata, and will not in any way be affected by the circumstance that the earlier suit was valued as a suit between landlord and tenant and not as a suit upon title. (Collister and Allsop, JJ.) LALJI SAHIB v. MUNSHI LAL BABU. I. L.R. (1943) All. 834=210 I.C. 420=16 R. A. 180=1943 A.L.J. 437=1943 A.L.W. 501=1943 O.W.N. (H.C.) 298=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 230=1943 O.A. When a plaintiff has filed a suit in a court of competent jurisdiction and that suit has been finally decided and no appeal against the decree has been preferred and that decree, has not been set aside, the mere fact that in some other litigation the point which is the basis of the decision in the previous suit was differently decided will not affect the rights of the parties under the decree that had become final. In various suits filed on behalf of a lunatic claiming a declaration of his proprietary rights and for possession of his half share there was decree as against the creditor. In the suits, the brother also was impleaded as a defendant. In a subsequent suit by the brother claiming the whole estate as owner the decree in the earlier suits will operate as res judicata not only quoad the properties which were in dispute in the earlier suits but also in respect of the whole estate. The general principle of the law of res judicata can be applied only where the section itself is silent but where the section provides specific conditions those conditions must be fulfilled before the general principles can apply. As a Tahsildar is not competent to try a suit for determination of rent under S. 94, U. P. Tenancy Act, any finding by him in a prior arrears of rent suit cannot operate as rcs judicata in a subsequent suit for determination of rent. (Sathe, S. M. and Ross, A.M.) Yusuf Ali Khan v. A mortgagee instituted a suit to enforce his mortgage on the 23rd June, 1931 and impleaded as a party the special receiver in the insolvency of the mortgagor who had been adjudicated an insolvent on the 25th October, 1930, in the same Court. On the 20th August, 1931, the Special Receiver applied in the insolvency proceedings for an order setting aside the mortgage under the provisions of Ss. 4 and 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act. The suit and the application were heard together and the mortgage was held to be valid. The consequence was that the Court granted the mortgagee a preliminary decree and dismissed the receiver's application. The receiver filed an appeal against the order dismissing his application but filed no appeal against the preliminary decree.

Held, that the unappealed decree did not operate as res judicata in the appeal against the order. 16 M.L.J. 63=I.L.R. 29 Mad. 333 (F. Subject-matter —S. 11—Subject-matter different—Finding as to jointness or otherwise of Hindu family-Crucial point of time different in the two suits.

An earlier decision that a particular Hindu family was not joint at a particular point of time, could not operate as res judicata in a later suit where the question is as to the jointness or otherwise of the same family, but at a ness or otherwise of the same family, but at a point of time earlier than that to which the prior decision referred. -S. 11-Subject-matter different-Same issue raised in subsequent suit between same parties and others-Bar.

S. 11, C. P. Code, does not say that the entire subject-matter of both the suits should be identical. It deals with suits as well as with parti-cular issues in the suits. If the particular issue raised in both the suits concerns the same parties, then the bar provided in S. 11 would apply to that particular issue even though there may be other issues raised in the subsequent suit and other parties involved in those issues. Accordingly, an issue raised and decided in a previous suit between the plaintiff and some of the defendants would operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit so far as those defendants are concerned, although that issue is raised with respect to the other defendants as well. (Sen, I.) BHOLANATH CHATTERJI v. MONMOTHA NATH DUTTA. 45 C.W.N. 420.

-S. 11, Expl. III-Decrée on admitted facts-How far res judicata.

Where in a prior suit there was no issue or decision on a certain point because both parties admitted it and a decree is passed on the footing of the facts admitted by all the parties, in such a case res judicata by reason of the prior decision extends not merely to the actual decision or finding in the case but also to the common basis of facts accepted by both parties which are incorporacts accepted by both parties which are incorporated in and made the foundation of the judgment and decree in the case. (Bennett and Ghulam Hasan, JJ.) MST. SUKH RANI v. GAJRAJ SINGH AND OTHERS. 200 I.C. 241=14 R.O. 584=1942 O.W.N. 222=1942 O.A. 132=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 153=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 354.

The principle of constructive res judicata embodied in Expl. IV to S. 11, C. P. Where in a suit to enforce a mortgage, the sub-mortgagee who was impleaded as a party defendant at the instance of the other defendants did not prove his sub-mortgage or the amount due under it with the result that no relief was given to him in the suit and the preliminary and final decrees were passed and the sub-mortgagee then brought a suit to enforce the sub-mortgage in his favour by sale of the mortgage right.

Held, that the second suit was not barred by res judicata under S. 11, Expl. IV, C. P. Code. Even if the sub-mortgagee had proved his submortgage and the amount due to him had been ascertained, he would still not be paid if the mortgagee failed to execute the decree. fendants under a codicil the plaintiff sued for various sums including certain contributions to be made to certain institutions and the defendants had admitted that claim and the matter had then been decided, such admission would come within the scope of Expl. IV to S. 11, C. P. Code and would operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the same parties where the question of the liability to make those contributions is once again raised in respect of similar villages held under the same codicil, and the defendants cannot contest their liability. they wished to do so they should clearly have done so when the claim was first made and their liability must, therefore, under Expl. IV, be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in the previous suit where the claim was made and not disputed. There is no reason why the principle should apply only where there has at one time been an objection which is subsequently waived. If effect is to be given to the Explanation, that is to say, to the principle of constructive res judicata, where the defence that ought to have been raised is not raised, it must be held that there has similarly been constructively a decision upon the point. Otherwise little or no purpose would be served by the Explanation. Actual decision on a plea not taken cannot be possible and unless the principle be as formulated the rule of constructive res judicata as formulated in S. 11 would be rendered almost nugatory. (Thomas, C.J. and Bennett, J.) Durga Bakhsh Singh v. Umanath BAKHSH SINGH. 19 Luck. 428-214 I.C. 277-217 R.O. 33=1943 O.W.N. 509=1943 A. W.R. (C.C.) 195=1943 O.A. (C.C.) 327-A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 94.

S. 11—Expl. IV and V—Duty of party raising plea of res judicata—Absence of material showing waiver of claim when judgment silent as to that relief—Only available plea of claim being premature not known whether raised—Sustainability of plea of res judicata.

It is incumbent upon the party raising the plea

It is incumbent upon the party raising the plea of res judicata to place before the court all materials required to enable the court to allow the plea.

Where a relief in respect of which a plea of res judicata was raised in the later suit was one of the reliefs claimed in an earlier suit, but was not decreed and there was nothing to show that it was waived or that the only available plea of the relief being premature was raised in defence, held that the claim must be deemed to have been refused in the earlier suit but that if it was refused as being premature, the refusal could not operate as res judicata. On the materials before the court it was not possible to hold that the matter was directly and substantially in issue in the former suit and that the issue was heard and finally decided. (Bennett and Madeley, JJ.) Hardeo Bakhish Singh v. Vidya Dhar. 1944 O.W.N. 509=1945 O.A. (C. C.) 32=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 32=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 70.

S. 11, Expl. IV—Matter constituting ground of defence.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 11.

A matter constitutes a ground of defence only when it can be used for the purpose of resisting a claim. There must, therefore, be a claim and a matter must be such as would defeat the claim either wholly or in part. A bare assertion in a plaint is not a claim. It becomes a claim when the plaintiff prays expressly or impliedly for the Court's decision upon it, or if the defendant treats it as such by denying it and inviting the Court's decision thereon. (Sen, J.) PRIOMBALA DEBI T. JOHURI LAL RAY. 198 I.C. 462=14 R. C. 462=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 574.

————S. 11, Expl. IV—"Might and ough" —Alternative claim—Previous suit on basis of valid sale—Subsequent suit for return of consideration alleging that sale had fallen through— Res judicata.

Where the previous suit was based on the ground that there was a valid and existing sale as a result of which the plaintiff had become the owner of the property in suit, a second suit based on an allegation that the sale, if it ever took place, had fallen through so that the plaintiff is entitled to the return of his money under S. 65 of the Contract Act, is not barred by the rule of resjudicata. Though the claim made in the second suit might have been added as an alternative claim in the previous suit, it cannot be held that it ought to have been so added, as there is a distinct incongruity between the two claims. (Beckett and Teja Singh, JJ.) LABH SINGH v. COURT OF WARDS. 47 P.L.R. 174=A. I. R. 1945 Lah. 210.

Applicability of rule where the subject-matter is not identical.

In questions of res judicata identity of the issues and not identity of the subject-matter is relevant. Hence it cannot be held that there would be no constructive res judicata unless the subject-matter in the two suits are identical. Where, in a suit by one brother against another for a declaration of his sole right to a property of which he was in possession, no question of any family arrangement under which the defendant was also entitled to remain in possession was raised, in a subsequent suit for possession of some other property as belonging to the plaintiff in the former suit, held that it was not open to the same defendant to raise the plea of a family arrangement as it was a plea which ought to have been raised in the former suit and that not having been raised was barred by the principle Naving been raised was barred by the finithment of res judicata. (Ismail and Mulla, JJ.) Har Sarup v. Anand Sarup I.L.R. (1942) A. 624=15 R.A. 261=203 I.C. 371=1942 A.L. J. 506=(1943) A.W.R. (H.C.) 272=1943 O. A. (H.C.) 272=A.I.R. 1942 All. 410.

S. 11 Expl. IV and O. 2, R. 2—Might and ought—Claim for title in first suit—Claim of right of easement in second suit—If being.

As a claim for title cannot be joined with a claim on a right of easement, an earlier suit in respect of title could not bar a later suit claiming only an easement. The later relief could not be claimed in the earlier suit and hence the case would not come under Expl. IV to S. 11, C. P. Code. Nor would it be barred by reason of O. 2, R. 2, because the cause of actions in the two suits could not be said to be the same. (Mathur, J.) HIRA LAL v. ISMAIL KHAN. 1943 A.L.W. 515.

——S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought— Interpretation.

S. 11, Expl. IV, C. P. Code, relates to any matter which might and ought to have been made a ground of attack in a former suit. The words are not "might or ought" but "might and ought". The mere fact that the plaintiff might have included his claim in the previous suit is no ground for saying that he ought to have done so. (Tek Chand and Sale, JJ.) Shujauden v. Sirajuddin. 195 I.C. 81=14 R.L. 30=43 P.L.R. 44=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 139.

S. 11, Expl. IX—Might and ought—

Meaning.

The 'matters that ought to be taken' referred to in the Expl. IV, to S. 11, C. P. Code, must be matters connected with the cause of action and the questions in issue between the parties at the time. (Darling, S.M. and Bonnford, J.M.) Mackinnon v. Sampat Kumar Sinha. 1941 R.D. 678.

S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought—Mortgage—Suit for redemption—Mortgagee failed to pjead that as owner of part of equity of redemption he is entitled to redeem—If operates as res judicata in subsequent suit asserting his claim.

A mortgagee who, in a suit for redemption of the mortgage, omits to plead that he, as owner of a part of the equity of redemption, is also entitled to redeem, does not lose his right to redeem, and a subsequent suit by him to assert his right of redemption is not barred by res judicata. He is however, bound to pay the proportionate costs of redemption in respect of his share in the equity of redemption. (Sen, J.) PARVATIBAT GOPA. v. MARUTI LUXMAN. 46 Bom.L.R. 704=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 69.

——S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought— Mortgage suit—Question of paramount title— Relevancy—Decision in suit—If res judicata.

It is well-settled that as a general rule paramount title cannot be ordinarily drawn into controversy in a mortgage suit without the consent of the parties. But if there is any allegation in the plaint derogatory to the title of a prior mortgagee, and if the prior mortgagee, being a party to the suit, consents to have that title decided, then he will be bound by that decision in the suit, and the decision will operate as res judicata in a later suit. If however, the question of paramount title is in conflict with the title of the mortgager as well as of the mortgagee, that is a matter which should not ordinarily be decided in a mortgage suit. If the issue is not also raised and decided, the rule of constructive res judicata should not be applied.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 11.

Manohar Lall, J.—The question of priority of mortgages is a necessary issue in mortgage actions, as for instance where a subsequent encumbrancer claims priority on the doctrine of subrogation, and in such a case he must raise that issue. On the other hand where the person impleaded sets up a title adverse to the mortgagor, that question is obviously beyond the scope of the mortgage action, and unless that question is distinctly raised and decided, the decision in the suit cannot operate as rcs judicata. (Varma and Manohar Lall, JJ.) RAMESHWAR RAI v. HARAKH LAI SAHU. 199 I.C. 713 =8 B.R. 616=14 R.P. 611=20 Pat. 841=A. I.R. 1942 Pat. 226.

——S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought— Mortgage suit—Subsequent mortgagee impleaded as defendant—Failure to put forward claim to priority—If operates as res judicata.

A subsequent mortgagee who is impleaded as a defendant in a suit on a mortgage and who has priority by reason of a right to subrogation is bound to put forward such right; if he fails to do so, he is debarred from asserting that right subsequently by the principle of res judicata. If, in addition to having a subsequent mortgage he has a prior independent mortgage, he is not bound to say anything about that prior mortgage unless his right is impugned. In such a case, failure to put forward his prior mortgage would not operate as ree judicata. (Lakshmana Rao and Horwill, JJ.) SESHAMA RAJU v. SUBRAMANIA SASTRI. 58 L.W. 16=1945 M.W.N. 306=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 151=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 167.

Appellant sued for rent of the years 1931-1932 and 1932-1933, and for enforcement of a charge in respect thereof. The tenants, respondents 1 and 2 had attorned to respondents 3 and 4, who set up title in themselves as landlords. The suit of the appellant was dismissed by the trial court and by the appellate court. A second appeal was preferred to the High Court by the appellant and that was pending when Madras Act IV of 1938 came into force. The tenants, respondents 1 and 2, applied under S. 15 of that Act for wiping off the arrears of rent by making a deposit of rent for faslis 1346 and 1347, impleading both the appellant and the respondents 3 and 4, though they alleged that they held under respondents 3 and 4. They obtained a declaration that the arrears were wiped off under S. 15 of the Act but they did not bring this to the notice of the High Court at the time of the hearing of the second appeal, as they did not contest the second appeal, as they did not contest the second appeal. The High Court in second appeal, in ignorance of the order under S. 15 of Madras Act IV of 1938, passed a preliminary decree for the full amount claimed by the appellant, upholding his title as against respondents 3 and 4. When the appellant applied for a final decree, respondents 1 and 2 objected and contended that the appellant was debarred from claiming a final decree in respect of the arrears by reason of the order passed in the proceedings under S. 15 of Madras Act IV of 1938.

Held, that the respondents 1 and 2, having failed to plead in the second appeal a judicial discharge which they had obtained in respect of the arrears of rent, were barred by res judicata from contending that the appellant was barred by res judicata. Having failed to set up and establish a defence which they had, at the proper time, they could not be heard after the preliminary decree had been passed in the case for a particular amount, to contend that that decree was wrong. (Wadsworth, J.) Kunhi Pakki v. Cheeru. A. I. R. 1945 Mad. 185 = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 157.

_____S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought—Plea not raised in prior suit—If can be raised in later suit.

The respondent filed a suit claiming half share in the income from certain offerings made by pilgrims to an idol at the time of certain annual fairs; the appellant (defendant) contended that the plaintiff (respondent) was entitled to a half share in the income of one portion only of the offerings, vis., the shamlat kut or joint account. In a prior litigation between the same parties, it was assumed that the appellant was entitled to one half of the whole income subject to the question of certain deductions to be made before division, and the appellant's title to one half of the whole income, after the proper reductions, was judicially upheld; the appellant did not raise the present defence in that suit.

Held, that the present defence of the defendant was a matter which might and ought to have been raised in the prior litigation and must therefore be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit within the meaning of Expl. IV to S. 11, C. P. Code, and therefore the present defence of the appellant was excluded by res judicata. (Lord Thankerton.) SOBHAG SINGH v. RAIJIT SINGH. 49 C.W.N. 743=1945 M.W.N. 523=58 L. S and his wife L had a daughter D. D had a daughter, the plaintiff. She brought a suit claiming the suit property as owner on the ground that it was the absolute property of her grand-mother L who devised it to D, who again devised it to the plaintiff. She claimed as the legatee of her mother D. She did not claim it as heir of her grand-father S. The Court found that L had only a life-interest in the property and not an absolute right as owner, that her will in favour of D was not binding on the defendants and therefore dismissed the plaintiff's suit. She then brought the present suit as heir of S.

Held, that (1) the plaintiff could and should have claimed, in the previous suit, for possession not only as legatee through L, but also in the alternative as heir of S; and not having done that, the present suit was barred by resjudicata under Expl. IV, to S. 11, C. P. Code; (2) that the claim of the plaintiff as heir to S in the second suit was not so inconsistent with her previous claim as legatee under the will of D, who was herself a legatee of L, that it could not have been put forward as an additional or alternative claim in the first suit, under O. 2, R. 1, C. P. Code. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) CHATANMAL DHOLUMAL v. PINIOMAL. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 386=210 I.C. 310=16 R.S. 138 =A.I.R. 1943 Sind 251.

——S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought— Previous suit by wife for divorce—No alternative plea for declaration that she is not wife —Subsequent suit for such declaration—If barred by res judicata.

A person petitioning the Court for a divorce as a husband or wife need not add an alternative plea asking for a declaration that he or she is not a husband or wife at all, on the ground that the marriage had long ago ceased to exist. The causes of action, which a married woman brings for divorce, and which a woman no longer married brings for a declaration that the marrige has long ago ceased are inconsistent and ought not to be brought together. The failure of a wife to raise such an alternative plea will not bar a subsequent suit for such declaration. (Roberts, C.J. and Mosely, J.) USIN v. MA MA LAY. 1941 Rang. _____S. 11, Expl. IV—Might and ought—Pro forma defendant.

When no relief is sought against a pro forma defendant, nd-necessary for him to raise any defence in the suit. A decree passed against him without amending the plaint or without giving him any opportunity to be heard cannot operate res judicata by reason of S. 11, Expl. IV, C. P. Code. Rent suit—Extent of tenancy.

Where a decree for rent has been passed in a suit in which the plaintiff in describing the tenancy in his plaint states that two plots appertain to the tenancy, in the absence of any invitation to decide it or any such decision that the two plots appertained to the tenancy, it cannot be said that the question has been decided by implication so as to operate as res judicata. Suit by co-sharer under S. 148-A, Bihar Tenancy Act-Other co sharers made parties defendants not claiming their share of rent-Subsequent suit by latter for their share-Res judicata.

In a suit framed under S. 148-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the issue is not merely the amount of rent due to the plaintiff but the entire rent due from the tenant. If in such a suit by one co-sharer, the other co-sharers impleaded as defendants do not allege that rent is due to them also, it must be taken that the only rent due from the tenant or tenants is the amount claimed by the plaintiff. A co-sharer impleaded as a defendant in a suit under S. 148-A who does not allege or claim that any rent is due to him, cannot therefore be subsequently heard to assert that his share of the rent has not been paid by the tenant and is due. A subsequent suit by him for his share of the rent for the same period is therefore barred by res judicata, his claim for his share of the rent being a matter which he might and ought to have asserted in the first suit. Expl. VI to S. 11, C. P. Code, will not apply where a plaintiff claims a right for though the right may be common to others also. Attachment does not create any specific charge on the property attached. It does not by itself give the attaching decree-holder in strictness a title to the attached properties but it is the basis of the decree-holder's right to assert his judgment-debtor's interest in the property attached. There is no reason why this right created in favour of the decree-holder by attachment cannot be considered as a claim under the judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 11, C. P. Code. If by virtue of a decree the judgment-debtor has lost his right in that property and he is precluded by the rule of res judicata from averring that that decree is erroneous, his attaching creditor would also be affected by the same disability. R gifted a house to his wife who sold it to the appellant who leased it back to R. A suit by a creditor of R under O. 21, R. 63, C.P.C. to set aside a claim order holding the gift to R's wife and the sale by the latter to be true. was dismissed. An appeal by the creditor was also dismissed. Subsequently another creditor of R sought to attach the house, whereupon a claim was preferred and upheld, the Court holding that the gift and sale were true. The creditor then filed a suit to set aside the claim order alleging that the gift and sale were nominal. It was pleaded that the decision in the suit of the prior creditor operated as res judicata under Expl. VI, to S. 11, C. P. C.

Held, that the prior creditor in the first suit was not litigating on behalf of the general body of creditors but was merely concerned with having it declared that the gift and sale were nominal in order that he might proceed against the property. He was not concerned with the Oudh 199.

The ostensible reversioners to the estate of the last male holder in a Hindu family questioned the validity of a deed of gift executed by his widow and in 1913 sued for a declaration that the gift was not binding beyond the lives of the widow and her daughter. The suit succeeded and a decree was passed. In 1926 the widow adopted the appellant who in 1938, brought a suit to recover from the donee under the deed of gift. The plea was raised that the suit was barred by res judicata by reason of the decree in the prior suit.

Held, that Expl. VI to S. 11. C. P. Code, did suit and when in the prior suit the provisions of O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, were not complied with. D, the outgoing President of a Municipal Preside pality brought a suit against K for a declaration that the election of K as President of the Municipality was illegal. The suit was dismissed on the grounds, inter alia, that it should be brought against the Municipality, that no notice was given to the Municipality, and that the Municipality which was a necessary party was not joined as a party. It was not a representative suit under O. I, R. 8, C. P. Code. Subsequently a second suit was brought by one Ga ratepayer, against K and the Municipality, praying for a declaration that K was not the lawfully elected President of the Municipality and for a consequent injunction. It was pleaded that as the prior suit was brought in a representative capacity on behalf of the ratepayers of the Municipality, the second suit was barred by res judicata.

Held: (1) that Expl. VI to S. 11, C. P. Code, did not apply because the prior suit was not brought as a representative suit but in the individual capacity of the plaintiff therein to vinditate a right said to be vested in him alone and the provisions of O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, were not complied with; (2) that the provisions of O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, must be strictly complied with as a condition precedent to the binding effect of a decree upon persons not parties to the suit in the strict sense of the word; (3) that S. 11 could not apply as the suit was not between the same parties; the absence of the Municipality in the first suit and its presence in the second suit made all the difference and precluded the application of S. 11, C. P. Code: and (4) the second suit was not barred by res judicata by reason of the decision in the first. (Davis, C.J. and Lobo, J.) KALUMAL v. GHANOOMAL. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 62=A.I.

There is no doubt that under S. 13, C. Code, the word "judgment" is not used in the sense of a statement of the judge's reasons; a "foreign judgment" undoubtedly means an adjudication by a foreign Court upon the matter before it. The Court has to ascertain what the actual decision of the foreign Court is, and for that purpose, the first thing to be looked at is the actual decree or order of the foreign Court. In order to understand and interpret the decree or order, the Court may have to look at the pleadings of the parties and the reasons of the judge; but those reasons would not be binding on any

The decree of the foreign Court remains, in spite of decree passed in the British Court, executable in the foreign country where it was passed. The judgment and decree of the foreign Court cannot be said to have merged in the decree passed by the British Indian Court on it. (Monroe and Abdur Rahman, JJ.) DAR-BAR PATIALA T. S. 13—Foreign judgment—Conclusive character of—Award in Native State—Arbitrator going beyond terms of reference and hearing third parties-Foreign Court filing award passing decree on-If conclusive in British India.

Under the law in British India, an arbitrator, acting on a written submission, must confine himself to the terms of the submission, and none the less so, because he may think that possibly the submission ought to have gone further than it does go, and that it may have been a mistake on the part of the parties to limit it in the manner ment of loan executed in Khyrim State—Conditional Conditions of the parties to limit it in the manner ment of loan executed in Khyrim State—Conditional Conditions of the parties to limit it in the manner ment of loan executed in Khyrim State—Conditional Conditions of the parties of in which it has been limited. In such a case the most an arbitrator can do is to defer making his award until the submission has been extended either by agreement between the parties, or by an order of a competent Court, and he certainly would not be at liberty to proceed to arbitrate on something not included in the sub-mission. It would also amount to "misconduct" on the part of the arbitrator if he allows other people, not parties to the submission, to come and see him about the matter in dispute. Where a foreign Court files an award made by an arbitrator who has gone beyond the reference contained in the written submission and who allowed third parties to come and speak to him about the matter referred, and passes a decree in terms of the award, the judgment of the foreign Court is conclusive under S. 13, C. P. Code. The judgment of the foreign Court amounts to an adjudication that the award is a valid award and for that reason ought to be filed, and it is not open to the British Indian Court, before which the foreign judgment comes up, to decide the question on the merits, though it would set aside the award on the ground of legal misconduct of the arbitrator, if it were open to it to do so. Misconduct on the part of the arbitrator which does not go to jurisdiction is not a matter which can be gone into in the British Indian Court. Such a point can only be taken in the foreign Court which files the award and passes a decree in terms thereof. (Beaumont, C.J. and Weston, J.) BRIJLAL RAMJIDAS v. GOVINDRAM SEKSARIA. I.L.R. It cannot be said that for any matter to be "directly adjudicated upon" within the meaning of S. 13, C. P. Code, there must be a positive discussion of evidence relating to that matter. If any claim is made by any party and subsequently abandoned at the trial of a suit, and if the decree in that suit necessarily implies that that claim has not met with acceptance at the hands of the Court, then the Court must be deemed to have directly adjudicated upon it, and under S. 13, C. tion that on non-payment, property in British India will pass to lender-Judgment passed by Chief of State.

By an agreement executed in Khyrim State, A borrowed money from B on condition that upon failure to repay the loan within the stipulated period he would give up to B an orchard situated in British India. Both the parties were permanent residents of that State. A did not pay the money and thereupon B instituted a suit before the Khyrim State Darbar to enforce the above agreement. The Darbar passed judgment in the suit directing A to pay the amount due and declaring that if he failed to pay, B should obtain absolute possession of the orchard as provided for in the agreement under the terms provided for in the agreement under the terms of the sanad granted to the Siem or Chief of the Khyrim State by the British Government, the Siem is empowered and required to adjudicate and decide all civil cases which may arise within the limits of the State. In a suit instituted by B in a British Indian Court for a declaration of his rights under the judgment of the Siem of the Khyrim Darbar,

Held, that effect could be given to that judgment to the extent to which, on the strictest view of the powers of the Siem of the Darbar, that Darbar would be competent to deal with the matter. Regarded as a declaration of the plaintiff's rights to implement the agreement in so far as it entitled him to possession of the orchard, the judgment would be quite within the competence of the Khyrim Darbar and S. 13, C. P. Code, would apply to the judgment as so read. Accordingly the plaintiff was entitled to a decree in terms of the agreement as declared by that judgment. (Biswas and Akram, JJ.) U. Khur Singh v. U. the mere possession by the defendant at the commencement of the action of property locally situate in that country, or from the presence of the defendant in such country at the time when the obligation in respect of which the action is brought was incurred in that country or from the fact that the defendant was carrying on business in such country through a manager or agent at the time when the obligation in respect of which the action is brought was incurred. The defendant against whom an ex parte decree was obtained in a Court in Baroda State in 1939, was a British Indian subject and had at no time material to the litigation resided within the state of Baroda. One R held a power-of-attorney from the defendant and lived in Baroda when the suit transaction took place, but the power-of-attorney was revoked before the suit and R had left Baroda and gone to British India and lived there for many months before the date of suit. At the date of the suit there was no agent of the defendant within the jurisdiction of the Baroda Court. The business of the defendant had ceased as early as October 1936. The suit summons was served on the defendant in Bombay in January, 1939. The power-of-attorney held by R entitled him to appear and to file suits in the Baroda Courts and to engage pleaders to sign vakalatnamas in the defendant's name and to exercise in his name "all lawful rights".

Held, that the Baroda Court was not a Court of competent jurisdiction within the meaning of S. 13 (a), C. P. The 1st defendant was married to the plaintiff's daughter, and the plaintiff alleged that he had furnished the money to pay for the expenses of the marriage, and that both the defendants had promised to repay the money to him. The plaintiff also claimed re-payment of the money independently of the agreement as money due from the joint family of the defendants to reimburse him for what he had spent upon a marriage which was a duty devolving upon that family. Both the defendants were at that time above 18 years of age, but were minors according to the law of British India, being under 21, as they had guardians appointed for them under the Guardians and Wards Act A decree was passed and sought to be executed in British India. The defendants pleaded S 13 (f), C.P.Code, in bar of execution.

Held, that the claim was founded partly perhaps upon a breach of the Contract but also partly upon a claim under S. 68 of the Contract Act which in no way involved its breach; and whether the claim was good or bad, the decree given sustained a claim which was not wholly founded upon a breach of the Contract. or to avoid multiplicity of suits. The combination of the two suits is not repugnant to any provision of law. O. 1. R. 3, C.P. Code, and S. 27, Specific Relief Act would permit the joinder of all these defendants i.e., the vender and the subsequent vendees. The Court where the property is situate is the Court which has jurisdiction to try the suit under S. 16 C.P. Code, so far as the suit for possession is concerned. When the subsequent purchaser also lives where the property it situate, the Court of that place and that Court alone has jurisdic. tion to try the suit against that defendant. Though the vendor resides and the contract is concluded at a place outside the jurisdiction of that Court, it would still have jurisdiction to try the suit against him also by reason of S. 16 (d), C.P Code. The proviso to S. 16 C.P. Code, would not apply to the suit, as it cannot be said that the suit is one in personam. The joinder of the two causes of action, ziz., specific performance and possession, is not dependant upon the leave of the Court under O. 2, R. 4. C.P. Code, because O. 2 R. 4, may not apply to a case where the recovery of property is sought as a relief consequential on the relief of specific performance of a contract, and in practice leave of the Court is not asked for. Assuming that leave of the Court is necessary for such joinder, the absence of leave of the Court is not fatal and is no ground for reversal or variation of the decree, because the case would be covered by S. 99 C.P. S. 20—"Cause of action"—What constitutes—contract for sale of goods completed by correspondence—Jurisdiction in respect of breach of such contract.

A Court has jurisdiction if any part if the cause of action arose within its territorial jurisdiction. "Cause of action" consists of that bundle of rights which taken together give a right of suit (e.g.) to recover damages for beach of contract. Where a contract for sale of goods was completed by offer and acceptance communicated through the post, the offer cannot be said to be complete when the letter containing the offer is posted but only when it is received by the addressee. Accordingly the court at the place of posting the letter containing an offer will not have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for damages for breach of the contract. The offer in the case was only an invitation to accept the offer by post and when the letter of acceptance was posted by the acceptor the contract was complete and bound the offerer immediately. The receipt of the letter at the offerers place will not confer jurisdiction. (Harries C. J. and Abdur Rahman J.) POKHAR MAL RAM NATH v. KHANEWAL OIL MILLS, 47 P.L.R. 277 = A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 260,

S. 20—"Carry on business"—Meaning Insurance company having head office at L and branch office at C—If carries on business at C.

Where an insurance company had its head office at Lahore and the business of the company was transacted in Calcutta by its agents who were not office or conduit pipe through which communications were sent to the company and they did a considerable amount of business on behalf of the company in which they were allowed a certain amount of discretion.

Held, that the insurance company did carry on business in Calcutta. (Mc Natr, J.) BRINDARANI DEBI v. CO-OPERATIVE ASSURANCE CO., LTD. I.L R. (1944) 1 Cal. 101=211 I.C. 450=16 R.C. 535=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 1.

S. 20—'Carrying on business'—Meaning—Insurance company with a head office and different sub-agency offices at different places—Receipt of premium and other business transacted by the branch offices—Company if carries on business in the place where the sub-agency or branch office is.

"Carrying on business' in S. 20, C. P. Code, means having an interest in the business transaction at the particular place and a voice in what is done and a share in the gain or loss. Where an insurance company having a head office at Calcutta has a sub-agency office in Nagpur, and all business in connection with the policy holders are transacted by sub-agency office and a Bank account is also maintained in that place, the company must be said to be carrying on business at Nagpur within the meaning of S. 20, C. P. Code. (Clarke, J.) HINDUSTAN INSURANCE CO. v. NATHU. 1941 N.L.J. 37.

____S. 20—Contract regarding purchase of goods—Place of suit.

To decide the question of jurisdiction of a Court to entertain a suit based upon a contract regarding purchase of certain goods, three points arise, one is the place of the contract; second is the question of delivery of the goods; and the third is the question of payment for the goods. S. 20—Jurisdiction—Suit by wife against husband and father-in-law for maintenance and return of stridhan property entrusted at time of marriage—Place of suing—Suit at place of wife's residence—Maintainability—Rule of debtor seeking out creditor—Applicability.

The plaintiff, a Hindu wife, whose marriage took place at Negapatam and who was residing with her husband at Vellore had to leave her husband owing to ill-treatment by him and returned to her father's place at Palghat. Her father in-law was residing at Mayavaram. She filed a suit in Palghat against her husband and father-in-law claiming maintenance and return of stridhanam properties alleged to have been entrusted to him at the time of marriage. It was contended that the husband and father-in-law were her debtors and that, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the English common law rule that the debtor should seek out the creditor applied and therefore the Court at Palghat had jurisdiction to entertain the suit.

Held, that the Palghat Court had no jurisdiction because no part of the cause of action, whether for recovery of maintenance or for return of the entrusted properties (return of which must have been contemplated either at the family residence at Mayavaram or at the place where the husband resided) arose at Palghat and neither of the defendants resided or worked for gain at Palghat. The rule that the debtor must seek out the creditor could not apply to the case. (Leach, C. J. and Somayya, J.) S. 20—Place of suing—Purchase of Post Office cash-certificate at A—Conversion at Number of declaration of ownership of certificates and refund of cashed amounts.

Where the plaintiff bought certain postal cash certificates at A with his own money but in the name of the defendant and later on sued for a declaration that they were his in the Court at A and pending the suit some certificates were cashed at N by the detendant and an additional relief for the recovery of the amount so cashed was added by amendment, on the question of the jurisdiction of the Court at A to try the suit.

Held, that the purchase of the certificates at A was a contract and hence part of the cause of action arose at A and the case was one of those border line cases where the balance of convenience was to have the whole suit tried in the same Court at A. —S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Contract in C.I.F. form—Shipment of goods at Karachi—Contract that delivery and payment to be made at Madras—Documents not handed over to buyer or agent at Karachi—Breach by refusal to take delivery—Suit for damages—Jurisdiction of Court at Karachi.

It is an essential feature of a C. I. F. contract that delivery of the goods passes with the delivery of the documents at the port of departure, and in a C. I. F. contract the time and place of the delivery would be the time and place where the vendor delivers the goods on board ship, the delivery being symbolized by the deli-very of the documents. The port of departure, under the circumstances, is the place where delivery is given and the place where a breach of contract is committed when the breach arises from failure to deliver the goods or when the goods are not of the stipulated quality. Jurisdiction in a suit for breach of a C. I. F. contract therefore lies in the Court with jurisdiction over the place where the property in the goods passes and where the breach is committed. But this rule does not apply when the essential features of the contract are departed from. A contract for sale of flour was made at Madras and the goods were to be delivered at Madras and payment also was to be made at Madras. The goods were to be shipped from Karachi. The contract was a C. I. F. contract, but the seller who was at Karachi did not deliver the documents to the buyer, but he endorsed the documents to himself and retained them. The plaintiff filed a suit in Karachi for breach on the part of the buyer on the ground that he wrongly refused to accept delivery.

Held, on the question of jurisdiction, that the ordinary rule relating to C. I. F. contracts did not apply in this case, as the documents were not handed over to the buyer or his agent at Karachi and property in the goods did not pass to the buyer at Karachi. Karachi as a place of shipment was not part of the contract at all and it cannot therefore be said that the Karachi Court had jurisdiction merely because of shipment of goods at Karachi. The Karachi Court, therefore, had no jurisdiction. (Davis, C. J. and Weston, J.) GOPALDAS MULII v. BISHAMBERDAS MUNILAL. I.I.R. (1943) Kar. 384-211 I.O. 277-16 R.S. 179-A.I.R. 1944 Sind 70.

C. P. CODE (1908), 20 (c).

A contract is made at the place where the offer is accepted. An offer when accepted by post is accepted at the place where the letter of acceptance is posted, and therefore the cause of action for a suit on the contract arises there. The receipt of the letter of acceptance is not part of the cause of action and hence the Court at the place where the letter of acceptance is received has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. ——S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Contract of hiring —Dramatic work converted into film and hired to sine ma company for exhibition—Film exhibited in pursuance of contract—Suit by author of dramatic work for infringement of copyright—furisdiction—Suit at place of exhibition of film—Maintainability.

In the absence of any specific terms in the actual contract between the parties to the contrary, a transaction of hiring cannot be completed until the article hired, is in the hands of the person to whom it is hired; an article cannot be said to be hired until it reaches the hands of the person to whom it is to be hired. The plaintiff brought a suit for damages for infringment of copyright in respect of a dramatic work, claiming that he had written that work which according to him had been converted by the defendants into a cinematograph film. He complained that the defendants, who were a movietone company of Madras, entered into a contract with the proprietor of a cinema at Rajahmundry to exhibit the film and that the film was duly exhibited at Rajahmundry in pursuance of the contract. He brought his suit in Rajahmundry. The detendants contended that no part of the cause of action arose at Rajahmundry and that the suit therefore lay only in Madras and not in Rajahmundry.

Held, that the question whether the contract was completed in Madras or Rajahmundry was entirely irrelevant as the mere completion of the contract was no part of the cause of action, that the action of hiring out this film was not complete until the film reached Rajahmundry and was delivered to the proprietor of the cinema. Part of the cause of action therefore arose in Rajahmundry and the suit would therefore lie in Rajahmundry. (King, J.) KAMESWARA RAO v. NATIONAL MOVIETONE CO., LTD. 204 I.C. 25=15 R.M. 692=1942 M.W.N. 448=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 659=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 110.

The cause of action in a suit for damages for a breach of contract arises either at the place where the contract was made or at the place where the contract was agreed to be performed or the place where the money was agreed to be paid or where the breach of contract actually took place. Where the contract actually takes place at F, where the defendant resides and the defendant agrees to perform it within the B district, the breach of contract takes place in district B, when the defendant fails to perform it. Though there is a clause in the contract that the entire accounting would take place at F, it refers to the final adjustment, between the parties in, the event of the contract being performed. Hence where it is not performed, that clause could have no operation. (Ghulam Haism and Madeley, J.) MAHOMAD IDRIS v. RATI RAM. 17 Luck. 733=199 I.O. 446=14 B.O. 489=1942 A.I.W. 40=1942

-S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Jurisdiction to file award-Contract made at one place-Agreement to refer disputes to arbitrator at another place-Award at the latter place.

Where the original contract was not made at Cawnnore and the cause of action with regard to the original contract did not arise at Campore, then the mere fact that the parties to the contract later on agreed to submit their disputes to an arbitrator at Cownpore and the arbitration proceedings were carried on at Campore and the award given at Cawnpare would not give the Campore Court a jurisdiction to file the award. The cause of action in this matter is to be determined with reference to the original transaction which took place between the parties and not with reference to the agreement to refer to arbitration or with reference to the arbitration proceedings. (Barpar and Dar, JJ.) MADAN GOPAL RADHEYLAL v. SANWAL DAS. 1943 A.L.W. 457.

-S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Promissory note-Suit on-Jurisdiction-Note made at specified place—No reference to place of payment— If payable at place of payee—Duty of debtor to seek out creditor.

The cause of action for a suit on a promissory note is the promissory note itself and not the consideration which gave rise to the note and in a suit founded on a promissory rote it is not permissible to go into the consideration for the note and to read into the note something founded on the circumstances giving rise to it. A promissory note made at a particular place and containing no stipulation as to the place of payment, cannot be regarded as being payable at any place other then the place where it is made. The common law rule that the debtor must seek out his creditor has no application to a negotiable instrument, and hence a suit on such a promissory note has to be instituted only at the place where the note is made. -S. 20 (c)—Life insurance policy—Death of assured-If part of cause of action

In the case of a life-insurance pilicy the claimant must prove the death of the assured before he can enforce his claim against an insurance company The death of the assured is thus a material part of the cause of action upon which a suit for money due on a life insurance policy can be based. Therefore, the Court within whose jurisdiction the assured dies is competent to entertain the suit under S. 20 (c), C. P. Code. (Mukherjea and Blank, JJ.) PEOPLE'S INSURANCE (O., I TD. v. ——S. 24—Applicability—Court subordinate to Court—Assistant Judge holding inquiry into validity of election under S. 19, Bombay Local Boards Act—If Judge or persona designata—Proceedings before Judge—Jurisdiction to transfer.

Before the High Court can grant an application for transfer under S. 24, C.P.Code, the Court has to decide two questions, viz., (1) whether the proceedings to be transferred are pending in a Court, and (2) whether that Court is "Subordinate" to the High Court.

An Assistant Judge hearing an election petition under S. 19 of the Bombay Local Boards Act acts as a persona designata and not as a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of S. 24, C.P. Code. Hence S. 24, C.P. Code, does not apply to the case, and the proceedings in such an inquiry cannot therefore be transferred by the High Court under S. 24, C.P. Code. (Lobo, C.J.) JAN MAHOMED v. District Boards Act, he is deciding it in his capacity of persona designata selected by Government and is not acting in his capacity as a District Judge. The power to withdraw proceedings on such a petition does not exist either in the High Court or Chief Court and an application for its transfer under S. 24, C. P. Code, would not be maintainable. ——S. 24—Dismissal of transfer application without giving notice or hearing parties—Power-of Court.

S. 24 C.P. Code does not provide that the court cannot dismis an application for transfer without giving notice or hearing the parties. C. P. CODE (1908), S. 24.

S. 24—Ground for transfer—Finding on identical question of fact given by Judge in previous case.

Under S. 24, C. P. Code, a transfer should not be ordered for reasons of sentimentality, but only if good grounds are made out for it. A case should not be transferred from the file of a Judge on the mere ground that he has given a finding on an identical question of fact in a previous case. There is no reason for supposing that the Judge will not decide the case on the material before him. If that material is different from that in the previous case, there is nothing either in theory or in practice to bar a different finding. If the material is identical then there will not only be an identical finding, but there ought to be, and if it is wrong it can be corrected by an appeal to a superior Court. That is legitimate and envisaged by the law. What is not envisaged by the law is the use of S. 24, C.P. Code, to give an indirect sort of anticipatory appeal, not to a superior Court, but to a Court of equal jurisdiction. (Blacker, J.) MAHOMED ASHRAF v. BUTA MAL. 46 P.L.R. 180=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 400

——S. 24—Ground for transfer—Same question of interpretation of a will involved—Parties different,

Where two appeals between different parties is pending one before the High Court and the other before the District Court, the fact that the main question in the two appeals is the same, namely, the interpretation of a will is no ground for transferring the appeal from the District Court to the High Court. It cannot be said that such transfer is desirable to avoid a conflict of decisions. If the District Judge should come to a wrong decision the remedy by way of second appeal was available. The District Judge can under S. 24, C. P. Code, transfer a case pending in a Court of Small Causes to any other Court having jurisdiction even though a Small Cause Court having jurisdiction to try the suit is in existence in that particular place. S. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act has not the effect of making Courts other than those governed by that Act incompetent to try Small Cause suits. It only says that suits triable by a Small Cause Court shall not be tried by any other Court and it does not take away the jurisdiction of other Courts. (Madeley and Agarwal, JJ.) The circumstance that a Judge has already in prior proceedings between the same parties come to a conclusion of law on a similar question is no sufficient reason for transferr ng a suit from his Court to another Court. -S. 34-Interest-Discretion-Province of appellate Court.

If a lower Court in the exercise of its discretion either refuses or allows interest, an appellate Court will not ordinarily interfere. But where owing to an erroreous view of the law that interest is not allowable by him under the provisions of the Debt Concil ation Act, a Judge dees not allow interest, there is no exercise of discretion at all. In such a case the appellate Court will exercise the discretion which ought to have been exercised by the lower Court. (Stone, C.J. and Bose. 1.) SETH SHEOLAL V. DADDIG-SINGH. 1941N.L.J 591.

-S. 34-Interest-Fair rate-9 per cent. per annum.

The fair rate at which interest pendente lite should be awarded to the plaintiffs would be 9 per cent, per annum simple from the date of the suit till the expire of the period of grace fixed for payment and thereafter at the rate of 6 per cent. rer annum till realisation. -S. 34-Interest perdente lite-Award of-Discretien of Court-Such interest n t asked for in plaint.

The fact that interest pendente lite is not asked for in the plaint, is not a bar to such interest being awarded. -S. 35-Appeal necessitated by mistake of Court-Respondent responsible for mistake but not contesting appeal-Appellant-It can be deprived of costs.

Where the respondent to an appeal has been responsible for a mistake on the part of the Court which has led to the appeal, it would be ineqitable to make the appellant liable for the whole costs of the appeal though the respondent does not contest the appeal. The appellant must be awarded costs against the respondent. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lal, J.) JOYRAM NARAYAN v. SHIVA PRASAD SINGH. 193 I.C. 32=13 R.P. 534=7 B.R. 503=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 416.

An assignee of a decree who is made a party respondent to an appeal by the defendant against the decree and who actively asserts the correctness of the decree and does everything he can to obtain the dismissal of the appeal by the defendant, may properly be ordered to pay the successful defendant the costs not only of the appeal but also the costs of the trial Court. plaintiff to proof-Costs of beneficiary proving the will-Right to.

Where a benificiary applied for probate of a will and on the application being contested he was put to proof of the will.

Held, that the usual practice in cases where a plaintiff seeks to establish a will under which he has been given a legacy and he is merely put to proof of it, is to award costs to both parties from and out of the estate. In cases where no executor has been appointed under the will it is the duty of the Probate Court on the will being established to direct the issue of letters of administration with will annexed to such persons as are under the Succession Act competent to administer the estate thus avoiding further expense and litigation. (Venkataramana Rao and Horwill, JJ.) KANAKASABAPATHI CHETTY V. UNNAMALAI AMMAL. 198 I.C. 560=14 R M. 457=53 L.W. 243=1941 M W.N. 301=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 502 =(1941) 1 M.L.J. 299.

-S. 35-Contention which succeeded not meritorious—Refusal of costs proper.

Where the contention which succeeded in the High Court was not a meritorious one, the successful party can be refused the costs throughout. (Bobde, J.) GULAB SINGH v. NATHU. I.L. R (1944) Nag. 419=217 I.C. 295=17 R.N. 111 =1944 N.L.J. 200=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 145.

-S. 35-Costs in partition suits-Rule-Parties if to bear own costs up to preliminary decree.

It is by no means correct to hold that in partition suits parties should bear there own costs up to the preliminary decree. The question would depend upon the nature of the dispute raised in the suit. (Harries, C.J. and Chatterji, J.) JUGE-SHWAR MISRA v. KIRET SINGH. 198 I.C 743= 8 B R. 463=14 R.P. 500=1941 P.W.N. 557=A. -S. 35—Costs—Liability of legal practitioner for-Circumstances justifying order against pleader.

There is no justification, for the assumption that S. 35, C. P. Code, is not intended to cover any case where the act of a legal practitioner comes within the term 'mis-conduct' within the meaning of the Legal Practitioners and the Bar Councils Acts. A pleader may therefore be liable for costs of the proceedings taken by him in cases where the costs occasioned to his client are the direct result of the initiation and prosecution of the proceedings by him. Where an application for review purports to be made by a pleader personally on his own behalf and not on behalf of his client the minor or his gauardian, on grounds wholly untenable, there is no justification for his offlying for frobete- Contest by widow-Putting action and he can be asked to pay the costs per

-S. 35—Costs—Non-payment of dues to plaintiff owing to incorrect thasil report—If a ground for withholding costs from successful plaintiff.

Even though a defendant might have been misled by a thasil report which had resulted in the non-payment to plaintiff, his dues, that is no reason why a successful plaintiff should be debarred from having his costs of the litigation. (Sathe, S.M. and Ross, A.M.) Mohd. Raza v. Special Manager, Court of Wards. Allahabad. 1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 92 (2)=1943 R.D. 182.

-8.35—Costs not following the result— sence of notice prior to suit, if a sufficient reason.

The mere fact that a successful plaintiff did not issue notice to the defendant prior to suit is no ground for not following the rule that costs should follow the result when the suit has been contested and it is not suggested that no costs would have been incurred if notice had been issued. (Allsop and Verma, JJ) ALLAH DIYA v. Sona Devi. I.L.R (1942) All. 745=204 I.C. 133=15 R.A. 310=1942 A.L.J. 443=1942 A.W. R. (H.C.) 218=1942 A.L.W. 329=A.I.R. 1942 All. 331.

-S. 35-Costs-Particular item-Discretion of court to allow or not.

The discretion of the Court under S. 35 of the C. P. Code extends not only to the question which party should bear the costs of a suit or proceeding or in what proportion but also in many instances to the question whether a particular item should be allowed as costs of a party and, if so for what sum. The fact that a subsis-tence allowance claimed was a paltry item is no ground for disallowing it. (Manchar Lall and Beevor, JJ.) KAMESHWAR SINGH v. NEBITAL MISTRI. 219 I.C. 510=11 B.R. 439=A.I R. 1945 Pat. 184.

-S. 35—Costs—Pleader's fees—Return of plaint on ground of improper valuation—Basis for computing pleader's fee.

Where the plaint in a suit valued at Rs. 1280 is ordered to be returned on the ground that the valuation of the suit was not properly made and that the correct valuation ought to have been Rs. 2396, the defendants are not entitled to claim pleader's fee on the correct amount of valuation. They are entitled to costs only on Rs. 1280. (Agarwal, I.) KALLU MAL v. MUNICIPAL BOARD. NAVABGANJ. 200 I C. 608=15 R.O 25=1942 O. W.N. 335=1942 A W.R. (C.C.) 220=1942 O.A. 241=A I R. 1942 Oudh 392.

-S. 35-Costs-Power of Court to award costs against stranger to litigation-Relief against real plaintiff in suit by benamidar.

The Court may, in exceptional cases, award costs even against a stranger to the litigation. If a party to damages-Decree for smaller amount than claimed-a litigation desires costs to be awarded against a stranger to that litigation, he must, at an appropriate stage of the litigation, raise the point before the Court, so that the Court may, if it thinks proper to do so, implead the stranger as a party to the litigation and give him an opportunity of being heard. Instances of suits by a benamidar or by a mere puppet in the hands of a speculator are not wanting. It is open to a defendant in such a suit to say that the real plaintiff is a person other than the person in whose name the suit has been filed, and to ask the Court to implead the real plaintiff and award him costs as against the real plaintiff but, if the defendant in such a suit does not adopt such a course, he cannot, after the termination of litigation, raise the question of costs by a separate suit.

Per Dar, J:-If it is intended to make any person other than the nominal party responsible for costs this should be done before or at the time of the passing of the decree for costs and not in the execution of decree. -S. 35 and Stamp Act, S. 29 (c)—Costs—Stamp duty and penalty paid by plaintiff on rent note executed by defendant-Whether can be awarded as costs against latter.

Under S. 29 (c) of the Stamp Act, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary the lessee is responsible for providing the expense of the proper stamp. Where, therefore, in a suit for rent based upon an unstamped rent note executed by the defendant, the plaintiff is ordered to pay the Stamp duty and penalty the amount thus realised may be awarded as costs against the defendant. -S. 35—Costs—Suit for accounts—Order for costs ogainst the defendant-When can be made even in the priliminary decree.

Where the defendants denied the very right of plaintiff to sue as an assignee asserted that the suit was barred by limitation and denied liability to account at all, they can be properly held liable for the costs of the litigation even at a preliminary stage. If they had taken the plea that they had no objection if an account was taken, then the matter would have been different and the determination of the question of costs reserved for the final decree stage. Where a suit brought by a minor represented by his next friend is dismissed, the next friend of the minor plaintiff is ordinarily liable to pay the costs of the successful defendant; but there must be an express direction, and in the absence of clear expression in the decree of the Court's intention to enforce such liability, the matter cannot be left to the interpretation of the executing Court, which must deal with the decree as it finds it, i.e., in its ordinary meaning, without importing anything which is not to be found in the language. Where the decree merely mentions that the successful defendant's costs are to be recovered from the plaintiff the costs would not be recoverable from the next friend unless it is expressly stated that he would be liable and only the minor and his estate can be proceeded against in execution under S. 35, C. P. Code. The Court has the discretion to determine and order by whom and to what extent the costs of a party should be paid. The dircretion must be a judicial discretion, and an order as to costs he can never be automatic; i.e., it can never be said of such an order that no other kind of order could possibly have been made. The executing Court must deal with the decree as it finds it, and cannot assume, in the absence of any indication, that the Court must have so clearly intended to impose the liability for costs on the next friend of a minor plaintiff that it has no option but to give effect to such intention. ——S. 35 and O. 7 R. 10—Plaint presented in wrong Court—Order returning plaint—Condition that plaintiff should pay costs of defendant before presenting to proper Court—Jurisdiction to imfose.

The Court, when passing an order under O. 7, R 10, C. P. Code, returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court, has no jurisdiction to impose a condition that the plaintiff whose plaint is returned shall, before presenting it to that Court, pay the costs of the defendant as a condition precedent. Though under S. 35, C P. Code, the fact that a Court has no jurisdiction to try a suit is no bar the exercise of the power to award costs, there is no power to make payment of cost a condition precedent to the filing of the suit in the proper Court. (Somayya, J.) Kesavalu Naidu v. Venkatarama Chettiar 201 I.C. 119=15 R M. 221=1941 M.W N. 817=54 L.W. 315=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 35=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 450.

S. 35—Plaint presented wrongly in Small Cause Court—Order returning for presentation to proper Court—Direction that court trying suit will make order as to costs—Propriety.

Where a plaint is wrongly presented in the Presidency Small Cause Court, Madras, the Judge of that Court in ordering the plaint to be returned for presentation to the proper Court, has no power to direct the latter Court to pass orders as regards the costs of the suit incurred in the Small Cause Court. The proper order to make would be to order the plaintiff to pay the costs of the defendant, and the Judge of the Small Cause Court should himself make that order. (Mockett J.) GOPALAKRISHNAVYA v. Ss. 35 and 35-A—Power of Court to award costs by way of penalty—Limits—Order to pay costs to other side before admission of certain documents—Legality.

Costs awarded by Court as between parties are meant to compensate the party receiving them for the expenses incurred or to be incurred by it except in the case of special costs awarded under S. 35-A of the C. P. Code. Apart from action under this section no costs can be

Hence an order directing the payment of a certain amount to the opposite party before the admission of certain documents ready with the party seeking to put them in, is irregular. _____S.35—Rent suit—Misstatement of area of holding by landlord.

In cases where a landlord deliberately misstates the area of the holding in respect of which he claims rent, it is only fair that he should bear the costs of the litigation. But where the landlord has purchased the interest of a cosharer after partition and in his plaint he describes the area of the holding as it is described in the partition paper, the accuracy of which he has no reason to doubt, it cannot be said that it is a case in which the landlord deliberately misstates the area of the holding, and he should not therefore be made to bear the costs of the suit. A mere reference to the circumstance of the case with no further detail mentioned is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of S 35(2). (King and Kunhi Raman, II.) RAJABAPAYAA v. BASAVAYYA. 205 I.C. 326=15 R M 348=55 L W 644 (2)=1942 M.W.N. 820 (2)=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 713=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 515.

——S. 35-A — Applicability — Next friend of minor plaintiff — Liability for compensatory costs.

S. 35-A C. P. Code, must be held to apply to a next friend of a minor plaintiff as well as to a plaintiff or a defendant. S. 35-A is clearly not intended to be read alone. It is as it were, an an appendix to S. 35 and is intended to deal with some exceptional cases for which the exercise of the ordinary discretion of the Court under S. 35 would not afford a sufficient compensation. The legislature must be held to have intended, in enacting S. 35 A to make the next friend of a minor plaintiff liable for compensatory costs under S. 35 A, as well as for ordinary costs under S. 35. (Horwill, J.) MEENAKHH V. AYVAMPERUMAL UDAYAN. 56 L.W 615=1943 M.W.N 644=211 I.C. 424=16 R.M. 525=A,I.R. 1944 Mad. 81=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 430.

S. 35-A—Applicability—"Party by whom such claim or defence has been put forward"—Defendant instigating suit and supporting plaintiff, in suit—Dismissal of suit as false and vexatious—Award of exemplary costs—Liability of defendant behind suit.

S. 35-A, C.P. Code is sufficiently wide to bring within it not only a party who actually puts forward a false claim or defence, but also a person who instigates and supports the party who puts forward such claim or defence. A defendant who is behind the suit filed by the plaintiff and who supports the plaintiff comes under the section, and when the suit is dismissed as false and vexatious the Court has power to award exemplary costs not only against the plaintiff but also against the defendant who was behind the suit and instigated it and was in fact the real actor. Leach, C.J. and Shahabaddin, J.) Subbayya 7. Ramachandrappa. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 407=57 L.W. 594=1944 M.W.N. 698=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 84=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 369.

----S. 35-A—Compensatory costs—Award of—Conditions—Powers and duty of Court.

In the absence of an objection raised by the plaintiff that the defence was false or vexatious to the knowledge of the defendant, the Court has no power to award compensatory cost under S. 35-A C. P. Code. An order under S. 35-A has to be passed after recording reasons for holding the defence to be false or vexatious. Where the Court merely says, "having regard to the contentions raised, I think that this is a case in which the plaintiff is entitled to some compensation," that is not a sufficient recording of the of the reasons for holding the defence to be false or vexatious to the knowledge of the defendant. (Wadsworth, I) SWARNAM IVFR v. VEERAGU AMMAL. 210 I C. 53=56 LW. 208.=1943 M.W N 66=16 R.M. 355=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 286 = (1943)1 M.L. J. 41.

——S. 35-A—Specific issue as to compensatory costs—If necessary—Absence — Interference in revision, if justified.

The framing of a specific issue as to compensatory costs is not an essential condition under S. 35-A. C. P. Code. The non-framing of such an issue is not therefore a material irregularity meriting interference in revision. (Harper, S. M. and Sathe. f M) MAHOMED ZEA v. JANGI. 1941 R.D. 383 (2)=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 474=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 433.

—S. 36—Applicability—Scheme for charitable trust—Clause empowering District Judge to remove trustee on his own motion or on application—District Judge acting under—If Court or persona designata—Order for costs by—Executability.

Where a clause in a scheme for regulating and managing a charitable institution empowers a District Judge, of his own motion or upon the application or representation of any person interested in the institution, to remove from the management any trustee who may be found to be unfit or incompetent or negligent, it must be held that such power is given to him as persona designata and not in a judicial capacity. He can act, under the scheme only as a persona designata and not as a Court, and it is therefore not competent to him to make an order for costs capable of execution under the C.P. Code. (Beaument C.J. and Sen. J.) LAXMAN RAGHUNATH v. MAHADEO 199 I.C. 647=14 R B. 374=44 Bom. L.R. 11=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 97.

——Ss. 37 and 38—"Court which has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it"—Meoning of—Transfer of jurisdiction after decree—Execution—Jurisdiction of new Court to entertain application to execute decree.

S. 37, C. P. Code, does not take away from the Court which passed the decree the power to execute it which is conferred by S. 38 The power of execution is given to a Court which could have passed the decree at the time when the execution application is made if the Court which passed the decree has ceased to exist or has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it. Where a Court which actually passed the decree has ceased to exercise territorial jurisdiction over lands once within its jurisdiction but transferred to the jurisdiction of another Court, the former Court must be regarded as a Court "which has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it" within the meaning of S. 37 (b), C. P. Code, and the latter Court has jurisdiction to execute the decree in respect of those lands and can entertain the execution application itself. It is not necessary that the application for execution should be presented to the former Court and transferred by it to the latter. Where there is a transfer of territorial jurisdiction, jurisdiction is not limited only to future proceedings in the nature of suits but also include future proceedings in the nature of execution proceedings. S. 37 (b) specifically relates to execution proceedings. (Davis, C. J. and O'Sullivan, J)
NARAINDAS v. SAINDAD. I.L.R (1944) Kar. 33
=220 I.C. 126=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 173.

S. 37—"Include" — Interpretation—Original Court, if excluded.

The word "includes" as used in S. 37, C. P. Code, though it extends the meaning of the expression "Court which passed the decree" in one sense, does in another sense restrict it. The effect of the words is to exclude, under the circumstances specified in Cls (a) and (b) of the section, the original Court and substitute for it another Court which for purposes of the section is to be regarded as the only Court which passed the decree. Thus when a decree is passed in exercise of appellate jurisdiction as contemplated by Cl. (a) of S. 37, it cannot be said that the word "include" would not exclude the appellate Court which passed the decree, and that both the original and the appellate Courts are proper Courts for execution to either of which an application for execution of the decree could be made. Similarly, to bring a case within the purview of Cl. (b) of that section it is essential that the Court which originally passed the decree has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it, and then only can the other Court, which would be entitled to try the suit if it was then instituted, be regarded as the Court which passed the decree. The other Court is substitut-— Ss. 37, 38 & 150-Mortgage decree—Subsequent order under S. 13(2) of Bengal, Agra & Assam Civil Courts Act assigning area in which mortgaged property was situate to another Court -Application for execution—Proper forum.

A Court which passes a mortgage decree does not cease to have jurisdiction to execute that decree merely by reason of a subsequent order of a District Judge under S. 13 (2) of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act assigning the particular area in which the mortgaged property, is situate to another Court in the same locality. Such an order is only an arrangement for distribution of civil business and cannot in any way curtail the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree over the entire area as determined by the Local Govt. under S 13 (1) of the Civil Courts Act. The Court to which the particular area is assigned has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for execution of the decree as its competency is affected by S. 38, C.P. Code, which lays down that a decree could be executed only by the Court which passed it or the Court to which it was sent for execution. The decree holder cannot invoke the provisions of S. 150, C. P. Code, in his favour, as an assignment of business under S. 13 (2) of the Civil Courts Act is not a transfer of business within the meaning of S. 150, C. P. Code. ——Ss. 37 and 39—Order for costs passed in refusing leave to appeal to Privy Council—When may be executed by trial Court—Such order sent to trial Court by High Court for execution—Trial Court cannot transfer it to another Court for execution.

An order for costs passed by the High Court in refusing leave to appeal to the Privy Council, is not passed by that Court in appeal but in a special jurisdiction. The trial Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to execute that order unless it is transferred to it by the High Court for execution. When it is so transferred, the trial Court may execute it, but cannot transfer it again to another Court for execution. (Henderson, J.) Durga Charan Chatterer v. trict within the Presidency of Madras. Execution was taken out but the proceedings were closed on 23rd July, 1934. Consequent on the coming into force of S 289 of the Government of India Act of 1935 on 1st April, 1936, Ganjam District was transferred from Madras to Orissa Province but the area to which the suit related remained in Madras within the jurisdiction of the Court of the District Munsif of Somepet. In 1939 the respondent commenced execution proceedings in the Court of Berhampore, there having been intermediate proceedings in the same Court in 1937 as well. The judgment-debtor (appellant) pleaded that the Berhampore Court had no jurisdiction.

Held, (1) that on the transfer of Ganjam District from Madras to Orissa, the Berhampore Court ceased to exist as a Court constituted under the Madras Civil Courts Act, but would be deemed as constituted under the Bengal Civil Courts Act; (2) that the Berhampore Court had lost its jurisdiction to execute the decree which was passed by it when it was a Court within Madras as there was no execution application pending on 1st April, 1936; (3) that the considerations applicable to cases of transfers of an area from one district to another in the same province would not apply to a transfer of a district from one province to another under the Government of India Act; (4) that S. 37 (b) of the C. P. Code would apply to the case, and the decree-holder should proceed as provided by that section. (Manohar Lall and Brough, J.) RAMAMURTHY V. GAVARAMMA. 211 I.C. 91=16 R. P. 193=10 B.R. 329=9 Cut. -S. 37 (b)-' Jurisdiction to execute it'-If includes competency to effectively execute decree.

The expression "jurisdiction to execute it" as used in S. 37 (b) C. P. Code, does mean and include the competency of the Court to entertain an application for execution of the decree. Even if in the circumstances of a particular case a Court cannot effectively execute the decree, that would not mean that it has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it. It still remains a competent Court for purposes of execution, though the decree-holder might have to apply for transmission of the decree to another Court for the purpose of obtaining the relief which he wants. (Mukherlea, and Bis vas, J.). MASRAB KHAN v. DEBNATH MALI. I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 289=201 I.C. 234=15 R.C. 144=46 C.W.N. 141=75 C.L.J. 255=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 321.

An executing Court has jurisdiction to order the sale of mortgaged property in execution of a mortgage decree even though the property is situated beyond the limits of its jurisdiction, but it will be for that court to decide after hearing the parties, whether on the score of convenience, he should or should not exercise this jurisdiction. If two Subordinate Judges have the same local juris* diction assigned to them, it is certainly competent for the District Judge to distribute the business among the two officers, but that would not empower the District Judge to make any order in contravention of S. 38, C. P. Code, and direct that the decree passed by one of the officers could be executed by the other. (Mukherjea and Biswas, J.).) ATAMBA SINGH v. GOPAL CHANDRA. 73 C.L.J. 351.

——S. 39 (1) (a)—Discretion of Court—Refusal te transfer decree on ground that judgment debtor not liable to arrest—Propriety.

The fact that the judgment-debtor is not liable to arrest in execution of the decree is not in itself a good reason for refusing to make an order for transmission of the decree to another Court, when it is found that the judgment-debtor resides within the jurisdiction of the latter Court. The Court has a discretion given to it and it must exercise it after taking into account the relevant circumstances. (Krishnaswami Ayyangar and Kunhi Raman, J.) RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR V. # C. P. CODE (1908), S. 39 (2).

-S. 39 (2) -Scope-Transfer of decree for execution by one subordinate Court to another--Propriety.

S. 39 (2) C. P. Code contemplates a transfer by a District Court of a decree of a court subordinate itself. One Subordinate Court is not subordinate to another so as to empower one to transfer a decree for execution to another of its own motion. (Davis, C.J. and O'Sullivan, J.) NARAINDAS U. SAINDAD. I.L.R. -S. 42-Mortgage decree-Transfer for execution to another Court-Power of latter to execute against property beyond its territorial jurisdiction.

A Court to which a mortgage decree is transferred for execution has the power to execute it against all the property which is the subject of the decree, even though none of it might lie within its territorial jurisdiction. It has under S. 42, C. P. Code, the same powers as the Court which passed the decree. (Horwill, J.) SEETHA-RAMAYYA v. SIVARAMAKRISHNA RAO. 216 I C. 316 =17 R.M. 221=56 L.W. 605=1943 M.W.N. 650= A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 145=(1943) 2 M.L J. 536.

-S. 42-Mortgage decree-Transfer for execution to another Court - Power of latter to sell property outside its jurisdiction.

There is nothing in S. 42 or in any part of the C.P. Code which restricts the mode of execution or the power of the Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution. Where therefore a mortgage decree has been transferred to a Court for execution, it can sell the properties lying outside the boundaries of its jurisdiction as well as those lying within them, (Leach. C. J. and Shahabuddin, J.) SIVARAMAKRISHNA RAO v. SEETHARAMAYVA. I.L.B. (1945) Mad. 257=57 L. W. 344 = 1944 N.W.N. 380 = A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 446 =(1944) 2 M.L.J. 2.

-S. 42-Power of executing Court-Grant of instalments.

Under S. 42, C. P. Code the Court executing the decree sent to it has the same powers in executing such decree as if it had been passed by it self. But this does not clothe the executing Court with the power to vary or alter the decree by directing payment of the decretal amount by instalments. (Grille, C. J. Niyogi and Sen, J.) BILIMORIA v. -S. 42-Scope-Decree of one Court sent to another Court for execution-Limitation-If depends on character of executing Court.

S. 42, C. P. Code, deals simply with the manner of execution and leaves the matter of limitation to be governed by Limitation Act. Where a decree passed by one Court is sent for execution to another Court, the period of limitation applicable to the execution of that decree concerned depends upon the character of the Court which passed the decree and not upon the character of the Court executing it. -S. 44-A (3)—Decree not given on merits— Burden of proof.

It is quite clear from the provisions of S. 44-A (3) C. P. Code that the burden is upon the judgment-debtor to establish that the decree falls within exception (b) of S. 13, namely, that it has not been given on the merits of the case. If the judgment debtor alleges that the matter was adjudicated upon without evidence being given by the plaintiff it is for him to prove it. There is a presumption under S. 114 of the Evidence Act that judicial acts have been regularly performed and it is for the judgment debtor to rebut that presumption. (Derbyshire, C. S.47—Adjustment of decree by subsquent agreement—Power of parties—Limits to powers of the executing Court with reference to such agreement.

The C. P. Code contains no general restriction of the parties' liberty of contract with reference to their rights and obligations under the decree. Where it appears to a Court acting under S. 47 C. P. Code that the true effect of an agreement between parties to a decree is to discharge the decree forthwith in consideration of certain promises by the debtor then there would be no occasion for the Court to enforce it in execution proceedings and the creditor would have to bring a separate suit upon the contract. But where it is clear that the agreement in a adjustment of the original decree is an agreement intenced to govern the liability of the debiors under the decree and to have merely an effect upon the manner of its enforcement and is not an agreement whose effect is to discharge the decree forthwith such an agreement is a matter to the dealt with under S. 47 C. P. Code. (Roberts C. J. and Dunkley, J.) KORBAN BIBI v. V. M R.P. CHETTYAR FIRM. 1941 Rang. L. R. 767=A.I.R. 1942 Rang. 57.

Where the subject matter of an application in respect of amounts realised by sale in execution of a decree and lying in Court is a question regarding the right of the decree-holder to obtain further sums by way of interest upon his decree amount, the question falls clearly under S. 47 C.P. Code and an order passed on such application is open to appeal. (King and Byers, J.J.) PALAMALAI CHETTIAR v. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR. 202 I. No appeal lies from an order dismissing an application for delivery of property by an auction-purchaser of the property at an execution sale due to objection by the judgment-debtor; the dispute between the auction-purchaser and the judgment-debtor, being one between the judgment-debtor and a person claiming through him, does not fall within the scope of S. 47, C.P. Code. (Horwill, J.) Kotayya v. Narayana. 214 I.C. 304=1943 M.W.N. 828=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 60=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 450.

——S. 47—Appeal—Application by purchaser at mortgage sale for retention of portion of sale proceeds for payment of unpaid taxes—Order thereon.

An order on an application made by a purchaser at a mortgage sale to the effect that a certain sum might be retained by the Court for payment to the Calcutta Corporation which has a demand on the property sold for arrears of taxes, does not come within S. 47, C. P. Code, and as such cannot be challenged by way of appeal. (Ghose and Mukherjea, J.). Satish Chandra Das v. Kamala Bala Devi. 75 C.L.J. 363.

——Ss. 47 and 151—Appeal—Application by supraider for recovery of costs incurred in respect of attached property from decree-holder—Order on—If appealable.

Where on an application by supratdar to recover from the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the attached property to Court and taking it back from Court, the Court passed an order that they should be recovered from the judgment-debtor and not from the decree-holder.

Held, that whether the order was regarded as falling under S. 145 or S. 144 or S. 47, C. P. Code, all of them would have to be read with S. 151; and that as orders passed under any of these sections were appealable the mere fact that any of the sections were not strictly applicable to the facts of the case did not negative the right of appeal of the supratdar. (Puranik, J.) Sheonandanial v. Gopal Babaji. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 699=207 I.C. 41=16 R.N. 12=1943 N.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 172.

S. 47—Appeal—Consent deeree—Clause providing for payment of sum in lump on default—Application for relief against clause on ground of its being penal—Dismissal—Appeal—Competency—C. P. Code, S. 151—Scope.

Apart from S. 47, C. P. Code, an appeal does not ordinarily lie against an order under S. 151, C. P. Code. S. 151 confers no powers upon the Court; it does not confer a right of appeal. But when an order though ostensibly made under S. 151, is one in execution falling under S. 47, C. Code, there is a right of appeal. The deciding factor is not whether the order was made under S. 151, C. P. Code, but whether it is an order which properly falls under S. 47, C. P. Code and is a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2), C. P. Code. S. 47 is wide in its terms and covers all questions arising between the parties to the suit relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. A question whether a particular term or clause in a consent decree which is sought to be executed is penal and whether it shall or shall not be enforced in execution, is one which clearly falls under S. 47, C. P. Code, and an appeal therefore lies from an order dismissing appeal therefore lies from an order an application praying for relief against the so falls under S. 47, C. P. Code, and hence is appealable. (Davis, C.J., and Lobo, J.) Monteiro v. Astridge. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 245=210 I.C. 397=16 R.S. 141=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 247.

——S. 47—Appeal—Decree against person in personal property—Objection to attachment and sale of property on the ground that he holds it as mutawalli—If falls under S. 47 or O. 21, R. 58—

Appeal-Competency.

Where a judgment-debtor objects to the sale of the attached property on the ground that he holds such property as a mutawalli or trustee and therefore it is not liable to be sold in execution of a decree obtained against him in his personal or individual capacity, S. 47, C. P. Code, applies to the case and the order is appealable. O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code, does not apply to the case and hence an appeal, and not a separate suit lies. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) Shahban Mohib v. Hemraj Rachavji. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 474=197 I.C. 884=14 R.S. 125=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 14.

S. 47—Appeal—Execution of charge decree— Order refusing prayer of transferee of portion of charged properties that properties in his possession should not be sold first.

An appeal lies from an order of the executing Court accepting the contention of the holder of a charge decree that a transferee of a portion of the charged properties subsequent to the decree has no right to say that the properties in his possession should not be sold till the other properties are sold. To the extent of the properties the transferee holds he is a representative of the judgment-debtor, and the question that has been raised and determined by the Court is one which relates to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code. (Grille, S.J. and Puramk, J.) NIL-KANTHRAO v. MT. SATYABHAMBAI, I L.R. (1944) Nag. 230=210 I.C. 548=16 R.N. 162=1943 N.L. J. 532=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 25.

S. 47—Appeal—Execution—Order allowing or disallowing claim or plea but not terminating execution petition-Appealability.

(Krishnaswamy Ayyangar and Kunhi Raman, JJ. in order of reference).—If a claim or plea is definitely allowed or disallowed, the order is appealable notwithstanding that the execution petition in which it is made is not terminated by it. (Leach, C.J., King and Lakshmana Rao, JJ.) BALASUBRAMANIAM CHETTY v. KOTHANDARAMASWAMI NAYANIM VARU. I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 164—204 I.C. 96—15 R.M. 697—55 L.W. 623—1942 M.W.N. 657—A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 688—(1942) 2 M.L.J. 463 (F.B.).

B. 47—Appeal—Execution petition filed a few days before decree became barred—Dismissal for default —Appeal.

In execution of a decree dated 20-4-1928, and an execution petition was filed on 25-3-1940, praying for attachment of immovable properties,

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

The Court fixed 18-7-1940 for filing sale papers and encumbrance certificate. On the adjourned date the Court made an order in the following terms:—"The judgment debtor, exparte. Sale papers and encumbrance certificate are not filed. Dismissed. No costs. Attachment to cease." An appeal by the decree-holder was dismissed on the ground that no appeal lay.

Held, that the order of dismissal fell under S. 47, C. P. Code and was therefore appealable. (Kunhi Raman, J.) LAKSHMANA KORO V. VISWE SWARA PATHRUDU. 209 I.C. 613=56 L.W. 104=1943 M.W.N. 137=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 346=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 174.

—S. 47—Appeal—Legal representative of judgment debtor—Objection to attachment—Plea that preperty attached is not assets of deceased but his own property held in individual capacity—Order—Appealability—Separate suit—If necessary.

Where a legal representative of a judgment-debtor objects to the attachment and sale of property on the ground that the property sought to be sold in execution is his own property, held by him in his individual capacity, and is not property coming to him as legal representative of the judgment-debtor and is not assets of the judgment-debtor in his hands, the question falls to be decided under S. 47, C. P. Code and not under O. 21, R. 58, C. P Code. An appeal lies against the order dismissing the objections and no separate suit is necessary. (Davis, C.J. and Tyabji, J.) HARBHAGWANDAS v. RUGHNATH. I.R. (1941) Kar. 211=196 I.C. 447=14 R.S. 63=A.I.R. 1941 Sind 142.

——S. 47—Appeal — Mortgage decree — Execution sale—Purchase by decree-holder—Application for possession—Order on—Appeal.

Where the property of a judgment-debtor is sold in execution of a mortgage decree and purchased by the decree-holder, the question whether the property purchased and sought to be taken possession of by the decree-holder purchaser, is included in the sale certificate is not a question relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree falling under S. 47, C. P. Code, and hence no appeal lies from an order on such application by the decree-holder for possession. (Macklin and Lokur, JJ.) SAVLARAM GANGARAM v. VISHWANATH. 47 BOM.L.B. 320=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 386.

S. 47—Appeal—Objection by judgment-debtor to sale—Plea that property is ghatwall tenure and hence not saleable—Order on—Appealability—O. 21, R. 58—Applicability—Objection raised at late stage on day of sale—Duty of Court to consider—Summary rejection—Propriety of.

An objection to the sale of a property in execution of a decree to the effect that the property is a ghatwali tenure and therefore not saleable, is one which goes to the root of the jurisdiction of the Court to hold the sale, and must be determined before the sale takes place. The mere fact that the objection is raised by the judgment-debtor at a late stage, i.e., on the date fixed for the sale, is no ground for rejecting it summarily. Such an objection raised by the judgment-debtor does not fall under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code. The objection can be raised under S. 47, C. P. Code, and the order passed thereon is appealable. (Chatterji and Meredith, JJ.) KUSUM KUMARI V. HARNATH RAI BIRIJRAJ. 191 I.C. 138=13 R. P. 318=7 B.R. 148=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 240.

——Ss. 47 and 2 (2)—Appeal—Order interpreting scheme framed in suit under S. 92—Order finally adjudicating rights of parties under scheme —If decree.

An order interpreting a scheme framed in a suit instituted under S. 92, C. P. Code, or giving directions for carrying out the provisions of the scheme cannot be regarded as an order passed in execution under S. 47 C. P. Code. But an order of a District Judge finally adjudicating the rights of the Mohant and the committee under the scheme framed in the suit which is kept pending and to which they may be regarded as parties, amounts to a decree and is appealable as such. (Mitter and Khandkar. J.) SRIJIB NYAYATIRTHA v. SREEMAT DANDY SWAMI JAGANNATH ASRAM. 199 I.C. 841=14 R.O. 648=73 C.L.J. 532=A.I.B. 1941 Cal. 618.

——Ss. 47 and 151—Appeal—Order of executing court questioning appropriation made by Revenue Court under S. 162, Berar Land Revenue Code, inspite of its prohibitory order—Appeal by Government — Second appeal—Maintainability.

Property belonging to a judgment debtor was sold by the Revenue Court for Rs. 900 for arrears of land revenue amounting to Rs. 18. At the instance of the decree-holder, the executing Court issued a prohibitory order under O. 21, R. 52, C. P. Code, to the Revenue Court for attachment of Rs. 882 out of the sale proceeds. Some time later, when the executing Court asked the Revenue Court to send the amount attached, it was informed that the surplus available to the decree-holder was only Rs. 104 after deducting under S. 162 of the Berar Land Revenue Code other arrears payable to the Crown by the judgment-debtor. The executing Court ordered that the Revenue Court should not appropriate the amount in the manner in which it had done after an attachment had been effected by it. On an appeal by the Provincial Government, the District Judge reversed that order. On second appeal, Held, that the matter fell under S. 47, read with S. 151, C. P. Code, that the Provincial Government was a representative of the judgment debtor to the extent of the amount appropriated under S. 162 of the Berar Land Revenue Code, and that, therefore, both the appeal before the lower appellate Court and the second appeal in the High Court were maintainable. (Puranik, J.) JAGANNATH v. PROVINCIAL GOVT. C. P. & BERAR. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 496=1945 N.L.J. 111=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 150.

An application for attachment of Property under O. 21, R. 42, C. P. Code, is a proceeding in execution and an order passed thereon must, therefore, be treated as one relating to execution and coming within the purview of S. 47 C, P. Code. The fact that before passing the order the Court entered into an investigation of claims and objections to the proposed attachment cannot affect the character of the order, particularly when the objections were filed not only by stranger objectors but also by the judgment-debtors As such, the order will be open to appeal under S. 47, C. P. Code. (Biswas and Roxburgh, J.) JAGAT TARINI DASSI v. SAROJ RANJAN. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 363=196 I.C. 247=14 R.C. 195=74 C.L.J 169=45 C.W.N. 323=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 357.

——S. 47 and O 21, R. 95—Appeal—order on Application under O. 21, R. 95. by decree holder auction-purchaser—If appealable—Separate suit, if barred.

An order passed on an application under O. 21, R. 95, C. P. Code, made by an auction-purchaser, who was a decree-holder, is outside the ambit of S. 47, C. P. Code and is not appealable as such and a separate suit to recover possession of the property sold to him is not barred by the provisions of that section. (Abdul Rashid Ram Lall, and Mahajan, J.) RAM SINGH GOPAL SINGH v. ABDULLAH HABIBULLAH. 217. I G. 147 = 17 R.L. 209 = 46 P.L.Z. 357 = A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 402 (F.B).

It is not every order made in execution of a decree that comes within S. 47 C.P. Code. A refusal to entertain a new plea cannot be regarded as a determination of the rights of parties and such order will not be appealable. (Tek Chand, Bhide and Beckett, J.) BARKAT RAM v. BHAGWAN SINGH. 208 I.C. 89=16 R.L. 29=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 140 (F.B.).

S. 47—Appeal—order refusing amendment of execution application.

An order rejecting an application to amend an execution application does not amount to a conclusive determination of the interests of the parties and interlocutory orders of such a nature are not subject to appeal. (Davies.) BHAG CHAND v. SHANKAR LAL. 1941 A. M.L.J 78.

S. 47 and O. 21, R. 18.—Appeal—order refusing to allow set-off.

The question the whether decree holder is entitled to a set-off or not of a cross-decree under O. 21, R. 18, C. P. Code is a question relating to execution or satisfaction of a decree within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code. An appeal is therefore, maintainable from an order refusing to allow set off. (Harris C. J. and Manohar Lall, J.) SIDHESHWAK PRASAD SING v. SONU LAL. 197 I. C. 440 = 14 R. P. 300 = 22 Pat. I. T. 1031 = 8 B. R. 207 = A.I. R. 1942 Pat. 197.

——S. 47—Appeal—Order refusing to stay execution—Conversion of revision petition into memorandum of appeal—Permissibility — Bengal Agriculturists' Debtors Act, S. 34.

An order refusing to stay execution proceeding on receipt of a notice under S. 34 of the Bengal Agriculturists' Debtors Act, comes within S. 47, C. P. Code, and is appealable. Where the value of the decree is above Rs. 5,000, the High Court has jurisdiction to convert a revision petition into a memorandum of appeal from the original order. (Mukher ica and Edits, J.). MAHOMED ABDUL WASHE v. BROJENDRA MOHAN MAITRA. 49 C.W.N. 532.

Q.D. I-52

8.47—Appeal—Order refusing to stay proceeding under S. 174, B. T. Act.

An order of an executing Court refusing to stay a proceeding under S. 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act in spite of a notice under S. 34 of Bengal Agriculturist's Debtors Act is an order relating to execution, and although the auction-purchaser is a party to the proceeding, it is still an order which comes within S. 47, C. P. code the question at issue being one in which the judgment-debtor on the one hand and the decree-holder on the other are really interested. This being so the order is open to appeal and an application under S. 115, C.P. code, is not accordingly competent. (Biswas and Roxburgh, J.) MUKIMANNESSA CHAUDHURANI v. RAMESWAR SHUKUL. 194 I.C. 805—14 R.C. 17—45 C.W.N. 379—A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 264.

S. 47—Appeal—Order setting aside execution sale.

An order setting aside an execution sale on an application by the judgment debtor under S. 47, C. P. Code is appealable as a decree. (Henderson, J.) UDAY CHAND MAHTAB v. PHANINDRA LAL GHOSH. I.LR. (1941) 1 Cal. 28 = 218 I.C. 198 = 18 R.C. 17 = A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 384.

——S.47—Appeal—order under 0.21, R. 66, amending sale proclamation—1/ judicial or administrative—Appealability.

An order of the executing Court amending a sale proclamation, giving certain particulars about encumbrances or liens on the property proclaimed for sale, under O. 21. R. 66, C. P. Code, is not appealable. It is only an administrative order and not a judicial one. Even if the Court proceeds under the rule after a summary inquiry and purports to decide disputed rights between the parties the decision would be an interlocutory decision only and not final. (Davis C. J. and Tyabii, J.) GHANSHAMDAS v. KHUDABADI AMIL CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT BANK LTD. I.I.R. (1941) Kar. 199 = 195 I.C. 367 = 14 R. S. 30 = A.I.R. 1941 Sind. 101.

——S. 47—Appeal—Parties—Objection filed only by one of the heirs of judgment-debtor—Appeal by decree-holder—Other heirs, if necessary parties.

Where an objection under S. 47 C. P. Code, was filed by only one of the heirs of the deceased judgment-debtor it is not necessary for the decree holder filing an appeal to make the other heirs parties in it. (Hinderson J.) RADHABALLAV BASAK v. MAHENDRA KUMAR SEN. 45 C.W.N. 342.

S. 47—Appeal—"Party to suit"—Meaning— Purchaser of mortgaged property impleaded as party in suit on mortgage—Execution of personal decree—Objection by purchaser—Order on—Appeal—Competency.

In order that a person may be regarded as a party to the suit within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code it is not necessary that he should be a party to the decree sought to be executed, but he should be a party to the suit in which the decree is passed. Where in a mortgage suit the purchaser of a portion of the mortgaged property is impleaded as a party, and a mortgage decree is passed, and subsequently a personal decree is passed in the suit such purchaser must be regarded as a party to the suit, in proceedings for execution of the personal decree although the personal decree is not against him and no personal decree could be passed against him. Where he raises objections to execution in respect of such personal decree, his objections fall under S. 47 and an order on such objection is subject to appeal and

——S. 47—Appeal—Person wrongly held to be representative of party to suit—Right of appeal—Oblection to appeal by respondent—Sustranability.

It is true that a person who is neither a party to a suit nor a representative of a party within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code, has no right of appeal from an order. But an appeal does lie if the Court purports to make an order under a provision of law wrongly assumed by it to be applicable, though it was not really applicable, provided of course that an appeal is ordinarily permitted against orders rightly made under that provision. Where the lower Court has held in effect that a person was the representatives of a party to the suit, though he is a stranger to the suit, it is open to that person to appeal from that order. A respondent who has invited the Court to pass the order under appeal on the footing that the appellant was the representative of a party to the suit or of one who was sufficiently represented in the suit, cannot be permitted to urge the contrary in bar of the maintainability of the appeal. (Krishnaswami Avyangar and Kunhi Raman, J.) ANJAYYAv. GUN. DARAYUDU. I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 702-313 I.C. 406 = 17 R.M. 103 = 56 L.W 756=1943 M.W.N. 89=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 381=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 539.

Ss. 47 and 73—Appeal—Rateable distribution— Order as to—Contest between rival decree-holders only, No appeal lies from an order under S. 73, C. P. Code,

No appeal lies from an order under S. 73, C. P. Code, when the contest is between the rival decree-holders only and is one in which the judgment debtor is not interested. (Bose, J.) BALMUKUND JAINARAYAN v. HIRASAO. 1943 N.L. J. 450=I.L. R. (1943) Nag. 562=209 I.C. 281=16 R.N. 118=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 320.

—S. 47—Appeal—Receiver—Order directing payment of sum of money to third party—Appealability. See C.P. CODE, O. 43, R. 1 (S). I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 343.

S. 47—Appeal—Representative—Decree against insolvents—Attachment and sale of property—Notice not served on Official Receiver—Application by latter to set aside sale on ground of non-service of notice—Rejection—Appeal—Maintainability—Official Receiver—If representative of judgment-debtor.

Official Receiver in insolvency cannot be regarded merely as the representative of the creditors. He represents the insolvent and the debtor's interest in the properties of his estate devolves on him. Where in execution of a decree against certain insolvent debtors properties belonging to them are sold without impleading the Official Receiver or serving a notice on him under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, an application by the Official Receiver to have the sale set aside on the ground of non-observance of O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, falls under S. 47. The dispute being one between the decree holder and the representative of the judgment debtors S. 47, C.P. Code, has full application and an appeal therefore lies against an order rejecting the appliction of the Official Receiver. (Leach C.J. and Krishnaswami Aiyangar J.) OFFICIAL RECFIVER, NELLORE v. VENKIAH. 198 I.C. 417=14 R.M. 435=53 L.W. 498=1941 M.W.N. 577=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 606=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 569.

A dispute between two representatives of the judgment-debtor, in which the decree-holder has no concern, does not fall under S. 47, C. P. Code, and an order as to such dispute is not appealable. Where an application under O. 21, R. 97, C. P. Code, by a stranger auction purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree creating a charge on immovable properties, to remove obstruction by a private purchaser from the judgment-debtor, is dismissed, the remedy of the applicant is by way of suit under O. 21, R. 103 and not by way of appeal; S. 47 does not apply, as the contest is not between the opposing parties in the suit or their representatives. (King and Shahabuddin, Jf.) MALLARI RAO v. SIVAGNANA VANDAYAR. 213 I.C. 70=17 R.M. 18=1943 M.W.N. 602=56 L.W. 560=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 11=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 391.

-S. 47—Appeal—Transferee of transferee from judgment debtor—Objections by to atta.hment—Order on—Appealability—Representative—O. 21, R. 58.

A transferee from a transferee from a judgment-debtor is not a representative of a judgment-debtor, and the objections filed by such transferee to the attachment of the property in his hands falls not under S. 47, C.P. Code, but under O. 21, R. 58, C.P. Code. No appeal therefore lies against an order disallowing his claim or objections. (Harries, C.J. and Manohar Lall, J.) RAM BEHARI SAHAI v. BINDA PRASAD. 194 I.C. 45=13 R.P. 651=7 B.R. 630=A.I.R. 1941 Pat 394.

Where after a decision that a wall is party wall, and before an appeal is preferred therefrom a party makes alterations thereto without the knowledge or consent of the other side it is an obstruction raised during the pendency of the suit and it should be ordered to be removed on application made, by the executing Court under S. 47, C. P. Code. (Davies.) ACHAL DAS v. SUNDARAM. 1940 A.M.L.J. 120.

—S. 47—Applicability—Application by judgment-debtor to set aside execution sale on ground of want of jurisdiction—Application made after confirmation of sale—If maintainable.

An application by the judgment-debtor to set aside an execution sale on the ground that the executing Court had no jurisdiction to proceed with the execution and put up the property to sale after receipt of a notice under S. 34 of the Bengal Agricultural Debtors' Act, raises a question relating to the execution of the decree between the judgment-debtor on the one hand and the decree-holder on the other, and the fact that the stranger purchaser who though not a party to the suit is interested in the result does not operate as a bar to the application of S. 47, C. P. Code. The fact that the sale has been confirmed is no bar to the application under S. 47; but if the judgment-debtor was actually a party to the order for sale or was aware of the proceeding and did not appeal against it, he is precluded from questioning the propriety of the order and the sale held in pursuance of the order. (Mukheriea and Ellis, J.) SARAT CHANDRA GAYAN v. PORT CANNING AND LAND IMPROVEMENT CO., LTD. 80 C.L.J. 35.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

5. 47—Applicability—"Between the parties to the surt"—Interpretation—Conflict in the suit—Necessity—Detendants sailing together and supporting each other—Conflict in execution—Appeal—Maintainability.

It is necessary that there should have been a conflict in the suit between the parties in order that the decision of the question arising in execution between them could come under S. 47, C. P. Code. Where in a suit two defendants sailed together and supported each other but in execution there is a conflict of interest and orders are passed in favour of one against the other, the case does not fall under S. 47, C. P. Code and hence an appeal against the order in execution will not lie, (Wadsworth Offs. C. J. and Patanjali Sastri, J.) BAGYALAKSHMI AMMAL v BAPPU AIYAR. 1945 M. W.N. 761 = 58 L. —S. 47 — Applicability — Bihar Money-Lenders Act, S. 13—Order under-If decree— Second appeal—Maintainability.

Obiter;—An order under S. 13 of the Bihar Money Lenders Act amounts to a decree and comes within S. 47, C. P. Code, and a second appeal is therefore competent. (Meredith, J.) LAL BAHADUR SINGH v. BISHWANATH PRASAD SINGH, 198 I.C. 204 = 14 R.P. 412 = 1942 P.W.N. 28=8 B.R. 335=23 P.L.T. 14=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 237.

——S. 47—Applicability — Co-decree-holders— Dispute between—Order on—Appeal.

For S. 47, C.P. Code, to apply, the contest must be between the opposing parties in the suit or their representatives in interest. Where the dispute is one merely between co-decree-holders in which the judgment-debtor has no concern, S. 47 does not apply and an order in that matter cannot be the subject of an appeal. (Leach, C. J. and Lakshmana Rao, J.) BAPANNA GARU V. JAGGIAH. 209 I.C. 589=1943 M.W.N. 228=56 L.W. 169=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 407=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 271.

S. 47—Applicability — Court of Deputy.
Collector under Bengal Rent Act.

S 47, C. P. Code, does not apply to the Court of a Deputy Collector under the Bengal Rent Act. A party aggrieved by an order passed by that Court in execution proceedings has, therefore the remedy of a suit. (Henderson, J.) SAKKAL SARDAR v. ISWAR DAS THIRANI. I.L.R. ——S. 47 — Applicability — Dispute between party and his representative or between persons representing same party.

S. 47, C. P. Code does not apply where the dispute arises between a party and his own representative or between two persons who both represent the same party. (Leach, C. J., Pandrang Row, Abdur Rahman, Krishnaswami Ayyan-

An application to set aside a sale on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court executing the decree and holding the sale falls under S. 47, C. P. Code, and does not fall under O. 21, R. 90, C. S. 47—Applicability-Execution sale—Application to set aside on ground of want of notice prior to fresh proclamation of sale—Order on—Second appeal—Competency—Limitation.

Where notice has not been issued to the judgment-debtor before a fresh proclamation of sale is settled, and failure to issue notice is alleged to constitute a defect which entitles him to come under S. 47, C. Where the application is not filed within thirty days from the date of sale it is barred under Art. 166, Limitation Act, even though it is made under S. 47, C. P. A question as to what should be the substituted security in the case of a mortgage decree or as to whether the sale certificate should be amended falls within the ambit of S. 47, C.P. Code. An order refusing an application for amending the plaint in a mortgage suit the decree and the sale certificate, by correcting the description of the properties given therein consequent on the alteration of the mortgagor's interest from pucca to kham share as the result of a collectorate partition of which the decree holder came to know only subsequent to the sale under the mortgage decree, is appealable under S. 47, C. P. Code as the question relates to the execution, discharge and satisfaction of the decree under S. 47. A separate suit by the decree-holder is not maintainable. The plainting such a suit can however be treated as a proceeding under S. 47, C. P. Code, subject to limitation. (Harries, C. J. and Manohar Lall. J.) SITARAM SINGH v. JANARDHAN SINGH. 1943 P.W N. 45.

Where persons who have obtained a decree for possession get possession without execution and are subsequently dispossessed, they are entitled to sue for possession. The fact that they did not execute their decree does not debar them from suing for possession, as under S. 47, C. P. —S. 47—Bar sixuit—Execution sale of property in contravention of S. 12-A. Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act—Objection—Dismissal—Suit to declare sale void and for possession from auction purchaser—Maintainability.

The question whether a certain property can be sold in execution in contravention of S. 12-A of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act is essentially one falling under S. 47, C. P. Code and must be decided in execution. The judgment-debtor cannot raise this question in a separate suit although such suit may be brought not against the decree-holder but against the auction-purchaser at the sale and though it may be assumed that the auction-purchaser is not a representative either of the judgment-debtor or of the decree-holder. Further if the judgmentdebtor in execution objects to the sale on the ground that it is prohibited by S. 12-A of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act and his objection is dismissed and the property is sold the order which becomes final as against the decree-holder becomes final against the auctionpurchaser as well. S. 47—Bar of suit—Hindu reversioners impleaded as legal representatives of widow in execution of mortgage decree against her—Defences open—Separate suit to challenge the mortgage in question—Maintainability.

When a person is brought on record in execution proceedings as the legal representative of a deceased party, it is no doubt open to him to contend that he does not occupy that capacity and if such a question is raised, the Court must chaser, as the decree holder purchaser under his mortgage decree acquired the rights both of the decree-holder and of the judgment-behor, and to some extent represented both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, in opposing the decide it. But once he is brought on the record as the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor it would not be open to him to raise questions which would amount to challenging the decree or going behind the decree. Hence, a reversioner impleaded in execution as the legal representative of the judgment-debtor a Hindu widow, against whom a decree for sale on the basis of a mortgage of her husband's property has been passed, can raise the question as to the validity and binding nature of the mortgage in a separate suit, though he may not have raised the question in the execution proceedings (Ghulam Hasan and Kaul, JJ.) The appellant's vendor was the mortgagee of a two-thirds share in a house, under a mortgage executed by two members of a joint Hindu family who purported to mortgage their share. After their death, a suit was brought on the mortgage against his nephew S, as their legal representative; a decree was passed and in execution, the appellant's vendor purchased the property. S himself had mortgaged the entire house purporting to act as manager of the joint family of himself and his two uncles, to the respondent who brought a suit and in execution of the decree obtained by him, purchased the house. He got delivery of possession. When the appellant tried to obtain delivery of possession, he was obstructed by the respondent and when he applied for removal of obstruction, his application was dismissed on the ground that his proper remedy was to file a partition suit. The appellant then filed a suit against the respondent without preferring an appeal against the order dismissing his application.

Held, (1) that in the circumstances of the case the contest was one between the representative of the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder in execution, and fell under S. 47, C. P. Code, (2) that the appellant as the decree-holder in the second execution, was still the decree-holder, he having purchased nothing, because the rights of the judgment-debtor had already been purchased by the respondent in execution of his mortgage decree; (3) that, through the respondent as purchaser, as the decree holder purchaser under his mortgage decree acquired the rights both of the decree-holder and of the judgment-bebtor, and to some extent represented both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, in opposing the claims of the appellant (the decree-holder in the second execution), he was certainly putting forward rights derived by him from the judgment-debtor which would disentitle the appellant to proceed against the property in which the judgment-debtor had no longer any interest, the whole rights having been acquired by the purchaser in the earlier proceedings; (4) that therefore the proper remedy of the appellant was to appeal from the order dismissing his application for removal of obstruction and delivery and not to file a separate suit. (Horwill 1.) BALALINGAYYA v. SUNKU NALLAYYA. 215 I.C. 130=1943 M.W.N. 830=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 62=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 508.

——S. 47—Bar of suit—Mortgage suit—Party elaiming property by title paramount and held to be not necessary party to suit—Procedure—Dismissal of suit as against such party—Propriety—Such party—If "party to suit"—Explanation to S. 47—Question between such party and decree-holder—Separate suit—If barred.

Where in a mortgage suit some defendants plead that they are entitled to the property in suit and claim the mortgaged property or an interest in it by title paramount, and the Court holds that they are not necessary parties to the suit, the Court should order their names to be struck out of the plaint. It is not correct for the Court to dismiss the suit as against them. Where, instead of so directing that such parties should be struck out as having been improperly impleaded, erroneously makes an order dismissing the suit as against them, such persons cannot properly be said to have been parties to the suit within the meaning of the Explanation to S. 47, C. P. Code. A question which arises between them and the decree-holder in the execution of the decree cannot also properly be said to be one relating to the execution of the decree. A separate suit is therefore not barred by S. 47. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) KUSMI v. SADASIVA MAHTO. 21 Pat. 601=201 I.C. 196-8 B.R. 770=15 R.P. 34=23 Pat. L.T. 354=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 432.

S. 47—Bar of suit—Partition suit—Decree— Provision that sharers other than plaintiff will be put in possession of shares on paying necessary Court-fec— Separate suit by defendant-sharer for recovery of share —Maintainability.

Where a decree in a partition suit provides that the remaining sharers other than the plaintiff shall be put in possession of their respective shares on paying the necessary Court-fee, the proper method of reading such a decree is that it declares the right of the sharers to the properties allotted to them and gives an option to the defendant-sharers to pay the Court-fee in respect of the properties allotted to them and seek possession if they like in execution of that decree. But it does not oblige them to do so, and hence a separate suit for possession by a sharer defendant is not barred by S. 47, C. P. Code. But a decree may be passed in favour of a defendant without any condition particularly as regards his payment of Court-fee. Such a decree may be one executable under S. 47. C. P. Code, and may bar a separate suit, But before a separate suit can be barred, there must be an unconditional decree giving a defendant a right to execute the decree to get the properties allotted to him. (Somayya, J.) NAHA HAJI v. VEERAN 204 I.C. 209=15 R.M. 718=55 L.W. 61=1942 M.W.N 363=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 364=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 219.

Although in the case of a decree determining a right to partition which could be executed, it would fall under S. 47, C. P. Code a preliminary decree directing that the plainiff in the suit was entitled to partition is a merely declaratory decree, which, if not subsequently enforced, would not debar the plaintiff from filing a fresh suit; S. 47, C. P. Code, does not apply to such a case. In the case of property paying revenue to Govern. ment, the Court only directs that the plaintiff is entitled to partition, which alone it is competent to do. The matter then rests with the Collector to effect partition. Whether it is regarded as a declaratory decree or as the final decree of the Court, there is nothing for the parties to do in execution, and S. 47 will not apply. A fresh suit for partition is not also barred by res judicata. Looked at as final decree, the prior decree would not prevent the Collector from performing his duty of effecting a partition in pursuance of the decree in the fresh suit. if the only difficulty be that he had not performed his duty; and if it is a declaratory decree, it is not a decree finally decided within the meaning of S. 11, C. P. Code so as to bar the filing of a fresh suit for partition. (Beaumont, C. J. and Sen, J.) VISHNU JANARDAN v. MAHADEV KESHAV. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 14=198 I.C. 550=14 R.B. 318=43 Bom.L.R. 971=A.I. 8. 47—Bar of suit—Person impleaded in execution as legal representative of deceased party after having been dismissed from suit—Claim to property covered by decree—If to be set up in excution—Separate suit—If barrea.

When a person comes to Court in execution proceedings as the legal representative of a deceased party, he cannot question the decree which has been passed. If the decree concerns property in which he claims an interest, the decree will not be binding upon him unless he was a party to the suit. If he was not a party to the suit or if he had been dismissed from the suit his rights would be entirely unaffected and he would be in a position to enforce them in a suit instituted by him for that purpose. He is not compelled to have his own claims to the property decided in execution proceedings. (Leach, C.J., Krishnaswami Aiyangar and Chandrasekhara Aiyar, JJ.) Hamidani Ammal v.Amma Sahib Ammal I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 271=198 I.C. 158=14 R.M. 389=1941 M.W.N. 906=54 L.W. 448=AI.R. 1941 Mad. 898=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 622 (F.B.).

KHIALMAL v. POHUMAL. [see Q.D. 1936—'40 Vol. I, Col. 3277.] 193 I.C. 247=13 R S. 214.

Where in execution of a decree ancestral property is sold to a stranger auction-purchaser as the separate property of the judgment-debtor which was beyond the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to sell, a separate suit, the object of which is to set aside the sale, does not lie at the instance of the judgment-debtor. The question as to the nature of the property is one relating to execution and the dispute is as between the parties to the suit and as such falls within S. 47, C. P. Code. (Thomas, C. J. and Ghulam Hasam, J.) Sharbett Bandi v. Mahomed Hashim. 1943 O W N 418 = 1943 A.W.R. (C.C.) 141=1943 O A (CC) 273=212 I.C. 281=16 R.O. 275=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 43.

—S. 47 and O. 21. R. 95—Bar of suit—Suit for possession by landlord decree-holder—Auction-purchaser—Inclusion of claim for mesne profits—Effect—Limitation Act, Art. 139.

Where a decree-holder auction-purchaser seeks to recover possession of any immovable property purchased by him, he must proceed by way of an application, and not by a separate suit: in other words, if he wants khas possess on, he is limited to the remedy provided by O 21, R. 95, C. P Code and a separate suit by him is barred by S. 47, C P Code. The fact that he is also the landlord does not give him an independent right to sue for the same relief. It is the auction-purchase which consuitutes his cause of action and a suit by hom to recover possession cannot be referred to his character as landlord. Art. 139 of the Limitation Act does not create a right of suit, but merely recognises it. The landlord decree-holder auction-purchaser cannot escape the bar of S. 47, C. P. Code, by including a claim for mesne profits in a suit for possession. A claim to mesne profits can arise only when he has established his title to recover possession. So far as possession is concerned, his only remedy is by way of an application under O. 21, R 95 and if he seeks mesne profits, he must bring a separate suit for purpose. (Ray and Biswas, JJ.) Where in a suit brought on the basis of a hand-note against the members of a joint Hindu fainly the minor defendants are not represented by any guardian, the effect is that they are not in the eye of law parties to the suit at all. If, therefore, no decree is passed against them on this ground, it cannot be said that the suit is dismissed against them. That being so, the decree which is obtained against their fathers can be executed against the joint family property including the interest of the minor sons. (Chatteriee and Shearer, J.). TRIBENI PRASAD v. THAKUR PRASAD SINGH. 199 I C. 157—8 B.R. 513—14 R.P. 540—A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 279.

—S. 47—Executing Court—Powers of Compromise decree—Objection that term went beyond scope of suit and therefore compromise decree is invalid—If can be considered by executing Court. See C.P. CODE, O. 23, R. 3. 45 Born. L. R. 1045.

It is correct to say that an executing Court cannot go behind a decree but that presumes that there is a valid decree in existence. When a decree is passed against several persons one of whom was dead before the decree and it is sought to be executed against his legal representatives and their contention is that the decree is a nullity either in whole or in part, then to the extent of the nullity there is no decree. Consequently the executing Court is not going behind the decree in such a case but is considering whether there is a decree or not. The executing Court is the proper Court to decide this. (Bose, J.) BHAKRU v. RAMAJI. 1942 N.L.J. 338.

——S. 47—Executing Court—Powers of— Decree against minor.

It cannot be said that an executing Judge has jurisdiction to question a decree which has been passed against a minor in proceedings under S. 47, C. P. Code. (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) MIR MAHOMED SHAH V. MAHOMED SADIQ. 219 I.C. 188=A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 21.

——S.47—Executing Court—Power of—Decree challenged as nullity on ground of want of jurisdiction—Objection to under-valuation of suit not raised in suit or appeal—If can be entertained in execution. See Suits Valuation Acr, S. 11. 22 Pat. L.T. 855.

Ss. 47 and 54—Executing Court—Powers of—Partition decree omitting direction that it should be effected by Collector.

A decree directing partition is prima facie capable of execution under O. 21, C. P. Code, by the executing Court and that Court on an application for execution of such a decree is entitled and indeed is bound to give effect to S. 54, C.P.Code, and order that the partition should be effected by the Collector, although the decree omits such a direction. (Niyogi and Digby, JJ.) Gendmal v. Laxman. I.L R. (1944) Nag. 852=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 86.

The Court sending a partition decree for execution to the Collector under S. 54, C. P. Code, can still function judicially to decide under S. 47, who are the legal representatives. The executing Court alone can decide that point. An application to get such a point decided is not governed by Art. 182 of the Limitation Act, but can be made at any time before the right to obtain partition by the Collector has lapsed. It is an interlocutory matter to be decided before such proceedings start, or while they are pending, but it falls to be decided by the executing Court under S. 47, C. P. Code, and not by the Collector. (Nivogi and Digby, JJ.) GENDMAL v. LAXMAN. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 852—A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 86.

——S. 47—Executing Court—Powers—Postdecree agreement restraining execution—Enforceability—Bar of separate suit.

The question whether a post-decree agreement will or will not be excluded from the purview of the executing Court under S. 47, C. P. Code, will depend upon the nature of the agreement. If a post decree agreement seeks to affect the character of the decree, it may no doubt be said that this is a question which could be raised only by an independent suit, and not by an application under S. 47. If, however, the agreement leaves the decree untouched and merely seeks to restrain its execution, it is a matter which legitimately comes within the province of the executing Court to consider and determine and a separate suit is not maintainable. (Biswas, J.) GIRISH CHANDRA SANTRA v. PURNACHANDRA BHATTACHARYYA. 211 I. C. 515=16 R.C. 555=77 C. L. J. 224=A. I. R. 1944 Cal. 53.

—S. 47—Executing Court--Power of--Power to award relief expressly denied in suit—Issue raised in suit and decided against plaintiff—Right to ask some relief in execution—Interpretation of decree—Reference to judment.

A Court executing a decree is bound by the decision in the suit in which the decree was passed. When there was a distinct issue raised in the suit on a point and decided against the plaintiff, a particular relief being thereby refused, it is open to the executing Court to give the plaintiff what was expressly denied to him by the decision in the suit. Where the plaintiff specifically prays in his suit for recovery of the amount due to him by sale of certain ornaments pledged with him and that prayer is refused, the Court executing the decree has no jurisdiction to sell those ornaments in execution. If the decree is in any way ambiguous the executing Court can always interpret the decree with reference to the judgment. (Chetterji and Dhavle, JJ.) RADHAMONI DEVI V. GOBIND CHANDRA DAS. 198 I.C. 250=14 R.P. 414=7 Cut.L.T. 55=8 B.R. 401= the Collector, although the decree omits such a behind decree-Mortgage suit-Decree directing specific property to be sold last—Executing Court directing same property to be sold first—If ultra vires.

Where the Court has ordered marshalling in a mortgaged suit and ordered that a particular property should be sold last, the executing Court has no right to go behind the decree and to order that property to be sold first even with the consent of the parties. Such an order by the executing Court is ultra vires, and a sale in pursuance of such order is illegal and ultra vires. (Kuppuswami Ayyar, I.) Murugappa Chettiar v. Chengalvaraya Chettiar. 57 L.W. 370=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 465=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 8.

S. 47—Executing Court-Power to grant relief against penal clause in consent decree—Separate suit unnecessary.

An executing Court can grant relief against a penal provision in a compromise decree; and there is no reason why, in order to obtain relief, a party should be forced to a civil suit. A party claiming relief against a penal provision is not challenging the validity of the decree which contains such penal clause or seeking to go behind it; it is more a matter of the interpretation of the decree. (Davis, C.J. and Lobo, J.) MONTEIRO v. ASTRIBGE. I.L.R. (1943) Kar 245—210 I.C. 397—16 R.S. 141—A.I.R. 1943 Sind 247.

——S. 47—Executing Court—Powers of—Question whether and to what extent decree is executable—If can be raised and decided.

The question as to how far a decree is capable of execution as an executory as opposed to a declaractory decree is one which can be taken in execution. Such a plea does not go behind the decree. The question falls under S. 47 and has to be decided by the executing Court, as it is entirely distinct from the question whether the decree to be executed was or was not a valid decree. (Davis, C.J. and Tyabji, J.) Godhumal v. Mt. Bhambho. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 326=205 I.C. 256=15 R.S. 118=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 11.

——S. 47—Executing Court — Powers of— Validity of decree or jurisdiction of Court which passed decree—Power to go into.

An executing Court cannot go behind a decree and question its validity when, on the face of it, it is not a nullity. It is not open to the executing Court to go into the question of jurisdiction, territorial, pecuniary or personal, of the Court which passed the decree, which, by necessary implication, must be taken to have been decided by the trial Court when it passed the decree. But an executing Court can inquire into and decide that a decree is a nullity not on the ground of jurisdiction, but because the decree passed is not a decree at all, such as in the case of a decree against a dead man. In such a case the decree is a nullity and cannot be executed, not because the particular Court had no jurisdiction, but because no Court at all had jurisdiction. (Davis, C.J. and Lobo, J.) Shingomal Pohumal v. Khushalds Lekhraj. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 79=190 I.C. 881=13 R.S. 106=A.I.R. 1940 Sind. 150.

C. P. CODE(1908), S. 47.

Once an order for instalments came into force the right of the decree holders to execute would arise on the occurrence of each default, and on such default it would be necessary for the decree holders to apply to the Court for execution for the amount outstanding at the time so as to give the Court jurisdiction to proceed in the matter. The Court cannot sell the property in pursuance of execution proceedings commenced before the instalment order and kept on hammer. RAMPAL SINGH v. UDIT NARAIN PANDE. A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 76.

S. 47—Execution by assignee of decree—Judgment debtor not pleading satisfaction by payment to original decree-holder—No bar to raising objection under S. 47, C.P. Code. See C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 16, Proviso. 48 C.W.N. 419.

S. 47—Execution proceeding—Parties—Receiver in possession of property—If necessary party.

A Receiver appointed in a suit under O. 40, R. 1, C.P.Code, is not a necessary party to an execution proceeding against the property of which he is in possession and the omission to make him a party does not, therefore, render the proceeding null and void. (Khundkar and Biswas, J.) SATYANARAYAN BANNERJEE v. KALYANI PRASAD SINGH. 49 C W.N. 558=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 387.

——S. 47—Execution proceeding—Person made party to—If continues to be party to subsequent execution proceedings.

There is neither principle nor authority for holding that if a person is made a party to an execution proceeding, and particularly, if that proceeding is finally disposed of by an order of dismissal, he must be taken to be a party to every subsequent execution that may be levied, whether he is in fact joined as a party or not. Each execution case is a distinct proceeding, and there is no presumption of continued representation of parties in successive execution. (Khundkar and Biswas, JJ.) Sayyanarayan Bannerjee v. Kalyani Prasad Singh. 49 C.W.N. 558=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 387.

——S. 47—Exonerated defendant—Sale of property of party dismissed from suit—Suit against auction-purchaser for possession—Not barred.

Where property of a party against whom the suit has been dismissed is wrongly sold, in execution if he does not go into the executing Court for summary remedy there is no bar to a separate suit by him for recovering possession of the property from the auction purchaser. (Abdul Rashid Ram Lal and Mahajam, JJ.) SURINDAR NATH v. RAM SARUP. I.L.R. (1944) Lah. 479=215 I.C. 276=17 R.L. 128=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 294 (F.B.).

S. 47—Jurisdiction of executing Court— Decision on points in issue where decree-holder applies for withdrawal of the execution application.

The executing Court is not debarred from deciding a point which has arisen between the judgment-debtor and decree-holder, namely a question of jurisdiction especially when the parties have gone to a full trial on the point and have either produced or been given an opportunity.

of producing their evidence, by the mere fact that the decree-holder had applied to withdraw his application. There is nothing in the Code which forbids a Court from deciding the question at that stage and there is no reason why it should be postponed for decision in a subsequent application. ((Ahmed, IC.) As the law provides a remedy by regular suit in the case of an ejectment under S. 61 of the Oudh Rent Act, the ejectment which has taken place under that section cannot be set aside by an objection under S. 47, C. ——S. 47 and O. 21, R. 66—Mortgagee objecting to the order in which sale of items of properly should take place—Discretionary order—Administrative convenience—Appealability of—Interference in revision.

Upon notice to settle the terms of a proclamation in execution of a mortgage decree against two items of property, the third defendant in the case appeared and asked the Court to order his property to be sold after the other property. The mortgagee objected but the Court decided that it was in the interests of justice, and equity to sell the third defendant's property after the other property had been sold and drew up the proclamation accordingly. On appeal against the order the question of appealability of such an order was raised.

Held, that even though the decree was a mortgage decree, the Court had a discretion in fixing the order of sale and order doing so is an administrative order not liable to appeal. (Horwill, J.) NARASIMHAM v. LATCHAYYA. 57 L.W. 336=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 429=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 459.

——Ss. 47 and 144 and Court Fees Act, Sch II, Art. 11—Nature of order under S. 144 for purposes of Court-fee.

An order under S. 144, C.P.Code, is essentially different from an order under S. 47. Such an order could not be obtained by proceedings under S. 47. A clear distinction is drawn between the two cases by S. 2. An order under S. 144 is not for Court-fee purposes the same as an order under S. 47. (Stone, C.J. and Niyogi, J.) ABDUL MAJID SHAH v. ABDUL SATTAR. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 662=197 I.C. 778=14 R.N. 194=1941 N.L.J. 459=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 313.

S. 47—Parties and representatives—Moneydecree—Receiver appointed to realise money by disposing of fudgment-debtor's property—Receiver selling property by private treaty with Court's permission—Purchaser, if representative of fudgment-debtor.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

A purchaser of the debtor's property is a representative of the judgment-debtor and it did not make any difference whether the property had been obtained in a public auction or private treaty. Accordingly purchaser from a receiver appointed to realise a money decree has a right of appeal under S. 47, C. P. Code against any order of Court affecting him. (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) DIWAN SINGH v. MAHOMED AKBAR. A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 43.

A receiver appointed in a suit under O. 40, R.I, C. P. Code, is not a representative of any of the parties to the suit for the perposes of S. 47, C.P. Code. The appointment of such a receiver, though it may operate to change possession, does not affect the title to the property which remains in those in whom it is vested when the appointment is made. (Khundkar and Biswas, II.) SATYANARAYAN BANNERJEE v. KALYNI PRASAD SINGH. 49 C.W N. 558=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 387.

A defendant against whom a suit is withdrawn or abandoned at the last date, is a person against whom the suit stands dismissed and therefore he remains a party to the suit within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code. and the explanation thereto. (Harries, C. J. and Mehrchand Mahajan. J.) BABU RAM v. SHAFIUL ZAMAN. 217 I.C. 376=46 P.L. R. 222=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 273.

A person who was unnece-sarily joined as one of the defendants and who was discharged from the suit on the plaintiff giving up his case against him, ceases to be a party to the suit, and the discharge cannot be regarded as a dismissal of the suit against him. If such person's property is attached in execution of the decree passed in the suit he is entitled to file an objection under O, 21, R. 58, C. P. Code. If the objection is allowed, the plaintiff decree-holder is entitled to institute a suit under O 21, R. 63 and is not barred by the provisions of S. 47, C.P. Code. (Puranik. J.) RAMSEWAK BHURELAL v. HIRALAL. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 462—208 I.C. 549—16 R.N. 93—1943 N.L.J. 333—A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 273.

——S. 47—Party to the suit — Minor member of joint Hindu family—Decision aganis! major members —Bar of fresh suit against minor.

Though a decision against a major member of a joint Hindu family may operate as res judicata against a minor member, not a party to the suit, in view of Expln. VI to S. 11, C.P. Code, it would not follow that he would be considered as a party to that suit for the purposes of S. 47, C.P. Code, so as to bar a fresh suit against him. (Allsop, J.) RAGHUBAR DAYAL v. KUISUM-UN-NISSA-BIBI. 1945 A.L.W 256=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 235=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 269=A.I.R. 1945 A. 392.

A person who is made a party to the execution proceeding cannot claim to be regarded as a "party to the suit" for the purpose of raising objection under S. 47.

Where a final decree in a mortgage suit says that the hypotheca or a sufficient portion thereof shall be sold, a person who propounds an agreement that certain items of the hypotheca should not be sold is clearly attacking that decree. Where a judgment-debtor under a mortgage decree for sale comes up in execution with the allegation that before even the preliminary decree was passed he had made an arrangement with the plaintiff (decreeholder) that certain items of the hypotheca should not be brought to sale, he on his part undertaking not to press his defence and to remain ex prate, he is clearly pleading an agreement which attacks the decree itself. Such an agreement is not a mere agreement relating to the execution or executability of the decree and cannot be pleaded in bar of execution. (Burn and Mockett, JJ.) KANGAYA GOUNDER v. ——S. 47—Question of trust—Question whether a wakf is vaild or not under Shia School of Mahimedan Law—If can be decided in execution proceedings.

There is no invariable rule that in no circumstances can a matter relating to a trust be decided in execution proceedings. Where such questions are difficult and complicated, execution proceedings are not the appropriate proceedings for deciding them. It is not so much a question of kind, but of decree. Where the question is only whether a certain wakf is or is not a valid wakf under the Shia School of Mahomedan Law it can be decided under S. 47, C.P. Code. (Divis, C.J. and Weston, J.) ——S. 47—Applicability—Application for setting aside dismissal of execution application for default—Appeal—If lies.

S. 47, C. P. Code, is not applicable to an application for setting aside an order dismissing an application for execution for default. An order refusing such application is not appealable. S. 47—Representative—Decrees for rent in favour of landlord for earlier and later periods—Execution of earlier decree—Sale of holding—Purchase by stranger—Liability of latter for arrears for period prior to purchase—Purchaser—If representative of judgment-debtor.

A stranger auction-purchaser who purchases a holding in execution of a decree for rent with notice that it is saddled with liability for arrears of rent for a period anterior to the date of sale, though subsequent to the decree under execution, is liable for the rent of that period. Such an auction-purchaser purchasing the holding subject to a rent charge is a representative of the judgment debtor, and his liability may be enforced in execution of a decree for rent in respect of the period subsequent to the former decree and antecedent to the sale at which he has purchased. The rights and liabilities of the parties have to be worked out by execution proceedings and not by a separate suit; such a suit by the landlord for the arrears of rent for the period prior to the purchase under the earlier decree would be barred under S. 47, C. P. Code, his only remedy being by way of execution. (Agarwala, I.) DARSON MAHTO v. SHEO KUMAR. 197 I.C. 688=8 B.R. 263=14 R.P. 341=22 Pat, L.T. 734=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 612.

S. 47—"Representative"—Decree-holder attaching property of judgment-debtor—If representative of the latter.

A decree-holder attaching the property of his judgment-debtor cannot be regarded as a representative of the latter, the attachment by the decree-holder is not effected by him as the privy or representative of the judgment-debtor, but by virtue of a right inherent in him to attach what is really the property of the judgment-debtor at the date of the attachment. (King, J.) PETHURAJU KONE v. MUTHUSWAMI AIYAR. 201 I.C. 199 = 15 R.M. 273=1941 M.W.N. 982=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 128=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 784.

——S. 47—Representative—Meaning of.

The word 'representative' in S. 47, C. P. Code, has a much wider meaning than the words 'legal representative' used in S. 50 in asmuch as it includes not only a legal representative but any representative-in-interest i. e. any transferee of the interest of a party. (Bennett and Ghulam Hasan, II.) BANKEY BEHARI LAL v. BRIJ RANI, Assignee of decree—Assignment challenged by creditor of decree-holder—Plea that transfer is fraudulent and fictitious—Duty of executing Court.

The term "representative" in S. 47, C. P. Code, is not confined to legal representatives but would also include the representatives in interest who may have obtained or who may allege to have obtained a decree-holder's interest by transfer or assignment. If that assignment is challenged by a creditor of the decree-holder and it is pleaded that the assignee is not the representative of the decree-holder, that the decree cannot be taken to have been assigned so far as the decree-holder is concerned and that the interest in the decree still continues to vest in the decree-holder, the question has to be gone into by the executing Court. - S. 47—Representative—Mortgage decree—Execution—Purchaser at sale—If representative of either party—Dispute between purchaser and decree holder—If falls under S. 47.

An auction-purchaser purchasing mortgaged property under a mortgage decree acquires the interest of the mortgagee decree holder as well as that of the mortgagor judgment-debtor in the mortgaged property and such purchaser is therefore, necessarily a representative in interest of the decree-holder as well as of the judgment debtor. A question arising between the auction purchaser and the decree-holder is one that falls under S. 47, C. P. Code. (Tyabii, J.) PIRUJI HAZA-RIJI V. AMRATI. I.L.R. tion of another decree against judgment-debtor when he is not a party to the latter decree.

A purchaser in execution of a money decree is not a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 47 C. P. Code for purposes of execution of another decree against the same judgment-debtor, so as to entitle him to appeal against a decision or order in the course of execution of the latter decree to which he is not a party. A representative in interest within the meaning of S. 47 includes only a purchaser of the judgment-debtors interest, who so far as that interest is concerned is bound by the decree, (Agarwala, J.) LAKHPAT LAL v. MAKHAN RAM, 201 I. C. 786-8 BR. 838=15 R.P. 77=23 Pat. L.T. 342=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 369.

——S. 47—'Reperentative'—Stranger purchaser in execution of monsy decree—If representative of decree-hilder—Suit for possession from judgment-debtor's representative in interst—Maintainability.

In execution of a money decree certain immovable property was attached on 18th September 1921. On 26th September 1921, the widow of the judgment-debtor (he having died) sold the property to the 1st defendant. On 7th January, 1922, the property was sold by the Court in execution proceedings, and the plaintiff, a stanger, became the auction purchaser. The plaintiff, who obtained a sale certificate only on 30th November, 1931, filed a suit on 1st Match 1932, for possession from the 1st defendant and his tenant the 2nd defendant. S. 47 was pleaded in bar of the suit, Held, (1) that the stanger purchaser was not entitled to apply for possession as against the judgment debtor or his representative in interest under S. 47, C. P. Code, (2) that the suit was not therefore barred under S. 47; (3) that the stranger purchaser was not a representative of the decree holder.

Per Patanjali Sastri J, dissenting.)—(1) that the stranger auction-purchaser must be regarded as the representative of the decree-holder (2) that the question of delivery of possession to a stranger auction-purchaser, however, did not relate to execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of S. 47. (Leach, C. J., Pandrang Row, Abdur Rahman. Krishnaswami Ayyangar and Patanjali Sastri. JJ.) Annamala Mudali v. Rahmaswami Mudali. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 438=196 I.C. 204=14 R.M. 255=1941 M.W.N 149=53 L.W. 27=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 161=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 45 (F.B.)

S. 47—Representative—Transferee of share of decree with notice of attachment.

The word 'representative' in S. 47, C. P. Code, should be interpreted liberally. A transferee of a share of a decree with notice of its attachment is a 'representative' within the meaning of section. (Davies.) Chhagan Lal v. Man Mal. 1942 A. M.L.J. 37.

Ss. 47 and 60—Saleability of property—objection as to—Judgment-debtor, if can raise after sale. See C. P. Code, O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92. 44 P.L.R. 302 (F.B.).

S. 47—Scope—Application to have order striking off execution on full satisfaction set aside on ground of mistake.

An application to have an order striking off execution on full, satisfaction set aside on the ground that a mistake had been made in stating that the decree was satisfied, falls within S. 47, C. P. Code. (Grille, C.J. and Puranik, J.) Manorath Kanhal v. Atmaram. I.L. R. (1944) Nag. 370=214 I.C. 12=17 R.N. 19=1943 N.L.J. 521 =A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 335.

—S. 47—Scope—"Execution"—Decree and sale set aside as result of decree in another suit—Application by purchaser for return of purchasemoney from decree-holder—Competency—If relates to execution.

Where a decree and an execution sale held under it are in effect set aside as the result of the decree passed in another suit, and the auction-purchaser at the sale applies for re-payment of the purchase money from the decree-holder, such an application is competent and falls under S. 47, C.P. Code. No separate suit is necessary. The question whether the applicant should be put into possession of the property purchased by him or restitution of the price paid should be ordered is obviously a question relating to the execution of the decree within the meaning of S. 47, C.P. Code. (Tyabji, J.) PIRUJI HAZARIJI V. AMRATI. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 284=218 I.C. 486=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 233.

—S. 47—Scope—Mortgage decree—Sale—Delivery of possession—Objection that property mentioned in sale proclamation was not really mortgaged and did not pass under sale—Maintainability—Jurisdiction of executing Court to go into.

A question whether property of which possession is sought by the purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree and which is in the possession of the judgment-debtor was or was not actually mortgaged and sold is one relating to the execution of the decree and the execution of the decree and the executing Court has jurisdiction to decide it. In proceedings upon a suit for delivery of possession of porperties puuchased by a mortgagee-decree-holder, the judgment-debtor raised an objection that certain buildings which had been mentioned in the sale proclamation along with other buildings admittedly mortgaged were not really mortgaged and that therefore title to those buildings did not pass to the mortgagee under the sale and he was not therefore entitled to be put in possession of the same under the suit for delivery taken out by him.

Held, that the objection was maintainable as it was one relating to execution of the decree under S. 47, C.P. Code, and the executing Court had jurisdiction to entertain and decide it. (Shearer, J.) GOKHEI SWAIN v. CHAITAN ROUT. 217 I.C. 386=11 B.R. 235 =10 Cut.L.T. 32=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 347.

S. 47—Scope—Mortgage Suit—Preliminary decree—Application for final decree—Application for execution before final decree—Proceedings started—Defendants not raising objection—Final decree actually passed before sale—Sale held in proceedings started before final decree—If void—Objection to validity—Competence.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

A preliminary decree on a mortgage was passed on 26-2-1937. The plaintiff in due course applied for a final decree and notices were served on the datendant. On 19-9-1937, without waiting for the final decree to be made, he applied for execution. Notices were served on defendants and the sale was held on 7-1-1939. In the meanwhile the final decree was passed on 14-1-1938. The defendants raised no objection to the proceedings in execution or to the sale. On 7-5-1940, one of the defendants applied under S. 47, C. P. Code, challenging the validity of the sale and the execution proceedings on the ground, mainly, that the Court has proceeded to sell the property in execution of the preliminary decree.

Held, that since the final decree was passed and a sale proclamation was actually issued thereafter before the sale, even assuming that there was any irregularity in the procedure the sale could not be held to be void, especially because there was no objection raised by the defendants and no prejudice was shown to have resulted. (Manohar Lall, J.) BASHISTA NARAIN SINGH v. RAM PUKAR SINGH. 199 I.C. 470=14 R.P. 579=8 B.R. 582=1942 P.W.N. 64=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 343

——S. 47—Scope—Order fixing valuation of property under Bihar Money-lenders Act. (VII of 1939)—Second appeal. See Bihar Money-Lenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act, S. 13 and 14. (1944) P.W.N. 177.

——S. 47—Scope—pre-decree agreement—Suit for money on account of sale of goods—Consent order on application for attachment before judgment—Defendants handing over goods to plaintiff for sale by latter and for appropriation of proceeds towards decree—If can be given effect to in execution.

An application for attachment before judgment in a suit for money on account of goods sold and delivered, was amicably settled by consent of parties. The parties agreed as follows: "Without prejudice to the contentions of the parties in this suit or in other proceedings between the parties the defendants have handed over to the plaintiffs the... goods as shown in two sheets attached. These will be sold by the plaintiffs pending the disposal of the suit and pending final orders with regard to the same, which will be appropriated towards the decree, if any, passed in their favour."

Held, that on a proper interpretation of the consent order the sum received by the plaintiffs was to be appropriated in satisfaction of the decree and this presumed a decree. It presumed a credit in execution and not a credit in the suit itself.

Held, further, that it was implicit in the terms of the agreement that the defendants were to get a fair price for the goods and to get credit for this price in the proceedings, if not in the suit itself, then in the execution of the decree and an inquiry as to the price that should have been received for the goods handed over could be and should have been ordered in execution, no separate suit being necessary for the purpose. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) RAMA BROS. v. Forbes, Forbes Campbell. & Co., Ltd. I.L.R (1944) Kar. 227=195 I.C. 626=14 R.S. 40=A. I.R. 1941 Sind 103.

——S. 47—Scope—Sale void as wholly without jurisdiction—Application by judgment-debtor to have it declared void—If hes.

Where a sale is wholly without jurisdiction and consequently void as opposed to voidable, an application by the judgment-debtor to have it declared void will lie under S. 47. In such a case no actual setting aside of the sale is really necessary. (Dhavle and Meredith, JJ.) LHAN KUMAR CHAND v. LACHMIKANTA RAI. 8 B.K. 507=199 I.C. 169=14 R.P. 557=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 566.

——Ss. 47 and 52—Scope—Suit by creditor against heir of debtor—Decree against assets—Separate suit for administration of debtors, estate—Maintainability.

A Court is not bound to pass a decree or an order for the administration of the estate of a deceased person at the instance of a creditor when the question between the parties can be properly determined without such a decree or order. Where a creditor obtains a decree for recovery of his debt against the assets of the deceased in the hands of his legal representative, but instead of proceeding to execute his decree under S. 52, C. F. Code, against the assets in the hands of the legal representative, files a separate suit to have the estate of the debtor administered, the Court will not pass a decree for administration of the estate. It is doubtful whether a creditor who has obtained a decree is entitled to file another action which in substance is really for recovery, of his debt, though in form an administration action. S. 47, C. F. Code, may operate as a bar to such a suit. (Somayya, J.) Venugopala Naiduv. Valambal Ammal. 205 L.C. 297=15 R.M. 843=55 L.W. 308=1942 M. W.N. 356=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 588=(1942) M.L.J. 580.

S. 47—Scope—Usufructuary mortgage— Suit on—Final decree for sale—Execution— Application by judgment-debtor claiming comrensation for waste by decree-holder after lecree—Competency—Separate suit—Necessity.

The Court executing a decree is entitled to go nto such matters as waste committed, whichever side has happened to be in possession, since the date of the decree sought to be executed. A final decree in a suit on a usufructuary mortgage provided that as the money due under the preliminary decree had not been paid, the mortgaged property or a sufficient portion thereof should be sold to satisfy the decree and the balance, if any, should be paid over to the judgment-debtor. In execution proceedings for sale, the judgment-debtor claimed that the property should be sold only after allowance had been made for compensation due to him for acts of waste committed by the decree-holder after the decree. The Court, however, directed the judgment-debtor to file a separate suit.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 47.

Held, that the question of waste by the decree-holder and the compensation due in respect of it should be considered as one arising in execution within the meaning of S. 47, C. P. Code, and should be determined in execution. (Horwill and Bell, JJ.) RAMANATHA IYER v. ABDUL SALAM SAHIB. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 67—A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 179.

S. 47, O. 21. Rr. 95 and 96—Suit by decree holder auction-purchaser for actual possession after obtaining formal possession—Maintainability—Limitation.

A suit by a decree holder auction-purchaser for actual possession after he obtained formal possession would be maintainable and the date of the granting of the formal possession would afford a fresh starting point of limitation against the judgment-debtor in respect of such a suit. (Yorke, J.) THE COLLECTOR OF BENARES v., JAISRI GIR. 1944 A.L.W. 62.

——S. 47, Expl.—"Party" Party against whom suit is erroneously dismissed instead of his being struck out of the plaint—If "party."

Where in a suit the Court, instead of directing that a certain party should be struck out as having been improperly impleaded, erroneously makes an order dismissing suit as against him, such a person cannot properly be said to have been a party to that suit within the meaning of the Explanation to S. 47, C. P. Code. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) KUSMI v. SADASIVA MAHTO, 21 Pat. 601=201 I. C. 196=15 R.P. 34=8 B.R. 770=23 Pat.L.T. 354=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 432.

—S. 47 (1) and (3)—Scope of—Disputes between attaching creditor and purchaser of decree—If can be gone into in execution.

Where an attaching creditor of a decree challenges the right of the purchaser of that decree to execute it, the matter cannot be gone into under S. 47, C. P. Code. The dispute is as between representatives of the decree-holder and not one between parties to the suit and hence would not come under S. 47, C. P. Code. (Agarwal, J.) DWARKA v. ABDUL SHAKUR. 198 I.C. 514=14 R.O. 412=1942 O.A. 16=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 28=1942 A.L.W. 7=1942 O.W. N. 1=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 281.

——S. 47 (2)—Suit against landlord and rival tenant—Conversion into proceedings in execution of prior decree against landlord alone.

A subsequent suit against a landlord and a rival tenant who is not a representative of the landlord cannot be converted into proceedings in execution of a prior decree for possession obtained by the plaintiff against the landlord alone. (Shirreff, J.M.) Behari v. Angude Singel. 1942 O.A. (Supp.) 10=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 10.

S. 47 (3), C. P. Code, does not apply where the dispute is between persons who have rival claims to be accepted as legal representatives on one side only. In such cases, no appeal lies and the decision is merely a summary decision for the purpose or enabling the proceedings to be carried on, without affecting any right which any person may have, to the proceeds of the decree. (Beckett, J.) Sunder v. Sita Ram. 196 I.C. 895=43 P.L.R. 435=14 R.L. 190=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 342.

S. 47 (3)—Applicability—Dispute between one party and representative of another—Decision on—Res judicata—O. 22, R. 5—Application of.

S. 47 (3) does not apply when the dispute is between rival representatives of one party, the other party having disclaimed any interest in the question. It applies where there is a dispute between one party and a representative of another party about the latter's right to represent the deceased party's estate, and a decision on the question by the executing Court will operate as res judicala in a subsequent suit between the same parties. O. 22, R. 5, C. P. Code, does not govern such a case. (Divatia, J.) RAMA MARUII v. MALLAPPA KRISHNA. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 822=15 R.B. 226=203 I.C. 339=44 Bom. L.R. 678=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 309.

persons each claiming to be decree-holder.

S. 47 (3), C. P. Code, is wide enough to include a dispute between two persons each of whom claims to be the decree-holder. (Sinha and Beevor, JJ.) LALMANI KUER v. RAGHUBANSI DEVI. 23 Pat. 410=219 I.C. 100=11 B.R. 349=A.I.R 1944 Pat. 307.

S. 48—Amendment of execution application—Limitation—Application filed within 12 years—Amendment for remedying defects after 12 years—Permissibility.

There is no option or discretion in the Court with regard to ascertaining whether the requirements of Kr. II to 14 of O. 21, C. P. Code, have been complied with. Where an execution petition, after referring to movables, also contains a prayer for sale of immovable property, but gives no particulars of the property to be sold, it is the duty of the Court to return the petition for amendment for the purpose of having the defects remedied. The amendment can be made even after the expiry of 12 years period prescribed by S. 48, C. P. Code. (Mockett and Clark, JJ.) DIVAKARAN NAMBUDRIPAD v. BRAHMADATHAN NAMBUDRIPAD, 58 L.W. 211=1945 M.W.N. 347=A.I.R. 1945 Mad, 241=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 447.

S. 48—Applicability—Applications to revive pending execution application.

S. 48, C. P. Code, only bars a fresh application for execution and can have no application where the application is to revive a pending execution application. (Ghulam Hasan and Madeley, JJ.) DEPUTY COMMISSIONER BARABANKI V. ANAND BEHARI LAL. 220 I.C. 137=1944 O.W.N. 169=1944 A.L.W. 239=1944 O.A. (C.C.) 120=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 120=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 110.

—S. 48-Applicability-Consigning of application to records—Revival.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 48.

Where an execution was directed to be consigned to the records as partially unsatisfied, it cannot be regarded as a final order disposing comp etely of the execution application. This application can be subsequently revived and the time limit provided by S. 48, C. P. Code, is no bar to such an application. (Agarwal and Madeley, JJ.) MISRI LAL v. ISHRI PRASAD. 17 Luck. 618—199 I.C. 124—14 R.O. 467—1942 A.L.W. 146—1942 O.W.N. 123—1942 O.A. 69—1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 91—A.I.R. 1942 Oudh. 331.

Small Cause (ourt—Transfer for execution to Civil Court of original jurisdiction—Execution beyond 12 years of decree but within three years of last execution—If barred—Limitation Act, Arts. 182 and 183.

It is obvious that by reason of S. 8, C. P. Code, S. 48 of the Code does not apply to a decree passed by a Presidency Smill Cause Court, whether it is being executed by that Court itself or by some other Court of original jurisdiction. Where a decree of a Presidency Small Cause Court is transferred for execution to a Court of original jurisdiction an application for execution filed in the latter Court beyond 12 years of the decree will not be barred by limitation under S. 48, C.P. Code, but will be in time if filed within 3 years of the iast execution as provided by Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. Art. 182 and not Art. 183 of the Limitation Act applies to such a case. (Dhavle and Chatterji, J.) RANGANADHAN v. PONNACHARAMMA. 7 Cut.L.T. 45=197 I.C. 627=14 R. P. 322=8 B.R. 256=23 Pat.L.T. 87=A.I.R 1942 Pat. 128.

—S. 48—Applicability—"Fresh application"
—Execution application presented within 12 years —Application beyond 12 years for amendment to include property or person not named or specified in original application—Maintainability—If "fresh" application or only in continuation of original application. RAM RAN BIJAIYA PRASAD

326—7 B.R. 206—A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 635.

—S. 48—Applicability—Sentence of fine—Warrant under S. 386 (1) (b) Cr.P.Code—Execution under C.P.Code—Limitation—Penal Code, S. 70. See Penal Code, S. 70. 43 Bom.L.R. 122.

S. 48—Computation of limitation—Exclusion of period under S. 15 of Limitation Act.

S. 48, C.P.Code, prescribes a period of limitation for execution of a decree. S. 15 of the Limitation Act is perfectly general and is not restricted to the limitation prescribed by the First Schedule to the Limitation Act, and the provisions contained therein can, therefore, be invoked in computing the period of limitation prescribed by S. 48, C.P.Code. (Grille, C.J. and Sen, J.) SITARAM NANASA V. CHUNNILAISA. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 250=217 I.C. 298=17 R.N. 107=1944 N.L.J. 127=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 155.

—S. 48—Decree-holder ordered to refund money realised in execution—Application for execution within three years of order but more than 12 years after original decree—If barred—Application, if can be treated as continuation of original application. See Limitation Act, Art. 182 (6). 46 C.W.N. 149.

S. 48—"Decree sought to be executed"—Decree confirmed in appeal—Starting point of limitation—Date of original decree or date of appellate decree.

The "decree sought to be executed" in S. 48, C. P. Code, in cases where there has been an appeal which confirmed the original decree, is the decree of the appellate Court, and the period of 12 years has to be computed from the date of the appellate decree. (Kuppuswani Aiyar, J.) NACHARAMMAL v. VEERAPPA CHEITIAR. 1945 M.W.N. 513=(1945) 2 M.L.J 197.

——S. 48—Execution application—Application to amend by substitution of a different property—If a continuation of a prior application.

Where an application purporting to be an application for amendment of a prior application for execution prays that, instead of execution against the superior proprietary rights execution should be allowed against the under-proprietary rights, it cannot be regarded as a continuation of the prior application. It is a fresh application even though framed as an application for amendment because it substitutes a different property for that given in the original application. (Ghulam Hasan and Madeley JJ.) NOOR MOHAMMAD KHAN W. RAMESWAR PRASAD SINGH. 1944 O.W.N. 301=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 208=1944 O.A. (C.C.) 208=A.I.R. 1945 Outh 84.

——S. 48— Execution application— Dismissed for statistical purposes—New application—When continuation of old one,

Where the circumstances indicate that the intention in making an order dismissing an execution application was not to dismiss the application for negligence but the intention was to remove an old execution application from the list and deal with it afresh under the guise of a new application, the new application must be treated as a continuation of the earlier application and will not be time barred under S. 48 C.P. Cope. (Tek Chand and Dalip Singh, JJ.) MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HARIZABAD v. GOPAL DAS. 193 I.C. 334=13 R.L. 449=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 62.

There is no option or discretion in the Court with regard to ascertaining whether the requirements of Rr. 11 to 14 of O. 21, C.P. Code, haven been complied with. Where an execution petition after referring to movables also contained a prayer for the sale of immovable property but no particulars of the properties were given it is the duty of the Court to return the petition for amendment for the purpose of having the defects remedied. The amendment can be made even after the expiry of the twelve years period of limitation prescribed by S. 48, C.P. Code. (Mockett and Clark, J.) DIVAKARAN NAMBUDRIPAD v. BRAHMADATHAN NAMBUDRIPAD. 58 L.W. 211=1945 M.W.N. 347=A.I.B. 1945 Mad. 241=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 447.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 48.

-S. 48—'Fresh application'—Application to continue execution proceeding against legal representatives of deceased judgment debtor.

An application made by the decree-holder on the death of the judgment-debtor pending an execution proceeding for the continuation of the proceeding against his legal representatives, is merely ancillary to the substantive petition against the original judgment debtor, and cannot rank as a fresh application within the meaning of S. 48, C. P. Code. (Mukerjea and Ellis, J.). HARL SHIKESH SAHA v. RADHARANI KAR. 49 C.W.N. 522.

——S. 48—Limitation—Application for execution within 12 years—Application after 12 years to substitute new property for property in original application—Competency—If can be regarded as continuation of original application—Americanent.

Where a decree-holder wishes by means of a subsequent application merely to correct any description of the property mentioned in his application for execution, such subsequent application may be regarded as a continua. tion of the original application for execution, but where he tries to substitue a new property which is quite different from the property against which he wished to proceed in the first intsance, his application therefor must be regarded as a fresh application for execution, and cannot be allowed when it is made beyond the period of 12 years after the date of the decree under execution, prescribed by S. 48, C.P. Code. A decree-holder cannot be allowed to proceed against a new property after the decree has become barred by limitation and he cannot be allowed to evade the bar of limitation by his assertion that he is merely asking for an amendment of his original application for execution. (Fazl Ali and Chatterji, JJ.) GAJANAND SHA z. DAYANAND THAKUR. 21 Pat. 838=205 I.C. 561=15 R.P. 296 =9 B.R. 243=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 127.

——S 48.—Limitation for execution—Extension— —Minority of decree-holder—Limitation Act. S. 6 and Art. 182.

S. 48, C. P. Code, contains an absolute prohibition against taking action on execution petitions put in more than 12 years after the passing of the decree, subject to certain stated exceptions. This prohibition is not modified in favour of a minor decree holder by virtue of S. 6 of the Limitation Act, as this section is expressly confined to cases falling under the same Act. Further the minor cannot derive benefit from Art. 182, read with S. 6 of the Limitation Act, for Art. 182 only applies in cases not coverd by S. 48, C.P. Code. (Beckut and Teja Singh, J.). NATHU MAL v. JAI KARAN DASS. 212 I.O. 228=16 R.L. 264=46 P.L.R. 24=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 68.

——S. 48—Limitation under — Starting point— Decree amended under U.P. Agriculturists' Relief Act.

The fact that a decree was amended under S. 5 U. P. Agriculturists Relief Act is no ground for holding that it should not be treated as a subsequent order directing the payment of money at a certain date or at recurring periods, as mentioned in S. 48 (1) (b) C.P. Code. Hence the period of twelve years provided in the section should be computed only from the date of the amended and not the original decree. (Ghulam Hasan, J.) MANGNOO SINGH v. Act,—If deductible—Limitation Act, S. 15—"fraud or force" in S. 48 (2)—Meaning of.

There can be no execution of a decree governed by S. 48, C. P. Code, when twelve years have passed from the date of the decree, whether amended or not. An amendment of the decree under S. 19 of Madras Act, IV of 1938 does not give a fresh starting point of limitation for the purpose of the 12 years rule under S. 48. The appellant obtained a decree for money on 18-3-1930. On 17-4-1941, the judgment-debtor obtained a stay under S. 20 of Madras Act IV of 1938, and in subsequent procedings under S. 19 of that Act, the amount of the decree was scaled down and reduced. On 16-3-1942, i.e., two days before the expiry of the 12 years fixed by S. 48, C. P. Code, the appellant applied to the Court which passed the decree for transfer of the decree for execution to another Court, but this was ordered only on 20-3-1942, i.e., after the expiry of the 12 years. Meanwhile, the appellant in anticipation of the decree being transferred, filed an execution petition in the transerring Court on 18-3-1942, but the papers were received by the latter Court only on 28-3-1942, and the execution petition was held to be barred by limitation under S. 48, C. P. Code.

Held (1) that jurisdiction to execute the decree passed to the transferee Court by the transfer, order, and it could not be held that this order dated back to the date of the execution application; as the transferee Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the application on that date the petition could not be held to be a validly presented one; (2) that the amendment of the decree under S. 19 of Madras Act IV of 1938 did not give a fresh starting point of limitation; (3) that the words "fraud or force" in S. 48 (2) (a), C. P. Code, contemplated some Act of violence or deceit at the instance of an interested party where by the decree-holder is prevented from executing his decree and did not contemplate a mere judicial order, like one under S. 20, Madras Act IV of 1938, restraining execution; (4) that the execution petition in the transferee Court could not be regarded as a continuation of the petition in the Court which passed the decree for transfer of the decree, which was merely an ancillary proceeding in the transferring Court; (5) that the period for which the stay under S. 20 of Madras Act IV of 1938 continued could not be excluded under S. 15, Limitation Act, in calculating the 12 years prescribed by 48, C. P. Code. (Wadsworth, J.) MANICKAM CHETTIAR v. RAMASWAMI CHETTIAR. 57 L.W. 602=1944 M.W.N. 707=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 70=(1944) 2 M.L. I. 403.

Summary dismissal on merits—Starting point of limitation of 12 years—Limitation Act, Art. 182—Distinction.

The period of 12 years under S. 48, C. P. Code, has to be determined with reference to that section only and not with reference to any other enactment. S. 48, C. P. Code, differs from Art. 182, Limitation Act, in that a decree holder can reckon his three years under Art. 182 (2) instead of under Art, 182 (1) when there has been an appeal with whatever result; but for the purpose of counting the period of 12 years under S. 48, C. P. Code, from a date later than that of the decision of the trial Court, it is not sufficient that an appeal has been presented. It must be shown that a decree has been passed by the appellate or superior Court in supersession of the first Court's decree. There is no such decree when the appellate or superior Court dismisses the appeal or revision for default without any adjudication. Where an appeal is dismissed under O. 41, R. 11, C. P. Code, or an application in revision is summarily rejected not for default but substantially on the ground of the correctness of the trial Court's decree, such dismissal must be deemed to be the decree which is sought to be executed, for purposes of S. 48, C. P. Code; therefore the 12 years' period under S. 48, commences to run from the date of that decree and not from the date of the decree of the first Court. (Rowland. J.) JAGANNATH BAL v. SADHU CHARAN BAL. 211 I.C. 303=10 B.R. 364=16 R.P. 223=9 Cut. L.T. 21=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 371.

S. 48—Scope—Decree amended by scaling down under Madras Agriculturist's Relief Act—If new decree—Period of 12 years—Starting point—Revival of execution petition pending before amendment.

A decree as amended by scaling down under Madras Act IV of 1938 cannot be regarded as an entirely new decree. It is only the old decree amended and for purposes of limitation for execution, the starting point of 12 years under S. 48, C. P. Code, is the date of the original decree and not the date of the amendment by scaling down. An execution petition filed and pending at the time of the application for scaling down can, after amendment, be revived and proceeded with, although at the time of amendment this period of 12 years from the date of the original decree has elapsed. ____S. 48-Scope-If controlled by S. 14 of Limitation Act.

S. 48, C. P. Code, is not controlled by S. 14 of the Limitation Act. The period referred to in the former cannot be described as a period of limitation prescribed for any proceeding. (Henderson, J.) MAKHAN LAL SAHA v. FIRM MADAN MOHAN, 50 C.W.N. 12.

-S. 48—Scope — If controlled by S. 15, Limitation Act—Stay of execution—If extends limitation beyond 12 years fixed by S. 48.

S. 48, C. P. Code, is controlled by S. 15 of the Limitation Act and there is no reason why S. 15, Limitation Act should not apply so as to extend the period of limitation prescribed by S. 48, C. P. Code. If execution is therefore stayed by the Court, it is the act of the Court which prevents execution and it would be unreasonable to make the party suffer. It is not correct to hold that S. 48. C. P. Code, does not provide a "period of limitation" within the meaning of S 15, Limitation Act, and the words 'period of limitation' in S. 15, cannot be confined to periods given in the Schedule to the Limitation Act. -S. 48—Starting point—Decree of Small Cause Court-New trial application and subsequent revision application in High Court-Effect of on limitation for execution-Period-If extended.

A decree in a suit in the Presidency Small Cause Court was passed on 2-2-1926. The decree-holder unsuccessfully prosecuted a new trial application and thereafter a Civil Revision Petition in the High Court, which was dismissed on 7-3-1928. He filed one execution application in October, 1938.

Held, that the application was barred by S. 48 C. P. Code, and the fact that the revision application was filed and dismissed was not immaterial for deciding the question of limitation. (Burn and Mockett, II.) NAGALINGA CHETTY v. SRINI-VASA AIYANGAR. 199 I.C. 812—14 R.M. 631—53 L.W. 284—1941 M.W.N.292—A.I.R. 1941 Mad 477=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 365.

-S. 48 (1) (b)—Compromise of execution ease—Stipulation that if I.D. committed default in instalments, original decree to be executed— Execution application filed on J. D.'s default-Limitation.

A compromise was entered into between a decree-holder and a judgment-debtor in execution proceedings by which the decretal dues were adjusted at a certain sum. It was also agreed that the decree would be regarded as fully satisfied if the judgment debtor paid a specified smaller amount in a certain number of instalments, but if he defaulted in the payment of any one instalment, the decree-holder would be entitled to execute the decree in respect of the entire decretal amount. The judgment-debtor committed default in the payment of one of the instalments. The decree-holder filed an application for execution of the original decree more than 12 years from the date of the decree but within 12 years from the date of the default.

Held, that the case fell under S. 48(1)(b), C. P. C. and the application was not barred by limitation under that section. (Khundkar and Biswas, JJ.) NARENDRA NATH v. HERAMBA CHANDRA. 220 I.C. 160=79 C.L.J. 100=49 C.W.N. 254=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 154.

-S. 48 (1) (b)—Order passed on compromise not directing payment of money-Limitation-Fresh start.

If an order of an executing Court passed on a compromise arrived at between the parties does not direct any payment of inoney at a certain date or at recurring periods although it takes notice of and refers to the compromise, it cannot be held to tall within the purview of S. 48 (1) (b), C. P. Code, and cannot give rise to a fresh starting point of limitation. In the absence of any direction by the Court to the parties to receive and pay the money in accordance with the fresh contract arrived at between them, the order cannot be construed so as to contain a direction in regard to the payment of money at any date different from what was provided by the decree, (Harries, C./. and Abdur Rahman. J.) ZAHUR-UD-DIN v. AMTUR RASHEED. 217 I.C. 119=17 R.L. 204=46 P.L.R. 26=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 106,

Under S. 48 (1) (b) of the C. P. Code, where a decree directs any payment of money at a certain date or at recurring periods the date of default in making the payment in respect of which the applicant seeks to execute the decree will be treated as the starting point of limitation to calculate the twelve years period provided by S. 48 (!). -S. 48 (2) (a)—Plea of fraud of judgment debtor-If can be raised for the first time at the appellate stage of execution proceedings.

Though as a general rule a plea of fraud has to be raised at the earliest stage of a proceeding, and all that has to be said should be said fully and at once, yet slightly different considerations arise when applying the provisions of sub-Sec. (2) of S. 48 of the C. P. Code. A plea of fraud on the part of the judgment-debtor could be raised for the first time in the appellate stage of the execution proceedings where the decreeholder had in spite of his diligence been unable to execute his decree by reason of the fraudulent transfer by the judgment-debtor of his property to his own relation. (Bell. J.) VENKANNA V. KOTTAYYA. 1946 M.W.N. 38=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 564.

-S. 49-Scope - Transferee of decree-Rights of — Liabilities and equities existing against transferor—Enforceability against transferee.

S. 49, C. P. Code, states in the plainest language that the transferee of a decree shall take it subject to the equities which the judgmentdebtor might have enforced against the assignor. There is no difference in principle between S. 49, 2. 48 (1) (b)—Limitation—Decree amount feree of a decree therefore takes the decree and subject to all liabilities and equities to which the transferor was subject. whether or not the transferee had any knowledge of them. (Leach, C. J. and Lakshmana Rao, J.) SURYANARAYANA v. NAGENWARA RAO. 1945 M.W.N. 238=58 L.W. 186=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 381=(1945) 1 M.L. J. 438.

S. 50 and O. 21, R. 22—Decree for rent—No notice issued to legal repersentatives of deceased judgment-debtor—Execution sale—If void or voidable.

If the holder of an unsatisfied decree wishes to continue the execution proceedings or wishes to execute the decree against the legal representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor, he must make an application to that effect under S. 50, C. P. Code, and a notice has to be served on such legal representatives in accordance with O. 21, R. 22 (1), C. P. Code. The mere fact that in connection with a rent decree obtained under the B. T. Act, execution proceedings are taken against the holding of the deceased person makes no difference. The holding represents a portion of the estate of the deceased judgment-debtor and the latter's heirs are, therefore, entitled to be brought on the record of the case and to receive the notice which the law requires in order that they may be given an opportunity either to satisfy the outstanding decree or to show cause why execution should not proceed. A sale held in execution of a rent decree is void and not merely voidable in a case in which there has been no application under O. 21, R. 22 (1). C. P. Code. (Edgley and Akram, IJ.) Where a Hindu father made himself responsible to produce certain crops entrusted to him or on failure to make good a particular sum and died and the crops disappeared.

Held:—(Per Harper, S.M.).—The father was in the position of a judgment-debtor and he having died the decree or order could be executed againt his legal representative who would be liable to the extent of the assets of the deceased in his hands and under S. 53 even ancestral property could be proceeded against, if it is liable under Hindu Law and the debt not being repugnant to good morals, the property in the hands of the sons were liable.

Per Sathe, J.M.—The question of the applicability of Hindu Law arose only in respect of ancestral property and as regards self-acquired property, there was no doubt it was liable under S. 50 (2), C. ----S. 51-Appointment of Receiver in execution of - When justified.

There is ample justification for the appointment of a receiver in execution where the circumstances are such that the decree-holder can only exercise the ordinary legal remedies at considerable risk and with doubtful results. ____S.51-Appointment of receiver-When may be made.

Execution by appointment of a receiver is one of the methods of execution provided by S, 51, C. P. Code and so long as in the circumstances of the case it is the best means of securing the rights of the judgment-creditor without causing undue hardship to the judgment-debtor, there is no valid reason for avoiding this method of execution. S. 51—Arrest of debtor—Power of Court.
A Court should not order the arrest and detention of a debtor if it is satisfied by evidence that the debtor has not the means to satisfy the debt or a substantial portion thereof but be can pay a small amount towards the debt monthly if appropriate steps are taken. (Harries, C.J., and Fasl Ali, J.) JOGESH CHANDRA SINGH v. TINKORI DATIA. 197 I.C. 470=14 R.P. 315=8 B.R. 222 (1)=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 242.

——S. 51 and O. 40, R. 1—Receiver—Appointment in execution without prior attachment—Validity.

Appointment of a receiver in execution is itself a form of attachment. The C. P. Code does not contemplate an attachment as a necessary preliminary to the appointment of a receiver in execution. Therefore, the appointment of a receiver in execution without prior attachment of the property is not invalid. (Wadsworth, J.) Narappa Naidu v. Ss. 51, 60 (1) and O. 40, R. 1—Right to future maintenance—Attachability—Receiver if can be appointed in respect of.

A right to future maintenance in order to be non-attachable and non-transferable should be personal as distinguished from being heritable. Hence where such a right is heritable it is not exempt from attachment. The language of S. 51 shows that a receiver can be appointed even in cases in which attachment cannot be made and it follows that in the case of a right to future maintenance a receiver can be appointed over it in execution of a decree against the person entitled to the right even though the right is exempt from attachment. side local limits—Power of Court to issue writ of errest—Execution of such writ.

A Court has in execution of its own decree power to issue a writ of arrest to be executed within its local limits, even though at the date of the order the judgment-debtors reside or carry on business outside those local limits. Such a writ can be executed as and when the judgment-debtors come within the jurisdiction of the Court. (Das, J.) Arratoon and Co. v. MIMRAJ PURANMULL. 48 C.W.N. 706.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 51.

S. 51 (d), C. P. Code, is subject to O. 40, R. 1. C. P. Code, and relief by way of appointment of a Receiver under S. 51 (d) is not a matter of course or of right, but can only be given where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient. in other words a proper case must be made out for the exercise of the Court's discretion to appoint a receiver by way of execution, e.g., by showing an impediment preventing the decreeholder from obtaining satisfaction of his decree by an ordinary execution sale. The valuation fixed by the Court under S. 13 of the Bilar Money-Lenders Act, is not such an impediment to an ordinary execution as would entitle the decreeholder to the appointment of a receiver for the purpose of selling the property of the judgment-debtor by private sale. The valuation under Ss. 13 and 14 of the Money-Lenders Act is a judicial decision binding on both the decreeholder and the judgment-debtor, and it would be a clear evasion of law to treat this valuation as an impediment to an ordinary execution sale by the Court and let the decree-holder have a receiver for sale of the property by private treaty on the ground that no bidders can be found for the value fixed by the Court. Reading O. 21, Rr. 37 and 40 together, it is clear that the Court has no discretion to refuse arrest where the judgment-debtor does not appear, but that it has a discretion where the judgment-debtor does appear. Moreover, the land itself may be exempt from sale, but it is not exempt from attachment. (Abdul Rahman, J.) MAHOMED HUSSAIN SHAH v. S. 52-Nature of decree granted under— Judgment-debtor not the real legal representative of deceased—Proper remedy against real legal representative.

Where by virtue of S. 52, C. P. Code, a decree is obtained against the legal representative of a deceased debtor in respect of the latter's asset in the hand of such legal representative it is to be regarded merely as a money decree and not as one which creates a charge on such assets. If it subsequently turns out that the judgment debtor in that decree was not the real heir but someone else, the decree cannot be executed against the latter by merely substituting him for the original legal representative in the execution proceedings. A fresh suit on the judgment and execution of the decree obtained therein would be the proper remedy. (Misra, J.) Sural Mohan Dayal v. Bhagwan Din. 1945 O.W.N. 163=1945 A.L.W. (C.C.) 156=1945 O.A. S. 53 — Applicability—IVatan property— Liability in the hands of son for fathers's debts —Bombay Watan Act, S. 5.

Watan property cannot be regarded as property inherited by a son from his father so as to expose it to liability in execution under S. 53, C. P. Code. A son does not inherit watan property from his father at any rate to the extent of making that property liable for the father's debts. To hold that watan property is liable for the father, would be to go behind the prohibition in S. 5 of the Bom. Watan Act. (Beaumont, C.J., and Sen, J.) RAMABAI SHRINIVAS v. GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY. 194 I.C. 431=13 R.B. 371=43 Bom.L.R. 232=A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 144.

S. 53—Decree against Hindu father—Joint family property—Liability of son's interests—Extent.

S. 53, C. P. Code, was not intended to diminish the ordinary liability of a Hindu son under the Hindu Law as it existed before the enactment of that section. Under the Hindu Law, a son is bound to pay his father's debts not incurred for immoral purposes to the extent of his interest in the joint family property at the time of execution and not at the time of his fathers death. (Pollock, J.) Shrawan v. Jangalya. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 409=1944 N.L.J. 424=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 360, ——S. 53—Scope—Suit in respectof a trespass against a Hindu father alone—Partition between father and sons before decree—Death of father—Execution—Son's share—If liable.

Apart from S. 53. C. P. Code, there can be little doubt that if a decree is obtained against a Hindu tather personally, it cannot be executed against somebody who is a stranger to the suit. If he is to be made liable, a separate suit must be filed. Where the suit is in respect of a trespass committed, and the father alone is impleaded as a party to the suit it cannot be said that the sons can be proceeded against in respect of the decree passed. But where it is shown that the father and his sons effected a division of the family properties during the pendency of the suit, the property in the hands of the father which fell to his share on partition would be liable under the Hindu law for the payment of the father's debt in respect of which a decree has been passed. And if the father dies after the passing of the decree, the property in the hands of the son after the partition can be proceeded against in execution under S. 50 or S. 52 C. P. Code. (Horwill, J.) ——S. 54—Jurisdiction—Decree for partition sent to Collector—Jurisdiction of Court to entertain objecting to partition effected—Right to modify partition—Remedy of aggrieved party.

A Court which has passed a decree for partition to which S. 54. C. P. Code applies, and has sent it to the Collector for the purpose of effecting the partition has no power to hear objections to the partition made by the Collector or his subordinate or to modify the partition. A Collector acting under S. 54. C. P. Code, is performing a statutory duty and in doing so he is not under the control of the Court. Once the Court has sent the decree to the Collector for action under S. 54, the matter passes entirely out of its hands. A party aggrieved by the partition is not, however, without a remedy. He has the right of asking the Board of Revenue to revise the Collector's order. (Leach, C.J., Lakshmana Rao and Kuppuswami Ayyar JJ.) Venkatraghava Rao v. Hanumantha Rao. 58 L.W. 330=1945 M. _____S. 54 and O. 20 R. 18—Partition decree— Contents of—Powers of Court and of Collector— Discretion of Collector—Power of Court to interferc or to fetter.

A Court passing a partition decree under O. 20, R. 18, C. P. Code, in respect of an undivided estate assessed to the payment of revenue to Government, has no power so to fetter the discretion of the Collector as to over-rule the powers that are conferred upon him under S. 54 and O. 21, R. 18. The decree should declare the rights of the several parties interested in the property, and direct such partition to be made by the collector or his gazetted subordinate in accordance with such declaration. The Collector is to divide the estate in accordance with the rights declared in the decree, in the manner he thinks best, bearing in mind the convenience of the land as a revenue paying estate. The Col-lector is to execute the decree, but not to alter it and the Court will not interfere with the exercise of discretion by the Collector unless he has contravened or ignored the terms of the decree. (Davis, C. J. and Weston, J.) CHANDUMAL JAS-SUMAL v. HAFIZDIN MAHOMED. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 162=204 I.C. 324=15 R.S. 93=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 7.

——S. 55 (4)—Construction—Rights of decree-holder—Surety for judgment-debtor—Liability of—Judgment-debtor sent to jail—Subsequent proceedings against surety—Permissibility.

Where a person has stood surety for a judgment-debtor under S. 55 (4), C. P. Code, the Court cannot at the instance of the decree-holder proceed both against the surety and against the judgment-debtor concurrently. If the judgment-debtor is committed to the civil prison the state of affairs is just the same as if the surety had never come forward so that the Court cannot concurrently proceed against the surety or his property. S. 55 (4) is explicit; the decree-holder having given up his rights against the surety by proceeding against the judgment-debtor and sending him to jail cannot be allowed to re-open the matter by asking that the surety should be proceeded against. (Harries, C. J. and Manohar Lall, J.) RAGHUBIR SINGH v. MAZHARUL HAQUE 21 Pat. 644=202 I.C. 589=15 R.P. 129=9 B.R. 26=24 Pat, L.T. 69=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 506.

A security bond executed under S. 55 (4), C. P. Code, can be enforced against the surety although there has been a failure on the part of the judgment-debtor of only one of the two conditions set out therein, (i. e.) either in applying for adjudication as an insolvent or in appearance. It is not necessary that there should have been a failure on his part in both respects. (Lobo and Tyabji, JJ.) ASSANDAS v. HARDASMAL I.L.R. ——S. 55 (4)—Obligation of Judgment-Debtor to apply to be declared insolvent—If ceases with presentation of petition.

The mere presentation of a petition to be declared an insolvent is not a sufficient compliance with the undertaking given by a judgment-debtor under S. 55 (4), C. P. Code, that he would apply to be declared an insolvent. The obligation includes not only the presentation of a petition but the presentation of a petition but the presentation of a petition in the manner provided by law and the proper prosecution thereof. (Lobo and Tyabji. JJ.) ASSANDAS v. HARDASMAL. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 79=201 I.C. 750=15 R. S. 18=A.I.R. 1942 Sind. 134.

——S. 55 (4)—Surety—Bond—Judgment-debtor—Required to apply in insolvency and to conduct all proceedings thereon regularly and properly—Failure to apply for discharge—If breach of bond—Surety's liability.

S. 55 (4). C. P. Code, requires the due prosecution of a petition for adjudication as an insolvent of a judgment-debtor and his presence in Court when required. When a surety bond executed under S. 55 (4) metely requires the indgment-debtor to present the petition for insolvency and regularly and properly conduct the proceedings thereon, there is no further liability on the part of the surety when there happens to be a failure on the part of the insolvent to apply for discharge. There is no analogy between a security bond executed under S. 55 (4), C. P. Code, and a continuing guarantee under S. 129, Contract Act and S. 130 of the Contract Act (and its principle) cannot apply to a surety under S. 55 (4), C. P. Code. The surety under S. 55 (4) cannot be discharged from his obligation at any stage before he has fully carried out his undertaking to the Court. (Patanjah Sasiri, J.) Sankaranarayana Ayyar v. vendor. It is the vendor's money in the hands of the vendee, which he is under an obligation to pay to the vendor and in the absence of a contract to the contrary, this obligation arises at the moment the sale transaction is completed. The fact that the money is, by agreen ent, made payable at a future date or that the vendor has asked the verdee to pay it to a third party makes no difference. It is none-the-less an existing and completed obligation and, as regards it, the relationship between the vendor and the vendee is that of a creditor and debror.

If, therefore, at the instance of a person who holds a decree against the vendor, a prohibitory order under O. 21, R. 46 C. P. Code, is served on the vendee, before he has paid out the amount to the nominees of the vendor in accordance with the directions set out in the deed, the attachment is good and neither the vandee nor the vendor can object. The vendor's nominees of course have no locus standi to object, for there is no privity of contract between them and the vendor and the mere direction of the vendor to the vendee to pay the amount to them creates no jural relationship between them. The direction is, ordinarily, revocable at any time before payment has actually been made. Further, the decreeholder of the vendor can attach it even immediately after the execution of the sale-deed and need not wait until the lapse of reasonable time from the sale, within which the vendee could have paid, but has neglected to pay, the vendor's nominees. ## -S. 60-"Property"-Meaning of.

Per Pal, J.—The word "property" in S. 60, C. P. Code, is used in a very wide sense. All the interest in the properties which are available to the judgment-debtor for his benefit can be seized in execution. Even if the property does not belong to the judgment-debtor, if he has acquired any right or power in respect of the same which can be sold by him for his benefit, such right or power will be seizable property within the meaning of the section. "Debt" within the meaning of S. 60 (1), CP. Code, does not mean a debt only presently pay. able, but it means also a debt due but payable at some future time. A debt is a sum of money which is now payable or will become payable in future by reason of a persent obligation. The defendant-company had a provident fund for its employees called the Labour Provident Fund one A.R.B., an employee of the company was a subscriber to this Fund. The plaintiff having obtained a decree against A.R.B., attached on 11—10—1934, a sum of Rs. 81-14-3 out of the moneys lying to the credit of A.R.B. in this fund in execution of the decree. On 21-10-1934, A.R.B. retired from the service of the company and the defendant company thereupon paid to A. R.B. the entire sum due to him under the Provident Fund Rules. In 1936 the plaintiff applied for sale and at the sale held on 27-4-1934, he purchased the debt. In a suit by the for plaintiff for Rs. 81-14-3, the defendant pleaded that A.R. B. created a trust by subscribing to the Fund and that in any case the amount was not a debt under S. 60 (1), C.P.Code. One of the Rules of the Fund provided that no member shall have any claim upon the moneys standing to his credit except in accordance with the Rule and that the Trustees shall take no cognizance of any disposition or assignment of any sums standing to the credit of a member. Another Rule provided for a separate account to be kept for each member in the books of the Fund, and that the amounts contributed by the member and the company together with interest accrued thereon should be entered therein. The rules further provided that the management and control of its funds shall be vested in the defendant company (hereinafter referred to as the "Trustees"). The money due to a member on the date of his ceasing to be a member was to be paid to him in full or to such person as he desired, within 3 months after his ceasing to be so.

Held, on a construction of the Rules, (1) that the rules were not statutory provisions but only amounted to a private contract between the parties, and that the parties could not by private agreement alter the provisions of the statute law including the provisions of S. 60 (1) C. P. Code; (2) that the sum standing to the credit of A.R.B. on 11—10—1934 was a debt over which he had a disposing power within the meaning of S. 60, C. P. Code, and it could therefore be the subject of a prohibitory order or attachment although it could not be sold until it was at the disposal of the judgment-debtor. A sale held after the retirement of the employee when he ceased to be a member, would therefore be valid; (3) that taking the Rules and Regulations of the Fund, it could not be said that the moneys were trust moneys or vested in trustees. as neither the trus fund nor the beneficiary was clearly indicated, the member being at perfect liberty to withdraw the whole amount if he retired or to nominate a new nominee; the essentials of a trust under S. 5 of the Trusts Act were absent; and (4) that therefore there was valid attachment and a valid sale, and in consequence the defendants were liable to the plaintiff for the sum of Rs. 81-14-3. (Davis, C.J., and Weston, J.) ISMAIL JAKRIA & Co. v. BURMAH SHELL PROVIDENT TRUST, LTD. LLR. (1941) Kar. 401=199 I.C. 525=14 R.S. 187=A.I.R. 1942 Sind. 47.

An attachment before judgment effected in a suit can be availed of by the plaintiff decree holder, whose suit, though originally dismissed by the trial Court, is subsequently decreed by the Court allowing a review petition filed by the plaintiff. Though the decree dismissing the suit automatically puts an end to the attachment before judgment, the moment the review is allowed, the decree already passed is vacated, and the suit must be considered to be restored to file; and with the restoration of the suit all the ancillary orders also get restored. The decree passed thereafter is the decree of the trial court itself and the attachment which is restored enures for the benefit of the decree-holder who obtains a decree subsequently after the review is allowed, as against a purchaser of the attached property who purchases subsequent to the decree after review. S. 60 (1)—Scope—Amending Act IX of 1937 and V of 1943—Scope and effect of—Private employee Salary and Dearness Allowance—Attachibility in execution of decree passed in suit instituted before 1-6-1937.

Act IX of 1937, which amended S. 60 (1), C. P. Code, preserved for the holder of a decree passed in a suit filed before 1-6-1937 the right to attach the salary of a judgment-debtor in accordance with S. 60, as it stood before the amendment and in spite of the amendment he could attach the whole of the salary of a private employee. That right was not taken away by the repeal of Act IX of 1937. Further Act V of 1943 was not intended to take away pre-existing rights that were preserved by Act IX of 1937. In proceedings arising out of any suit filed hefore 1-6-1945 the liability of a judgment-debtor's salary to attachment is governed by S. 60, C. P. ——S. 60 (1) (b)—Applicability—"Tools of an artisan"—Cooking vessels of hotel-keeper—Exemption from attachment.

Cooking vessels with which a hotel-keeper prepares sweetmeats are not tools of an artisan exempt from attachment within the meaning of 60 (1) (b), C. P. Code. The word "artisan" has a "well-recognised meaning and is roughly synonymous with "handicraftsman" or "mechanic." Cooking vessels are certainly not tools and a hotel-keeper cannot claim exemption from attachment of the vessels used by his employees in the preparation of food which he sells to the nublic. ## ----S. 60 (1) (c)—"Agriculturist"--Test.

An "agriculturist" within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (c) C. P. Code must be a person who tills the soil and thereby earns his livelihood and is expected to have implements of husbandry, cattle and seed grain. An old or otherwise disabled man, or a woman may not till the land with his or her own hands but may do it through others such as relatives or hired lahourers. Still such person may be an agriculturist, to all intents and purposes. Again a person may he a real tiller of land without having his own implements of husbandry. At the time of cultivation he may borrow or hire such implements. Ir any case however cultivation must be his main source of living though this will not be the sole test. (Chatterji and Meredith, JJ.) ANANTALA CHAKRAVARTY v. BIBHUTI BHUSAN DAS. 23 Pat. 348=1944 P.W.N. 306=11 B.R. 166=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 272.

——S. 60 (1) (c)—'Agriculturist'—Test.

The proper test to be applied in deciding whether a particular person is an 'agriculturist' is to see whether his main source of income is derived from cultivation or not. The term 'agriculturist' is used with reference to one who is so by profession. (Sathe, S.M. and Dible, I.M.) SHIV LAL v. MST. RUNNA. 1944 R.D. 226=1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 119.

It cannot be said that a person who cultivates lands mainly through his tenants is not an "agriculturist." It is for the Courts to decide whether a particular individual situated as he is with reference to his occupation or other circumstances is an agriculturist or not. A person who derived his whole income from his lands and had no other profession or occupation must be held to be an agriculturist within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (c). C., for the house in which he ordinarily resides, unless he proves he has tethered some cattle in the house or keeps agricultural implements there. An agriculturist like every person, must have a house in which to live; and the fact that he has a shed in or near his field in which he may keep some implements and perhaps spend an hour or two in the middle of the day, while engaged in agricultural operations, would not disable him from retaining possession of the house in which he ordinarily resides, provided that that house is not on a scale inappropriate to an agriculturist (Horwill, J.) S. 60 (1) (c)—House occupied by agriculturist—Exemption from attachment not claimed prior to sale in execution—Bar of constructive res judicata applies—Scope and nature of the protection under S. 60 (1) (c).

If a person during the course of execution proceedings dose not raise an objection to the sale of property which, if raised would prevent the property from being brought to sale, he is debarred by the principle of constructive res judicata from raising the same objection either in subsequent proceedings or at a subsequent stage in the same execution proceedings. The question whether a particular house is a house in the occupation of an agriculturist is a question of fact and where there is nothing before the Court to show that the house sought to be sold is a house in the occupation of an agriculturist, it cannot be said that the Court acted without jurisdiction in selling that house. S. 60 (1) (c) was no doubt enacted to protect agriculturists, but the protection can be waived by them. If they can waive it, it follows that there cannot be any absolute prohibition against the sale of an agriculturist's house and there is therefore no bar to the application of the principle of constructive res judicata; moreover the fact that S. 60 prohibits only the attachment of an agriculturist's house and does not prevent him from selling it, if he so wishes, indicates that there is no public policy against the alienation of an agriculturists house. A person would be regarded as a labourer within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (h), C. P. Code, if he does or is expected to do that class of work which requires manual labour, such as the work of spinning in a textile mill. If the doing of manual labour is a term of his employment, he is a labourer and the remuneration earned by him constitutes "wages of a labourer" within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (h). The head jobber, i.e., the head of a gang of workmen employed in a textile mill industry, is a labourer if he participates in the work of his gang occasionally, though not necessarily continuously, as a term of his employment. The remuneration earned by him must therefore be held to be "wages of a labourer" exempt from attachment under S. 60 (1) (h), C. P. Code. (Wassoodew. I) Kul-KARNI v. GANPAT HIRAJI TELI. I.L.R. The provisions of S. 60, C. P. Accordingly an arrangement made by an employee of a Municipality who was drawing a salary of Rs. 100 a month that his creditor who had obtained a decree against him may take Rs. 15 per month out of his salary in satisfaction of the decree is not enforceable in law and the Rs. 15 cannot be attached in execution of the decree. As an assignment of salary such an agreement is also opposed to the provisions of S. 6 (f) of the T. P. Act. (Kunhi Raman, J.) Subramaniam v. Satyanadham. I.L.R. The new Cl. (i) of S. 60 (1) exempts from attachment in execution of a decree the salary of a public officer to the extent of the first hundred rupees and one half the remainder of such salary. Further, Cl. (k) of S. 60 (1) exempts all compulsory deposits to a Provident Fund when the judgment-debtor belongs to a recognised Provident Fund. The exemption of deposits in Provident Fund is separate from the exemption in respect of salaries given by Cl. (i) and the result therefore is that the recurring contributions of the judgment-debtor to the Provident Fund must in working out the amount attachable, fall on that moiety of the excess of the salary over the first hundred rupees which is not already reserved for the judgment-debtor by Cl. (i). In other words, a decree-holder who is hit of the amendment of 1937, is only entitled to look to the balance after deducting the Provident Fund contribution from the amount that is left over after giving effect to the exemption granted by Cl. (i).

——S. 60 (1) (k)—Provident Fund money of railway servant—Liability to attachment—Payment to subscriber—Test.

The money due to a railway servant on his account in the Provident Fund is not liable to attachment by his creditor until it is paid over to him. In order to decide whether the money has been paid to him, the test to apply is whether the railway has obtained a valid discharge. After his retirement a railway servant filled in the necessary form asking for payment of the money due to him on his account in the Provident Fund. The railway authorities requested the Reserve Bank to send a cheque to Messers. Thomas Cook and Sons. A creditor of the railway servant obtained an order from Court attaching the money. Messrs. Thomas Cook and Sons in the meantime had returned the cheque to the railway authorities alleging that the railway servant had no account with them.

Held, that the railway authorities would be discharged if, in asking the Reserve Bank to send the cheque to Thomas Cook and Sons, they were acting in accordance with the instructions given by the railway servant. The moment the attachment ends as a result of the sale being set aside all claims which were enforceable under it cease to be enforceable and a creditor who would have had a right to rateable distribution if the sale had stood, cannot therefore challenge an alienation by the judgment debtor under S. 64, as his claim has ceased to be enforceable on the sale being set aside. —Subsequent attachment in execution of decree against owner—Sale deed in pursuance of contract after attachment—Subsequent Court sale in pursuance of attachment—If prevails over sale in pursuance of contract—T. P. Act, S. 54.

It is quite clear that though a contract to sell land does not create any interest in, or charge on, the property in question, it does give rise to an obligation which limits the right of the owner; and the attachment of the right, title and interest of the owner in the property in execution of a decree against him is subject to such limitation by which the judgment-debtor (owner) was bound. There is no legal basis for the theory that an attachment will prevail against a preexisting contract binding the owner of the land if the attaching decree-nolder has no notice of the contract. It the attachment is followed by a Court-sale and the purchaser at the Court-sale has no notice of this obligation he will no doubt get a good tille and the promisee under the private contract would be left to seek his remedy against his promisor. Where, however, a registered sale-deed is executed after the attachment and before the Court-sale, in pursuance of the prior contract to sell made before the attachment, the position is different. The sale can only be attacked under S. 64, C. P. Code, which section will apply only if it is shown that the sale is a private transfer cont. ary to the attachment. But when the attachment is subject to the obligation under the pievious contract, the sale in pursuance of the contract cannot be a transfer contrary to the attachment. (Wadsworth, J.) ATHINARAYANA KOMAR v. SUBRAMANIA AIYAR. 201 I.C. 307=15 R.M. 301=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 67 =54 L.W. 474=1941 M.W.N. 896=(1941) 2 M. L.J. 722.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 64.

-- S. 54-Applicability-Execution sale.

S. 04, C.P.Code, is confined to private transfers of property and does not apply to sales in execution of a decree. Accordingly a sale made in pursuance of a later attachment will prevail even though there is an earlier attachment in existence at the date of the sale. ((Boss, J.) RUKMANI D. RAMSAROOP. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 739=1944 N.L.J. 385=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 324.

The very object with which S. 64, C. P. Code, has been enacted is to save rights which do not conflict with the claims enforceable under the attachment. The expressions "contrary to such attachment," and "as against all claims enforceable under the attachment," limit the operation of S. 64 only to certain transfers or acquisitions of interest or payments to the judgment-debtor. It does not render void any transaction or part of a transaction which in no way prejudices the claims of the decree-holder against the property which he has got attached. (Wadia and Sen, JI.) VISHNU BALKRISHNA v. SHANKARPPA GURLINGAPPA. 202 I.C. 392=15 R.B. 156=44 Bom. L.R. 415=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 227.

——S. 64—Applicability—"Private transfer"— Decree on award creating charge on land—If voidable as private transfer.

S. 64, C. P. Code, affords protection to an attaching creditor only against a "private transfer" but not against an enforced transfer obedience to a decree of a Court. A charge created by a decree passed on an award is not a private transfer which is voidable under S. 64. But if there were no disputes between the parties and the reference to arbitration was collusive and sham, then the award following on the reference would only be a camouflage to disguise the private character of the transaction; and in that case though the award might be filed and a decree passed on it, it would be treated as a private transfer for the purpose of S. 64, C. P. Code. But the burden of proving that an award is not genuine but was made collusively only as a device to invest a private arrangement with the appearance of a public adjudication lies heavily on the attaching decree-holder who pleads so. If there be a genuine dispute between the parties and that dispute is settled by arbitration and the award is made a decree of Court, it cannot be regarded as a private transfer. S, 64 and O. 38, R 10, C.P. Code, have to be read together, and S. 64 applies to an effective attachment. An attachment ordered under O. 38, R. 10 C.P. Code, before judgment is not effective as against rights subsisting at the date of the attachment. (Wassoodew, J.) SHIVSHANKAREPPA MAHADEVAPPA V. SHIVAPPA PARAPA. 204 I.C. 340=15 R.B. 312=44 Bom. S. 64 and O. 38, R. 10—Attachment before judgment of land—Prior agreement by defendant to sell land to third party—Right of decree-holder to bring property to sale in execution—Remedy.

The holder of a money decree, who has attached immovable property of his judgment-debtor before judgment, cannot bring that property to sale in satisfation of his decree, when the judgment-debtor has, before the attachment, agreed to sell the property to a third party, and the sale has been completed by a conveyance after the attachment. The attachment before judgment of property subject to a contract of sale merely gives the attaching creditor a right to the balance of the purchase-money, if any. He would also have the benefit of the vendor's lien under S. 55 (4) (b) T. P. Act. (Broomfield and Divatia, JI.) RANGO RAMCHANDRA V. GURLINGAPPA. I.L.R. S. 64 Effect of attachment—Scope and applicability of S. 64.

Attachment creates no new title. The attaching creditor only obtains certain negative rights which are limited in scope. S. 64 of the C.P. Code, sets out these limits. The section is restricted to private transfers of, and private dealings with the property attached and does not extend to involuntry transfers or other consequences which ensue ad invitum the parties because of a statutory enactment. An attachment, whether it is in execution of a decree or before Judgment, must be made in the manner prescribed by law, if it is to render a subsequent alienation invalid. Attachment is a real thing, distinct and separate from an order for attachment. Where on an interim order for attachment before Judgment passed by the High Court on its original side, a notice of motion containing only a bare endorsement by an Assistant Registrar that an interim attachment has been granted is served on the defendant by an attorney's clerk, such service does not have the effect of an attachment of the immovable property in question, as it falls utterly short of the requirements of the law. The contents of the notice of motion were not proclaimed on or near the property to be attached, nor was a copy of the notice affixed either on the property or on the Court house. Further the notice of motion was not delivered to the Sheriff for Service as required by the Rules of the High Court, and it contained no words of formal prohibition such as are contemplated by O. 21, R. 54 (1), C. P. Code. Consequently an alienation of the property made after such service of the notice of motion is not hit by S. 64, C. P. Code. (Mitter and Khundkar, JJ.) MONOHARLAL BANERJEE v. # ----S. 64-Private transfer-Meaning.

A 'private transfer' in S. 64, C.P. Code, means transfer carried out without the intervention of the attaching Court or of some Court superior to it or again of some Court to which the proceedings have been lawfully transferred. A transfer during the pendency of an attachment is illegal. (Davies.) Noor Mohammed v. Umra Mal. 1941 A.M.L. J. 51.

Where a judgment-debtor during the subsistence of an attachment of his property in execution of a money decree, sells it to third person and therafter makes an application under 5.4, Encumpered Estates Act, which is, in due course forwarded to the special judge, the attachment no doubt becomes null and void in view of the provisions of S. 7 (1) (a) of the Encumbered Estates Act. But the rights acquired by the decree-nolder prior to that date, namely, the right to realise the decree from the properties remain in tact and the private sale by the judg-ment-debtor is subject to such rights. -S. 64 - Scope - Attachment before judgment-Sale by debtor-Subsequent decree in suit -insolvency of judgment-debtor afterwards-Application for sale of uttached property-Official Assignee, if necessary party-sale if void absolu-

A private alienation by a judgment-debtor of property attached by a creditor is, under 5, 64, C. P. Code, not void absolutely, but only void against claims enforceable under the attachment in question. An adjudication of the debtor would automatically put an end to an attachment and vest the property in the Official Assignee free of attachment, but it has no such efficacy as regards an allenation made by the insolvent before his adjudication. Until the alienation is set aside by appropriate proceedings, it stands good, and the Official Assignee would therefore have no present interest in or title to the property in question. Hence the Official Assignee is not a necessary party to an application for sale of the property in execution by the attaching creditor. The appellant who filed a suit against his debtor obtained an order for attachment of the debtor's property before judgment and the property was attached on 19—4—1939. Later on 16—1—1940, the debtor sold the attached property to the respondent On 10-1-1941, the appellant obtained a decree in his suit against the debtor for Rs. 4,043-1-0 and interest. On 25-2-1941 the debtor was adjudged insolvent, and his estate vested in the Official Assignee, Madras. On 3-5-1941, the appellant applied in execution of his decree for sale of the attached property after bringing on record the respondent who had purchased the property pending the attachment. The application was dismissed as not maintainable on the ground that the Official Assignee in whom the debtor's estate was vested was not made a party to the execution proceeding.

Held, that the property would not become the property of the debtor or vest in the Official Assignee until the latter obtained a declaration for setting aside the alienation and therefore the decree-holder (appellant) was not obliged to implead the Official Assignee in his application for sale in execution-Sale set aside under O. 21, R.

-S. 54-Scope- Insolvency of Hindu father-Attachment of son's interest in family property in execution-Effect-Sale by Official Receiver pending attachment-Validity as against son of insolvent.

So long as Hindu joint family is undivided the power of the father to sell the son's share is not lost. The attachment of the sons's interest may prevent the alienation taking effect as against claims enforceable under the attachment in view of S. 64 C. P. Code and when a sale of the share is effected in pursuance of the attachment, the power of the tather may be destroyed but the power does not cease till the sale takes place. So long as the power of disposal subsists, there is no reason why it should not vest in the Official Receiver on the insolvency of the father subject to the same disabilities as it would be subject to in the hands of the father at the date of vesting. During the pendency of the attachment, if the Official Receiver chooses to exercise the right of sale the alience will get a title which will prevail against the son though it may not prevail against the claims enforceable under the attackment. In other words it a sale takes place in pursuance of the attachment, the purchaser under that sale would get an indefeasible title and the purchaser from the Official Receiver will not get any. The purchaser from the Official Receiver cannot resist the claim of the attaching decree-holder to bring the properties to sale or to contest the rights of a purchaser at such a sale but the son would have no right against the alience as his interest must be held to have been validly sold. -S. 64 Expl. and 73-Applicability-Attackment—Application for rateable distribution—Subsequent private purchase by attaching decree-holder— Right of other decree-holder to claim rateable distribution.

A decree holder applying for rateable distribution under S. 73 C.P. Code is not entitled to assert his claim against another decree-holder who had attached the property in his execution and had thereafter purchased it privately from the judgment debtor in satisfaction of his decree after the application for rateable distribution. The explanation to S. 64 C. P. Code does not apply where the court is not in possession of assets from which rateable distribution can be allowed under S. 73. The Legislature could not have intended merely by adding the explanation to S. 64 to include unenforceable claims for rateable distribution in the class of claims enforceable under an attachment. Where an execution sale is set aside under O. 21, R. 89 C. P. Code, on deposit of the decree amount the attachment in pursuance of which the sale was held comes to an end. When the attaching creditor's sale is set aside and his claim is satisfied, the particular attachment necessarily comes to an end. Another creditor who had applied for and might get rateable distribution it the sale nad stood, cannot therefore say that he has a claim enforceable under that attachment within the meaning of S. 64, C. P. Code. A private purchaser from the judgment-debtor after the sale and before its setting aside, would bet a good title, because the effect of the setting aside of the sale is to declare that the judgmentdebtor had a good title to convey his property from the date of the sale itself and not merely from the date of its setting aside. A creditor attaching the property after the private sale and before the setting aside of the execution sale is not entitled to rely on his attachment to impeach the private sale and such attachment cannot affect the rights of the private purchaser under S. 64, C. P. Code. (King, J.) SUBRAMANIA AYYAR v. ANNAVI PILLAI. 202 I.C. 451=15 R.M. 503=1942 M.W.N. 412=55 L.W. 274=A.I.R.

Per Shearer J. When in execution of a decree a mukarrari tenure is sold and the sale is in due course, confirmed, the auction purchaser is in the absence of any agreement with the land lord liable to pay the rent, which accrues due, after the date of the sale and the judgment-debtor is liable to account for the profits up to the date of his dispossession.

Per Manohar Lall, J.—There can be no personal liability for such arrears of rent when there is no contract express or implied binding the auction purchaser to pay rent for the tenure to the land lords before the date of confirmation of sale (Manohar Lall and Sharer. ——Ss. 63-70 in 196—Order of Collector refusing to direct alienation of judgment-debtor's land-Appeal.

Even before the promulgation of the rules made by the Punjab Government under S 70 C. P. Code, any decrees passed by a Collector to whom execution proceedings had been transfered as the result of the notification under S. 68 were by the operation of S. 96 of the Code decrees subject to appeal to the Court of the Commissioner. An order of the Collector refusing to direct the alienation of any portion of the judgment-debtor's land on the ground that it was barely sufficient for the maintenance of the judgment-debtor and his family is clearly a decree and is appealable as such to the Commissioner. (Alan Mitchell, F.C.) Budhu Ram v. Pandhi. 20 Lah, L. T. 167.

S. 68 -Sale by Collector-Procedure.

It is not necessary that the Collector himself should carry out the sale. The Collector in S. 68 is regarded as the nead of the revenue and administration department and it is this department which would do the work and not necessarily the Collector himself. The papers must however be returned under the signature of the Collector to the Civil Court concerned in token of his satisfaction with the work of the department. (Davies.) GHULAM DASTGIR v. VILLAYAT HUSSAIN. 1941 A. M.L.J. 81.

Where a Civil Court has ordered land to be attached and sold in execution of a decree and has transferred the execution proceedings to the Collector in accordance with Punjab Government Notification issued under S. 68, C.P. Code, the proceedings are not proceedings under the Punjab Debtors Protection Act. The procedure of the Collector and the procedure in regard to appeal and revision are, therefore, governed by Sch. III, C. P. Code, and by the rules made under S. 70, C. P. Code, by the Punjab Government. The Collector cannot refuse to take action or postpone the sale of the attached property under R. 1, of Sch. III when there is no possibility of raising the decretal amounts by any temporary alienation. (Mitchell, F.C.) GULAB DIN v. SARDAR LAL. 21 Lah. L.T.

R. 31 of the rules framed by the Punjab Government is intended to convey the sense of O. 21, R. 86, C. P. Code, that is to say, when the purchaser defaults in the deposit of 75 per cent., it is the duty of the Collector to hold that the sale is void and to determine whether in the special circumstances of the case before him, he ought to order forfeiture of the deposit of 25 per cent. made at the time of the sale. That being so, an order of the Collector confirming the sale although 75 per cent. had not been deposited within 15 days or on the date of the order of confirmation, is illegal. (Anderson, F.C.) MANOHAR LAL v. MOHAN LAL. 22 I. L. T. 8.

——S. 70—Rules framed under—Collector not accepting last bid made before Tahsildar—Whether can hold informal sale.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 73.

The Collector is not authorised, when he does not accept the last bid made before the Tahsildar, to hold an informal sale for the disposal of the property. If he considers it necessary to obtain fresh bids, he must follow the procedure laid down for the holding of a sale, (Binney, F.C.) JANKIDAS v. LAXMAN. 1943 N.L.J. 226.

_____ S. 70 (1)—Rules under, R. 13—Scope of—Collector if can adjudicate on disputed adjustment.

R. 13 of the rules framed under S. 70 (1), C.P. Code, only invests a Collector with powers specifically referred to in the notified rules and not with all powers conferred by rules under O. 21 or otherwise by the C. P. Code. The Collector is not a Court within the meaning of the term occurring in O. 21, R. 2. A Collector is justified in filing the proceedings, when there is an amicable settlement admitted by both parties. But he cannot legally come to a decision regarding a disputed adjustment. (Binney, F.C.) DHANRAJ v. BALKISAN. 1941 N.L.J. 300.

______S. 70 (2)—If excludes jurisdiction of Civil Court to order stay of sale.

From the provisions of Ss. 69 and 70, C. P. Code, it follows that a Civil Court cannot regulate the sale proceedings before the Collector in execution after the decree has been transferred to him in matters falling within the purview of the third schedule or of the Rules framed under S. 70. In cases which are not covered by the provisions of the third schedule of the rules framed under S. 70 the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not ousted and the Civil Court is the only Court competent to determine matters arising in execution. In an appeal against the execution of a decree by sale it is open to the Chief Court to order stay of sale pending disposal of the appeal and S. 70 (2) does not exclude the jurisdiction of that Court to pass such an order. (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) HARDWARI PRASAD v. RUDRA PRASAD. 204 I.C. 569 = 15 R.O. 379 = 1943 O.W.N. 28 = 1943 O.A. (C.C.) 6 = 1943 A.W.R. (C.C.) 3 = A. I.R. 1943 Oudh 265.

All proceedings under Ch. XL. of the U. P. Revenue Department Manual are judicial proceedings and hence all orders must be passed after giving a hearing to the parties concerned. (Sathe, J.M.) MEWA RAM v. JAMNA PRASAD. 1942 A.W.R. (Rev) 207=1942 O. A. (Supp.) 233=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 361=1942 R.D. 450.

Where a judgment debtor applied for setting aside an execution sale by the Collector on the grounds that the property was protected, the price was inadequate and the proclamation was not properly served and the Collector refused to set it aside and prior to its confirmation the judgment-debtor sought to revise that order, Held that the revision was premature inasmuch as the question may not arise if the sale is not ultimately confirmed. (Sathe, J.M.) MEWA RAM v. JAMNA PRASAD. 1942 A.W.B. (Rev.) 207=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 233=1942 O.W.N. (B.B.) 361=1942 B.D. 450.

A creditor who has obtained a rateable distribution out of funds realised in sale in execution against his judgment-debtor cannot, in a suit against him for the recovery of the sum paid in excess of his share, plead that the execution under which the money was realised was itself void. He cannot both retain the benefit received by the sale and plead its invalidity. (Nivoqi, J.) Co-OPERATIVE CENTRAL BANK LTD., MALKAPUR v. NARAYAN RAMJEE KUNBI, I.L.R. S. 73—Custody Court and Executing Court being same—Receipt of assets—Point of time—Need for formal order—Undertaking by executing creditor to bring back money into Court—Liability for interest.

In a case of rateable distribution, where the custody Court and the executing Court are the same, two things must take place. First, the Court should as the custody Court come to the conclusion that there was no objection to transfer the amount necessary to pay the decree-holder at whose instance the fund was attached; and secondly there must be an order by the custody Court transferring the amount to the credit of the first attaching creditor's suit which it is engaged in executing. It is only then that there can be said to be receipt of assets within the meaning of S. 73, C. P. Code. Where the latter of the two conditions is not satisfied the executing creditor is not entitled to draw out the money and other creditors are entitled to participate in the distribution so long as such an order is not passed. Where an executing creditor drawing out money from Court gave an undertaking to the Court that he would pay back the whole or any portion of the amount drawn by him if so ordered by that Court.

Held, that the undertaking involved an obligation to repay the sum with interest if later on it was found that the money had been wrongly claimed and wrongly paid. (Sonarya and Shahab-ud-din, JJ.) IMPERIAL BANK OF INDIA MADRAS v. BALASUBRAMANIA PANDIA TEVAR. 1945 M.W.N. 492=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 49.

8. 73—"Same judgment-debtors" — Decree against Hindu father and son and decree against father alone as manager of family—If against "same judgment debtor."

The expression, "the same judgment-debtor" in S. 73, C. P. Code, must be construed strictly. A decree against a father and son, members of a Hindu joint family, and a decree against the father alone as manager of the joint Hindu family cannot be regarded as decrees against the same judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 73, C. P. Code. (Beaumont C. J. and Macklin. J.) LAXMAN ANANT v. GOVIND RAMBHAT. I.L.B. (1941) Bom. 540 = 14 R.B. 148 = 196 I.C. 644 = 48 Bom. L R. 695 = A.I R. 1941 Bom. 324.

——S. 73—"Same independent debtor" — Decree against legal representative of such person—If against "same independent-debtor."

A decree against a person and a decree against his legal representatives are not decrees against the "same indgment debtor" for purposes of S. 73 C. P. Code, "Judgment-debtor" in the section means the same person in law and in fact. It does not include legal representatives. So also, a decree against a person person ally and a degree against him in another capacity, e.g., as trustee would not be decrees against the "same indgment-debtor" within the meaning of S. 73. (Dovis, C.J. and O'Sullivan, J.) Gian. CHAND LAKHIMAL v. PARUMAL CHELLARAM, I.L. R. 1943 Kar. 426 = 212 I.C. 134 = 16 R.S. 232 = A.I.R. 1944 Sind 81.

——8.78—"Same fudgment-debtor"—Decree against person personally and device against him as legal representative of a deceased person—If against same judgment-debtor.

It will not be unduly stretching the language of S. 73, C. P. Code to say that the expression "the same judgment-debton" denotes identity, of individuality and identity of character. Decrees against the same person cannot always be regarded as decrees against the same judgment-debtor for the purposes of S. 73. A decree against a person individually and a decree against that person as representative of a deceased person cannot be held to be decrees against the same judgment debtor within the neaning of S. 73, C. P. Code, so as to enritle the holders of the two decrees to rateable distribution.

-8.80—Applicability—Notice by Municipalit remove alleged encroachment—Suit against Municipal for declaration that there was no encroachment and injunction—Subsequent addition of Government as pato suit on objection of Municipality—Notice under 80—Necessity.

The plaintiff who had built a house on his own land was served with a notice by the Commissioner of a Municipality, who threatened to demolish it, if not removed by the plaintiff within seven days, on the ground that it encroached on a public street. The plaintiff thereupon filed a suit for a declaration that the site alleged to have been encroached really belonged to him and for an injunction to restrain the Municipality from removing the structure. The Municipality which was made sole defendant pleaded that the Provincial Government was necessary party to the suit, and on the Court holding that the Government was a necessary party made the Government a party. Thereupon the plea was raised that the suit was bad because the notice required by S. SO, C.P. Code, had not been given to the Government.

Heid, that the granting of the relief asked for by the plaintiff would affect no right vested in the Government that the latter was not a necessary party to the suit and therefore S. 80. C. P. Code, did not apply. (Leach. C.J. and Clark, J.) APPALANARASAMMA v. COMMISSIONER, MUNICIPAL COUNCIL. VIZAGAPATAM. 58 L.W. 87 ($)=1945 M.W.N. 179 = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 224 = 1945) 1 M.L.J. 22.

S. 80 — Applicability — Receiver — Suit against — Notice—Necessity — "Purporting to be done...in his official capacity" — Meaning of — Failure to pay dues — Suit — Notice of suit.

A receiver appointed by a Court of law is a public officer, but no notice of suit is necessary under S 80, C. P. Code, unless the suit is against him in respect of some act purporting to have been done by him in his official capacity. Failure to pay a claim by a public officer cannot be said to be an act purporting to have been done by him in his official capacity. An act "purporting to be done by such public officer in his official capacity," means an act of a public officer which is intended by him to carry forth or convey to the minds of all persons who become aware of that act the impression that he did the act in his official capacity and not as an ordinary private individual and which has the effect of conveying such an impression by its seeming or appearance. S. 80—Applicability—Suit against ex-public officer in respect of act done when he was public officer

The notice contemplated by S. 80, C.P. Code, for a suit against a "public officer" is unnecessary in the case of a suit against a person who on the date of the suit has ceased to be such officer. The section cannot be read as including a suit against a person who is not a public officer but was a public officer at the time of the cause of action. To do so would be to extend the section beyond its apparent purport. (Wadsworth, J.) PADMANABHA NAVAR v. APPU. 200 I.C. 813=15 R. it is a statutory suit or that the suit is in the nature of an appeal. There is nothing in the latter Act which renders the provisions of S. 80, C. P. Code, inapplicable to a suit brought under it. Even if Government is made only a proforma defendant, notice is none the less necessary under S. 80, C. P. Code. (Happell, J.) PROVINCE OF MADRAS v. S. 80—'Cause of action'—Construction—Notice of suit to recover amounts realized from plaintiff—Payments actually made after notice—Notice, if invalid.

The words 'cause of action' in S. 80, C. P. Code,

The words cause of action in S. 80, C. P. Code, should not be construed in a narrow sense as the object of the section is merely to inform the defendant substantially of the ground of complaint. A notice of suit to recover amounts realized from plaintiff is not bad merely on the ground that on the date of the notice the amounts had not been paid by the plaintiff but they were paid only later on. It is enough if the cause of action is stated with precision. (Agarwal. J) JANKI PRASAD v. GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED FROVINCES. 16 Luck. 421=192 I.C. 545=13 R.O. 367=1941 A.Cr. C. 16=1941 A.W.B. notice—Fresh suit after fresh notice—Necessity.

A notice under S. 80, C.P. code, to be a valid notice must state the cause of action and the relief claimed. It may be that to state a future cause of action would not be a compliance with S. 80 C.P. code but it does not follow that where a cause of action exists of which notice is given the notice is rendered bad because it refers to a possible further claim which may arise before a suit can be brought. The section must be construed with some regard to common sense and to the object with which it appears to have been passed. The suit cannot be brought for two months after the date of the notice. The cause of action which is to be stated in the notice is the bundle of facts which go to make up the right in respect of which the plaintiff proposes to sue and it is obvious that before the suit can be brought, it may be that that bundle of facts will be added to or subtracted from; and it cannot be said that the notice is invalidated because it refers to a possible additional claim, consequential upon the cause of action specified therein and states that if such additional claim arises the plaintiff will sue also in respect of it. To hold that in respect of any consequential relief which may arise after the date of notice the plaintiff cannot sue in the contemplated suit would not be the right construction of the section; a fresh notice and a fresh suit are not necessary. The object of S. 80 C.P. code was not certainly to multiply suits or increase costs. (Beaumont C.J. Wassoodew, J.) CHANDULAL VADILAL v. GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY. I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 128-206 I.C. 570-15 R.B. 419-45 Bom. L.R. 197=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 138.

Code and there is no plea in the written statment that the suit is had on the ground that the notice given was insufficient or invalid under S 80 C. P. Code, it must the taken that any defect in the notice has been waived by the defendant. The invalidity of the notice is a matter of plea and proof and can be waived by the defendant. When the Government is appraised of the fact of the notice and the Government does nothing to raise a plea for five years the court is entitled to raise a presumption of waiver. It is not therefore open to the Government five years later at the trial to raise a plea that the notice is not proper or adequate under S. 80 and to apply to amend the written statement so as to incorporate this plea at a time when a fresh suit by the plaintiff would be barred by limitation. Just as a plaintiff should not be allowed to amend his plaint so as to deprive the defendant of a plea of limitation, the defendant should not be allowed to amend his written statement at a stage which would materially prejudice the plantiff. An order allowing amendment at such a stage is materially irregular and will be set aside in revision under S. 115 C. P. Code. (Divatia, J.) Frachshaw Hormusita, Secretary of State. I.L.R. The language of S. 80, C.P.Code, is imperative—not only must notice be given to the public officer, but the plaint must contain a statement that such notice has been given and only then can the suit be instituted. In the absence of the notice or of the statement, no valid suit is before the Court on which it can pronounce judgment and its sole duty is to reject the plaint under O. 7, R. 11 (d), C.P.Code. If instead of rejecting the plaint after it finds the suit is defective on account of non-compliance with S. 80, the Court proceeds to express findings and conclusions upon the issues arising on the pleadings, its findings are not res judicata between the parties and amount to no more than obiter dicta. The fact that no objection was raised by the parties to the issues being decided is immaterial, as the failure to challenge the power of the Court to enter upon those issues will not confer jurisdiction upon the Court. ciency—Surnames, caste and occupation—If necessary.

Where a notice under S. 80, C.P. Code, is given within the period required by the law and purports to comply substantially with the provisions of the section, it cannot be held to be defective on the ground that the surnames or the caste or the occupation of the proposed plaintiffs has not been mentioned in the notice. It would be sufficient if the plaintiffs are described in such a manner that they can be easily identified and if the father's names of all the plaintiffs and their places of residence are given, that would be a sufficient description for the purposes of S. 80, C.P. Code. (Divatia and Macklin, J.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. CHIMANLAL JAMNADAS. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 357=201 I.C. 420=15 R.B. 76=44 Bom.L.R. 295=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 161.

——S. 80—Notice — Necessity—Suit against Deputy Commissioner appointed mutwalli under a wakf.

A suit against the Deputy Commissioner as the person appointed by the District Judge to perform the duties of mutwalli under a waqf deed, is not a suit instituted against a public officer in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity and as such no notice under S. 80, C. P. Code, is necessary for such a suit. (Yorke, I.) Huzur Ana Begam v. Deputy Commissioner, Gonna 196 I.C. 797=14 R.O. 217=1941 A.W. R. S. 80—Notice not necessary—Liquidator of Co-operative Society—House of member attached by him in executing of award issued by Registrar—Member claiming in suit exemption from attachment as agriculturist.

S. 80, C. P. Code, bars the institution of a suit unless notice has been given, only when the suit is against a public officer and is in respect of any act done or purporting to he done by the public officer in his official capacity. The mere fact that the public officer concerned is a defendant in the suit is not sufficient to determine whether a notice is required under the section. Where, therefore, a Liquidator appointed under the Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act attaches a house belonging to a member of the Co-operative Society in liquidation in execution of an award issued by the Registrar and the member institutes a suit against the Liquidator to obtain a decision as to whether his house is liable to be attached, he being an agriculturist, the suit does not require the service of notice under the section assuming that the Liquidator is a public servant within the meaning of the section. It is well settled that the party in whose favour S. 80 prescribes notice to be given can waive his right to notice, and his waiver binds the rest of the parties. But only he can waive. Delay, however long, in raising the plea of want of notice, would not necessarily by itself, be a ground for holding that there has been waiver, but any prejudice to the plaintiff caused by the delay would result in the defendant being deemed to have waived his right to notice. A party who has himself no right to notice is not entitled to challenge a suit on the ground of want of notice to the party entitled to receive it. (*Rroomfeld and Macklin, JJ.) —S. 80—'Public officer' -Common manager appointed under S. 95 of B.T. Act—Loan taken by him by executing bond—Suit on such bond—Notice, if necessary.

Per Pal. J.—The common manager appointed under S. 95 of the B.T. Act is a public officer within the meaning of S. 80. C.P. Code. If he takes a loan and executes a bond, the act of taking the loan and executing the bond will be an "act done by a public officer in his official capacity". But his omission to pay either interest or principal cannot be an act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity. Consequently a suit by the creditor for the recovery of the money due under the bond will not come within S. 80, C. P. Code, and a notice under that section is not required for such a suit, (Nasim Ali and Pal, J.). SUKUMARI GUPTA v. DHIRPNDPA NATH ROY. 197 I.C. 869=14 R.C. 401=73 C.L.J. 356=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 643.

—S 80—Public officer—If should have acted bona fide—Motive of officer in doing act—Relevancy—Notice of suit.

S. 80, C.P. Code, cannot be read as being limited in its application to cases in which an officer has acted bona fide in the exercise of his powers; the duty of the Court is to give effect to the natural meaning of the language used in section. The question of good faith or bad faith of the public officer either as regards his belief in the legality or propriety of his act or the limit of his powers or the existence of facts justifying the exercise of such powers is irrelevant in the consideration of the question whether the officer is entitled to notice under S. 80. The section does not require that the act should have been done in good faith; it merely requires that it should purport to be done by the officer in his official capacity. The motives with which the act was done do not enter into the question at all. The Court has simply to see what act was done by the defendant and whether it purported to be an official act. Where a police officer arrested the plaintiff and led him to the police station as a person accused of theft, that is an act which every police officer has a statutory power to do under S. 54, Cr. P. Code, and it is as a police officer that he must bave taken the plaintiff to the police-staion. Where it is known to all parties concerned that he was a police officer and it is clear that he purported to act as such, whether in good faith or bad faith, S. 80, C.P. Code, applies and notice of suit has to be severed under the section. Rowland, J.) NOOR MAHOMED & ABDUL FATEH. 194 I.C 263=13 R.P. 696=7 B R. 737=22 Pat L.T. 392=1941 P.W.N. 502=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 461.

The Collector fixed assessment on the plaintiff's land at the rate of Rs. 200 per acre commencing from the year 1925-1926, and in December, 1933, he issued notice to the plaintiffs demanding payment accordingly. On 22-1-1934, the plaintiffs issued a notice under S. 80, C. P. Code, alleging that the assessment was illegal and consequently the notice to pay also was illegal and that they proposed to file a suit to have the assessment declared a nullity and for refund of any amount that the Collector would levy from them. He filed a suit on 16-7-1934, in which they claimed a refund of Rs. 7,369-8-0, which had been paid by them under protest in lanuary and February, 1934, as having been illegaly levied. The trial Court held that the notice was bad as not complying with S. 80, C. P. Code, in as much as the cause of action for the claim for refund had not arisen at the date of the notice; and dismissed the suit.

Held, (a) that the notice was not had because it referred to a claim for refund likely to arise out of the assessment and notice; (b) that the only acts purporting to be done by the Collector in his official capacity complained of by the plaintiffs, were (1) the making of an illegal assessment and (2) the demand for payment in respect thereof, both of which had been specifically stated in the notice and a declaration was to be asked for in respect of them; (3) that the payment which gave rise to the claim for refund was not an act of the Collector, and no notice was therefore required in respect of that; (4) that the notice sufficiently and strictly complied with the requirements of S. 80 C. P. Code, as it gave notice of the acts which the Collector was alleged to have done in his official capacity of which the plaintiffs complained and from which the cause of action resulted; and (5) therefore the cause of action resulted, and (3) inclined the suit was not liable to be dismissed on the ground that there was no notice complying with S. 80, C. P. Code. (Reaumont, C.J. and Wassoodew, J.) CHANDULAL VADILAL V. GOVERNMENT от Вомвау. I.L.R. (1943) Вот. 128=206 I.С. 570=15 R.B. 419=45 Вот.L.R. 197=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 138.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 80,

—S. 80—Scope—Duty of Court—Suit instituted during currency of notice—Duty of Court to dismiss—Waiver of plea—What amounts to— Suit failing on facts admitted and alleged by plaintiff—Failure of Secretary of State to deny receipt of notice—If waiver.

S 80, C. P. Code, imposes a statutory and unqualified obligation upon the Court. The Code, though a Procedure Code, must be read in accordarce with the natural meaning of its words. S. 80 is express, explicit and mandatory, and it admits of no implications or exceptions. If a suit is instituted before the expiry of two months prescribed by S 80, the suit is clearly unsustainable in limine and must be dismissed. But a plea that a suit has been instituted during the currency of the notice may be waived. Where the applicability of S. 80 depends upon proof of certain facts, and the Secretary of State does not deny the facts alleged in the plaint then he would be held to have waived his objection to the proof of those facts. When, for instance, a plaintiff states in his plaint that the notice has been served on a certain date which is beyond two months of the date of the institution of the suit and the Secretary of State does not raise any objection, the latter would be deharred from challenging these facts at the trial. So also when it has been alleged in the plaint that notice was sent with all the requisites beyond two months and the Secretary of State does not deny that the notice was received by him, he cannot during the trial he heard to say that he has not received the notice. But where the facts are admitted by the plaintiff himself and he fails under the express provisions of the statute no question of waiver can arise at all. The Secretary of State cannot be held to have waived the objection where the provisions of S 80 have not been complied with on the admitted facts. (Manohar Lall and Chatterji, JJ) Secretary of State v. Sagarmai Marwari 20 Pat. 394=195 I C. 93=14 R.P. 74=7 B.R. 866=23 Pat.L.T. 167=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 517.

—— S. 80—Scope—Mandatory character of— Failure to raise objection to validity of notice— Effect—Waiver or estoppel—If arises.

S. 80, C. P. Code, is express, explicit and mandatory. Where the section has not been complied with, the Court has no jurisdiction to try the action instituted against Government. There can be no question of waiver and no question of estroppel. It is very desirable that objection to the validity of the notice should be taken at the earliest possible moment, but failure to do so will not deprive the section of its force. (Leach, C. L. and Shahabuddin, J.) Government of Markas 7. Vellayyan Chettiar. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 263=218 I.C. 377=18 R.M. 36=57 L.W. 436=1944 M.W.N. 475=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 544=(1944) 2 M.L. J. 65.

S. 80—Scope—Mandatory nature of—Suit within two months—Maintainahility—Plea of absence of proper notice—If can be waived.

S. 80, C. P. Code, is explicit and mandatory and provides that no suit shall be instituted till after the expiry of two months after delivery of the notice. A suit filed within two months, i.e., before the expiry of the full two months, is premature and ought to be dismissed. It is not open to the Collector representing the Crown to waive the plea as to the want of a proper indice under S. 80, C. P. Code. (Venkataramana Rao, J.) MARINA AMMAYI V. SECRETARY OF STATE. 200 I.C. 205=15 R.M.3=53 L.W. 233=1941 M.W. N. 205=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 446=(1941) 1 M.L. J. 328.

——S. 80—Scope—Suit against public officers and others—Notice of suit not served on public officers—Effect—Bar—If applies to whole suit—Procedure—Kejection of plaint.

The requirements of S. 80, C. P. Code, cannot be evaded or explained away and a suit instituted in contravention of the section is unsustainable in limine. Where one or some of the defendants are public officers to whom notice of suit is necessary, the bar of S. 80, applies to the suit as a whole and not merely to the claim for relief against these particular defendants. If no notice is served on those defendants, the consequence of instituting the suit in face of the statutory prohibition is that under O. 7, R. 11, C. P. Code, the plaint should be rejected. S. 82—Applicability—Award by Calcutta Improvement Tribunal—Land Acquisition Act, S. 26 (2).

S. 82, C.P. Code, has no application to an award made by the Calcutta Improvement Trust Tribunal on a reference made to it by the Land Acquisition Collector. Even assuming that the award is a decree, it is certainly not a decree made in a suit against the Crown or a Public Officer.

Per Mukerjea, J.—An award made by the Tribunal is not a decree at all. S. 26 (2) of the Land Acquisition Act which was introduced by the Amending Act of 1921 cannot be taken as a part of the Calcutta Improvement Act of 1911. (Mukherjea and Sen, JJ.) The over-running of an allied country by an enemy does not by itself render a person resident in such country or a compay incorporated in such country and carrying on business there an alien enemy. There must be a foreign country the Government of which is at war with the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. pied by Japan at war with His Majesty, or the mere carrying on of business in such country is not enough to render the person or the company an alien enemy disentitled to sue in British Indian Courts, by reason of the bar under S 83, C. P. Code, or the Defence of India Act, 1938 and the rules thereunder. Explanation to S. 83, C. P. Code, can have no application to such Government as may prevail temporarily at Singapore owing to its military occupation by Japan, an enemy country, a Government to which no recognition has been or could be given or accorded by Great Britain. Nor would the mere fact that Singapore has been over-run by an enemy and is in the military occupation of that enemy for the time being render the territory "enemy territory" within the meaning of R. 2 of the Defence of India Rules. Hence British Indian subjects who are the proprietors and partners of a firm and who reside in British India, the firm being in Singapore and carrying on business there till 1941, are therefore not disentitled to sue for the return of money paid to a British Indian subject in respect of a contract made in British India which has become void and frustrated by reason of the outbreak of hostilities between His Majesty and Japan, and for which the consideration to move from the other party has entirely failed for reasons beyond the control of both the parties to the contract. Where after a suit for maintenance by a German lady against her British Indian subject husband had been decreed and an appeal filed by the husband is pending a question is raised that the plaintiff was an 'alien enemy' and could not sue in British Courts.

Held, that the mere fact that the lady was interned did not make her an 'alien enemy' and even if she was an 'alien enemy' she was entitled to defend any proceedings instituted against her. C. P. CODE (1908), S. 86 (2).

S. 86, C. P. Code, nowhere provides that the consent under the section is to be given to a particular plaintiff; what it provides is that consent is to be given to a "specified suit". It is not necessary under the section that the names of the persons who are to file the suit should be set out in the certificate of sanction. (Stone C. J. and Kania, J.) STATE OF GONDAL v. ——S. 86 (2)—Certificate of Crown Representative— When binding on Court—Power of party to dispute validity.

S. 86 (2), requires the fulfilment of one or other of the three conditions to the satisfaction of the Crown Representative for granting consent. That is not a matter to be established in Court. If the Crown Representative is satisfied about the existence of one or other of the conditions and grants a certificate on that footing, it cannot be disputed in Court that the condition did not exist. Unless it appears on the face of the certificate that the Crown Representative did not appear to be satisfied about the existence of one of the conditions the certificate would be binding on the Court. Nor should a fresh receiver be appointed in such a case. (Thomas C. J. and Misra, J.) PRATAP BIKRAM SHAH v. DILLIPAT SHAH. 1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 68=1944 O.A. (C.C.) 68.

____S. 92—Applicability—Conditions.

The form of the suit is laid down by law. The Legislature requires that if a suit of the kind mentioned in S. 92, C. P.; Code is to be instituted it must be instituted in a particular way, and it is not open either to the plaintiffs or to the defendants, to contract themselves out of this section. The fact that the defendants themselves did not object to the fact that one of those to whom consent was given would not join as a plaintiff to the suit cannot make the suit maintainable. A condition precedent to the valid institution of the suit is the fulfilment of the conditions of the consent which has been given. (Davis, C. J. and Twaii .) Must

-S. 92-Interest-What would constitute.

The nature of the 'qualifying' interest may vary widely with the character of the trust itself. If the trust itself is clear, precise and narrow, it may well be that an 'interest' would, in order to quality a plaintiff, to be precise and clear cut too. In other trusts of a more vague and general kind, the qualifying interest might itself be less definite. The interest required is something more than a mere abstract sentimental interest. Whether and to what extent, the interest must be 'actual' is, perhaps, a matter of doubt and may vary in individual cases. Even an abstract interest is in a sense an 'actual' interest. It is genuine interest, even though in the abstract, if it proceeds from a real concern for one's own faith. Where certain plaintiffs in a suit under S. 92 C. P. Code, in respect of a trust for the benefit of Hindus, in various directions, did not even trouble themselves to come into Court and say whether they had any concern at all in the suit they sponsored or what their interest was nor even whether they had one, the qualification required by S. 92 was not satisfied. S. 92—Cost—Suit by truster against co-trustee—Suit not complying with terms of S. 92 and failing -Liability for costs-Right to costs out of trust estate.

A trustee must be deemed to know the provisions of S. 92, C. P. Code. If a trustee brings a suit which he is not entitled to bring according to S. 92, without complying with its terms, he must bear the consequences for the failure of such a suit. The mere fact that he has brought a suit against a co trustee cannot be allowed to outweigh the ordinary rule that a man who brings a suit in a form not permitted to him, which suit must therefore necessarily fail, must bear the consequence. The plaintiff must be held liable for costs and cannot be permitted to have the costs out of the trust estate.

-S. 92-Court framing scheme-Power to vary -Scope.

In a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, the Court which frames the scheme has power to vary it and where a Court reserves to itself the right to confirm elections held under the scheme framed by it, and an application for confirmation of such election is made the order which the Court thereupon makes is a decree in the suit itself and is therefore appealable, (Roberts, C.J. and Dunkley, J.) UKYAW ZAN v. U. SEIN WIN. AI.R. 1942 Rang. 75.

-S. 92-Interest-What would constitute.

The nature of the 'qualifying' interest may vary widely with the character of the trust itself. If the trust itself is clear, precise and narrow, it may well be that an 'interest' would, in order to quality a plaintiff. to be precise and clear cut too. In other trusts of a more vague and general kind, the qualifying interest might itself be less definite. The interest required is something more than a mere abstract sentimental interest. Whether and to what extent, the interest must be 'actual' is, perhaps, a matter of doubt and may vary in individual cases. Even an abstract interest is in a sense an 'actual' interest. It is genuine interest, even though in the abstract. If it proceeds from a real concern for one's own faith. Where certain plaintiffs in a suit under S. 92 C. P. Code, in respect of a trust for the benefit of Hindus, in various directions, did not even trouble themselves to come into Court and say whether they had any concern at all in the suit they sponsored or what their interest was nor even whether they had one, the qualification required by S. 92 was not satisfied. (Hamilton and Yorke, J.) GAYA NANAND v. JAGDISH CHANDRA BAGCHI. 204 I.C. 153=15 R. A. 317=1942 A.L.W. 418=1942 A.L.J. 334=1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 274=A I.R. 1942 All. 315.

Where a compromise decree is made in a suit under S. 92, C.P.Code, and a subsequent suit before the District Judge for a declaration that the terms of the decree and of the compromise petition in the former suit on which the decree was based did not represent the true agreement between the parties and are vitiated by fraud, is transferred for trial to a Munsif, the latter, if he finds the allegation to be true can only declare that the facts are what he finds them to be and that in consequence the decree of the District Judge in the prior suit must be and should stand as vacated. It would then be for the parties to go to the District Judge and to ask him to revive the prior suit and dispose of it according to law giving them the necessary and proper reliefs. The Munsif has no jurisdiction to make a new decree under S. 92, C.P.Co.le, as that is a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the District Judge. (Rowland and Manchar Lall, JJ) MAHOMED IDRIS HAIDAR v. HABIBUR RAHMAN. 196 I.C. 554=14 R.P. 204=8 B.R. 33=22 Pat.L.T. 799=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 79.

S. 92—Limitation—Cause of action—Fresh cause of action in respect of every breach of trust—If accrues.

In the case of a public trust, every fresh breach of trust affords a fresh cause of action, and a fresh cause of action arises every time the direction of the Court is deemed necessary. (Lobo, J.) DAYAL SING CHARAN SING v. TULSIDAS. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 224

S. 92—Parties—Transferee of trust property—If can be impleaded—Declaration granted against him—Decree, if liable to be reversed.

In a suit under S. 92, C.P.Code, transferee of the alleged trust property who denies the existence of the trust can be impleaded, and a declaration that the property is trust property can be granted against him. S. 92, C.P.Code, gives the Advocate-General a cause of action which he would not otherwise have and prevants others from instituting suits without his sanction in order to obtain certain definite reliefs in a representative capacity. It contains no provisions for the joinder of parties or causes of action and can create no exception to the general rules on that subject which are to be found in O, 1 and 2 of Sch. I. Even if the impleading of the transferee in a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, is irregular, a decree passed by a competent Code, after a fair contest is not to be set aside merely because there has been an irregularity of procedure. (Allsop and Hamilton, JJ.) RATAN SEN v. SURAJ BHAN. I.L.R. (1944) All. 20=16 R.A. 211=211 I.C. 157=1944 A.L.W. 579=1944 A.L.J. 535= 1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 269=1943 O.A. (H.C.) 269 =A.I.R. 1944 All. 1.

—S. 92—Public charitable or religious trust—What constitutes—Temple—Public user for long time without objection—If proves public character—Property acquired by sadhu for temple descending from chela and chela—Presumption as to dedication to religious uses.

In order to constitute an express or constructive trust for a public purpose of a charitable or the author or authors of the trust must be ascertained and the intention to create a trust must be indicated by words or acts with reasonable certainty, and further, the purpose of the trust, the trust property and the beneficiaries must be indicated so as to enable the Court administer the trust if required. Public near of a trust for a long period without objection is not conclusive of the temple being a public temple, though it is strong evidence. There is no doubt a presumption that where property has been acquired by a sadhu and has descended from chela to chela it has been dedicated to religious uses. But such presumption is limited to cases where the religious persons concerned are grihasthas and not celibates, so that there may be a conflict between the cheala and the natural heirs of the guru. A Sanyasi's neir is always his chela. Waen in the case of sadhus belonging to a celibate order, there has never been any question of any property held by them, whether trust property or secular property, going by succession to any one but their chelas, the fact that all the properties have been held by chelas does not give rise to any presumption that the properties have been dedicated to religious uses. (Broomnetd and Sen, JJ.) AMARDAS MANGALDAS v. HARMANBHAI JETHABHAI. C. 275=15 R.B. 297=44 Bom.L.R. 643=A.I.R. 1942 Bom, 291.

——S. 92—Removal of shebait from office-Grounds.

A shebait who is given to speculation and ganja smoking is liable to be removed from office. A distinction has to be drawn between the conduct of a private individual and of a shebait who has to perform the worship and to manage the property on behalf of the deity. A higher standared of morality and rectitude is expected of a person who has to perform spiritual functions and has to look after the interest of the idol, Where secular and religious functions are intermingled and interdependent a Court in a proper case will have the power to remove the head of the public religious charitable trust from the performance of both the functions. If it be found by the Court that the functionary, in the exercise of his duties, has put himself in a position in which the Court thinks that the obligations of his office in connection with an endowment can no longer be faithfully discharged without danger to the endowment that is a sufficient ground for his removal, if need be, from both his offices. (Grille, C.J. and Sen, J.) RADHAVALIABH v. MADAN LAL. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 788=1944 N.L.J. 502=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 64

_____S. 92—Removal of trustee—Ground for— Denial of trust in suit.

Mere assertion in a suit under S. 92, C.P.Code, by a trustee that trust properties are private properties is not by itself a sufficient ground for his removal. If he committed any breach of trust before the suit, his conduct in the course of the suit is an important element to be taken into consideration in deciding whether the breach should be condoned and he should be allowed to retain the office. (Nasim Ali and B. N. Rau, JJ.) LOKE NATH MUKHERJEE v. ABANI NATH. 1941.C. 874 14 R.C. 19=72 C.L.J. 362=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 68.

S. 92—Removal of trustee—Grounds— Proof of breach of trust or mismanagement—If essential—Trustee putting forward baseless claim to exclusive management—If ground for removal.

Proof of breach of trust or mismanagement is not essential for the removai of a trustee from management. The Court has a wide discretion under S. 92, C.P. Code to take such action as it thinks necessary or desirable for the good of the charity, The fact that a trustee puts forth an unwarranted claim to the right of exclusive management does not necessarily call for the penalty of exclusion from management. (Broomfield and Mackin BAPUGOUDA YADGOUDA V. VINAYAK SADA.

——S. 92—Removal of trustee—Grounds— Trustee denying validity of trust and setting up claim adverse to trust—Sufficiency.

Where the interest of the trustee, on his own allegations, are adverse to the trust and he denies the validity of the trust, that is a good and valid ground for removing the trustee from his office. (Davis, C.J. and Tyabii, J.) HASHIM HAROON v. GHOWNSALI SHAH LL R. (1942) K1r. 179=205 I.C. 449=15 R.S. 148=A.I.R. 1942 Sind. 137.

S. 92—Removal of trustee—Grounds— Trustee setting up adverse title—If fit to be trustee.

It is a serious delinquency on the part of the person for the time being administering the trust to set up a case that it was his private property; and generally in such cases, Court should not continue such a person in the post of chief trustee. (Davis.) KUBRA BEGAM v. MUSTAFA BEGAM. 1940 A M.L.J. 112.

——S. 92—Right to sue—Property endowed to temple—Descendants of founder not believing in Hindu Gods—If persons interested.

In a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, the plaintiffs were zamindars in the village in which the property which was endowed to a temple and dharmashila lay, and they were the son and that grandson of the man who endowed that property.

Held, that the plaintiffs had sufficient interest in the endowed property entitling them to sue under the section, even if they did not believe in the Hindu Gods and that there was no reason why they should not be interested in the upkeep of the dhiramshala. They would have a direct interest in seeing that the property which would have ultimately descended to them should be used for the purpose for which it was endowed. As zamindars they might be interested in the upkeep of a temple in their village for the benefit of their tenants even if they were not in the habit of making use of it themselves. (Allsop and Hamilton, JJ.) RATAN SEN v. SURAJ BHAN. I.L.R. (1944) All. 20=1943 A.L. U. 579=1943 A.L. J. 535=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 269=1943 O.A. (H.C.) 269=16 R.A. 211=211 I.C. 157=A.I.R. 1944 All. 1.

——S. 92—Right to sue—Sanction given to certain individuals—Suit instituted by some of them only—Validity.

S. 92 C. P. Code cannot be construed loosely that where consent has been given to two or more persons, only some of those persons, even if they are more than two may institute the suit. A condition precedent to the valid institution of the suit is the fulfilment of the conditions of the consent which has been given. (Davies, C.J. and Tyabii, J.) MULCHAND v. HARKISHINDAS. I.L. R. ——S 92—Right to suc—Sanction to institute suit— Some only of persons authorised by Advocate-General— If can suc.

The basis of the rule that all those authorised by the Advocate General to institute a suit must join as plaintiffs is that some alone cannot take it upon themselves to represent the public when all have been authorised to do so. Hence a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code authorised by the Advocate General cannot be filed by three out of four persons. (Allsop and Verma, JJ. Sibte-RASUL V. Sibte NABI. ——S. 92—Right to sue—"Two persons"—Father and son constituting members of joint Hindu family—If one person.

The two persons referred to in S. 92, C. P. Code, are two individuals and the fact that the two persons are father and son and members of a joint Hindu family will not convert them into one person for the purposes of that section. (Allsop and Hamilton, JJ.) RATAN SEN v. SURAJ BHAN, I L.R. (1944) All. 20=1943 A.L.W. 579=1943 A.L.J. 535=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 269=1943 O.A. (H.C.) 269=16 R.A. 211=211 I.C. 157=A.I.R. 1944 All, 1.

-S. 92-Sanction-Presumption as to.

When a Legal Remembrancer sanctions the institution of a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code the presumption is that he has acted properly and in accordance with law. (Allsop and Verma, IJ.) SIBTE RASUL v. S. 92—Sanction under—Form of—Application for sanction by several persons—Order granting sanction not setting out name of all applicants—Validity.

The permission or sanction required by S. 92. C. P. Code, must be given to two or more named persons and it is not sufficient for the Advocate-General or the Collector to nominate one person and give him a blank cheque to join any other person or persons whom he chooses as co-plaintiffs. If, however, certain persons apply for sanction for instituting a suit and the application is granted, the omission to set out the names of all the applicants in the order granting sanction does not render it invalid. A suit instituted on such sanction is not incompetent. (Broomfield and Sen, JJ.) Amardam Mangaldam v. Harman-BHAI JETHABHAI. 204 I.C. 275=15 R.B. 297=44 Bom. L.R. 643=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 291.

The relief for the removal of a previous trustee given in a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, can be given effect to 'independent of the constitution framed and embodied in the decree.' In other words this relief is not part of the scheme at all. It is not only directory but executable and relegating the party to a separate suit for such a relief would offend against the principle forbidding multiplicity of suits where one is sufficient. (Bennett and Madeley, JJ.) Sailendra Nath Sanyal v. Ship Dass Gangoli. 20 Luck. 32=219 I.C. 39=18 R.O. 35=1944 O.W.N. 213=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 147=1944 O.A. (C.C.) 147=A.I.R 1944 Oudh 289.

S. 92—Scheme decree—Reservation of liberty to apply for alteration or modification of scheme—If ultra vires.

Where under a scheme decree framed under S. 92, C. P. Code, liberty is given to apply to the Court for alteration or modification of the scheme, such reservation is ultra vires as it offends against S. 92. (Mockett and Bell, J.) MUHAMMAD HANEEF SAHIB v. BOARD OF TRUSTEES JAMMA MASJID. 1944 M.W.N. 269=57 L.W. 290=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 421=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 377.

—Ss. 92 and 151—Scheme—If can be modified by application under S. 151. FAIYAZ ALI KHAN v. SAIFULLAH. [see Q. D. 1936—'40 Vol. I, Col. 1201.] 15 Luck. 730=1940 A.I.R. Oudh 421.

S. 92—Scheme—Provision for its modification by application in suit—Power of Court.

It is not beyond the power of the Court which frames a scheme in a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, to provide for the modification of the scheme by an application in the very suit itself in which the scheme is framed. (Mitter and Khundkar, JJ.) SRIJIB NYAYATIRTHA v. DANDY SWAMI JAGANNATH ASRAM. 199 I.C. 841=14 R.C. 648=73 C.L.J. 532=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 618.

Where, in a scheme decree under S. 92, C. P. Code, liberty is given to persons to apply to the Court for directions merely to carry out the scheme already settled, such reservation of liberty in the decree would be intra vires, if the assistance of the Court can be given without offending S. 92, C. P. Code, but where liberty is given to apply to the Court for alteration or modification of the scheme, such reservation is ultra vires as it offends S. 92. The true test as to the legal propriety of such a clause in a scheme is, whether the relief granted by the Court is such that if it was being sought before the scheme was sanctioned, it would have to be sought by suit under S. 92, C. P. Code. Where sweeping alterations and modifications are sought in a scheme embodied in a decree, a separate suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, is necessary and maintainable; an application is not the proper remedy. (Lobo, J.) DAYAL SING CHARAN SINGH v. TULSIDAS. I.L.B. (1945) Kar. 224.

S. 92—Scheme suit—Decree—Executability—Test—Clause vesting trust properties in trustee and empeworing him to realise them through Court if necessary in execution—If part of scheme—Executability.

The provisions of a decree in a scheme suit would be inexecutable if they form a part and parcel of the permanent scheme of administration and are not intended to be given effect to independent of the constitution framed by and embodied in the decree, even if they happen to be directory in their nature. They would be executable even if they happen to stray into the wording of the scheme if they are intended to be immediately executable for the purpose of introducing the scheme or otherwise. The true distinction is not whether a provision in a scheme is directory or declaratory, but whether the provision sought to be executed is or is not in what is really the scheme part of the decree. In a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, for removal of a trustee and for the settlement of a scheme, a decree was passed under which a scheme was framed by the Court and a new trustee was appointed as a sole trustee for management of the trust. He was to manage the trust as per terms of the scheme and it was provided that the trust property was to be realised and administered by the trustee, and that 'all the trust properties either cash or movables shall vest in the trustee for the time being and he shall take possession of the same through Court if necessary in execution of this decree and manage the same on behalf of the public."

Held, that the decree was not executable and that the realisation of the trust properties was an essential part of the scheme and cannot be held to be executable as a money-decree. (Abdur Rahman, J.) ATCHUTARAMA RAO v. BAPANAYYA, 206 I.C. 466=15 R.M. 985=1943) 1 M.L.J. 504=55 L.W. 627=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 748.

Ss. 92 and 115—Scheme under S. 92—Absence of any provision as to removal of trustee—Removal of existing trustee on application—Jurisdictian—Proper procedure—Interference in revision.

Where in a scheme framed in a suit under S. 92 C. P. Code. no express provision is made for the removal of a trustee for a breach of trust or for any other cause and no liberty is reserved by the Court in the scheme itself either for the removal of a trustee or the modification of the scheme suo motu or upon the application by any other person interested, the Court has no jurisdiction to remove an existing trustee on a mere application without having recourse to S. 92, C. P. Code, and such an order cannot be sustained in revision. (Ghulam Hasan and Agarwal, JI.) SAADAT HUSAIN v. MOJIZ HUSAIN. 17 Luck. 391=197 I.C. 743=14 R.O. 346=1941 O.W.N. 1269=1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 375=1941 O.A. 963=A.I. R. 1942 Oudh 135.

S. 92—Scheme under—Variation or overriding of—Competency.

When once a scheme is shown to be a legal and valid one under S. 92 of the C. P. Code, it would not be open to any Court in effect to set it aside or vary it or otherwise seek to override it. (Braund and Waliullah, J.) SURAJ GIR 2. BRAMH NARAIN. 1945 A.W.B. (H. C.) 270-1945 A.L.W. 319-1945 O.W.N. (H. C.) 273.

-S. 92-Scope-Declaratory suits.

Mere declarations are outside the scope of S. 92 C. P. Code. But where reliefs contemplated by the section are claimed and such reliefs cannot be granted without the determination of the question whether a public trust exists or whether a particular property appertains to a public trust the Court in a suit under S. 92 can determine the question whether a public trust exists or a particular property appertains to such public trust. A suit for a mere declaration that a trustee has not been validly appointed may be outside the scope of S. 92. But in a suit under that section the Court has to determine whether a trustee has been validly appointed or not if determination of such a question is necessary for giving reliefs claimed in the suit which properly come under that section. (Nasim Al. and B. N. Rau, JJ.) Loke Nath Mukherjee v. Abani Nath. 194 I.C. 874=14 R.C. 19=72 C.L.J. 362=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 68. Abani

—S. 92—Scope of suit—Question as to validity of trust.

Questions regarding the validity of a trust or a wakf are beyond the scope of a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code and should not be decided in such a suit (Davis, C. J. and Tyabji. J.) HASHIM HARON v. GHOUNSALI SHAH. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 179=205 I.C. 445=15 R.S. 148=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 137.

——S. 92—Scope—Suit against purchaser of wakf property—Position of such purchaser—If that of constructive trustee—English Law, if applicable.

If a purchaser of wakf property had taken upon himself the duties of a trustee and became a trustee de son tort, relief against him under S. 92, C. P. Code, may certainly be claimed. But when he has purchased the property not as wakf property, but as the personal property of the mutwalli with or without notice of the wakf-nama and purports to hold it adversely to the trust, he is in the position of a rank trespasser and not that of a trustee either actual or constructive. He cannot, therefore, be a proper party to a suit for execution and administration of a trust which S. 92, C. P. Code, contemplates, and no relief can be granted against him under this section. The doctrine of constructive trust in English law is absolutely inapplicable to such a case as the mutwalli is a mere manager who has not the legal estate in him as in the case of an English trustee and the transferee from the mutwalli therefore does not get the legal estate. Even if the principles of English law are deemed to be applicable a purchaser of wakf property cannot be held to be a constructive trustee from the mere fact that he had notice that the property he was purchasing was comprised in a wakf-nama. It must be further shown that he was aware of the legal effect and implications of that document and actively participated in the fraud and breach of trust committed by the mutwalli. ——S. 92—Scope—Suit on allegations contemplated by and asking for reliefs under section— Raising of other issues not appropriate to suit— Effect on maintainability of suit.

Where a plaint undoubtedly contains the allegations necessary to bring the suit within the ambit of S. 92, C. P. Code, and reliefs prayed for and granted all within it, the fact that the suit raises some issues which have no direct bearing on the issues arising under S. 92, and which are not really appropriate to a suit under S. 92 cannot affect the maintainability of the suit. (Broomfield and Sen, J.) Amardas Mangaldas v. Harmanbhai Jethabhai. 204 I.C. 275=15 R. B. 297=44 Bom.L.R. 643=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 291.

S. 92—Suit for account—Parties—Basis of relief.

In a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, for accounts against trustees all of them must be joined and they must be asked to account on one of the two basis (a) for the moneys they have received or (b) for the monies they ought to have received—
It is a case of taking accounts on what is known as the basis of wilful default. The account being finally taken, it would then be a matter for direction as to which of the trustees is liable in the first place, though they all would be liable in any event. The primary liability would be on the trustee who has received the money, and the final liabitity on all together. (Stone, C.J. and Bess, J.) NAGORAO v. GULABRAO. 1941 N.L.J. 587.

——Ss. 92 and 93—Suit instituted after obtaining required sanction—Subsequent addition of new defendant—Fresh sanction, if necessary.

Where after the institution of a suit after obtaining sanction as is necessary under S. 92, C. P.Code, a new defendant is added and certain additional reliefs are prayed for against him, the suit will not be maintainable against that defendant and without a fresh sanction being obtained. (Mukherjea and Pal, JJ.) GOBINDA CHANDRA GHOSH v. ABDUL MAJID. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 329=216 I.C. 143=17 R.C.116=78 C.L.J. 48=48 C.W.N. 225=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 163.

——S. 92—Suit under—Active prosecution by all grantees of sanction—If essential.

There is nothing in S. 92, C. P. Code which requires that all the plaintiffs to whom sanction have been given for filing the suit should after filing the suit continue actively to prosecute the suit. (Davis, C.J. and Tyabji, J.) HASHIM HAROON v. GHOUNSALI SHAH. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 179=205 I.C. 449=15 R.S. 148=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 137.

——S. 92—Suit under—Amendment—Powers of Court—Procedure—Sanction of Advocate-General or Collector—Necessity.

It cannot be held that no amendment of the plaint is ever possible in suits under S. 92, C. P. Code. Amendments may be made with the consent of the Advocate-General or of the Collector. Although the Code does not provide for recourse to the Advocate-General or the Collector after the suit has been instituted, it does not follow.

that the Advocate-General or the Collector may not take any further part in the suit. The true position is that it is for the Court to decide in suits under S. 92 whether an amendment is permissible and the consent of the Advocate-General or the Collector as the case may be is really evidence which has to be taken into consideration before deciding whether the amendment should be allowed. There is no reason why amendments which do not substantially change the character of the suit or enlarge the scope of it should not be made by the Court itself without sanction. Amendments which enlarge the scope of the suit, for instance by allowing further reliefs without substantially changing its character, may be made with the sanction of the Advocate-General or the Collector. Amendments substantially changing the character of the suit would not be permissible even with sanction, for in such a case it can hardly be said that the suit in its amended form was ever validly instituted. (Broomfield and Mackim, JJ.) BAPUGOUDA YADGOUDA V. VINAYAK SADASHIV. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 556=14 R.B. 169-196 I.C. 826-43 Bom L.R. 706=A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 317.

S. 92-Suit under-Appointment of Committee-Counsel of parties-Ij can be appointed for client as members in the Committee.

Where it is decided to appoint a committee, it is most inadvisable that parties' counsel should be appointed as members. It is not right to ask counsel to act on behalf of their clients as committee members in a trust for which they appeared on opposite sides in a court of law. (Davies.) Kubra Begam v. Mustafa Begam. 1940 A.M. L.J. 112.

A suit is properly instituted under S. 92, C. P. Code, when there is an allegation of general mismanagement. Where the dispute really turns out to be between one of the beneficiaries and the trust through its mutwalli, the dispute is not one which properly arose in such a suit. A beneficiary who claims a private right, as distinguished from setting up the rights of the public, can institute a suit to assert that right without the sanction of the Advocate-General. (Allsop and Malik, JJ.) SHAHJAHAN BEGAM v. IBN ALL I.L.R. (1944) All. 561=219 I.C. 349=1944 Q.A. (H.C.) 199=1944 A.L.W. 428=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 199=A.I.R. 1945 A. 69.

S. 92—Suit under—Scope of—Settlors asking for the handing over back of trust property—If falls under S 92.

Where the settlors of a trust ask one of the several trustees to hand over trust property to them, the settlors, it is not the sort of case that is contemplated in S. 92, C. P. Code. The section is concerned with vesting of property in trustees, with accounts and enquiries by trustees which requires payment of moneys found due by the trustees by somebody accountable to the trust or accountable in respect of the trust to trustees. (Stone, C. J. and Bose, J.) NAGORAO v. GULABRAO.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 92.

A charity does not change its nature merely by a change of name. On any view, a change of name is not such a serious breach of trust as to justify the removal of the trustees. (Sir George Ranéin.) It cannot be laid down as a general proposition without qualification that whenever a gift of property is made to an idol, the trust created for the benefit of the idol is necessarily a public trust involving the operation of S. 92, C.P. Code. It is well settled that family idols may be endowed with property without any question of a public trust arising, and the same may be said to be true of some idols which are not family idols. (Broomfield and Sen. JJ.) AMARDAS MANGALDAS v. HARMANBHAI JETHABBHAI. 204 I.C. 275=15 R.B. 297=44 Bom. L.R. 643=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 291.

S. 92—Trust—Relief in respect of—Forum—Foreign Court—Jurisdiction.

It would be plainly inconvenient if not intolerable that the Courts of a foreign country should interpose their authority upon particular questions arising in the course of administering a trust like a charitable hospital -acting intermittently according as they may be invoked by particular complainants in preference to the courts of the country in which the charity was meant to opeate, and enforcing their orders by removing the trustees and entrusting to others the management of all the charity and its affairs. As a Court of equity acts in personam it may and sometimes does exercise its jurisdiction over trustees and others in respect of foreign land and otherwise in connection with rights to property situated abroad. Where a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, was brought on the original side of the High Court at Bombay, where part of the trust property was invested, in respect of a public charity in a town in Jaipur statea free hospital for the poor—on the main complaint that the name of the institution was changed, held, that upon settled principles it was a correct exercise of discretion to leave the plaintiffs to their remedy from the Courts of the country in which the hospital was carried on and whose poor were the beneficiaries of the charity. ____S, 92 (1) (h)—"Further or other relief"— Meaning of.

The words 'further or other relief' in S. 92 (1) (4) C. P. Code, mean relief of the same nature as the reliefs indicated in Cls. (a) to (g). It need not be further relief in the sense of being additional to one or some of the reliefs mentioned in Cls. (a) to (g) also prayed for in the plaint. A prayer for a direction that in the administration of a trust the trustee should apply the income to certain purposes is within Cl. ——S. 99 and O.2, R. 3—Scope—Suit on mortgage by assignee of mortgage—Prayer for decree on mortgage and in the alternative against assignor—If bad for misloinder—Refusal of decree against mortgagor—Right to decree against sasignor.

Where the assignee of a mortgage bond brings a suit against the mortgagor and his assignor praying for a mortgage decree against the mortgagor on the mortgage which has been assigned to him and in the alternative for a decree against his assignor, the suit is not a suit where distinct cause of action are joined. Even if it be held that he is not entitled to a mortgage decree as against the mortgagor, there is no reason why he should not get a decree against the assignor who admits the assignment and consideration therefor. Courts of law and equity always delight in concluding litigations between the parties and preventing them from harassment which would result if they are driven to a separate suit. O. 2, R. 3 C.P. Code is no bar to such a suit or to the grant of relief even if there be misjoinder, S. 99 C. P. Code would be a complete answer to it when there is no failure of justice, and when the result of the trial has not affected the merits of the Case or the Jurisdiction of the court which tried it. C. P. CODE (1908), S. 100-Decree.

An advocate has the right to any whether on the evidence he can challerge a particular fact without the previous authority of the client, and where he concedes a fact in the first appellate Court it is not open to the party to have it reopened for arguments in second appeal. (Somoyya, J.) SURYAPRAKASA RAO v. RAJRAM DAS BAVAJI. (1945) 1 M L J. 404.

Custom.

-S. 100-Custom-Existence-Finding as to-Interference.

The existence of a custom may in a proper case be regarded as a question of the proper interpretation of the specific facts proved and thus as a question of law which was open in second appeal (Sir George Rankin) BABA NARAYAN v. SABOOSA, I.L.R. 1943 Nag 705=1943 N.L.J. 438 =208 I.C. 560=1943 A.L.J 360=47 C.W.N.923 =16 R.P.C. 81=10 B.R. 84=46 Bom. L.R. 312 =I L.R. 1943 Kar. (P.C.) 152=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 111=1943 2 M L.J. 186 P.C.

-S. 100—Custom — Existence — Interference. When a wajib ul arz recording a custom is treated as of no value on an erroneous view of the law the decision arrived at as to the existence of custom can be interfered with in second appeal. (Ghulam Hasan. J.) BAJRANG BAHADUR SING v. RAM NEWAZ. 202. I.C. 743=15 R.O. 144=1942 O.W.N. 574=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 328 (2)=1942 O.A. 448=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 29.

-S.100-Custom-Existence-Interference.

Whether a particular custom is proved to exist or not is undoubtedly a question of fact and a mere question of sufficiency of the evidence adduced to establish a custom is not a ground of second appeal. But questions of the existence of an ancient custom are generally mixed questions of law and fact; the Judge first finding what were the things done in alleged pursuance of the custom and then determining whether these facts so found satisfied the requirements of the law. The latter is a question of law and not fact. (Mukheriea and Biswas, //.) JOGESH CHANDRA GHOSH v. SREE DHA-KESWAPIMATA I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 258 = 198 I.C. 837 = 14 R.C. 509 = 73 C.L.J. 544 = 45 C.W.N. 809 =A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 26.

-S. 100-Custom-Finding as to based on evidence-Interference in second appeal.

Where the lower Courts have considered the evidence and found the alleged custom proved, it would not be interfered with in second appeal as there was evidence on which the Courts could come to that conclusion. (Hamilton. J.) SOHAN LAL v. TEJ SINGH. 1944 A.L.W. 291 (2).

-S. 100—Custom—Finding that customs set up had ceased to exist-Interference.

The finding of a lower appellate court that the custom set up by a party did not exist any longer is a finding of fact which is not liable to challenge in second appeal. (Thomas, C.J., and Hasan, J.) ABBUL ALIM v. HAYAT MUHAMMAD. 1945 O.W.N. 3=1945 O.A. (C.C.) 1=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 1.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 100—Discretion. Discretion.

A distinction has to be drawn between 'juris-diction' and 'discretion.' When the first appel-late Court exercises its 'discretion', the Court of second appeal should always be reluctant to interfere. In fact when a discretion is vested in a Court by the provisions of the C.P. Code the Court is bound to exercise such discretion one way or other and a refusal to exercise it or the non-exercise of it amounts to a defect in procedure. The Court while exercising such discretion must do so judicially and on sound legal principles. It should not exercise it in a nonjudicial or arbitrary manner. Where a Court has exercised a discretion in a judicial manner there is no error either of law or of procedure, and consequently such exercise of discretion should not be interfered with in second appeal. Where a first appellate Court considers that for the proper decision of an appeal before it a map of the locality concerned is necessary and that a decision without it would not be possible and in the exercise of its discretion issues a commission and admits the map as additional evidence, such exercise of discretion cannot be interfered with in second appeal. (Thomas, C.J., and Madeley, J.)

Duty of High Court.

S. 100—Duty of High Court—Competency of second appeal—Duty to specify grounds.

It is the duty of the High Court, when entertaining a second appeal, to clearly specify the grounds upon which they hold the second appeal to be competent. (Lord Clauson). RAHMAT ILAHI 1. # Error or defect in Procedure.

S. 100—Error or defect in procedure—Lower appellate Court not adverting to documentary evidence of party and giving no reason for rejecting opinion of trial Judge as to credibility of witness—Effect—Second appeal—Competency.

Where the lower Court deals with the entire evidence in the case in a few sentences, without any advertence to the documentary evidence on the side of a party and gives no reason for rejecting the conclusions of the trial Judge, as regards the credibility of the witnesses examined on the side of that party its judgment does not satisfy the requirements of law and must be deemed to be a judgment vitiated by an error in procedure. The lower appellate Court is bound, as a matter of law, not to go against the opinion of the trial Judge, who had an opportunity of 1943 Pat. 68.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 100-Findings of fact.

seeing and hearing the witnesses before him, in deciding upon the credibility of the witnesses. Unless good reasons are given, any interference with the conclusion of the trial Judge on matters of this kind must be deemed to be erroneous in law. A second appeal is competent in such a case under S. 100, C. P. Code. (Pandrang Row, J.) MANGAMMA v. PAIDAYYA. 53 L.W. 160= 1941 M.W.N. 98=A.I R. 1941 Mad. 393= 1941 M.W.N. 1941 M.J. 174.

_____S. 100-Evidence-Failure to consider-Inter. ference, when justified.

Where interference in second appeal is sought on the ground of the failure of the lower appellate Court to consider certain evidence, the question to be decided is really whether there is reason to think that the lower appellate Court omitted to take into consideration any evidence which is so important that had it been considered it would or should have led to a different result, (B-nuett and Madeley, 1/.) KALLU v. MOHAMED GHULAM HAIDER KHAN. 208 I C. 402=16 R.O. 77=1943 O.W N 300=1943 O.A. (C.C.) 185=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 429.

Where a trial Court fails to frame a separate issue on a particular point and it does not lead to any injustice or inconvenience, that would be no reason to interfere in second appeal with concurrent findings of two Courts. (Sathe, S.M.) SHER BAZ KHAN v. MIR HAS KHAN. 1943 R.D. 362=1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 312 (1).

Findings of fact.

A finding of fact based on no evidence, is not binding in second appeal. Pollock and Bose, JJ.) SHANKER SINGH v. GULABCHAND. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 444=1945 N.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1945, Nag. 138.

-----S. 100—Finding of fact—Adoption—Finding as to fact of—If can be questioned on the ground of improbability of such adoption.

Where there is a finding as to the fact of adoption, it cannot be attacked in second appeal on the ground of improbability of such an adoption having taken place and the likelihood of its being invented in order to keep the occupancy holding in the family. (Shirreff, J.M.) COLLECTOR. GHAZIPUR v. RAM DEO KOERI. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 825=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 981.

S. 100 - Finding of fact — Adoption—Question whether adoption took place or whether and when flaintiff knew of it—Finding on—Interference by High Court.

The question whether an alleged adoption took place in fact or whether and if so when the plaintiff came to know of the adoption, is one of fact, and the appellate Court should record a finding on the point. It is not for the High Court in second appeal to decide about the correctness of a finding on the point. (Faal Ali J.) KASI PALEI RADHIKADEI. 205 I.C. 133=8 Cut.L.T. 96=9 B.R. 196=15 R.P. 245=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 68.

——S. 100—Finding of fact—Concurrent findingthat certificate sale was not vitiated by froud—If conclusive.

Inferences from the entries in the settlement record are inferences of fact with which the High Court cannot interfere in second appeal. ——S. 100—Finding of fact—Interference—Finding of lower appellate Court on remand,

Where the High Court on second appeal remands a case to the lower appellate Court for a clearer finding on certain issues on which the finding of the lower appellate Court is somewhat obscure and the finding is returned to the High Court, the High Court is bound by such finding so far as it touches questions of fact (Stone, C. J. and Bose, J.) NATHUSA PASUSA v. MUNIR KHAN. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 42 = 206 I.C. 554=16 R.N. 1=1943 N.L.J. 133=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 129,

If a decision on facts is reached at by disregarding the provisions of law such as for instance by saying that certain papers on the record are something which they obviously are not, there is an obvious mistake of law just as there is a mistake of law if a decision on facts has been arrived at on evidence which was inadmissible. Accordingly a second appeal on that question is competent. (Hamilton, J.) UGAR SENJAIN v. TIRBHUWAN NARAIN. 205 I.C. 76—15 R.A. 367—1942 A.W.R. It is not allowable for a learned Judge in second appeal, to say merely that he is not satisfied that matters of fact were proved. He should have to go further in order to impugn the finding of fact of the lower appellate Court, and say that there was no sufficient evidence in law (i. e.) no material at all, from which a deduction and inference could be made. If there is any evidence at all, it is plain that the High Court cannot interfere—High Court can adjudicate on the soundness of conclusions which have been derived from findings of fact, (Roberts, C. S. 100—Finding of fact—Interference—Principle.

In second appeal, the Court will not interfere with questions of fact unless evidence has improperly been admitted (Davit.) RAMA NAND v. HAR NATH 1940 A.M.L.J. 115.

----S. 100—Finding of fact—Interference—Purchase out of savings.

A finding that a party purchased a house "from his own private savings" and was as such, the sole owner of the property cannot be challenged in second appeal. (19bal Ahmad, C. J., Ganga Nath and Dar. JJ.) CHANDRA SHEKAR v. MANOHAR LAL. I.L.R. (1942) All. 832=201 I.C. 695=15 R.A. 79=1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 241=1942 A.L.W. 478=1942 A.L.J. 367=A.I.R. 1942 All. 233 (F.B.).

——S. 100—Finding of fact — Interference— Question as to how long plaintiff had been ousted— Lower Court not considering real question but proceeding on wrong view of law—Finding—If conclusive in second appeal.

Where in a suit for possession the lower appellate Court has not directed its mind to th) determination of the question as to how long the plaintiff had been ousted from the property being obsessed with the idea that no question of limitation arose in the case, there being a continuing wrong (encroachment) and comes to a perfunctory finding, it cannot be considered a definite finding based upon a consideration of the evidence so as to be binding in second appeal. (Fazl Ali and Meredith, J.J.) KUSESHWAR JHA v. UMA KANT JHA. 197 I.C. 818=14 R.P. 371=8 B.R. 302=22 Pat. L.T. 1001=A,I,R. 1942 Pat. 188.

——S. 100—Finding of fact—Interference—Question of onus—If material.

Where evidence has been led by both sides and findings have been arrived at on a consideration of the evidence so led, the question of onus in second appeal would be immaterial. But where the lower appellate Court has placed the onus wrongly on the plaintiff and has discussed only the evidence of the plaintiff and his witnesses, its findings are not binding in second appeal (Mitter, J) SURENDRABALA DEBI v. BHUPENDRA KUMAR. 45 C.W.N. 177.

S. 100-Finding of fact-Interference-Question whether conveyance by Mahomedan to wife and relinguishment by latter of dower debt is gift or sale-Finding on-If conclusive in second appeal.

The question whether a transaction by which a Mahomedan conveys certain property to his wife and she in return relinquishes her dower debt is a transaction the nature of a sale or a transaction in the nature of a gift, is a question of fact, and the finding of the lower appellate Court on the question is conclusive in second appeal. A finding of fact by the lower Courts in a suit for rent, that the plaintiff has been unable to prove the rate of rent payable by the defendants, is conclusive and the High Court connot interfere with such a finding in second appeal, although the Courts of fact have rejected the documents filed by the plaintiff for reasons which are not quite satisfactory. -S. 100—Finding of fact—Interference—Ten. ancy—Sitting tenants—Interference—Admission of new tenant over sitting tenant-Validity.

Where it is found that the plaintiffs were sitting tenants from before the time when the lease is executed in favour of the defendant, the finding is one of fact which will not be interfered with in second appeal. A lease purporting to superimpose a tenant in chief over such sitting tenants held to be invalid by the lower Court was upheld in appeal. (Sathe. A.M.) MARU SINGH v HARBANS, 1941 OA. (Supp.) 961 (2)= 1941 A.W R. (Rev.) 1213 (2).

-Ss. 100 and 101—Finding of fact—When bind ing on High Court.

ally if accompanied by language which casts doubt on a particular point. If it is in law of importance to the rights of the parties to decide that point the High Court is entitled to decide it upon the evidence before it. (Sir George Kankin.) RAM LALDUTT v. -S. 100-Finding of fact-When questionable.

A finding of fact can only be questioned in second appeal if it is without any basis of evidence. It is not enough to show in a second appeal that if the Court were hearing the case either as a Court of first instance or first appeal it might have come to a different conclusion on the evidence on record. To justify interference with a finding of fact, it must be shown that the findings of the lower appellate Court are such that they have no basis whatsoever in the evidence on record. (Sothe J. M.) SUKHDEO v DHANAI SINGH. 1941 R D. 319 =1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 356=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 270.

Interference.

- S. 100-Interference-Amount of damages awar. ded - High Court's power to interfere in second appeal.

Though the High Court would not lightly interfere with a mere question as to the amount of damages, where the amount is substantially reduced by the first appellate Court on a wrong view, that error must be set right in second appeal. (Chandrasekhara Aiyar, J.) LALA PUNNALAL v. KASTURICHAND RAMAJI. 1945 M.W.N. 720 = 58 L.W. 613 = (1945) 2 M.L.J. 461,

If an appellate Court entertains an appeal which does not lie to that Court, a second appeal lies against the decision of that Court. (Agarwala, J.) LAKHPAT LAL v. Makhan Ram. 201 I.C. 786=15 R.P. 77=8 B.R. 838=23 Pat.L.T. 342=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 369.

-S. 100—Interference—Incompetent appeal entertained and dismissed on merits—Second appeal—If lies-Jurisdiction of the High Court to interfere.

It is well established that when a lower appellate court entertains an appeal which is not competent and modifies the decision of the trial Court, a second appeal will lie. But it is doubtful whether such a second appeal well lie when the lower appellate Court has dismissed the appeal preferred to it. If the lower appellate Court has dismissed the appeal as incompetent a second appeal against that decision cannot be entertained. If the lower Court wrongly entertains an appeal and dismisses it on the merits, the only order which can be properly passed in second appeal is to set aside the incompetent appellate order. There is no justification for going into necessarily incorporate all its findings in detail—especi. The trial Court's order in such a case which is unaffected by the incompetent appellate decision. Should the High Court, when nearing a second appeal against an incompetent appellate order come to the conclusion that the trial Court's order is wrong on the merits, in a proper case the High Court will interfere in revision with the order of the trial Court, (Wadsworth. J.) KALLALAGAK DEVASTHANAM, MADURA V. BASKARAM PILLAI, 206 I.C. 359=15 R.M. 959=1942 M.W.N. 632=A.I.R. 19±2 Mad. 741=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 450.

——S. 100—Interference—Incompetent appeal entertained and decided by lower court—Second appeal— Revision

Where the lower appellate Court entertains an appeal which does not he and decides it on the merits, its order may be challenged by a second appeal to the High Court. Assuming that a second appeal, is incompetent, the decision of the lower Court being one without jurisdiction, is hable to be set aside in revision under S. 115, C. P. Code, the second appeal bring treated as a revision application. (Dhavie and Chatteris, J.) Banka Das v. Srinivas Padhi. 197 I.C. 837=14 R.P. 374=8 B.R. 309=7 Cut.L.T. 41=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 616.

S. 100—Interference—Plea that valuation of suit for fursidiction is not correct and that trial Court had no jurisaction—If can be given effect to in Second Appeal.

Where the lower Courts have held that the valuation for purposes of jurisdiction placed on the suit was not unreasonable, it is not open to a party in second appeal to plead that the valuation of the suit was not correct, and that the suit, if properly valued, would be beyond the jurisdiction of the trial Court. Such a plea cannot be given effect to in second appeal. (Rowland and Manchar Latl, J.) MAHOMED IDRIS HAIDRI v. HABIBUR RAHMAN. 196 I.C. 554=14 R.P. 204=8 B.R. 38=22 Pat.L.T. 799=A.I.R. 1942 Pat, 79.

—S.100—Interference—Trial Court's finding based on credibility of witnesses—Reversal on mere surmises—Powers of second appellate Court.

Where a lower appellate Court disregards the opinion of the Judge who saw and heard the witness and was in the best position to judge of their credibility and has based his finding on it, and reverses such a finding on mere surmises and suspicions, the High Court can interfere in second appeal and reverse the decision of the lower appellate Court. # Question of fact.

-S. 100-Question of fact-Interference-Lower Court not dealing with the entire evidence.

It is not always possible or necessary to refer in the judgment to every document on the record or to the evidence of every witness examined at the trial. Hence if from a perusal of the judg. ment of the lower appellate Court, the Chief Court is satisfied that all the relevant material was considered, though specific reference in detail is not made to every piece of evidence on the record it will not be right to interfere with the finding of the lower appellate Court on a question of fact. 3. 100—Question of law—Failure to appreciate and determine question of fact.

There is no difference in principle between a failure to appreciate and determine the real question of fact to be tried and a failure to appreciate and determine question of fact which vitally affects the issue stated in the case. In either case the failure is a failure in the duty imposed by law upon the Court and the question whether there has been such a failure must be a question of law, (Lord Clauson.) RAHMAT ILAHI v. MAHOMED HAYAT KHAN. 1943 A.L.J. 569=56 L.W. 762=1943 A.L.W. 616 (2)=48 C.WN. 109=1943 O.W.N. 531=70 I.C. 225=210 I.C. 507=16 R.P.C. 164=10 B.R. 348=78 C.L.J. 7=1944 M.W.N. 81=I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 8. 100—Question of law-Inference as to intention from document of title.

Per Din Mohammad, J.—It is true that ordinarily the question of intention is a question of fact but when the question of the interpretation of a document of title is at the same time concerned, it is always a question of law two determine what legal inference can be deduced from the contents of the document taken as a whole. (Young, C.J. and Sale, J.) RAM RAKHI v. PEOPLES BANK OF NORTHERN INDIA, LTD. 199 I.C. 677—14 R.L. 415—43 P.L.R. 689—A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 42.

C. P. CODE (1908) S .100-Question of Law.

The question whether on facts proved an inference of there being a permanent tenancy or not can be drawn is a question of law and not a question of fact. (Din Mahomed and Sale, JJ.) MAHOMED YUSAF v. HAFIZ ABDUL KHALIQ. 211 I.C. 366=16 R.L. 210=45 P L.R. 339=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 9.

The proper effect of a proved fact is a question of law and the question whether a tenancy is permanent or precarious is a legal inference from facts and not in itself a question of fact. Hence a finding by the first two courts that the tenants had the status of permanent tenants is not binding in second appeal. (Harries, C.J. and Fast Ali, J.) RAM LAL |SAHU v. BIBI ZOHRA. 20 Pat. 115=195 I.C. 583=14 R.P. 136=22 P.L.T. 721=7 B.R. 946=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 228.

S. 100—Question of law—Inference of fraud or collusion from proved or admitted facts—If one of fact or law,

The question whether there was fraud or collusion, when it has to be inferred from proved or admitted facts, is one of law, and not a question of fact. (Kuppuswam: Ayyar, J.) MURUGAAPA CHETTIAR v. CHENGALVARAYA CHEITIAR. 57 L.W. 370=A.I. R. 1944 Mad. 465=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 8.

The High Court may decline to interfere in revision if it is satisfied that substantial justice has been done between the parties. But where it is called upon to decide questions of law in second appeal, no discretion vests in it and it has no right to decide a case on merely equitable grounds if they come into conflict with or ignore the provisions of law, statutory or otherwise. (Abdur Rahman, J.) HARI SINGH v. NARAIN DAS. 47 P.L.R. 130= A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 175.

S. 100—Question of law—Interpretation of order of Judge.

Whether the interpretation of a particular order is a question of fact, or a question of law, or a question of mixed fact and law depends on the circumstances of each particular case. Where intention is to be inferred from the terms of a document, in this case the order, the question is one of law, or mixed question of fact and law; where the intention is to be inferred from the other facts and circumstances tending to show what was the real intention of the Judge in passing that particular order, then the question may be either a question of pure fact or, again, may be a question of mixed fact and law. (Tek Chand and Dalip Singh, II.) MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, HAFIZABAD v. GOPAL DAS. 193 I.C. 334—13 R.L. 449—A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 62.

S. 100—Question of law—Question whether inam grant is personal to grantee—Question depending on inferences to be drawn from Wallace's register and Traverse's register—Finding by lower appellate Court—If conclusive.

The proper effect of a proved fact is a question of law. Where the Court has to decide what are the inferences to be drawn from the entries in certain registers, e.g. Wallace's register and Traverse's register about inams, the question is one of law. A finding that an inam grant was personal to the grantee, based on the inferences drawn from such entries, is not one of fact, but one of law which can be challenged and interfered with in second appeal. (Leach, C. J. and Shahabuddin, J.) Sherfuddin v. Kairoon Bi. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 194=57 L.W. 366=1944 M.W.N. 513=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 468=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 56.

by a holder of an inam village against minor inamdars for damages for their unauthorised use of his water, for cess paid by him for poruppu and for interest on the sums due— Suits if of a small cause nature, Madras Local Boards Act, S. 88, First Proviso.

The landholder of an inam village brought a suit against some minor inamdars for damages for their unauthorised use of his water, for cess paid by him under the Madras Estates Land Act to Government on their lands, for poruppu and for interest on the above sums due. In second appeals on a preliminary objection as to their maintainability, Held, that the suits were of a small cause nature and that hence no second appeals lav. The defendants not being tenants of the plaintiff what has to be paid by them for their unauthorized use of the plaintiff's water could not be 'rent.' Nor could it be 'rent' under the Madras Estates Land Act because the defendants were not 'ryots' of the landholder. As it was conceded that the defendant's minor inamdars were not intermediate landholders within the meaning of the first proviso to S. 88 of Madras Local Boards Act, it followed that the zamindar was not bound to pay to Government the cess due by the defendants and that the cess cannot therefore be regarded as 'rent." Poruppu is not 'rent' and hence a claim for poruppu is of a small cause nature. As the principal claims were of a small cause nature, it followed that interest on the sums due on those claims were also of a small cause nature. (Horwill, J.) Madura, etc., Devasthanams v. -S. 104 (2)—Interpretation of.

The words of sub-S. (2) of S. 104, C.P. Code. are perfectly general and there is no reason to restrict their meaning by interpreting them to mean an order deciding the appeal on the merits. -Ss. 105 and 108—Appeal from order—Previous interlocutory order—If can be agitated.

S. 105 C.P. Code is explicit that it is only when there is an appeal from a decree that the orders previous to that decree which could not originally be appealed from could be questioned. But where there is no decree but only an order of stay under S. 34 Arbitration Act, it is not open to a party appealing against such order to agitate the question as to whether the trial judge was right in superseding the reference to arbitration entered into in Court or not. (Almond, J. G. and Mir Ahmad, J.) MITHA SHAH v. DEVI DASS. A.I.R. 1944 Pesh. 33.

-S. 105 and O. 47, R. 7—Granting of review-Difference in scope between appeal against order granting review and appeal against final decision.

Where a review is granted and an appeal is filed against that order, the attack has to be confined only to the grounds set out in R. 7 of O. 47, C.P. Code. But if an appeal is preferred against the final decision itself after review, there is no such restriction. Only if the order granting review is attacked it could be done only on the grounds set out in R. 7 of O. 47, C.P. Code. (Bose, 7.) Anandrao Baliramu. Parwati-BAI. I.L.R. -S. 105-Interlocutory order-Appeal against withdrawn-If dehars party from challenging same in appeal against final decree."

An interlocutory order could only be question in an appeal from the final decree and it does not make any difference that the party had filed an appeal against the first order. He will not be debarred from challenging that order in the appeal against the final decree after he had withdrawn his appeal against that earlier order. (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) ——S 105—Scope—Suit for redemption of kanom under Malabar Tenancy Act—Application by defendant for renewal—Order on renewal application not appealed against—Appeal from decree in redemption suit—Validity of order on renewal application—If can be agitated.

There is nothing in S. 105, C. P. Code to indicate that in cases where an appeal is provided, a defect in an order affecting the decision of the case cannot be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal against the decree in the suit merely because no appeal had been filed against that order. Consequently in an appeal against the decree in a suit for redemption of kanom under the Malabar Tenancy Act, the error, defect or irregularity or validity of the order passed on an application for renewal by the defendant (tenant) can be set forth as a ground of objection, though the order on the renewal application has not been appealed against. Where on the defendant's absence a Court orders the suit to proceed ex parte and adjourns it but refuses to permit the defendant to file his written statement and decrees, the suit ex parte on the adjourned day the propriety of the Courts refusal of leave to file the written statement could be agitated in an appeal from the final decree under S. 105 (1), C. P. Code, in as much as the order is not appealable under O. 43, R. 1 and defendant was not bound to apply under O. 9, R. 13. An order to proceed ex parte does not forbid the absent party from attending Court and taking part in the further stages of the proceedings. So no permission is necessary to take such part and the order to proceed ex parte need not be formally set aside by an order of the Court. (Salle, S.M. and Ross, A. M.). HARCHARAN v. Ss. 109 and 110—Subject-matter of valuation of appeal—If to include interest subsequent to appellate decree sought to be appealed against.

The grant of interest subsequent to the date fixed for payment in a mortgage decree is discretionary and grantable under S. 34, C. P. Code, prior to 1929 and the law is the same even after 1929. Therefore even if the Judicial Committee is likely to reverse the decision of the High Court on appeal on the facts of the particular case it might refuse to awaid interest from the date fixed for payment in the lower Court. Therefore what may or may not be awardable is not to be included as part of the claim and if without adding the interest the value is less than Rs. 10,000 a party is not entitled to leave to appeal to the Privy Council

_S 109 (a)—"Decree or final order"-Interlocutory order in execution refusing to allow pleas of want of jurisdiction and limitation at a late stage—Not "decree."

In 1923, a money decree was passed by the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ambala, against X and some others. In April, 1927, the first application for execution was made in that Court and proceedings continued till July 1931, when it was consigned to the record room. On 19th August, 1931, the decreeholder assigned the decree to Y and after proceeding under O. 21, R. 16, C. P. Code, Y's name was substituted as the decree holder and execution ordered to proceed. In August, 1932, on an application by  $\Upsilon$  the decree was transferred to Delhi for execution issuing the certificate to the Subordinate Judge, Delhi, Province under O. 21, R. 5, the certificate should have been addressed to the District Judge, Delhi in whose Court it should have been presented and he in turn should have sent it to the Subordinate Judge for execution. The mistake was not noticed at the time and  $\Upsilon$  on the 12th January, 1933, presented the transfer certificate with a formal application for execution in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi. X's right title and interest in some partnership property were attached and sold after overruling objections raised by X. At the conclusion of enquiry on remand in the Letters Patent Appeal X for the first time raised two new objections, (1) that all proceedings were null and void as the decree had not been transferred for execution to the District Judge as it should have been under O. 21, R. 5, C.P. Code, but had been sent direct to the Subordinate Judge; and (2) that the application presented on 12th January, 1933, was time barred as the first application filed on 26th April, 1927, had been presented more than three years after the High Court decree. The objections were rejected as belated and the sale confirmed and on appeal to the High Court a single Judge reversed the order holding that the subordinate Judge had assumed jurisdiction which he did not have. On L. P. Appeal the order of the Subordinate Judge was restored on the ground that X's objections as to jurisdiction and limitation were belated. In an application for leave to appeal against that order to His Majesty in Council, Held, so much of the judgment as held that the pleas of want of jurisdiction and limitation could not be raised at that late stage will not be tantamount to a "decree. or final order." Accordingly the case does not fall unde S. 109, C. P. Code. (Tek Chand, Bhide and Beckett, JJ.) BARKAT RAM v. BHAGWAN SINGH. 208 I.C. 89=16 R L. 29=A I.R 1943 Lah. 140 (F.B.).

Compromise decree in partition suit-Setting aside on application by minor parties long after decree-Appeal to High Court-Order reversing order setting aside-Leave to appeal -Grant of.

The expression "final order" in S. 109 (a), C.P. Code, contemplate a final order passed in a suit or a proceeding known to law. In a partition suit of 1928, there was a compromise decree passed on 11-12-1930. On 15-11-1937, the defendants in that suit who were minors at the date of the compromise applied for an order setting aside the compromise decree on the ground that the provisions of O. 32, R. 7, C. P. Code, were not complied with and that their guardians ad litem were guilty of gross negligence. The trial Court allowed the application and set aside the compromise decree, holding that the application was competent under S. 151 and O.47, Rr. 1 and 2, C. P. Code. The High Court in appeal, set aside the order of the trial Court, allowing the appeal. The defendants applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council.

Held, that the order of the High Court could not be described as and was not a "final order" as contemplated by S. 109 (a), C.P. Code, and hence leave could not be granted. (Fazl Ali, C. J. and Agarwala, J.)

A certificate of fitness under S. 109 (c), C.P. Under S. 109 (c), C.P. Code, a case can be certified to be a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council only when it involves a question of great public or private importance. It is not enough that there is a substantial question either of fact of of law. (Mitter and Akram, JJ.) DWARAKADAS KEDAR BUX v. GAJANAN. 49 C.W.N. 758

-S. 109 (c)—Certificate of fitness under—When

In order that a High Court may be justified in granting a certificate under S. 109 (c), C.P. Code the legal questions for decision must be of great public or private importance. (M. R. Davies.) Umrao Mal Setii v. Sethani Mukand Kanwar. 1941 A.M.L.J. 134.

An order passed in summary proceedings for restitution, is not a "final order" within the meaning of S. 109, C. P. Code, so as to permit of an appeal to the Privy Council. An order cannot be said to be final unless it finally disposes of the rights of the parties. (Fazl Ali, C.J. and Manohar Lall, J.) INDO SWISS TRADING CO. v. HEMENDRALAL ROY. 24 Pat. 614.

-S 109 (c)—Leave under—When can be granted

Where matter not of public importance.

When the question involved is not of public importance leave to appeal can be granted under S. 100 (c) only in special cases in which the matter in dispute is incapable of being valued in money. -S 109 (c): -Public importance,

Where the order of the Board of Revenue decides a question as to whether the decision of a special Judge as to proprietary rights should be accepted or whether it should be overruled by a further inquiry by the Collector, it is not a matter of such public importance as would justify a reference to the Privy Council, (Harper, S.M.) of Ss. 76 (h) and 77 of the T.P. Act.
The interpretation of Ss. 76 (h) and 77 of the T.P. -S 109 (c)—Pulie or private importance— Question of interpretation of sections of a temporary enactment-Delaying tactics to be guarded against.

The question involving the interpretation of two sections of a temporary Act cannot be said to be a question of 'public importance'. Where the amount in dispute is relatively small in proportion to the whole claim, it is not of 'great private importance' either. One of the matters which must invariably be taken into consideration in this connection is whether the permission to appeal is likely to delay the settlement of the substantive dispute between the parties unduly. (Ghulam Hasan, J.) RAM DULARI v. GAYA PRASAD. 20 Luck. 259=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 36 (2)=1945 A.L.W. (C.C.) 38=1945 O.A. (C.C.) 36 (2)=1945 O.W.N. 38=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 241.

-S. 109 (c)—Public or private importance—Test. The mere existence of a substantial question of law does not give jurisdiction to appeal under S. 109 (6), C.P. Code and the question involved in the case must be one of great public or private importance. If a question which does not affect any large bodies of persons or communities is not one of great public importance. By private importance is meant private importance to both parties to the litigation and not only to one of them. A certificate should not be granted where it would not be right to call upon a party whose financial interest in the matter is too small to incur the risk of the cost of the appeal.

-S. 110—Affirming decree—Chief Court affirming everything and only correcting a mistake which was an

Whether a decree is one of affirmance or not must depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Where the Special Judge owing to an oversight awarded interest at a rate not permissible under S. 27, Encumbered Estates Act and the Chief Court apart from correcting it did nothing and dismissed the appeal the decree of the Chief Court affirmed the decree of the Special Judge. S. 110—Affirming decree—Decree partly maintaining lower Court's decision and partly reversing it.

If the High Court partly affirms and partly reverses the decision of a Court immediately below, the person aggrieved by the affirmed portion of the decree has no right of appeal to His Majesty in Council against that portion of the decree merely because in the other portion of the decree a variation has been made entirely to his satisfaction and he has no appealable grievance in respect thereof. For the purposes of S. 110, C.P. Code, a decree or order to be appealed from, where it partly maintains the decision of the Court immediately below and partly reverses it, is deemed to be one of affirmance when the subejet-matter of the appeal to His Majesty in Council is confined only to that part of the decree or order which affirms the decision of the Court below on that matter. IV of 1938—Decree scaled down as regards them but left intact as regards ex parte defendant not appealing—Application by latter for leave to appeal—Maintainability -Question of fact—Grant of leave

The petitioner was the 1st respondent in a suit to recover money on mortgage deeds and promissory note executed by him, the other defendants being the members of the family of which the 1st defendant (petitioner) was manager. The 1st defendant was ex parte and the other defendants pleaded that they were not liable for the debts incurred by the petitioner. Some of the defendants were exonerated and a decree was passed against the rest. All the parties except the petitioner filed appeals and in appeal the High Court held that all the defendants were liable for the debts. In the meantime the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act came into force and the defendants 2 to 7 applied for scaling down the debt. The case was sent down to the trialCourt for findings as to whether the debtors were agriculturists. The lower Court found that the debtors were agriculturists, but this finding was objected to in the High Court by the creditors. The High Court accepted the finding as regards defendants 2 to 7 and allowed scaling down, but did not accept the finding as regards the petitioner and held that as he had not appealed against the decree and had not himself filed any application under Madras Act IV of 1938, the decree against him should stand undisturbed.

Held, (1) that the decree of the High Court was one of affirmance of the decision of the trial Court within the meaning of S. 110, C.P. Code; (2) that the fact that a fresh right was given to the defendants by the Legislature under Madras Act, IV of 1938 and on that question as to whether the petitioner was entitled to the benefits of the Act, the two Courts differed did not make any difference; (3) that the right of the petitioner did not involve any question of law and involved only a pure question of fact and consequently the appeal did not involve a substantial question of law within the meaning of S. 110, C.P. Code, which would justify the grant of law to appeal to His Majesty in Council (Sameway) of leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council. (Somayya and Happell, 37.) KAILASA TEVAR v. VISWANATHA CHETTIAR. Where so far as the High Court has occasion to deal with the matter in controversy before it, the decree of the Court below has been affirmed, and the only variation that is introduced in the decree is due to the voluntary relinquishment of a relief sought for before and granted by the lower Court, and not the result of an adjudication by the High Court, the decree of the High Court is to all intents and purposes, a decree of affirmance within the meaning of S. 110, C.P. -S. 110-Affirming decree - What is-" Decree"

-"Decision"—Meaning of.
The term "decree" used in connection with the High Court and the expression "decision" in regard to the lower Court in S. 110, C.P. Code. do not mean exactly the same thing; a single decree may comprise several decisions, and each decision may relate to a distinct matter. It cannot be said that any variation in a decree is enough to take it out of the last paragraph of S. 110. A suit on behalf of a trust for reveovery of possession of certain properties was dismissed; in appeal the High Court also rejected the prayer for possession but directed the defendant to pay into Court a sum of Rs. 12,100 for the benefit of the trust, on the offer and undertaking of the defendant's counsel as a matter of concession and not as a decision of the Court. The High Court also gave certain directions regarding the amount.

Held, that the decree of the High Court as regards prayer for possession was affirming the decisions of the lower Court within the meaning of S. 110, G.P. Code, that as regards the sum directed to be paid into Court it did not form the subject-matter of the proposed appeal, having been fully satisfied, and leave to appeal could not be granted as there was no substantial question of law. (Abdur Rahman and Somayya, 37.) KARUNALAYA VELANGAPULT PANDIAN v. REV. FATHER PIGNOT. 208 I.C. 65=16 R.M. 163=55 L.W. 589=1942 M.W.N. 565= A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 67=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 350.

-S. 110—Construction—"Directly or indirectly Possible future suits.

-S. 110—Court 'immediately below'—Single Judge of High Court.

Where a Bench of two or more judges has affirmed on a Letters Patent Appeal the judgment of a Judge of the High Court, sitting singly on the original side, the decision of the single Judge is the decision of the Court immediately below the Court passing the decree or final order within the meaning of S. 110, C. The sum of money actually at stake in a suit or appeal may not represent the true value of the subjectmatter in dispute. The proceeding may, in many cases, such as a suit under a contract, raise the entire question of the contract relations between the parties, and that question may when settled one way or the other, affect a much greater value, and its determination may govern rights and liabilities. in a suit on a contract giving rise to recurring rights and liabilities, claiming damages to the extent of Rs. 6,000 for a period of about 2 years and for a mandatory injunction, the plaintiff values the relief of injunction at Rs. 100, it cannot be said that the valuation given in the plaint is conclusive. The question of the contract relations between the parties would affect a much larger amount than Rs. 6,000 claimed in the plaint, the claim for damages being a recurring one. Nor would the valuation be binding upon the plaintiff so as to preclude him from contending that the value of the subject-matter of the suit is more than the valuation which he himself chooses to put in the plaint. When the plaint is not required to be valued for purposes of Court-fee according to the real or market value but upon some other basis, the doctrine of "probate and reprobate" does not apply, and the plaintiff may show when applying for leave to appeal to the Privy Council

The words "substantial question" in S. 110, C. P. P. Code. (Pandrang Row and Abdur Rahman, 37.) MAHADEVA ROYAL v. VEERABASAVA CHIKKA ROYAL. 204 I.C. 456=15 R.M. 764=1942 M. W.N. 136=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 368=(1942) 1 M. L.J. 309.

-S. 110—Substantial question of law—If exists when appeal is dismissed for non prosecution.

When an appeal is dismissed by the chief Court of Oudh for non-prosecution under R. 18 of Chapter XVII of the Chief Court rules, the only question is whether the discretion has been properly exercised and it is not a substantial question of law within the meaning of S. 110, C. -S. 110—Substantial question of law—Judges differing—Whether there was sufficient deliberation—Question, is one of fact not law.

Where Judges happen to differ they need not confer with each other till the last moment with a view to bring unanimity amongst them. Even if they do not, the separate judgments which they deliver can be regarded as judgments. It is quite true that there must be discussions and exchange of views amongst judges composing a Division Bench before the judgments are prepared and delivered. But if there are consultations amongst them, it is for them and them only to judge if further discussions would be fruitful and for them only to say at what stage the discussions amongst them should cease. There cannot be an absolute rule of law as to what will amount to a sufficient conference for the purpose. The question whether or not the conference or discussions amount to a sufficient deliberation by which the Judges composing the Division Bench mutually assist each other in arriving at a decision is at most a question of degree, and as such, a question of fact to be determined with reference to the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Such a point is not a question of law much less a substantial question of law. (R. C. that the value exceeds Rs. 10,000, as required by S. law much less a substantial question of law. (R. C. 110, C. _____S. 110—Substantial question of law—Question as to weight to be given to evidence and value to be given to statement or admission.

The question as to the weight to be attached to the evidence in the case and the value to be given to a statement or admission in a document is a question of fact and is not a question of law which would justify the giant of leave to appeal to the Pirry Council under S. 110, C. P. Code. (Pandrang Row and Abdur Rahman, Jf.) Mahadeva Royal. v. Veerabasava Chikka Royal. 204 I.C. 456—15 R.M. 764—1942 M W.N. 136—A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 368—(1942) 1 M.L.J. 309.

No substantial question of law arises when the question has been well settled in previous decisions and when the judgment sought to be appealed against followed rulings consistently held, then leave to appeal cannot be granted. S. 110—Substantial question of law --Whether family business is ancestral or not—Whether entry of stranger partner makes ancestral business otherwise—Leave to appeal—Grant of.

Whether a Hindu family business is ancestial or not is necessarily a question of fact, and does not involve any question of law so as to entitle a party to leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council under S. 110, C. P. Code. Whether the taking of a stranger partner into the ancestral business of a Hindu joint family causes that business to cease to be ancestral is a question of law. But since that is a question on which there is no absence of authority and since that has been decided by the Courts and there is no conflict of view on the point, it cannot be said to be a substantial question of law within the meaning of S. 110, C. P. Code, justifying the grant of leave to appeal, merely because it is not entirely covered by a decision of the judicial Committee. (Mockett and Kunhi Raman, JJ.) NALLATHAMBI v. more than Rs. 10,000—Leave to appeal—Grant of.

The plaintiff (appellant) sucd for a declaration that a certain property could not be attached and sold in execution of a certificate, basing his claim on a purchase of the property in execution of a mortgage decree obtained by himself against the former owner of the property. The suit and the appeal were valued below Rs. 10,000 according to the value of the certificate, but it was found that the value of the property itself which was involved was over Rs. 10,000 itself which was involved was over Rs. 10,000.

Held, that if the plaintiff did not succeed in the litigation, the property which he had purchased in execution of his mortgage decree would be liable to be sold and the property being worth more than Rs. 10,000, it must be held that the decree sought to be appealed from did not involve indirectly a question respecting property of more than Rs. 10,000 in value and the case was fully covered by the second paragraph of S. 100, C. P. Code, the case was a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council and leave should therefore be granted. (Harries, C.J., and Fazl Ali, J.) Ishwari Prasad Singh v. Kameshwar Prasad Singh. 1941. - -S. 110 -Valuation -Decree refusing partition of share of nornt family property - If involves question respecting whole of that property.

In an appeal from a decree refusing partition of a share of joint tamily property on the ground of limitation, the value of the subject-matter in dispute is the value of the share claimed by the plaintiff. Such a decree does not involve "directly or indirectly" some claim or question to or respecting" the joint family property as a whole. If, therefore, the value of the share claimed by the plaintiff is less than Rs. 10,000 leave to appeal to Privy Gouncil, cannot be granted under the second paragraph of S. 110, G. P. R. 812=22 Pat. L.T. 284=A I.R. 1941 Pat. 288.

It is well settled that where a plaintiff's suit is decreed by the High Court and the defendant wishes to appeal against the whole decree, the value of the defendant's appeal is the principal sum decreed together with interest awarded on the principal sum up to the date of the decree of the High Court. This rule, however, cannot be applied entirely when the plaintiff proposes to appeal from an appellate decree of reversal dismissing his claim either in whole or in part. Where the plaintiss in a suit obtains a decree from the trial Court for an amount below Rs. 10,000 with future interest and costs, bringing the total amount over Rs. 10,000, but on appeal by the defendant, the decree is reversed and the suit is dismissed in its entirety, the plaintiff seeking to appeal to His Majesty in Council, cannot as a matter of right, claim to add to the amount decreed in his favour by the trial Court interest on the principal sum decreed at the rate allowed by that Court up to the date of the decree of the High Court, and the costs, so as to bring the value of the subjectmatter to over Rs. 10,000. For the purpose of valuing an appeal, the material date is the date of the decree against which the appeal is to be made. Interest and costs being in the discretion of the Court cannot be included invaluing the appeal. It mays be if interest is not in the discretion of the Court, but payable under some law or statute, different considerations may arise. But where that is not the case, and the plaintiff who has not appealed from the decree of the trial Court claiming a larger amount than that allowed by that Court and claims, in the proposed appeal from the appellate decree dismissing the suit, the restoration of the decree of the trial Court, which is all that he can claim, the value of the appeal cannot be more than the amount decreed by the trial Court. This amount cannot be enhanced by adding either the cost or interest directed to be paid under the decree of the trial Court. (Harries, C.J., Fazl Alı and Manohar Lall, JJ.) Brijmohan Singh v. S. 110—Valuation—" Involve directly or indirectly, etc."—Ejectment suit valued at Rs. 330—Decree directing defendant to hand over vacant possession after removal of superstructures—Value of superstructure and of business amounting to more than Rs. 10,000—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Right to grant of.

The decree passed by the High Court in second appeal, in a suit for ejectment, ordered the defendant (tenant) to hand over to the plaintiff (landlord) vacant possession of certain items of immovable property after removing superstructures standing thereon which were erected by the defendant. The superstructures consisted of a ginning factory and its appurtenances. The suit was valued by the plaintiff at Rs. 330 on the assessment of the plots. The defendant applied for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council, alleging, that the loss to him on account of the decree ordering removal of the superstructure was more than Rs. 10,000 or upwards, as the value of lease-hold rights to him and the loss of business consequent on the removal of the ginning factory would be more than Rs. 10,000 and that therefore the decree involved directly or indirectly a claim or question respecting property worth at least Rs. 10,000 under S. 110, C. P. Code.

Held, that the word "involve" meant an adjudication by which the party who is adversely affected is bound and in the present case there was no doubt that the defendant's right to have the ginning factory on the suit property as a permanent tenant was finally adjudicated upon; and therefore if it was

An application in revision under S. 115, C.P. Gode, will lie only if some question of fact or law which affects jurisdiction is involved. The section applies to jurisdiction alone, the irregular exercise of or non exercise of it, or the illegal assumption of it. It is not directed against conclusions of law or fact in which question of jurisdiction is not involved. If the question raised is one that primarily affects jurisdiction, an application in revision is competent. Where it is contended that the arbitrators who made awards had no jurisdiction to proceed with the arbitration because a suit relating to the same subjectmatter, in part at least was pending at the time in a Court, a question of jurisdiction is involved, and a revision petition will lie. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J). Gohram Shambay v. Jumo Oddiayo. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 570—199 I.C. 291—14 R.S. 175—A IR 1942 Sind 41 A.I.R. 1942 Sind 41.

The dismissal of an application under R. 15 of O. 32, C.P. Code, is not a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115, C.P. Code, and hence a revision of such an order is incompetent. The enquiry on such an application is not a case or an independent proceeding. It is one which is essential to the further progress of the suit and cannot be dissociated from the suit and regarded as a proceeding independent of it. (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) DRIGRAJ KUNWAR v. SRI AMAR KRISHNA NARAIN SINGH. 1945 O.A. (C.C.) 140=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 140=1945 O.W.N. 205=1945 A.L.W. (C.C.) 190= A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 255.

-S 115—Case decided—Interlocutory order—Revision. The word 'case' is wide enough to include a decision on any substantial question in controversy between the parties affecting their rights, even though such order is passed in the course of the trial of the suit. An interlocutory order deciding a question of this kind (as distinguished from purely formal and incidental order) is a 'case decided', but it will be open to revision only if the other conditions expressly laid down in S. 115, C.P. Code, are satisfied and the order has resulted or his likely to result in such gross injustice or irreparable injury as cannot be remedied otherwise than by the exericise of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court at that stage.

Per Dalip Singh, Abdul Rashid and Beckett, It is, impossible to evolve a formula which will draw a clear, haid and fast line between those orders which do not amount to the decision of a 'case' and orders which do amount to the decision of 'case'. (Tek Chand, Dalip Singh, Monroe, Bhide, Abdul Rashid, Blacker and Beckett, JJ.) Gurdevi v. Mahomed Bakijash. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 257=206 I.C. 157=15 R.L. 302=45 P.L.R. 85=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 65 (F.B.).

——S. 115—'Case decided'—Interlocutory order— Order staying suit under Soldiers Litigation Act.

An order deciding the question of staying the suit under the Soldiers Litigation Act is "case decided." It depends on the nature of the interlocutory order passed whether it is a "case decided" or whether it is a routine order, which does not put an end to any controversial matter. (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) JIWAN SINGH v. MAHBOOB JAN. 211 I.C. 313=16 R. Pesh. 65=A.I.R. 1944 Pesh. 4.

S. 115—"Case decided"—Judge allowing amendment adding issue against party's wishes after case is already referred to arbitration—Revision—Maintainability.

Where the Subordinate Judge has in effect decided that whether the plaintiff likes it or not, some particular issue, not agreed by the plaintiff to be referred to arbitration, is despite his objections, to be referred to arbitration that is a decided case within the meaning of S. 115, C.P. Code. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) SITALDAS POHUMAL v. NIHALCHAND ISSARDAS. 198 I.C. 847=14 R S. 168=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 7.

-S. 115—Case decided—Order impounding document-Revision.

An order impounding a document is not a mere interlocutory order but a case decided within the meaning of S. 115, G.P. Code, and a revision, therefore, lies from such an order. (Din Mahomed, J)
UTTAM CHAND v. PERMA NAND 203 I.C 7=16 R.
L. 160=44 P L R. 188=A.I R 1942 Lah 265.

-S. 115—'Case decided'—Order refusing to allow amendment of pleading—Reevision.

The word 'case' in S. 115, C.P. Code, has to be interpreted in a very large and comprehensive sense to include any cause which has been decided judicially. A revision lies against an order refusing to allow an amendment of a pleading. (Sen, J.) LILADHAR v. FIRM RADHAKRISHNA RAMSHAYANA. L.R (1945) Nag 634.

-S. 115 and O. 41, R. 23—Case decided—Order of remand.

Though the appeal is decided in an order of remad and the proceedings completed so far as it is concerned, the appeal does not in any way dispose of the suit. It leaves the suit as it was before the decision of the trial Court and it does not decide any point in the suit itself. Hence it cannot be said that an order of remand constitutes a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115, C.P. Code. (Bennett, 7.) SITAL v. ANANT LAL. 200 I.C. 256=14 R.O. 588=1942 O.W.N. 236=1942 O.A. 183=1942 A.L. W. 216=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 171=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 334.

-S. 115 and O.1, Rr. 8 and 10—Case decided-

Order on application to be made a party—When revisable.

A distinction ought to be drawn between a case where a person applies to a Court to be made a party and his application is refused and a case where the application is granted. When the application is refused, a case is decided so far as that party is concerned, but not so when he is made a party and the former order is revisable while the latter is not. (Bennett and Agarwal, JJ.) CHANDRA PRATAP SINGH v. BINDESHWARI PRASAD SINGH. 200 I.C. 259=14 R.O. 592=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 193=1942 O. A. 178=1942 O.W.N. 245=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 340, was only an interlocutory one, no case was decided and hence the order was not revisable under S. 115. (Bennet and Madeley, J.J.) Kushal Chand v. Sri Narain. 196 I.C 698=1941 R D. 930=1941 O. L.R. 744=1941 O.W.N. 1136=1941 O.A. 861=1941 A.W R. (Rev.) 947=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 79.

S. 115—Case decided—Order overruling objection that debt was wiped out under S. 13 (3) of Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act-Revision.

A revision lies from an order overruling an objection that a debt which is the subject-matter of a suit must be deemed to have been wiped out on account of the plaintiff's failure to comply with the requirements of Ss. 13 and 14 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act and the suit is for that reason liable to be dismissed. (Harnes, G.J. and Abdur Rahman, J.) BHERI RAM v. RAM JIWAYA MAL. 218 I.C. 375=18 R.L. 18=46 P.L R. 77=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 323.

-S. 115-Case decided-Order refusing to add party.

Refusal to add a party is subject to revision under S. 115, C.P. Code, being a 'case decided'. In certain circumstances the dismissal of an application to add a party would amount to an irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. (Madeley, J.) QADIR AHMAD V ABDUL KHALIQ. 209 I C 308=16 R.O. 114=1943 O.A. (C.C.) 86=1943 O.W.N 138=A.I. R. 1943 Oudh 315

-S. 115—Case decided—Order refusing to implead third party-Distinction between party to suit applying for inclusion of third party and the latter applying himself.

An order made by a Court refusing to implead a third party on his own application is open to revision because so far as that party is concerned the order must be considered final, that is to say, against him there is a case decided and he can only challenge the decision in an application in revision. The position is otherwise where the third party has not made the application, but it has been made by one of the parties to the suit, and the question of joinder of parties can be afterwards raised in appeal. (Bennett, J.) PUTTU SINGH v. HEM SINGH. 211 I.C. 317=16 RO. 221=1944 A.W R. (C.C.) 2=1944 O.A. (C.C.) 2=1943 O.W.N. 535=A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 116.

-S. 115 and O 14, R. 2-Case decided-Order refusing to aecide issue of law first.

Where a Court refuses to decide an issue of law first under O. 14, R. 2, C.P. Code, it has not decided a case, so as to bring S. 115, C.P. Code, into application. (Yorke, J.) HAR PRASAD v. SHIAM LAL. 1943 A.L.W. 327.

S. 115—"Case decided"—Order refusing to decide preliminary issue as to jurisduction.

Where a Judge refuses to decide a question of jurisdiction as a preliminary issue, it cannot be said that any case has been decided. The only decision is that the question of jurisdiction will be considered with other issues. Its consideration is only postponed. Nothing is decided which affects the rights of parties. Where after the whole of the plaintiff's evidence had been recorded a request to decide a question of jurisdiction as a preliminary issue was refused, held it was an exercise of a perfectly reasonable discretion and that neither S. 115, C. P. Code, applied nor was revisable under S. 115, C.P. Code. Held, that the question involved though one of jurisdiction, before it could be interfered with it must be shown that there was a 'case decided' and as the order of the order of the control of the control of the code, applied that there are sufficient ground for interference even if it applied. (Bennett and Madeley, JJ.) The District Board, Bahraich v. Ramendra Prasad Singh. 204 I.C. 410=15 R.O. 338=1942 O.A.

S. 115 and O. 26, R. 4—Case decided—Order refusing to issue a commission.

The mere refusal of an application to issue a commission cannot be considered to be a decision of any case. Further O. 26, R. 4 gives the Court discretion to issue a commission, and if a Court in the exercise of that discretion comes to the conclusion that a commission should not be issued, it cannot be said that it exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested or has acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity and hence its order cannot be revised in revision. (Agarwal and Madeley, 37.) IOBAL ALI BEG v. ABDUL ALI. 199 I.C. 831 = 14 R.O. 523=1942 A W.R. (C.C.) 203=1942 OW.N. 307=1942 O.A. 215=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 344.

-S. 115—Case decided—Order scoring off on issue

-Revision-Competency.

Where an issue is scored off, it would be open to challenge in an appeal from the final decree. No revision would lie against such an order. (Bajpai and Dar, 77.) Sheo Prasad v. Laciman Das. 1943 A.L W. 85.

-S 115—Case decided—Order staying suit on receipt of intimation from Debt Conciliation Board-

An order of a Civil Court staying a suit pending before it on receipt of robkar from a Debt Conciliation Board under S. 25 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, is a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code. If in passing the order the Court erroneously assumes that it is not competent to consider whether the Board has jurisdiction to issue the robkar, it fails to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law, and the order is liable to be set aside in revision. (Tek Chand, Dalip Singh, Monroe, Bhide, Abhid Rashid Blacker and Beckett, JJ.) Gurdevi v Mahomed Bakhshi. I L.R. (1943) Lah 257=206 I.C. 157=15 R L. 302=45 P.L.R. 85=A I.R. 1943 Lah. 65 (F.B.).

-S. 115—Case decided—Proceedings under S. 476, Cr. P. Code-Interference by High Court, if and when

S. 476, Cr.P. Code, confers the power to prosecute. That power is conferred on the Court in which, or in relation to a proceeding in which the offence appears to have been committed, and if that Court refuses to prosecute, then the power is transferred to the appellate Court under S. 476-B. Excepting these two Courts, no other Court, not even the High Court, unless it happens to be the appellate Court contemplated by S. 476-B has power to prosecute. Before a prosecution can be launched, the Court must be of opinion both that an offence appears to have been committed and that it is expedient to prosecute. If the lower Courts consider the matter under Ss. 476 and 476-B and deal with them judicially and come to the conclusion that it is not, in their opinion, expedient in the interests of justice to prosecute, the High Court has no power to compel them to do so. The discretion is theirs and theirs alone.

115—"Case decided"—Proceedings under S. 476, Cr. P. Code—Order by Civil Court—Revision to High Court—If governed by C. P. Code, S. 115 or by S. 439, Cr. P. Code.

Proceedings under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, are proceedings subject to the High Court's invisition.

ceedings subject to the High Court's jurisdiction under S. 439, Cr. P. Code, even when the Court inquiring is a Civil Court. The power to inquire is given under the Cr. P. Code, and the proceedings are in the nature of criminal proceedings. An older of the Court under S. 479, Cr. P. Code, even when made by a Civil Court is not a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code. S. 439, Cr. P. Code, and not S. 115, C. P. Code, applies to a revisional application against an order under S. 476, Cr. P. Code. (Davies, C. J. and Weston, J.) Valiram LILARAM v. GOBINDRAM. I.L.R. -S. 115 and O. 22, R 5—Cases decided— Question as to who was the proper legal representative left to be determined during trial of the suit-Revision-

Gompetency—Duty of Court under R. 5, O. 22.

Where a question arises as to whether X or  $\Upsilon$  is the legal representative of a deceased defendant and the Court instead of deciding it brings both of them on record leaving the question of the determination of the proper legal representative during the trial of the suit, it constitutes a "case decided" within the meaning of S. 115, C. P. Code, and a revision against such an order is quite competent. Under R. 5 of O. 22, C. P. Code, it is the duty of Court to determine as to who was the proper legal representative when the question arises and not to put it off till the end of the trial. (Misra ana Kaul, JJ.) Ambika Prasad Singh v. Jagadamba Prasad Singh. 1945 O.W. N. 238=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 170=1945 O.A. (C.C.) 170=1945 A.L.W. (C.C.) 223.

-S. 115 and O. 9, R. 9—Case decided—Restoration after dismissal for default-Propriety-Revision.

The question whether an application to sue as pauper dismissed for default is properly restored could not be raised in an appeal from a decree passed in the suit and therefore there is a 'case decided' within the meaning of S. 115 and an application in revision will be in respect of it. (Bennett and Ghulam Hasan, JJ.) BAIJNATH v. RAM NARAIN. 194 I.C. 354=1941 O.L R. 448=13 R.O. 587=1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 170=1941 O.N. 678=1941 O.A. 427=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 367.

-S. 115—Case decided—Reversal of decision on question of jurisdiction and remand-Order if revisable.

An appellate order setting aside the decision of the trial Court on a preliminary question of jurisdiction and remanding the suit for disposal on merits cannot be sought to be revised under S. 115, C. The High Court under S. 115, C. P. Code, has no jurisdiction to correct any mistakes committed by a persona designata, whether he exercises jurisdiction not vested in him or fails to exercise jurisdiction vested in him or acts with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction. As far as the High Court's revisional powers are concerned under S. 115. C. P. Code, they can only be exercised against a Court subordinate to the High Court. A District Judge acting in an election inquiry under S. 15, Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act is not a Court but a persona desigrata, and the High Court therefore has no juris-

Maintainability

It cannot be disputed that a Judge acting under S. 19 of the Bombay Local Boards Act acts as a persona designata. If the question decided by him is clearly within the competence of the Judge as a persona designata his decision is not that of a Court and therefore S. 115, C. P. Code, will not apply and a revision application to the High Court is incompetent. On the other hand, if the Judge, as a persona designata, exceeds the powers conferred upon him by the section, or acts outside it, he ceases to act as a persona designala, and becomes a Court subordinate to the High Court under S 115, C. P. Code. If the Judge entertains and decides an application made by a person not competent to make it under S 19, e.g., by one who is not qualified to vote in the election, he clearly acts outside his powers. The High Court is reluctant to interfere with orders passed by Subordinate Courts in exercise of their discretionary powers, such as an order for payment of a decree by instalments under S. 12 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act. Such discretionary power must, however, be exercised judicially and the Court should be careful to indicate in its order the reasons for it so that the High Court may be satisfied that the discretion has been exercised judicially and all the relevant matters specified in S. 12 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act have been taken into consideration. Where the order does not show that all the circumstances have been taken into consideration and does not give reasons the High Court will not hesitate to interfere in revision and will set aside the order. The mere fact that the decreeholder who objects to the instalments subsequently withdraws from the Court an amount of instalment deposited in Court will not debar him from challenging the instalment order in revision on the ground that he has taken a benefit under that order. There is no benefit to the decree-holder merely because an instalment order is passed as he is entitled to the money deposited under his decree. (Agarnala, J.) -S. 115-Error of law-Misunderstanding of proceedings by Court.

An erroneous decision on a point of law does not, no doubt, entitle a party to file a revision under S. 115, C. P. S 115-Error of law-Omission to consider certain pieces of documentary evidence-Interference in revision.

The omission to consider certain pieces of documentary evidence will not come within the mischief of S. 115 (c), C. P. -S. 115-Error of law-Order holding application to be barred by limitation-Revision-Competency.

An order rejecting an application under O.21, R. 95, C. P. Code, for possession of the property purchased by the applicant as auction purchaser, on the finding that it was barred by limitation, is not open to revision by the High Court under S. 115, C. P. Code. A finding on a question of limitation, whether right or wrong, is a finding on a question of law which does not bring the case within the ambit of S. 115, C. P. Code. There is no question of jurisdiction or illegality or material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. A revision application is therefore incompetent. (Broomfield and Macklin, IJ.) S 115—Error of law—Refusal to execute decree owing to absence of right to execute-Revision

Though a Court refuses to execute a decree owing to a mistake of law as to the absence of the right to execute by the applicant, it cannot be interfered with in revision. The Court cannot be said to have acted with any material irregularity or failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law (Allsop, J) Sukhdeo Singh v. Dal Chand. 1943 A L W. 281.

Failure to exercise jurisdiction.

S. 115-Failure to exercise jurisdiction-What amounts to.

If a Commissioner quashes a Collector's appellate order solely on the ground that no appeal lay to him, when an appeal did in fact he, there will be a failure of jurisdiction which will justify interference in revision. But if he reverses the Collector's order on the merits and not on the sole ground that no appeal lay to him, there is no refusal to permit the exercise of jurisdiction by the Collector, and no revision has from the order (Mitchell, F.C.) Where the lower Court fails to take into consideration an important question of fact which is indeed conclusive in the case, and the consequence of which is that it has given a decision which otherwise it would clearly not have given, S. 115 (c) applies, and the lower Court must be held to have acted illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference by the High Court in revision (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J) AYARAM ATAMPARKASH v. -S 115-Interference under-Principles-

Interlocutory orders-If revisable

A strict compliance with the conditions laid down in S. 115, C. P. Code, is the sine qua non to the exercise of jurisdiction under that section. Considerations of possible irreparable injury or failure of justice cannot be invoked to give jurisdiction to the Oudh Chief Court to interfere with any interlocutory order. If interference with orders of lower Courts in interlocutory matters are allowed on such grounds the trial of suits in the lower Courts will be unduly hampered and protracted Hence an order remodelling an issue being an interlocutory order and not amounting to a case decided cannot be interfered with in revision. (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Husan, J.) Deputy Commissioner, Rae Bareli v Bhola Nath 201 I.C 317=15 R O 70=1942 O.A 260=1942 A.W R. (C.C.) 239=1942 O.W. N. 384=A I.R. 1942 Oudh 432.

-S. 115—Interference—Refusal to amend decree according to U. P. Debt Redemption Act.

A refusal to amend a compromise decree in respect of a promissory note according to the U P Debt Redemption Act could not be interfered with in revision when there has been no failure to exercise jurisdiction and there has been no material illegality or irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction by the trial Court. It cannot be said that merely because the lower Court has not sufficiently distinguished between conditions in India and England or has not considered a relevant decision of the High Court of the Province and has followed a decision of the High Court of another Province, any question of jurisdiction arises. At the most it amounts only to an error in law which it is in the jurisdiction of the Court to make, and it does not justify interference in revision. (Davis, C. J. and Weston, J.) Although the Limitation Act makes no provision for application for revision under S. 115, C. P. Code, the usual practice of the Court is not to entertain applications presented beyond 90 days. (Dhavle and Chatterjee, JJ.) KRISHNA-DEVANAND RAMJEE v. KAPILDEO RAMJEE, 21 Pat. 197=198 I.C 535=8 B.R 429=14 R.P. 468=1941 P.W N. 755=23 Pat.L.T. 547=A.I. R. 1942 Pat. 251.

-S. 115 —Limitation—Practice.

There is no limitation presc ibed for the application for revision but the Chief Court has held that if an application is unduly delayed it can be thrown out on that very ground and that ordinarrly if an application is filed beyond the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal it ought to be considered to have been unduly delayed. (Agarwal, J.) KALLU MAL v MUNICIPAL BOARD, NAWABGANJ 200 I C. 608=15 R O. 25=1942 O.W N 335=1942 A.W R (C C.) 220=1942 O. A. 241=A I R. 1942 Oudh 392.

Under S. 115, C. P. Code, it is not necessary for a party to apply. Where on an application filed under a scheme under S. 92, C. P. P. Code, not only to the extent of supplying those omissions in the District Judge's order by giving the directions on those points but can consider and reopen in revision the points on which the District Judge has given his decision, when the consideration of the former would necessarily involve a re-consideration of the latter. -S. 115 — Material irregularity — What amounts to.

It is established by the decisions of the Rangoon High Court that in the following instances a Court acts "with material irregularity"
"if not illegally" within the meaning of S, 115 (c), C. P. Code:—(i) If it shuts its eyes to a proposition of law or to an important fact in evidence before it as distinct from misapplying the one or ottoching a from misapplying the one or attaching a wrong legal consequence to the other; (ii) If it saddles the wrong party with a burden of proof; (iii) If it decides an appeal on a point of fact not raised at all before the Court from which the appeal is brought; (iv) If it decides an appeal on a point of law which the party in whose favour it decides has waived and which is not one of which the Court is bound to take cognizance irrespective of the parties. (Blagden, J.) BHAWANI SANKAR JAISI v. GANGA PRASAD. 198 I.C. 516=14 R.R. 204=A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 244.

S. 115—Material irregularity—Failure of Subordinate Court to follow the decision of the High Court.

Failure on the part of a Subordinate Court to follow a decision of the High Court, unless it holds it to be not applicable even though mistakenly, is a material irregularity and his order is liable to be set aside. (Hamilton, J.) RAM BHAROSE v. TEKCHAND. 1943 A.L.W. 237.

S. 115—"Material irregularity"—Failure to note that certain decision followed does not apply to the case.

Failure of the Courts below to notice that a Ruling of another High Court relied on does not apply to the case is a material irregularity. (Mir Ahmad, J.) TILA MAHOMED v. MUNICIPAL COM-MITTEE, PESHAWAR. 196 I.C. 648=14 R. Pesh. 36=A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 76.

The ignoring of a reported ruling of the High Court or complete failure to grasp its essentials, must be taken as material irregularities. (Baguley, J.) U Po HLAING v. DAW NGWE. 192 I.C. 801=13 R.R. 197=A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 22.

-S. 115-Material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction—Failure of judge to apply his

When the Code expressly gives a party a right to perform a certain act through a recognised agent and the Court has not directed him to perform it in person, the Court cannot arbitrarily reject that act and mulct the party in costs because he has chosen to do that which the Code expressly allows him to do. That is a material irregularity on a question of procedure and justifies interference in revision. (Bose, J.) K. C. MAJUMDAR v. SURAJ SINGH. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 258=193 I.C. 707=13 R.N. 345=1941 N.L. # Other Remedy open.

-S. 115—Other remedy open.

It is by no means an inflexible rule that where another remedy by way of a regular suit is open, revisional jurisdiction should under no circumstances be exercised. (Din Mahomed, Teja Singh and Achhruram, JJ.) RAM CHARAN DAS v. HIRA NAND. 222 I.C. 177—A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 298 (F.B.).

-S. 115-Other remedy open-Appeal competent - Revision - Order dismissing suit as against some defendants as suit cannot proceed against them for want of compliance with S. 270 (1), Government of India .ict-If decree-Appealability-Revision-Competency-C. P. Code, O. 7, R. 11.

It is the established practice of the High Court not to exercise its powers of revision in cases where a party entitled to appeal has not appealed. An order dismissing the suit as against some of the defendants in a suit on the ground that so far as they are concerned, S 270 (1) of the Govern-ment of India Act applied but was not complied with and holding that as against them the suit cannot proceed, is a decree within the meaning S. 2 (2), C. P. Code, and is therefore appealable. The order is one rejecting the plaint as against those defendants, and as such an order conclusively determines the rights of the parties so far regards the Court which decided the matter, it is a decree and hence an appeal lies against that order. Consequently the plaintiff cannot be allowed to invoke the special remedy afforded by S. 115, C. P. Code. The fact that the Court purports to act under O. 1, R. 10, C. P. Code, by expunging the names of the defendants concerned, does not alter the nature of the order because in substance, it is an order under O. 7,

R 11, C. P. Code.

Quaere.—Whether in such a case when the suit cannot proceed against some of the defendants the Court should reject the entire plaint as a whole and not merely as against some of the defendants. S. 115—Other remedy open—. Ippeal competent to lower Court-Revision.

The fact that an appeal hes to a lower Court will not take away the powers of the High Court to revise an order passed by a Munsif. The appeal referred to in > 115, C. P. Code, must be an appeal to the High Court. (Bennett and Madeley, IJ.) HARCHARAN SINGH v MAHOMED HUSAIN KHAN. 18 Luck 668=206 I.C 79=15 R C 463=1943 A.W.R. (C C.) 17=1943 O.W. N. 71=1943 O.A. -S 115-Other remedy open-Appealable order not appealed from -Revision-Maintain-ability.

The dismissal of an application for a final decree in a suit for sale on a mortgage is appealable as a decree under S. 96, C. P. Code, and a civil revision petition against the order of dismissal is therefore incompetent. (Wadsworth and Patanjali Sastri, JJ.) SUBBAYYA v. VEN-KATA HANUMANTHA BHUSHANARAO. I L R. (1942) Mad. 60=200 I.C. 520=15 R M. 69=54 L.W. 107=1941 M.W.N 741=4 F.L J. (H.C.) 280=A.I R. 1941Mad. 817=(1941) 2 M.L.J.

Remedy-Revision-Competency

The proper remedy of a person who is adversely affected by an order under O 21, R. 63 is by way of a suit and not by way of a revision application under S. 115, C. P. Code. The fact that the order is erroneous does not give the party a right in revision; the maintainability of a revision application is not a matter to be judged by the merits of such application. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) Dewandas Udhomal v. Bhojibai. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 160.

-S. 115-Other remedy open-Interference. Where the effect of allowing a revision a matter in which an appeal might in a matter also lie, will be a convenience to parties and will save expense, the Court will interpret S. 115 liberally (Clarke, J) Mangi LAL v. ZAM SINGH. I.L R. (1942) Nag. 478=196 I.C. 190=14 R N. 85=1941 N.L.J. 340= A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 289.

-Ss 115 and 73 (2)—Other remedy open-Order allowing rateable distribution-Revision.

If a Court passes an order for rateable distri-bution on a wrong view of law, the High Court will interfere in revision at the instance of a party aggrieved by that order although he has a right of suit under S. 73 (2), C. S. 115, C. P. Code, does not apply to an order refusing to review a judgment. S. 115 cannot be invoked when a remedy is available by means of an appeal. A party who has allowed his remedy by way of appeal to lapse is not entitled to invoke the High Court's discretionary powers by the circuitous method of a civil revision petition against an order refusing to review a judgment; no question of jurisdiction arises in such a case, as the lower Court has complete jurisdiction to decide whether or not it should review its order. The decree under execution was a rent decree passed by a Munsif in a suit valued at Rs. 99-15-3. As the amount claimed in the suit exceeded Rs. 50, an appeal lay from the order of the Munsif dismissing the rent execution case to the District Judge. No such appeal was filed, but an application in revision was presented directly to the High Court against the order of the Munsif dismissing the execution case:

special Judge-Revision.

An order granting or refusing leave to appeal as a pauper against an order of a special Judge though passed in connection with an appeal under the U.P. Encumbered Estates Act is one passed on an application governed by the C. P. Code. There is no provision in the U. P. Encumbered Estates Act to govern such applica-cations and hence proceedings prior to the admission of an appeal under the Act cannot be said to be proceedings under the Act. They are proceedings under O. 44, C. P. Code, and the question of revision is governed by the C. P. Code, and not the U. P. Encumbered Estates Act. (Bennett, J.) RAM DULARI v. S. 115, C. P. Code, is definitive of the limits within which the revisional powers of the High Court can be exercised. The section applies to jurisdiction alone the irregular exercise of it or non-exercise of it or the illegal assumption of it. Where a Court exercises its jurisdiction in the prescribed way, but its decision is based upon erroneous conclusions of fact or law, it cannot be said to have acted illegally or with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction. It only decides wrongly but does not necessarily exercise its jurisdiction wrongly. Judged by this test an order dismissing an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is not open to

The practice of mofussil Courts not drawing up interlocutory orders is improper and must be abandoned. Such a practice is inconsistent with S. 142, C. P. Code, which requires orders to be in writing. It is not enough to produce for the purpose of an appeal, directions given by the Judge as to the order which he intends to make. The Judge should consider the exact form of the order which he intends to make and sign such order. If a party desires to appeal from an order which has not been drawn up, his proper course is to ask the Judge to draw up the order and it is the duty of the Judge to comply with such re quest. If the order is not drawn up, the appeal will be dismissed on the ground that there is no order (Beaumont, C.J. and Rajadhyaksha, J)

S. 144—Ipplicability.
S. 144, C. P. Code, only applies when a decree or order is varied in appeal. (Sathe, J.M.) AMJAD 'ALI v. MAHESHWAR NATH. 1941 R D. 429 = 1941 A W. R. (Rev.) 481=1941 O. A. (Supp ) 440.

S. 144—Applicability—Appeal from money decree-Application for stay of execution-Order granting stay on condition of security— Defendant depositing decree amount—No execution pending—Appeal allowed—Application by defendant for award of interest on amount deposited-Competency.

Where a defendant against whom a decree for money is passed appeals against the decree, and applies for stay of execution of the decree pending appeal although no application for execution is pending, and obtains stay on condition of his furnishing security in the form of immovable property, but the defendant instead of turnishing such security, deposits the decree amount in cash, he cannot, on reversal of the decree in appeal, claim interest on the amount deposited by him, by way of restitution under S. 144, C. P. Code. S. 144 does not apply to such a case. The plaintiff in such a case is clearly not liable to pay interest on the amount. (Leach, C. J. and Krishnaswami Aiyangar, J.) SITARAMAYYA v. decree.

It is settled law that S. 144, C. P. Code, does not apply only when execution has been taken out, but applies also when property has passed in consequence of the decree which has been reversed. The section will not apply if it can be found as a question of fact that the change of position does not result from the decree which is set aside. When property is being held by a receiver until one of the rival claimants succeeds in esta-blishing his title and the property is then made over to one of the parties who has obtained a decree to this effect, then it is difficult to see how this can be regarded as anything but the direct consequence of the decree, whether the decree is one for possession or not. An order for costs made by the executing Court against the unsuccessful party in claim proceedings under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code, cannot be regarded as automatically set aside by the decree in the regular suit under O. 21, R. 63, in favour of the party against whom the order for cuting Court has therefore no power either under S. 144, C. P. Code, or under its inherent jurisdiction under S. 151, C. P. Code, to make an order for refund of costs recovered by the successful party in the claim proceedings in pursuance of the order for costs made therein on the application of the successful plaintiff in the subsequent suit. a result of decree in another suit—Application for restitution-Competency-Inherent powers.

S. 144, C.P. Code, does not require that the variation or reversal of the decree should have taken place in the same suit, on an appeal, review, or revision; it applies also to cases where the decree has been set aside by a decree passed in another suit. Hence an auction-purchaser under a decree, whose sale has been confirmed can recover his purchase money from the decree-holder by way of restitution, if the decree and the sale are set aside as a result of a decree passed in another suit. In any case, the jurisdiction of a Court to grant restitution does not merely rest on S. 144, but is part of the inherent powers of the Court (Tyabji, J.) PIRUJI HAZARIJI v. AMRATI. I.L.R. Held, that an application under S. 144, C. P. Though a Court can, in a case to which S. 144 does not apply, invoke S. 151, when the equities demand it, the section should not be invoked to obtain an order which only sets right one injustice by the infliction of another. Where after the confirmation of an execution sale and rateable distribution of the sale proceeds, the decreeholder purchaser consents to the sale being declared void in a suit by the judgment-debiors to which the other decree-holders who had obtained rateable distribution are not parties, in consideration of a benefit derived by him from the judgment-debtor behind the back of the other decre e-holders, he cannot maintain an application under S. 144 or S. 151, C P. ——Ss 144 and 151—Applicability of S. 144— Modification of decree by trial Court itself—Inherent powers of Court to give relief in such

There is nothing in the wording of S. 144, C. P. Code, which definitely restricts its application to cases where a decree is varied by an appellate authority only. It can apply even to cases where the modification or reversal of the decree is by the trial Court itself. Moreover S. 144 does not exhaust all the powers which a Court possesses in order to put the parties in the position which they should occupy according to the latest orders, Under S. 151 the Court has inherent power to make such orders as will be necessary in the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court. Hence if the trial Court's final orders modify or set aside the decree originally given by it, it possesses powers at least under S. 151, if not under S. 144 to put the parties in the position they should occupy under its later orders. (Sathe, J.M.) KAPURTHALA ESTATE v. SANT BUX SINGH. 1942 R.D. 443=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 232 (2)= 1942 O.A. (Supp.) 258 (2)=1942 A.L.J. (Supp.) 39=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 354.

S. 144, C. P. Code, applies also to cases where an order or decree is set aside or modified by the trial Court. (Sathe, J.M.) Kunwar Dhuj Pratap Singh v. Shiv Din. 1942 O.W.N (B.R.) 524=1942 A.W.R. (B.R.) 364 (2)=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 390 (2).

-S. 144 — Applicability — Person payinsmaller sum than is due from him-If can claim

A person who only paid in a sum which was less than the sum which turned out to be due from him cannot claim restitution, namely, payment back to him of the sum which he had paid into Court and which the other party had taken out. persons—Contest by one only—Joint and several decree against all—Revision application by contesting defendant—Withdrawal of suit as against him pending revision—Effect—If benefits other defendants—Right of other to claim restitution.

Where in a suit against several defendants, one alone contests the suit and the Court makes a joint and several decree against all, but pending revision by the contesting defendant, the suit is permitted to be withdrawn as against that defendant only the order permitting withdrawal, would not have the effect of a reversal or variation of the decree against all the defendants. The original decree must be regarded as still in force against the other defendants and the latter cannot take advantage of the order of withdrawal and claim restitution of the amount recovered from him in execution before the withdrawal of the suit was ordered. (Divatia, J.) ANANT BABURAO v. Vyasa Charya Madhya Charya. 218 I.C. 479 =18 R.B. 48=46 Bom.L.R. 525=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 264.

S. 144, C. P. Code, is not confined to cases where an order is reversed only in further stages like appeal, etc., but applies to any reversal. A suit brought under O. 21, C. P. Code, cannot be dissociated from the claim petition which has given rise to it, and is in fact an action in the nature of an appeal from the order passed on the claim petition. Where an order passed on a claim petition is set aside by the decree in a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, it is in effect a reversal for purposes of S. 144, C. P. Code and therefore the party succeeding in the suit is entitled to restitution of the costs of the claim petition which he has had to pay to the unsuccessful party who succeeded in the claim. S. 144 does not provide that for an order of restitution to be made the decree or order must have been varied or reversed in any particular form of proceeding or by any particular Court. The starting point of limitation for an application for restitution in such a case under Art. 182 is the date of the decree in the suit under O. 21, R. 63 or if there be an appeal the date of the final order in the appeal and not the date of the order on the claim petition.

S. 144, C. P. Code, is applicable provided a decree is varied or reversed, however the variance or reversal is effected. Where a decree is varied as the result of an application for scaling down under Madras Act IV of 1938, an application under S. 144, C. P. Code, would be competent to obtain restitution of the amount recovered by the decree-holder in execution in excess of what could be recovered under that Act. S. 8 (4) of Act IV of 1938 cannot be understood as justifying the retention of sums recovered in excess of what was legally due at the time of the recovery; the sub-section does not affect rights to restitution in respect of collections wrongfully made. #### Inherent power of Court.

——Ss. 144 and 151—Inherent power of Court—Decree vacated in separate suit after its execution—Restitution—Power of executing Court.

Where a decree, after it is executed and satisfied, is vacated and held invalid in a separate suit but not in appeal or revision, an application to the executing Court for restitution is not comp-tent under S 144, C P Code, but that Court can entertain the application under its inherent powers under S. 151, C. P. Code, and set aside the order passed by it. A decree can be varied or reversed within the meaning of S. 144 only by a Court of appeal or revision when it is exercising its appellate or revisional powers. A decree may be vacated or held to be invalid by a Court of concurrent and competent jurisdiction in certain circumstances in a separate suit but that decision cannot finally dispose of the first suit and does not either vary or reverse the decree passed in that suit by substituting a different decree instead. It only sets aside the first decree in certain circumstances and as a result of that decision the first suit is reopened for a fresh decision. Moreover, the expression "the Court of first instance" is used in the section to convey the "trial Court" as distinguished from the Court of appeal and is not intended to convey a Court of concurrent jurisdiction which is competent in a second suit to set aside or vacate the decree passed in the first suit on account of fraud, etc., (Abdur Rahman, J.) ALFRED ZAHIR v. SIRAJ-UD-DIN. 216 I C. 97=17 R.L. 168=46 P.L R 111 A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 165.

Interest.

Unless very special circumstances are shown, the proper rate of interest to be awarded in claims for restitution under S. 144, C. P. Code, is the Court rate of six per cent. A right to recover mesne profits by way of restitution under S. 141, C. P. Code, under a decree, is assignable. The assignee is competent to apply for restitution and recovery of mesne profits in the same way as his assignor. Whether O. 21, R. 16, C.P. debtor whose property had been sold in execution of the original decree to put forth a claim for restitution on the basis that the sale is invalid or must be considered to have been set aside; the extent of variation would be one of the circumstances to be taken into consideration in determining how the restitution should be made. In a suit by the plaintiff-respondent for recovery from the appellant's predecessor-in-interest of an additional amount paid by the plaintiff in respect of a certain property, over and above what he was bound to pay he claimed a charge on several items of property. On 30-3-1929 he obtained a decree and a charge was created over a number of items of property. In execution of that decree an item of property in which the appellants were interested was put up for sale and at the sale the plaintiff decree-holder himself purchased it on 12-7-1933 In appeal from the decree, the amount decreed originally was reduced. The appellate decree which was passed long after the sale directed that the liability should be apportioned by the original Court as between the several items of property under S. 45 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act and did not itself fix the liability in respect of each village. On 26-10-1936, an application was made to the original Court for apportioning the liability as between the various properties and this was ordered and the hability fixed in 1942. Meanwhile in 1941, the appellants applied for restitution by re-delivery of the property which had been sold in execution, contending that the sale must be deemed to have been set aside by the variation of the decree in execution of which it had been sold. The decree-holder respondent pleaded that the variation could not be held to have the effect of setting aside the sale and that that application was barred by limitation as more than three years had elapsed after the appellate

Held, (1) that from the mere variation of the decree it could not be said, in the circumstances of the case, that the sale must be deemed to have been set aside and that the only way in which restitution could be ordered in the case was by directing the decree-holder purchaser (respondent) to refund the additional amount which was realised by the sale of the property over and above the amount for which the particular property could be sold; (2) that the starting point of limitation for restitution under Art, 182, Limitation Act, was not the date of the decree of the appellate Court which varied the original decree, but the date on which the liability in respect of the particular village was fixed, viz., 1942 and therefore the application was not barred by limitation. S. 144-Notice to parties prior to orders under-Necessity-Absence of notice, if a good

S. 144, C. P. Code, does not lay down anywhere that a notice should issue to the parties before any orders are passed under the section. It is no doubt desirable that in most judicial proceedings orders should be passed after due notice to the parties concerned. But in the absence of a statutory requirement as to the necessity for notice, its absence cannot be made a ground of appeal unless the party has been materially prejudiced thereby. (Sathe, S.M.) Where a suit of the plaintiff challenging the title of the defendant and praying for a declaration of his possession is decreed by the lower Courts but dismissed by the Privy Council on a finding of title in favour of the defendant, but such title has been extinguished, by the plaintiff's adverse possession, the defendant is not entitled to get possession by way of restitution under Ss. 144 and 151, C. Where in spite of the judgment-debtor's objection in execution that the decree was barred a sale is held without deciding it and the judgmentdebtor deposits the requisite money under O. 21. R. 89 and the sale is set aside but his objection as to bar of limitation is overruled by the executing Court but it is upheld in appeal, the judgmentdebtor is entitled to restitution in respect of the deposit made by him under O. 21, R. 89 and with-drawn by the decree-holder. The deposit made by him could also be regarded as a payment made under coercion within the meaning of S. 72 of the Indian Contract Act. (Iqbal Ahmad, C. J. and Dar, J.) Mohammad Taoi Khan v. Raja Ram. I.L.R. (1943) All. 510=208 I.C. 425=16 R.A. 78=1943 O.A. (H.C.) 103=1943 A.L.J. 208=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 103=1943 O.W.N. (H.C.) 177=1943 A.L.W. 277=A.I.R. 1943 All. 267

An order for refund of money deposited under O. 21, R. 89 is not justified by S. 144, C. P. Code, at any rate it is not an order which can be made on an application in restitution and probably not one which can be made even in a suit. (Yorke, J.) RAJA RAM v. Where certain movables attached in execution were directed to be handed over to an interim receiver on the judgment-debtor applying for adjudication and later on the judgment-debtor was allowed to withdraw his application, the proper course for the Insolvency Court was to follow the principle of S. 144, C. P. Code and to restore the property to the executing Court and not to the judgment-debtor and thereby place the parties in the position which they would have occupied but for the insolvency proceedings. Though S. 144, C P. Code, may not in terms apply, the duty or jurisdiction to place parties in status quo ante did not arise merely under S. 144, C. P. Code, but was inherent in the general jurisdiction of the Court to act rightly and fairly according to the circumstances towards all parties involved and the restitution of the property to the judgment-debtor was manifestly unfair and prejudicial to the creditor. As regards the rate of interest, the Court rate must always be taken as the rate that fairly compensates litigants in the absence of special reasons to the contrary. S. 144 – Scope and operation of — Decree—Execution and sale of property pending appeal——Reversal of decree in appeal—Application for restitution—Sale—If to be set aside—Right of purchaser in execution to plead bona fide purchase for value-Rule.

S 144, C. P. Code, embodies a well-established rule of equity that on the reversal of a decree the party against whom the wrong decree was passed should, as far as possible, be placed in the same position which he would have occupied but for such decree, it being the duty of the Court to act rightly and fairly according to the circumstances towards all the parties involved and to remove as far as possible the consequences of a wrong or unjust decree. One can understand this rule being relaxed in those cases where it conflicts with another rule of equity, namely, that a bona fide purchaser for value should not be allowed to suffer on account of the mistakes or irregularities committed by a Court of law but there is no reason why it should be relaxed in favour of a party who had due notice of the fact that the decree in execution of which he was purchasing a property was liable to challenge and had been challenged, because such a party cannot be deemed to have acted with due care and caution if in spite of such notice he proceeded to pur-chase the property at the execution sale. A stranger to the decree is no doubt, not bound to inquire into the merits of the plaintiff's claim or into the validity of the decree; in his case therefore the presumption would be that he is unaware of this matter; but where there is clear and cogent evidence that he was fully aware of the merits of the controversy in regard to the property purchased by him and that he was also aware that the validity of the decree was under challenge, there is no room for such a presumption. Where the purchaser of a property at an execution sale was a mortgagee of the property in question he must be deemed to have known all about the property; and when, further, he himself became a party to the proceedings in appeal from the decree under execution, he cannot invoke the benefit of the doctrine applicable only to a bona fide purchaser for value. He cannot therefore contend that a sale in his favour should not be set aside on an application by the successful party for restitution. (Fazl Ali, C.J. and Sinha, J.) CHOTA NAGPUR BANKING ASSCIATION v. C. T. M. SMITH. 22 Pat 315=207 I.C. 80=16 R.P. 1=9 B.R. 366=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 325.

-S. 144—Scope—If exhaustive — Inherent powers to order restitution-Power to compel third party to bring back money paid to him under erroneous order of Court—S. 151.

Courts in ordering restitution after a decree has been varied or reversed are not cenfined to cases which fall strictly within the provisions of S. 144, C. P. Code. The inherent jurisdiction vested in them by virtue of S. 151, C. P. Code, may be invoked where an order of Court would otherwise do injury to one of its suitors. There is inherent jurisdiction in the Court to call back money paid, owing to an erroneous view, to a person not entitled to it, and a person who is not in any technical sense a party to the decree can be compelled to make restitution of the money paid to him. Whether the inherent powers of the Courts to order restitution should be invoked in a particular case must depend on the facts of that case. The 4th respondent brought a suit to enforce a mortgage executed by the 1st respondent seeking relief against the 1st respondent alone on the ground that the property mortgaged was his self-acquired property and that the Respondents 2 to 3 who belonged to the same joint family as the respondent and who were also impleaded in the suit contended that the propertywas family property and that there was no family necessity for the loan secured by the mortgage. The suit was decreed on 10-8-1932, and in execution of his decree the 4th respondent brought the property to sale and purchased it himself for Rs. 7,200. The defendants in the suit, however, applied under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, and deposited the requisite sum amounting to Rs. 11,470-10-5 and the sale was set aside. The appellant who held a decree against the 4th respondent applied for attachment of Rs. 9,000 out of the amount of Rs. 11,470-10-5, in Court, and after attachment he applied for transfer of the attached sum to his own execution petition. This was ordered on 7-8-1935 and payment also was made out to him on the same date. Meanwhile an appeal against the mortgage decree was pending in the High Court, and on 9-11-1937, the appellate Court delivered judgment holding that the mortgaged property was family property, and as it had never been the 4th respondent's case that the mortgage was for purposes binding on the family the suit of the 4th respondent was dismissed. The respondents 1 to 3 the mortgage suit) then (defendants in applied for restitution of the amount deposited by them under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, with interest thereon. They prayed for recovery of the whole amount from the 4th respondent with interest at 6 per cent, and for recovery of Rs. 9,000 with such interest from the appellant.

Held. (1) that there was inherent jurisdiction in the Court to order restitution though the case did not fall under S. 144, C. P. Code, and that a person in the position of the appellant, not in any technical sense a party to the decree, could in law be compelled to make restitution of the money to him; (2) that if there were no other circumstances affecting the equities as between the respondents 1 to 3 and the appellant, it was the duty of the Court to set right the wrong done to its suitors (respondents 1 to 3) by reason of its own errors. parties and surety.
The object of S. 145, C. P. P. Code. The ordinary remedy by suit is left untouched by the section, and either party may, if he so chooses, avail himself of it. By the mere execution of a surety bond in favour of a party to the suit, a stranger does not entitle himself to the privileges of a party, nor is he bound by those restrictions which bind the latter. -S. 145 –Surety bond—Application by surety for cancellation of bond on ground that it has beeome discharged owing to happening of events subsequent to execution of bond-Maintainability before initiation of proceedings to enforce bond-Jurisdiction.

Where a surety does not dispute the validity of the bond when it was executed, but only states that by reason of events that subsequently happened it had become discharged, and applies on that ground for cancellation of the bond, the question properly falls within the jurisdiction of the Court in whose favour the bond was executed. Such an application by the surety is maintainable before proceedings are taken to enforce the bond against him in execution. S. 145, C. P. Code, does not impose a bar to the surety invoking the aid of the Court independently of an application under the section. (Krishnaswami Ayyangar and Kunhi Raman, IJ.) NARAYANA-SWAMI AYYAR v. The Court is not a juridical person and cannot be sued. It cannot take property and consequently cannot assign it. Subordinate Courts should take care to see that bonds are taken in the name of some officers of the Court who can enforce them. The only mode of enforcing such bond must be by making an order in the suit upon an application to which the sureties are parties, that the property charged be sold unless before day named the sureties find the money, (Davis, CJ) GIRLRAJMAL v. The C. P. Code makes no provision for the representation of a person who is still alive by a person who intermeddles with his estate. Hence when a person is alive but is detained in enemy country, a person who is looking after his interests and property in British India cannot be added as a representative of such a person in a suit against him. The proper procedure would be to issue processes for substituted service under O. 5, R. 20 of C. P. Code. (Malik, J.) AMBIKA PRASAD v. KODAI UPADHYA. 1944 A.L. J. 482=1944 O.A. -S. 148-Applicability-Compromise after preliminary decree-Provision for payment and in default foreclosure decree-Effect-Court if can extend time.

Where after a preliminary decree the parties enter into a compromise by which, it is agreed that in default of certain payments on a certain day a foreclosure decree should follow it is a compromise having an automatic result. It does not leave the Court any discretion in the matter of preparation of the final decree. When such a decree is automatically passed on the date agreed though the judgment-debtor was absent, it could not be attempted to be set aside on the ground of its being an ex parte decree. (Yarke, I) Z DA BIBI v. IMAD-UD-DIN. 1943 A.L.W. 519.

Ss. 148 and 151—Applicability—Decree for money-Judgment-debtor to pay certain instalments and to get some concession on such payment—Default in payment—Power of Court to relieve against clause providing for payment on default-Equity-Rule.

In a case where a judgment-debtor is to pay a certain amount of money, but there is a clause under which if he pays certain instalments promptly a certain concession would be made to him and a smaller sum would be accepted in full satisfaction of the debt, there is no case of penalty or forfeiture, and the party seeking to take advantage of the concession must carry out strictly the condition on which it is granted. This class of cases must be distinguished from the class of cases where there is an agreement to pay a sum of money by a particular date with a condition that if the money is not paid on that date, a larger sum should be paid; this latter condition is in the nature of a penalty, while in the former class of cases, it is not a penal clause and hence the Court has no power to grant relief from the obligation to abide strictly by the condition which is in the nature of a concession. The principle is the same whether the sum involved is large or small, and the fact that the default is only in respect of small margin is no ground for the grant of relief. There is no general principle of equity that the Court can relieve a party in default in respect of money payments whenever the Court thinks just. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) Where a Court grants time for payment of Court-fee found to be deficient and makes it a condition that in the event of its not being made good within the time allowed the case shall stand dismissed and there is a default in the payment, no more extension could be granted because the prior order itself operated as a dismissal and the Court has no jurisdiction to grant an extension A Paris

-Ss 148 and 107 (2)—Power to extend time

Appellate Court's powers.

The powers of an appellate Court under S. 107 (2) of the C. P. Code are limited to the powers enjoyed by the original Court. Hence where the original Court passes an order for restoration on condition of payment of certain damages by a particular date in default of which the petition is to stand dismessed, neither the original Court nor the appellate Court can extend the time for payment when default has been made in the payment of the damages as ordered. ability.

An order refusing to extend time under S. 148. C. P. Code, is neither a decree within the meaning of S. 2 nor is stappealable as an order under S. 104. (Yorke, J.) SHANKER LAL v. HUKAM DEI. 1943 A.L.W. 456.

S. 148—Scope—Order directing payment of money within specified time—In default proceedings to stand dismissed—Failure to comply with, due to mistake of Court's officer-Application for extension of time-Power of Court to extend-S. 151.

Where a Court has granted time within which a payment must be made and has declared that in default of payment within the time specified the proceedings will stand dismissed, there is no power under S. 148, C. P. Code, after the date on which the proceedings would stand dismissed to extend the time in which the payment was to be made. But when the application for extension is not made under S. 148 but under S. 151, C. P. Code, invoking the inherent powers of the Court, and the mistake which led to the failure to pay was not a mere mistaking of the party but the mistake of the Court's officer, the Court has inherent power to prevent the party from being damnified by the mistake of the Court's own officer and can extend the time for the ends of justice. (Wadsworth, J.) BALAIAH v. RAMAYYA. 199 I.C. 432=14 R.M. 578=53 L. W. 631=1941 M.W.N. 455=A,I.R. 1941 Mad. 706—(1941) 1 M.T. I. 528 706=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 638.

S. 148-Time for payment allowed by trial Court in pre-emption suit—If can be extended by appellate Court by interlocutory order.

Time for the payment of the money under a pre-emption decree cannot be extended under S. 148, C. P. Code, by the trial Court at any rate and it cannot be extended under that section even by an appellate Court. The order of the original Court fixing the time under which payment is to be made forming as it does part of the decree of the original Court can only be set aside by the decree of a superior Court. The appellate Court cannot set aside any portion of that decree by an interlocutory order especially one passed ex parte. (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) MALIK KHAN v. MIRAM KHAN. 213 I.C. 5=16 R. S. 149 is the general rule, giving the Court a discretion to allow time for making up a deficiency of court-fee while O.7, R. 11 is a particular rule which applies in the case of plaints only. Where the Court orders the plaintiff to pay deficit court-fees by a certain date and directs that if he fails to do so the suit will stand dismissed, but the deficiency is not paid by that date, the suit must be regarded as having been rejected on that date. -S. 151—Applicability—Absence of other provision. S. 151, C.P. -S. 151—Applicability—Application challenging decree as not executable—Decree already executed and satisfied—Proper remedy.

Objections as to the validity of a decree and to its executability should be raised at the time when the decree is made a rule of Court and at the time when the decree is put into execution. After the decree has been fully satisfied and possession of the property under terms of the decree has actually been delivered to the decree-holder, no such objection can properly be raised by means of an application under S. 151, C. P. Code. The appropriate remedy of the applicant, if so advised is by a regular suit in the Civil Court and not by an application invoking the inherent powers of the Court. Where after ex parte decree has been passed against a firm two partners claim that service has never been made upon them at all, that they had no notice of the summons, they had no opportunity to defend the suit, and some opportunity should be given to them at some time and place to deny their liability as partners. The Judge should hear the application under S. 151 and deal with the question of applipartners. cants' absence for non-service by analogy with the provisions of O. 9, R. 13, and if he comes to the conclusion that the contention of the applicants that no summons were duly served on them was true, he should pass orders upon such application as will allow the applicants, if execution of the decree was to be sought against them, to take advantage of the provisions of O. 21, R. 50 (2) and dispute their liability as partners.

Where a consent decree passed in a small cause mended by the Court under suit is subsequently amended by the Court under Ss. 151 and 152, C. P. It is not a case of setting aside an ex parte decree, and S. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act need not be complied with. The mere fact that the applicant mentions not only S. 151 but also O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code does not affect the case. The case is properly based on S. 151 and the addition of O. 9, R. 13, C. P. S. 151—Applicability—Preliminary partition decree

-- Application to proclaim share.

A person obtaining a preliminary decree for partition is not entitled to ask the Court under S. 151, C. P. Code, to direct the making of a proclamation about his share. No ground for action under S. 151 arises where a remedy is provided by the Code itself. A preliminary partition decree is of a declaratory nature and it is implicit in it that further proceedings are required to complete the partition. (Bennett, 7.)SUKHPAL DASS v. S. 151—Inherent power—Fraud on Court-

The weight of authority in the Calcutta High Court supports the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to interfere in cases involving a fraud on the Court, although there is a remedy by suit and it is the most арргоргіаte remedy. (Henderson, J.) Акіма Віві г. Маномар Аці Shaha. I L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 405—196 I.C. 269—14 R.C. 202—74 С.L. J. 397— 45 C.W.N. 392=A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 336.

A Court cannot invoke its inherent power under S. 151, C.P. Code, for the purpose of granting a temporary injunction. Apart from the provisions of O. 39, C.P. ——S. 151—Inherent powers—Other remedy open —Exercise of inherent powers—If justified—Execution application—Dismissal for default—Inherent power to restore and revive.

The Court has an inherent power under S. 151, G.P. Code, to restore an application in execution proceedings which had been dismissed in default, notwithstanding the fact that the applicant has an alternative remedy open. The property of the judgment-debtor was attached in execution of a decree against him and the Court ordered a sale proclamation to issue. The judgment-debtor then produced in Court a certificate under S. 10 of the Bombay Wakf Act (Bombay Hereditary Village Offices Act of 1874) issued by the District Deputy Collector to the effect that the property attached was Wakf property not hable to attachment and sale in execution of the decree. The application for execution was thereupon dismissed and the attachment raised. The decree-holder appealed to the Collector who cancelled the certificate of the District Deputy Collector. The decree-holder then applied to the Court to revive the execution petition which had been dismissed and the Court called back and revived the application and proceeded with it from the stage which it had previously reached.

Held, that it was the duty of the Court to redress the wrong and rectify what turned out to be an error and had power to restore the execution application, though the decree-holder had another remedy open, viz., a fresh execution application or an application for review of the order dismissing the earlier application. -S. 151—Inherent powers—Recall of invalid orders -Power of Court.

It is well-settled that a Court has inherent jurisdiction to recall and cancel its invalid orders, especially when such orders are based upon a mistake and the party in whose favour the order is made is responsible for the mistake and when the Court has been induced by his misrepresentation to make an order to the prejudice of another party in the latter's absence and without notice to him. -S. 151—Inherent powers—Refusal to take evidence

-If a material irregularity.

There is no provision in the C.P. Code like the one found in Cr. P. Code which specifically empowers a Court to refuse to take down the evidence of a witness tendered by a party. But S. 151, C.P. Code, gives similar powers even to a Civil Court. Therefore where the trial Court refuses to take down the evidence of all the witnesses tendered by a party its action where the Court of first instance decided under S. 185, Companies Act, that possession should be given 7. The defendants in a pending suit applied to the Debt Relief Court which allowed relief to defendant No. 1 but not to defendant No. 2 The plaintiff then filed an application for revision which was eventually allowed with the result, the defendant No. I's application for relief was dismissed. In the meanwhile the Court proceeded with the suit and decreed it against defendant No. 2. The plaintiff made an application under S. 151, C.P. Code, for reopening the suit against defendant No. 2, which was dismissed, on revision.

Held, (i) that the remedy of the plaintiff could not be by way of an appliction for review as the ground on which his application was founded, namely the dismissal of defendant No. 1's application for relief in revision, did not exist at the date of the decree of the lower Court; (11) that the proper remedy of the plaintiff was by way of an application under S. 151, C.P. An application to obtain possession of property sold in execution is itself an application for execution of the decree. -S. 151—Inherent powers—Stay of proceedings-Appeal against order refusing to set aside ex parte preliminary decree—Stay of passing final decree pending disposal—Inherent power of Court.

An application to have the passing of a final decice stayed pending disposal of an appeal against an order dismissing an application for setting aside an ex parte preliminary decree in a suit is maintainable under S. 151, C. P. Code, and the Court has inherent jurisdiction under S. 151, to stay the passing of the final decree, irrespective of O. 41, R. 5, C. P. Code. In matters in which the Code is exhaustive the inherent powers of the Court under S. 151 cannot be invoked. But where the Code is silent, such powers can be exercised so long as such exercise is not opposed to or prohibited by the provisions of the Code (Kuppuswami Aiyar, J.) Ankalu Reddi v. ### Joinder of Parties.

Power of High Court—Addition of party to appeal after Apart from O. 41, R. 20, C. P. Code, the High Court has ample power under S. 151, C. P. Code, to add a party to an appeal even after the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed for appeals, if, in the circumstances of the particular case before it, it thinks fit to do so. Where a person's name was omitted from the array of parties to an appeal by the mistake caused by an error in the certified copy of the judgment of the lower appellate Court, which had been supplied to the appellant and which did not contain his name, it is a fit case for the High Court to grant the application of the appellant to add him as a party and condone the delay under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, although the clerk of the appellant's counsel could have discovered the mistake if he had compared the list of parties in the copy of the judgment with that in the copy of the decree. ### Refund of Court-fee.

-S. 151-Refund of Court-fee-Duplicate certificate -Grant of on loss of original-Proper order-Form of

Where the Court is satisfied that the original certificate for refund of court-fee paid on a memorandum of appeal is lost, the proper order to make is to grant a duplicate certificate and to state therein that it is issued on the representation that the original has not been cashed. There is no statutory rule governing the matter and the Court in this matter

Rejection of latter-Power to refund Court-fee.

A plaint presented with insufficient Court-fee was rejected on failure to make up the deficiency. An application for review of the order of rejection was then made along with the necessary Court-fee to make up the deficiency. This application was also rejected. The plaintiff thereupon applied for refund of the Court-fee which he paid subsequently. The Court refused the prayer.

Held, in revision, that since the deficit Court-fee paid was not meant to be utilised until the application for review was granted by the Court, the said Court-fee ought to be refunded on the rejection of the application for review. Though Ss. 13 to 15 of the Court-Fees Act aid not apply, the Court had inherent powers to order refund of Court-fee under S. 151, C. P. Code.

of powers to refund.

The Courts have an inherent power to order refund of court-fee paid by mistake or inadvertence, or through ignorance of law. Ignorance of law on the part of the person paying the court-fee need not prevent the Courts from exercising their inherent powers, where it is clear that the document in respect of which the court-fee was paid has proved to be infructuous or is inoperative for the purpose for which it was obtained. #### Remand.

Where the whole suit was not disposed of upon any preliminary point and the trial Court decided the several issues on their merits and except for one issue in respect of which the lower appellate Court remanded the suit, the decision upon all the other issues was affirmed by it, the order of remand is neither in form nor in substance one under O. 41, R. 23, C. P. Code. It can only be made under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court under S. 151, C. P. Code, and no appeal is permissible where a

C. P. CODE (1908) S. 151.

A remand can be ordered under O. 41, R.23, C. P. Code, only in a case where the Court, from whose decree the appeal is preferred, has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed on appeal, and not in a case decided upon the whole evidence and upon all the issues which were raised. If in the later case an appellate Court concludes that the trial Court has wrongly decided the case and remands it for re-trial in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction, the order of remand is not appealable. ## Stay of Execution.

To attached property filing declaratory suit under Specific Relief Act—Sale of attached property, if can be stayed.

Where a claimant to attached property withdraws his claim pention and later files a declaratory suit under the Specific Relief Act to declare that the decree in execution of which the property was attached is not binding on the estate of the judgment debtor of whom the plaintiff claimed to be sold legal representative, it is not open to the Court trying the case to stay the execution sale under that decree. The sale cannot affect the plaintiff's right, and if he succeeds then his interests in the property would be deemed not to have been disposed of by the sale. S. 151, C. P. Code, cannot be invoked, for it is not necessary in the ends of justice, or to prevent the abuse of the process of the Court, to stay execution when the right, title and interest cannot be affected by the sale. Where the subject-matter in two suits pending in different Courts is identical but the trial Court rejects an application under S. 10, C. P. Code, for stay of one of the suits, though the order being interlocutory may not be open to revision the High Court can interfere in the exercise of its inherent powers under S. 151, C. P. ——S. 151—Stay—Powers of Court—Discretion.
Where an application to stay a new suit is made on the ground of similar question of law being involved in a pending appeal, the principle of S. 10 does not apply to the exercise of discretion by the Court. Its discretion is wholly unfettered and in exercising it the Court cannot but have regard to the history of the proceedings between the parties and the conduct of the applicant who is in default in the matter of payments decreed in prior proceedings. -S. 152—Accidental slip or omission—Mistake of Court owing to ignorance of law.

The fact that a Court made a mistake and passed a wrong decree is no ground for holding that the mistake arose from an accidental slip or omission. A Court's ignorance of the law cannot by any stretch of imagination, be brought within the words "accidental slip or omission" used in S. 152, C. P. Code. (Verma, J.) JANGLI SINGH v. RAMJAG SINGH. S. 152—Amendment—Forum—Merger of trial Court's decree in that of the appellate Court.

Ordinarily the trial Court has no jurisdiction left in cases where the decree of that Court has merged in the decree of the appellate Court. But the trial Court may, under S. 152, C. P. Code, amend such a decree in cases where the correction is merely of a clerical or arithmetical mistake. (Bennet, J.) Khairati Khan v. Munney Khan. 193 I.C. 53=1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 104=1941 O.L.R. 252=1941 A. L.W. 200=13 R.O. 429=1941 O.W.N. 270= 1941 O.A. 217.

In the Allahabad High Court even when there is a dismissal under O. 41, R. 11, C. P. Code, there is a decree and hence it is the High Court alone that can amend it. (Hamilton, J.) SRINATH DAS v. BALLABH DAS SETH. 1943 A.L.W. 77.

-S. 152—Amendment of decree—Forum—Dismissal of appeal after withdrawal by one of the appellants.

Where an appeal has been dismissed on the merits though one of the appellants might have withdrawn his appeal earlier, an application for amendment of the decree lies only to the appellate Court and not to the trial Court. (Davies.) CHHOGA v. CHANDA. 1942 A.M.L.J. 31.

S. 152—Amendment of decree—Powers of Court. If the alleged mistake is not clerical or arithmetical or has not arisen from an accidental slip or omission the Court has no jurisdiction under S. 152, C. P. Code, to correct it. In those cases the remedy of the aggrieved party is to appeal, or to apply to the Court by way of review. Where the Judge instead of passing a decree in Form No. 9 in Appendix D, C. P. Code, deliberately passes a decree in a different form, the error cannot be said to be due to accidental omission or slip and cannot be amended under S. 151 or 152. (Tex Chand, J.) RAM RAKHA MAL v. DINA NATH. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 212=197 I.C. 728=14 R.L. 267=43 P.L.R. 519=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 419.

-S. 152—Amendment—Powers of Court—Limits -Correction after Court had become functus officio-When justified Lapse of time, if a bar to correction.

Although after the case has been decided and the decree has been satisfied, the Court becomes functus officio, yet it does not debar the Court in appropriate cases, to rectify an error which has crept into its record either by accident or by design. The only limitation upon the exercise of such a power by Court, may be found in cases where third parties have acquired rights under the erroneous judgment in the interval. Lapse of time however considerable, is no bar to the correction of errors either under S. 151 or 152, C. P. Code. (Ghulam Hasan, J.) SANWALEY RAI V. Under S. 151, amendment could not be obtained unless it is necessary for the ends o justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Ccurt and when a remedy by way of appeal or cross-objection is open and is not availed of, resort to S. 151 could not be had. -S. 152—Procedure—Decree based on award in arbitration on reference in pending suit-Amendment after calling for report from arbitrators—Propriety—Proper procedure—Necessity for evidence.

A Court which amends its decree on account of a clerical or accidental slip or omission must be itself satisfied that such a slip or omission has occurred; and it can only be satisfied either because, from a perusal of the decree, the slip or omission is obvious on the face of the decree, or because of evidence before the Court. In the case of a decree passed on an award made in arbitration on a reference in a pending suit, the Court is not justified in amending the decree merely on the basis of a report called for by the Court and submitted by the arbitrators. The Court must take evidence and for that purpose it is open to the Court to examine the arbitrators for the purpose of forming an opinion for itself whether a slip or omission has occurred. O. 2, R. 2 (1), C. P. Code, gives no power to the plaintiff to obtain leave to amend on relinquishing part of his claim so as to alter the forum of the suit. A Court which is empowered to dispose of the case whether part of the claim is withdrawn or whether it is not withdrawn, should not permit a plaint to be amended simply and solely for the purpose of depriving itself of the jurisdiction which it possesses. It is true that the plaintiff can choose the forum in the first place by deciding how much property or how many years' accounts he wishes to be included in the suit, but having once chosen the forum he has no power to alter the forum merely because he relinquishes part of his claim. In order that the provisions of O. 1, R. 3, C. P. Further, the case should be such that it could be said that the Court in which the suit was instituted had local jurisdiction in the first instance to deal with the controversies arising between the plaintiffs and each of the defendants. (Allsop and Verma, II.) KARAM SINGH v KUNWAR SEN. I.L.R. (1942) All. 862=206 I C 222=15 R.A. 498=1942 A.L. W 399=1942 A.W.R. (H.C) 270=A.I.R. 1942 All. 387.

A Shamilat Committee is not a legally constituted corporation either by prescription or by any other operation of law. It is a kind of representative body of the khewatdars of a village. Before a suit in respect of the lands in the khewat could be brought all the khewatdars must join together for that purpose. The course to be followed is set out in O 1, R. 8, C. P. Code. -O. 1, R. 8—Applicability—Suits under S. 92.

O. 1, R 8, C. P. Code, is not applicable to suits under S. 92, C. P. Code; it cannot therefore be said that the procedure laid down in O. 1, R. 8 must be followed in suits under S. 92. O. 1, R. 8—Construction—Basis of rule— Persons interested—If actual parties—How far bound by decision.

The provisions of O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, are, it is obvious designed to save time and expense and to ensure a convenient trial of questions in which a large body of persons are interested, while avoiding at the same time a multiplicity of suits and consequent harassment to parties. The rule cannot be construed to mean that the entire body of persons interested in the litigation are or should be deemed to be actually parties to it. The basis of the rule is that persons other than those on the record are not parties to the suit in the full sense of the term. Although they may be bound by the decision passed in so far as it affects the common interests of the entire body of persons interested in the suit; they cannot be personally bound by the decree unless they are actually impleaded as parties to the action (Krishnaswami Ayyangar and Horwill, JJ.) 1, R. 8.

A decree for injunction can be executed against defendants who are represented by other persons selected to represent them under O. 1, R. 8, C. P. The whole object of a representative suit would be defeated if it is held that a decree obtained in such a suit cannot be executed against any persons except the chosen representatives (Bhide, J.) The mere fact that the names of the persons chosen to represent the defendants is not mentioned in the notice issued under O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Per Khundkar, J.—Where on the application of the plaintils an order is recorded permitting them to sue under O 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, and the plaint contains a sufficient indication of the fact that the plaintiffs are bringing the suit in a representative capacity, the suit is a properly constituted representative suit, although in the cause title the plaintiffs are not described in their representative capacity (Mitter and Khundkar, JJ.) O. 1, R. 8-Scope-Permission to sue as representatives—Grant of after publication of notice in District Gazette—Sufficiency.

The object O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code, is to permit a person who has an interest in the subject-matter of the suit to apply to the Court to be made a defendant. Where the Court gives to the plaintiffs as representatives of a village permission to sue the defendants as the representatives of another village after the Court has notified by public advertisement in the District Gazette, there is sufficient compliance with O. l. R. 8, C. P. Code. The fact that the Court does not pass orders on the applications for leave when admitting the plaint and does not leave the publication of the notice of the suit to a later stage cannot prejudice any one or make the proceedings invalid or irregular. O. 1, R. 8—Suit against desendants in reNature of decree to be presentative capacity—Nature of decree to be passed—Personal decree—If can be made—Plaint not in proper form—Leave to sue—Grant of.

In a suit where a defendant or defendants are sued in a representative capacity all that the the other party for the maintenance of peace and planitiff is entitled to against them is a declaration of his right as against the class whom the named defendant or defendants represent. He is not entitled to a personal decree against them, but is only entitled to be paid out of the funds or the property and assets belonging to the class in which all the members of the class are interested. Where the plaint in a representative suit does not ask for a declaration of liability on the part of the members of the class represented but merely asks for a personal decree against the defendants, and contains no suggestion or undertaking that the decree which the plaintiff might obtain would be restricted to the funds of the class in the hands of the defendants or any other body in whom the fonds are vested, it is not a proper plaint and leave to sue under O. 1, R. 8, should not be granted. They are therefore necessary parties and their non-impleadment would be fatal to the suit. That is the difference between a necessary and a proper party. O. 1, R. 9, C. P. O. 1, R 10 and Government of India Act (1935), S. 205 (2)—Dispute between private parties—Validity of provincial statute in issue—Proper parties—Addition of the Advocate-General as party in High Court—Propriety—Advocate-General, if can claim right of appeal to Federal Court.

Per Gwyer, C. J.—It can but rarely happen, in cases between private persons involving the constitutional validity of a statute, that an Advo-cate-General is a 'necessary' party. He is a proper party in the sense that without him the Court cannot effectually and completely adjudicate upon and settle all questions involved in such cases, and where the executive authority of the province is likely to be affected by the decision. It by no means follows that because the Advocate-General of a province has been permitted to be placed on record as an intervener he is also entitled to prefer an independent appeal to the Federal Court.

Per Sulaiman, J.-In a suit between a landholder and his tenant, the Provincial Government cannot be considered a necessary party at all. But when in such a suit the validity of an Act of the Provincial Legislature is in question, the adjudication would affect a large section of the public and the Provincial Government would be indirectly interested in such an adjudication. Where the Provincial Government has been made a party in the High Court in the absence of any restriction in the language of S. 205 of the Government of India Act and in view of the fact that an appeal lies even on a constitutional question alone without raising any other ground, it cannot be held that the Provincial Government who were a party in the High Court have no right of appeal at all to the Federal Court

Per Varadachariar, J.—The Indian C. P. Code does not contemplate an intervention by the Advocate-General as distinguished from an addition of the Advocate-General or the Government as a party. When either of them has been impleaded as a party with a view to give them a hearing, the Court would fail to give full effect to the language of S. 205 (2) of the Constitution Act, if it should hold that notwithstanding such Government had no right to prefer an appeal. The right of appeal being a creature of the statute, the right of one who is within the terms of the statute cannot reasonably be denied when, even on the broader ground of interest in the litigation, it is conceded that he is sufficiently interested to justify his claim being heard. bound by final decree

O 1, R 10, C. P. Code, gives complete power to the Court to add any necessary party at any stage of the proceedings; and parties may be added even after the preliminary decree in a mortgage suit. Where mortgaged property is sold for arrears of revenue and subsequent to the preliminary decree in the suit, a money decree-holder who has previously attached the surplus sale proceeds to which the mortgagee is entitled under S. 73, T. P. Act. withdraws it from the collectorate, the attaching decree-holder who so withdraws the money can be made a party to the mortgage suit, and a final decree can be passed against him entitling the mortgagee plaintiff to recover from him the money which he has withdrawn from out of the surplus sale proceeds. It is not necessary that he should have been im-pleaded before the preliminary decree, for the attachment would not confer any right on the decree-holder, and it would not also prevail against the mortgagee's claim to the surplus sale proceeds under S. 73, T. P. Act. The mortgagee would therefore not be bound to implead the attaching decree-holder before he actually with-drew the money. (Chatterji, J) KUNJA BEHARI MISRA v. Under O. 1, R. 10, C. P. Code, the Court has jurisdiction in proper cases to transpose a defendant as a plaintiff. Where in a suit by a person for dissolution of partnership between him and the defendant and for accounts, the plaintiff dies, the Court, on an application by the defendant, can, under O 1, R 10, transpose him as plaintiff and bring the heirs of the original plaintiff on the record as defendants to the suit. It is clearly in the interests of both the parties that the applicant should be made a party to the suit so that the question raised can be finally disposed of in these proceedings. (Bennett, J.) -O, 2, R, 2-Abandonment of part of claim after filing sult—Amendment of plaint to deprive Court of its jurisdiction—Permissibility.

O. 2, R. 2 (1), deals with the frame of the suit and does not refer to a case of abandonment of part of the claim after the suit is filed, or impose on any Court an obligation to allow a plaint to be amended This provision gives no power to the plaintiff to obtain leave to amend or relinquish part of his claim, and on general principles a Court which is empowered to dispose of the case whether part of the claim is withdrawn or whether it is not withdrawn, should not permit a plaint to be amended simply and solely for the purpose of depriving itself of the jurisdiction which it possesses. (Niyogi and Digby, JJ.) Sobhag Singh v. Ranjit Singh. I L.R. (1943) Nag. 603=209 I.C. 585=16 R.N. 131=1943 N.L. J. 463=A.I.R. 1943 Nag 293.

-O. 2, R. 2—Applicability—All plaintiffs and defendants not being parties to both suits.

The fact that some of the plaintiffs or defendants to the former suit are not parties to the subsequent suit does not necessarily render the second suit so different as to make O. 2, R. 2 inapplicable. Where two trespasses on two villages in an estate the succession to which had opened were similar in character and formed part of the same transaction and the evidence to prove the facts which it was necessary for the plaintiffs who claimed as heirs to prove, if they wanted the judgment in their favour, was the same and the bundle of essential facts was also the same a subsequent suit in respect of one village which was not included in the prior suit will be barred by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2. ding set-off-Omission to plead part of claim-

Effect-0.8 R. 6.

A defendant who pleads a set-off under O. 8, R. 6, C. P. Code, is to be deemed to be a plaintiff within the meaning of O.2, R.2, and is bound by that provision of law, and consequently has to suffer the consequences of an omission. O 8, R. 6 (2) requires the written statement put in by a defendant pleading a set-off to be such as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment both in respect of the plaintiff's claim and of the defendant's claim, and the omission by the defendant to set up part of his claim makes him lose for ever his right in the part of the claim so omitted. (Leach, C.J. and Byers, J.) KATHERSA ROWTHER v. ABDUL RAHIM SAHIB ILR (1942) Mad. 836=202 I.C. 674=15 R.M. 537=55 L.W. 407=1942 M.W.N. 638=A.I.R 1942 Mad 580—(1942) 2 M.T. I. 42 =(1942) 2 M L.J. 43.

O. 2, R. 2-Applicability-Genuine amendment of original plaint.

The provisions of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, cannot apply to a genuine amendment of the original plaint made under O. 6, R. 17, C. P. Code. (Sathe, S.M.) Lalji Singh v Mst. Kallo. 1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 152 (2)=1944 R.D. 322.

covers accidental omission—Sunt for declaration of title in respect of lands in holding—Decree— Certain plots left out from suit—Subsequent suit for declaration of title, and for possession of

O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, covers cases of accidental omission and is not confined to a deliberate omission. A subsequent suit purely to rectify a mistake committed in a prior suit is barred by O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. The respondent owned a holding in two khatees. At a rent sale, the appellant, a stranger, purchased certain lands comprising the holding. Shortly after this purchase, in 1934 the respondent brought two suits for declaration of his title over the plots which had formed the subject of the sale, and obtained decrees in his favour. By an accidental omission, two plots were omitted from the respondent's claim. To remedy this omission the respondent in 1936, brought fresh suits for a declaration of his title to these two plots and for recovery of possession.

Held, that the recovery of possession was merely a consequential relief dependant upon the prior establishment of the respondent's title; the omission in the prior suit was in respect of a portion of the claim which he could have and should have included in the prior suits and not as regards any additional relief. The suits were therefore barred by O. 2, R. 2. (Fazl Ali and Meredith, JJ.) RAM PRASAD SINGH v. RADHA PANDAY. 192 I.C. 527=13 R.P. 499=7 B.R. 478=21 P.L. T. 790=A I R. 1941 Pat. 37.

O. 2, R. 2—Applicability—Prior and latter suit based on substantially same cause of action—suit based on substantially same cause of action— Omission to claim relief in prior suit—If bars second suit.

In a prior suit for certain movable and immovable properties in the possession of a Hindu lady, the plaintiff relied on a contract by N, and also claimed that a will alleged to have been the contract was true and that the plaintiff was the stridhanam heir of N and entitled to the property on her death. In a subsequent suit for recovery of property of N on the ground of the plaintist being the stridhan heir of N, the defendant pleaded O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, in bar of the later suit.

Held, that the real cause of action in both the suits was the same, namely, the unlawful withholding of the property of N after her death by the defendant who was not entitled to it and hence the second suit will be barred under O 2, R. 2, because the plaintiff could not only have asked for relief in the first, but was bound to do so. (Horwill, J.) VENKATANARASIMHAM v. Subba Redoi. 57 L.W. 286=1944 M W.N. 529 = A.I.R. 1944 Mad 435=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 393.

-O. 2. R. 2—Applicability—Suit against Hindu Coparcener on mortgage by him as absolute owner—Finding that property was joint family property and decree against share only—Subsequent suit to enforce mortgage against share of other coparceners on footing that mortgage was executed by him as de facto manager—If barred.

O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, only compels a plaintiff to include in his suit the whole of the claim arising out of the cause of action; it does not compel him to join in the same suit every cause of action or every claim which he has. The cause of action for enforcing a mortgage against a member of a Hindu family as the absolute owner of the hypotheca is not the same as the cause of action against him and his coparceners as co-owners of the property. Neither O. 2, R. 2, nor S. 11, read with explanation would operate to bar a suit against the other members of the family to enforce the mortgage against their shares on the footing that the mortgagor executed it as manager for family purposes, by reason of the fact that the plaintiff instituted a prior suit against the mortgagor-executant alone to enforce the mortgage against the property as his absolute property and obtained a decree against his share alone in the property on the finding that the property was joint family property. Although the plaintiff might implead the other members in the prior suit on the ground that the debt was for family purposes by the mortgagor as manager and the joinder would have been justified by O. 1. R. 3, C. P. Code, the plaintiff was not bound to do that so as to attract the operation of Explanation IV to S. 11. O. I. R. 3, is only an enabling provision. (Wadsworth and Patanjali Sastri, JJ.) MUTHIAH CHETTIAR v.R. NAGASAMI AYYAR AND CO. 1943 M.W.N. 653 = 216 I C 338=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 98=(1943) 2 M.L.J 548.

S. 2 (3)—Applicability of O. 2, R 2—Suits for arrears of rent—Rent when becomes an arrear.

By the definition of "arrear" in S. 2 (3) of the C. P Tenancy Act, rent cannot become an arrear on the date on which it is payable, it only becomes an arrear after midnight on that day and a suit for rent payable on the 1st of May would be premature if filed on the 1st of May. Hence where rent is payable on the 1st of May a suit for arrears is filed on the first May 1937 and a made by N was not true and binding on him. It was found that the will was not genuine, but that barred by the operation of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code inasmuch as the claim in the later suit could not have been included in the earlier one. (Grille, J.) HIRALAL HARI SINGH v. NIRBHESINGH.

103=1942 N L.J 487=A.I R. 1943 Nag. 20.

O. 2, R. 2—Applicability—Omission to sue owing to ignorance of law.

The word 'intentionally' in O. 2, R. 2 (2) is intentionally used by the legislature in order to show that in the case of relinquishment it must be intentional, whereas in the case of omission it may be intentional or accidental. Hence O. 2, R. 2 would apply even when the omission is accidental. If the omission was due to ignorance of law, that omission must be taken to be intentional because it must be presumed that every body knows the law. (Mathur, J.) GANGA NARAIN v. MISIR RAMESH CHAND. 1944 A L.W. 52= 1944 A.W.R (H.C.) 59=1944 O.A. (H.C.) 59=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 23 1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 23.

O. 2, R. 2-Applicability-Part assignment of debt—Suit by assignee—If barred.

O. 2, R. 2, C. P Code, has the effect of barring a particular plaintiff from splitting up his cause of action. In the case of a part assignment of a debt, the assignment itself gives the cause of action and the assignee, is therefore, not prevented from maintaining a suit on the actionable claim assigned to him (Dalip Singh and Sale, IJ.) RAM KRISHEN MOHAN LAL v. GURDIAL MAL SAGAR MAL. 197 I.C. 735=14 R.L. 268=43 P.L.R. 439=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 337.

-O. 2, R. 2—Applicability—Test—Suit for specific sum of money and suit for rendition of accounts-Causes of action, if different.

In order to ascertain whether a suit is barred by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, it is necessary to consider what facts had to be proved in the first suit and what facts have to be proved in the second suit. Where in the earlier suit what had to be proved was the fact that the defendants had received certain sums of money from the military department on behalf of the plaintiff in respect of bills which had been sub-mitted by the latter and in the later suit what had to be proved was the terms of a sub-contract between the plaintiff and the defendant and the liability of the defendant to render account, the cause of action in the two suits are different and the provisions of O. 2, R. 2 do not operate as a bar. (Collister, J.) RADHAKISHEN v. IKRAMUDDIN. 1941 A.L.J. 288=194 I C. 586=1941 A.L.W. 490=14 R.A. 2=1941 R.D. 364=1941 (O.A. Supp.) 334=1941 O.W.N. 676=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 169=A.I.R. 1941 All. 217.

O.2, R. 2—Applicability—Two suits based on same cause of action presented simultaneously -Inherent power to consolidate suits—Dismissal of one as offending against rule—Not proper.

Where two suits based on the same cause of action, are filed simultaneously on the same day, it cannot be said that 0.2, R. 2 (2) is infringed, as it is not the case of a plaintiff afterwards suing in respect of a portion of a claim omitted from a former suit. It cannot be assumed that one of the two suits presented simultaneously has been presented afterwards. In such a case, the Court has power to consolidate the two suits in its inherent jurisdiction and it would not be proper to dismiss one of the suits as offending against O. 2, R. 2 (1). tity of cause of action—Allegations in plaint—

How far decisive.

In order to apply the provisions of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, to bar a suit, it shall have to be found out, (1) what was the cause of action in respect of which the claim was made in the previous suit, (2) what is the claim made in the present suit; (3) whether the claim made in the present suit could have been made either wholly or in part in respect of the cause of action of the previous suit. In order to arrive at these findings, the two plaints must be compared. But this does not mean that in order to apply 0.2, R. 2 all the allegations made in the two plaints shall have to be taken and the bar imposed shall apply only when these are identical. The allegations are to be looked into only to find out to what extent they disclose any cause of action. Cause of action for this purpose would mean all the essential facts constituting the right and its infringement. If the plaintiff obtained a judgment in his favour on a particular cause of action in the previous suit his claim in that suit must be taken to have been based on that cause of action, and that judgment ought to be conclusive as to the cause of action in respect of which that claim was made. In o der then to see what is the cause of action in respect of which the claim in the subsequent suit is made and what is the claim made in it we are to look to the plaint in the subsequent suit. If a certain allegation in the plaint discloses the self same cause of action which could have supported the claim made in the plaint then, simply because other additional allegetions have been made in it, the plaintiff could also not thereby escape the bar imposed by O, 2, R. 2. If without the additional allegations in the second plaint, the cause of action for the claim made in it be complete, then in that case the additional allegations will not constitute the cause of action at all, and the Court after finding that will have to dismiss the claim under O. 2, R. 2. If the additional allegations go to constitute a fresh cause of action for the claim made, then certainly the cause of action as alleged in the second plaint is different from the cause of action of the first plaint. If the plaintiff fails to establish the additional allega-tions, he may fail for want of cause of action but his suit will not be hit by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2. (Pal, J.) pass are so connected together in point of time as to form part of the same transaction they may not give rise to separate causes of action. But where the separate acts of trespass are far removed in point of time and are also different in character they cannot be said to form part of the same transaction. O. 2, R. 2, C. P. A suit for arrears of rent or for determination of rent on some plots is no bar to subsequent suits as regards other plots as the cause of action need not be in any way the same. (Harper, S.M. and Shirreff, J.M.) LAL NAR SINGH PRATAP BAHADUR SINGH v. BINDHA DIN. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 861=

O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action different.
O. 2, R. 2 (3), C. P. Code, has no application where the cause of action in the subsequent suit is not the same as that in the earlier suit. A suit should include the whole claim with respect to one and the same cause of action, but need not include every cause of action or every claim which the plaintiff may have had against the defendant at the time. (Tek Chand and Sale, JJ.) SHUJA-UD-DIN v. SIRAJ-UD-DIN. 195 I.C. 81=14 R.L. 30=43 P.L.R. 44=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 139.

O. 2, R. 2—Mortgage—Suit for interest alone-Subsequent suit for principal and interest-Maintamability.

If a mortgage deed contains a separate personal covenant for the payment of interest and compound interest, such a covenant could not be ignored simply because in a previous suit to recover arrears of interest this stipulation in the mortgage deed was not made the basis of the claim. A prior suit and decree for interest only does not bar a subsequent suit for principal and interest as the causes of action in the two suits are distinct. (Abdul Rashid, J.) NIDHAN SINGH v. -O. 2, R. 2 and Specific Relief Act, S. 42, Proviso-Principle underlying-First suit for declaration of title and later suit for possession after ejectment-Maintainability.

The law does not encourage multiplicity of litigation and with that end in view requires that all the reliefs which can be claimed at the same time should be claimed in one and the same suit. Failure to do so is penalised both by the proviso to S. 42, Specific Relief Act and by O. 2, R. 2 (2). Where a suit for a bare declaration alone is filed in the first instance and subsequently a suit is filed for possession after ejectment of the defendants it would not be maintainable. (Sathe, S.M.) R. 3 of O. 2 is designed to meet a case in which a plaintiff, not being certain whether his cause of action rested on ownership or merely right of way, finds himself under the necessity of pleading each in the alternative. He has a right to plead the alternatives, though inconsistent, in the form of a right of ownership or alternatively an easement. (Braund, J.) THE MANAGING COMMITTEE of Jumamasjid v. ——O. 2, R. 3—Suit to set aside alienation by karta of joint Hindu family—All alienees made parties—Suit if bad for misjoinder of causes of action.

Where a member of a joint Hindu family sues to set aside the alienations made by the karta of the family ranging over a number of years and all the aliences are made defendants, the various sets of defendants have a community of interest in the sense that they all derive their title from one and the same person (i.e.) the karta, and the cause of action against them is the same as it would have been against the karta, if he were alive, and hence the suit is not bad for misjoinder of causes of action. by Court proceeding under

It was not the intention of the legislature, that where the Court proceeds under O. 2, R 6, C. P. Code, the plaintiff should be required to file separate plaints. The proper order to pass in such a case is that the plaintiffs should be given an opportunity so to amend his plaint that the allegations against each set of defendants in respect of the various alienations shall be separately set out in order that separate issues may be framed in respect of each transaction, thus enabling the Court to try the suit in sections, each section forming part of the same proceeding and when this has been done, the Court will proceed with the trial of the suit. alidity—Amendment—Permissibility

The next friend of a minor plaintiff is not technically a party to the suit, but for the purpose of appointing a recognised agent to take some step in the suit, the next friend is to be regarded as a party to the suit within the meaning of O. 3, R. 1, C. P. Code, and the next friend of a minor plaintiff can appoint a recognised agent under O. 3, R. 1. But a general power of attorney granted by the next friend on the latter's own account authorising the grantee to do various acts including filing suits and taking proceedings on the grantor's behalf would not enable the attorney to file suits in the name of an unspecified minor using the grantor's name as next friend. If the plaint in the suit by the minor is signed by such an attorney and is presented by a pleader under a vakalatnama executed by such attorney, the plaint is not a valid plaint and the suit is not validly commenced. The defect cannot be cured by an amendment by striking out the signature of the attorney and inserting that of

O. 3, R. 1—Representation of defendant absent in enemy-occupied territory.

The position of a defendant in a suit in British India who is absent in enemy-occupied territory, is anomolous. There is no legislation for his representation in the suit. A defendant in a partition suit was carrying on business in Burma, and a notice of the suit was served on his daughter describing her as the local agent of the defendant. The plaintiff averred that during his absence in Burma the defendant had entrusted the management of his properties to his daughter. daughter.

Held, that the defendant was not represented in any real sense by his daughter. (Akram and Blank, IJ.) RASHID AHMAD v. RAUSANNESSA BIBL. 49 C.W N. 262.

applicability of—Presentation of plaint, if an 'act in any Court'—Presentation by unauthorized Person-Curability-Stage.

O. 3, R. 1, C. P. Code, contains a general provision relating to procedure in Courts and is as much applicable to the presentation of suits as to that of appeals and applications for execution. O. 41, R 1 is in fact a combination of the provisions of S. 26 and O. 3, R. 1. The presentation of every document in Court must therefore be governed by O. 3, R. 1. The presentation of a plaint, memorandum of appeal, or an application to the munsarim of a Court is undoubtedly an act in any Court so that it is imperative that, presentation should be made by the party in person or by his recognized agent or by pleader. Though the presentation of a plaint by a person not duly authorized is an irregularity curable at the discretion of Court, when no attempt has been made to get it cured in the trial Court, it is too late to get it cured in appeal. (Thomas, C. J. and Zia-ul-Hasan, J.) All India Barai Maha-sabha v. Jangi Lal. 191 I.C. 821=1941 A.W. O. 3, R. 4—"Acting"—Handing over appeal to clerk of Court—If amounts to.

The mechanical act of handing over the appeal to the clerk of Court or another officer appointed for receiving appeals does not amount to "acting" as contemplated by C. P. Code. It is only a ministerial work and similar in nature to the payment of process-fee, etc., which the clerks of counsel usually do. Consequently a counsel can present an appeal on behalf of another duly authorized under O 3, R. 4 without a document in writing authorising him to do so. (Almond, J. C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) GHULAM SARWAR v. NABI BAKHSH. 192 I.C 833=13 R. Pesh. 47= A.I R. 1941 Pesh. 1.

O. 3, R. 4-Application to set aside ex parte decree-Fresh vakalatnama-Necessity.

Where after the passing of an ev parte decree, the vakil appearing for the defendant files an application for setting it aside, it cannot be said that it is bad because no fresh vakalatnama was filed by the vakil—a vakalatnama in the usual torm without any expression indicating limitation on the powers of the vakil, necessarily implies that the vakil would have the right to do everything that was necessary for the proper conduct of the case; and if the case had been decided ex parte there is an implied authority given to the vakil to have that order set aside and the case heard on the merits. (Malik, J.) JWALA DEVI v. BIRIGUNATH SAHAI. I.L.R. (1944) All. 592=1944 O.A. (H.C.) 129=1944 A.W.R (H.C.) 129=1944 A.L.J. 378=A.I.R. 1944 All 238.

O. 3, R. 4—Appointment of pleader—Duration—Termination—Appointment of receiver for the estate of party—Effect.

orally authorising another pleader to appear Authority of latter to agree to consent decree.

If a pleader engaged by a party orally authorises another pleader to appear for him, the latter can only 'plead' but not "act". He has, therefore, no authority to agree to a consent decree being passed against the party. (Tek Chand and Sale, JJ.) GHANSHAM LAL V BAIJ NATH SYAL. 46 P.L R. 372.

in the mofussil. If he files a plaint in a mofussil Court without such a vakalat or document as is required under O. 3, R. 4, C. P. Code, there is no proper presentation of the plaint. But the failure to comply with the provision regarding presentation of a plaint is a mere irregularity; it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court. If the plaintiff and his pleader have acted in good faith and without gross negligence, the Court would allows it to be cured. The suit must be deemed to have been filed when it was first instituted, and under S. 99, C. P. Code, the decree passed will not be reversed in appeal on the ground of such irregularity. (Divatia and Lokur, JJ.) Hirabai Gondala v. Bhagirath & Co. 47 Bom.L.R. 808.

——O. 3, R. 4 (2)—Scope of appointment of pleader—Power to consent to setting aside exparte decree—Fresh appointment if necessary.

An application to set aside an ex parte decree or dismissal order is part of the proceedings in a suit and so in the same way to oppose or consent to such an application is also part of the proceeding in a suit. Hence ordinarily a pleader appointed for the purposes of a suit has power to consent to the restoration of the suit dismissed for default. He does not require a fresh power or appointment for that purpose. (Ba U, J.) U OAK v. MA KHIN. 1941 Rang.L.R. 254=197 I.C. 406=14 R.R. 121=A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 314.

——O. 3, R. 5—Applicability—Appeals to High Court from original decree of Subordinate Court—Service of notice—Procedure—Affixing of copy to office of advocate for respondent—Sufficiency—O. 41-A. R, 6 and R. 22.

O. 3, R. 5, C. P. Code, is a general provision governing all processes of Civil Courts, and O. 41-A, is a special order relating to the procedure in appeal to the High Courts from the original decrees of Subordinate Courts. It must therefore be inferred that the special provisions of O. 41-A, in so far as they are in conflict with the provisions of the parts of the Code, must prevail and must govern the procedure relating to appeals in preference to the general provisions. Since R. 6 of O. 41-A, excludes a notice of appeal from the category of processes which can be properly served by being left at the address for service of the party to be served, the inference is that such a notice must be served regularly either on the respondent or his advocate, and that service by merely affixing to the office of the advocate as provided in O. 3, R. 5 is not service on the party or his pleader for purposes

Where the defendant, having got the copy of the writ of summons and a copy of the plaint from the serving officer, refuses to sign an acknowledgment of such service on the original writ and runs away without handing back the copy of the summons and the copy of the plaint to the serving officer, the defendant is duly served. O. 5, R. 17 is mandatory and requires that the serving officer should affix a copy of the summons on the outer door or other conspicuous part of the defendant's residence. But where the defendant by his own conduct renders it impossible for the serving officer to affix the copy of the summons on the defendant's house, and to carry out the provisions laid down in O. 5, R. 17, it does not lie in his mouth to urge that the service effected upon him is not a proper service. ——O. 5, R. 15—Defendant prisoner of war in enemy occupied territory—Service on-Proper procedure—Soldiers Litigation Act (IV of 1925), Ss. 6 and 7.

When a defendant is a prisoner of war in enemy occupied territory the Courts should first ascertain whether there is any male member of the family on whom service can be effected under O. 5, R. 15, C. P. Code, if not and if there is no authorised agent, recourse should be had to the procedure laid down in Ss. 6 and 7, Indian Soldiers Litigation Act. (Tek Chand and Sale, Jl.) ---O. 5, R. 17—Affixture on deliberate evasion—Precautions to be taken and procedure to be followed.

Where it is made to appear that any party is deliberately avoiding being served, it would be best to obtain an affidavit from the village lambardar or other official that the party had been in his house shortly before the attempt to serve, that the house was the house of the party desired to be served and that in his opinion the party was deliberately avoiding service. In such circumstances the notice could with reason be handed to any other person in the house of reasonable responsibility or firmly affixed to the door of the house. (Davies.) Sudarshan Das v. Rugha. 1944 A M.L.J. 42.

Where persons who were to be served with notice did not themselves refuse to sign the acknowledgment but all that the peon said was that "one of the servants refused to take the notice," and it was not shown that that servant had been authorised by the persons, upon whom the notice was to be served, to receive such notice, service by affixing the copy is not sufficient. Where a portion of the written statement is too vague and too general to indicate what is meant by the defendant and though no attempt is made on behalf of the plaintiff to seek a clarification of the plea contained therein, it is the duty of the Court to call upon the defendant to furnish definite particulars of the plea. The practice of introducing obscure pleadings with a view to taking the adversary by surprise is open to grave objection and is not unoften likely to lead to grave miscarriage of justice. The law imposes a duty on the Judge to clarify the pleadings. (Thomas, C. J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) FAOIR BUX 11. THAKUR PRASAD. 16 Luck. 832=194 I. C. 588=14 R.O. 6=1941 O.W N. 801=1941 A. of necessary particulars-Object

Per Pal, J.—Although pleadings in this country are not to be strictly construed, parties should not be allowed to ignore altogether the rules of pleading which have been laid down by the statute According to these rules, all necessary particulars must be embodied in the pleadings which must not only be concise but also be precise. The whole object of pleadings is to bring the parties to an issue and the importance of the rules is to prevent the issue being enlarged, which would prevent either party from knowing, when the case comes for trial, what is the real fact to be discussed and decided. O. 6, R. 2-Suit for damages for use and occupation Facts to be pleaded by plaintiff.

In a suit for damages for use and occupation, all that the plaintiff need plead is that the land belongs to the plaintiff, that the defendant was let into possession by him, that he is in use and occupation of it and that the claim is for a certain figure. Though it is usual to plead that the defendant was in occupation with the plaintiff's permission, this is strictly unnecessary, because the law presumes this in the plaintiff's favour once it is shown that he or his predecessor let the defendant into possession. (Bose, J.) GULABCHAND v HIMAT KHLTSING. 208 I.C. 358 =16 R.N. 84=1943 N.L.J. 143.

O. 6, R 4-Fraud-Absence of pleadings-

Relief on evidence disclosing fraud.

Where a person relies on the fraud of another, it is his duty to say so in his pleadings. In the absence of any pleading, even if there is evidence of fraud, the Court would not be able to consider it. (Clarke, J.) Andoli Udaibhan v. Jamnabai. 197 I.C. 356=14 R.N. 167=1941 N L.J. 230.

-O. 6, R. 4—Fraud—Particulars of to be set forth in the plaint.

General allegations of fraud however stong they may be are insufficient. Where fraud is the ground of action, the particulars thereof must be set forth in the plaint. The mere use of general words as 'fraud,' 'bogus' or 'collusion' are ineffectual to give a fraudulent colour to the particular of forth (Thomas C.) cular statements of facts. (Thomas, C.J.) C. D. O.6, R. 6-Scope-If to be read with O.8, R. 2-Suit by landlord for eviction-Notice-If to be alleged-Duty of tenant to plead want or insufficiency of notice.

O 6, R. 6, C. P. Code, must be read along with
O. 8, R. 2. It is for a defendant to raise by his pleading all matters which show that the suit is not maintainable. O. 6, R. 6 merely says any condition precedent, the performance or occurrence of which is intended to be contested, shall be distinctly specified in the pleadings. A landlord suing his tenant for eviction cannot anticipate, in the first instance, any contest on the point of notice. It is not for him to plead the condition precedent at first. It is for the defendanttenant to raise the point if he wishes to contest the point. A general averment of the performance of all the conditions precedent is implied in every pleading and therefore it need not be alleged. (Meredith and Sinha, JJ.) KRISHNA PRASAD SINGH v. ADYANATH GHATAK. 22 Pat. 513=216 I.C. 111=11 B.R. 97=17 R.P. 115= A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 77.

O. 6, R. 7-Inconsistent alternative case-Introduction in replication—Permissibility.

Although an alternative and inconsistent case can be set up in the plaint, it is not open to the plaintiff to introduce by means of a replication a case inconsistent with the allegations in the plaint. (Abdur Rahman, J) HARDIAL SINGH v. JASWANT KAUR 209 I.C. 252=16 R.L. 105=45 P.L.R. 190=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 159.

-O. 6, R. 7—Pleadings—New and different ground of exemption from limitation-If permissible.

Where a suit is instituted after the expiration of limitation, the plaintiff should no doubt state the ground of exemption, but where he has stated a particular ground, he is not precluded thereby from relying on any other ground, and particularly when such ground is a ground furnished by an act of the legislature. Where in the plaint, the plaintiff relied only upon an acknowledgment to save limitation, it is open to him to rely upon S. 5 of the U.P Temporary Postponement of Execution of Decrees Act, 1937 as saving his suit from the bar of limitation (Hasan, J) Raj Bahadur v. Raja Ram 191 I.C. 305=13 R.O. 224=1940 A.W.R. (C.C.) 462=1940 O.W.N. 988=1940 O.A. 971=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 111.

eviction-Notice-If to be alleged-Cause of action.

O. 6, R. 11, C. P. Code, does not lay down that notice must be pleaded in a suit for eviction. It merely prescribes the form which the pleading should take in such cases as it is material to allege notice. It governs the statement in the pleading of anything which is a part of the cause of action, as notice may sometimes be. Strictly speaking however, a condition precedent, merely as such, does not form part of the cause of action. (Meredith and Sinha, JJ.) Krishna Prasad Singh v. Adyanath Ghatak 22 Pat. 513=216 I.C. 111=11 B.R. 97=17 R.P. 115= A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 77.

O. 6, R. 15-Applicability-Copy of plaint filed by orders of Court on original plaint found to be missing.

Where on a plaint being found missing from the custody of Court, the plaintiff is ordered to file a copy of the plaint, it cannot be expected to bear all the verifications as in the case of the original plaint and hence from their absence it cannot be pleaded that there is no proper plaint before the Court. (Sathe, S. M. and Ross, A.M.) CHHOTEY LAL & DURGAWATI. 1944 R.D. 152=1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 95.

-O. 6, R. 16—Expunging statement—Test

Considerations for Court.

In an application under O. 6, R 16, C. P. Code, for expunging allegations or remarks in pleadings, the question to be considered by the Court is whether the words complained of amount to an allegation necessary for the formulation of the case set up, either in the way of establishing a cause of action or relevant for the purpose of the decision of any of the issues arising on the face of the pleadings. The test would be whether the allegation or statement could form part of the evidence-in-chief which the party making the allegation or statement would be bound to lead for the purpose of obtaining the relief asked for. If the allegation or statement is scandalous or is irrelevant in the sense that it does not form any part of the cause of action and has no bearing on any of the issues raised, it will be expunged. tion of relief-Permissibility.

There is no authority for holding that a valuation of a relief cannot be allowed to be mended under (). 6, R. 16, C. P. Code. -O. 6, R. 17—Addition to pleadings—Objection for first time in appeal.

It is within the power of the Court to allow parties to add to their pleadings and where this is done without any objection by the parties, it is too late in the day for one of the parties to raise objections to it in appeal for the first time, (Yorke and Agarwal, JJ) MAHOMED EJAZ RASUL V SALVID ALI MAHOMED. 16 Luck. 812=194 I.C. 615=1941 O A. 506=14 R.O. 18=1941 R.D. 431=1941 A.L.W. 613=1941 A.W.R. dismissed from service on 14th July, 1941 and made a claim for salary from 1st October, 1935, to 14th July, 1941, as damages for wrongful dismissal. In the written statement, the plaint allegation regarding the date of dismissal was denied and it was stated therein that the plaintiff was dismissed on 29th May, 1936. The plaintiff applied to amend the plaint enabling his claim to be made simpliciter for salary instead of as damages for wrongful dismissal.

Held, that the amendment related only to the form of the relief claimed and not to the substance of the case pleaded in the plaint and should be allowed to determine the real question in controversy. (Gentle, J.) JATINDRA NATH PAL v. CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal.

An amendment of the plaint may be allowed even where it has the effect of depriving the defendant of his right to plead limitation if the circumstances are peculiar and special. The defendants admitted executing the acknowledgme nt but denied that cash consideration was received from the plaintiff on 9th February, 1936. According to them the acknowledgment was executed on the taking of an account of the previous transactions between the parties. They contended that the document on which the plaintiff sued was a bare acknowledgment which could not form the basis of the suit. In the alternative they demanded that the previous transactions should be reopened under the C. P. Debt legislation and that they should be given relief in respect of the rate of interest charged on the debt and also an instalment decree. The plaintiff applied for amendment of his plaint explaining that there was an agreement to treat the transaction as one of cash advance and as the defendants denied it the plaintiff by amendment sought to base the suit on the original transaction, the limitation being saved by acknowledgments.

Held, the amendment although it may seek to introduce a new case does not seek to introduce an inconsistent case and the special circumstances of the case justified an amendment. (Clark, J.)

of Court-Limitations.

It is quite true that Courts are and ought to be not strict but liberal ln the matter of allowing amendments, since they exist to decide the rights of the parties and not to punish them for the mistakes they make in the conduct of their cases. Yet, on the wide powers of allowing amendment two limitations are now well established. One is that an amendment can in no case be allowed which would have the effect of substituting one distinct cause of action for another or changing the subject-matter of the suit. The other is that an amendment ought not ordinarily to be allowed which would take away from the defendant a legal right which had accrued to him by lapse of time—the relevant point of time being not the date of the suit or that of the written statement but the time when the question falls to be considered. Mere delay in applying for amendment of a written statement is no ground for refusing the application, in so far as it may be compensated for by the award of costs. As R. 17 of O 6, C. P. Code, permits alteration or amendment of the pleadings at any stage of the proceedings in such manner and on such terms as may be just, it may be allowed after the trial or before the final decree in the case or in appeal, or in second appeal, or in revision, or even in an appeal before the Privy Council. The test to be applied for allowing an amendment is really to see whether it can be permitted with. out causing injustice or injury to the opposite party. No doubt adequate compensation could be ordered to be made by way of costs to the o posite party. (Dible, S. M and Acton, A. M.)

-O. 6, R. 17—Amendment of plaint-Application to amend suit filed as against a firm into one against an individual in personal capacity— When permissible.

Apart from the question whether a firm should be considered a legal entity the nature of a suit filed against a firm is different from the nature of a suit filed against individual members composing that firm. Where therefore a suit is filed against a firm it cannot be allowed to be amended into a suit against an individual who happens to be a partner of that firm. It is a case where the plaintiff sought to substitute one defendant for another and also sought to change the nature of the suit he had filed. (Davis, C. J. and Weston, J) AHMED MOOSA BROS. v LILARAMFIKAMDAS I.L.R. (1942) Bros. v Lilaramfikamdas I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 210=207 I.C. 23=16 R.S. 4=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 93.

-O. 6, R. 17 and O. 7, R. 10-Amendment of plaint-Suit against firm of S-Amendment at late stage seeking to substitute individual for the firm-Permissibility.

Where an application for amendment was not a bona fide one to correct an error of misdescription but to substitute one defendant for another and was made at a late stage when the claim against the proper defendant had become time-barred it must be dismissed. Where it is found that a suit is filed against a firm which did not exist the plaintiff cannot be allowed to amend the suit as one against an individual. The proper procedure is to dismiss the suit as filed against a non existent person. (Davis, CJ. and Weston, J.) Kewalram Tekchand & Co. v. Shewaram Rochiram. I.L.R. delay by a party is not a sufficient ground for refusing permission to amend even at a late stage of a trial, yet he cannot be permitted to do so if the proposed amendment happens to introduce a totally inconsistent case and the application for leave to amend is made after a great deal of delay. No power has been given to enable one distinct cause of action to be substituted for another nor to change by means of amendment the subject-matter of the suit. (Abdur Rahman. J) Haridial Singh v. ——O. 6, R. 17 — Applicability — Leave to amend written statement in appeal—Amendment introducing new and inconsistent case of justertii in suit for possession—Permissibility.

It is indisputable that leave to amend a pleading is more or less a discretionary matter and the power to grant leave ought to be liberally exercised. Although mere delay would not be a ground for refusing leave to amend, where the amendment is being proposed with the object of introducing an entirely new and inconsistent case, it cannot be allowed. It might be possible for a defendant to raise an inconsistent or an alternative case when he files his written statement, in the begining, but he cannot be permitted to advance new positions at the time of arguments before the trial Court or ask for the written statement to be amended before the appellate Court. Leave to amend a written statement so as to set up a plea of jus tertii, in answer to the plaintiff's claim for recovery of possession of property, ought not therefore to be granted on an application preferred to the appellate Court. —O. 6, R. 17—Applicability—Suit for ejectment of mortgagee of occupancy holding—Defendant if and when can set up new plea that mortgagor died leaving heirs.

In a suit for the ejectment of a mortgagee of an occupancy holding where it is alleged that the mortgagor had died leaving no heirs though O. 6, R. 7, C. P. Code, would ordinarily prevent the defendant from setting up a new plea that the mortgagor had not in fact died childless, yet if persons claiming to be such heirs apply to be made defendants, it would be advisable to add them as parties and decide the case once and for all so as to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. The granting of an amendment of the plaint under O. 6. R. 17, C. P. Where the amendment is applied for at a late stage, its object being to meet an objection with regard to the adequacy of the court-fees paid on the plaint and the proposed amendment is not consistent with but constitutes a direct contradiction of the original case pleaded, the amendment cannot be allowed. The plaintiff brought a suit claiming a sum of

The plaintiff brought a suit claiming a sum of Rs.1,500 due to him under a writing in the account books of the defendant dated 6-1-1937 which stated that the plaintiff had helped the defendant for the last two years and worked for him, and that a khata for Rs. 1,500 was therefore executed for his remuneration. The cause of action was based on the agreement and the suit was tried as a suit based on that agreement, although an issue was framed and found in favour of the plaintiff as to the plaintiff having been engaged on a salary of Rs. 750 a year. The trial Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the agreement could not be regarded as a promissory note, but on appeal, the appellate Court, on the facts found, allowed an amendment of the plaint so as to enable the plaintiff to base his claim on the fact of the plaintiff having served for two years on an agreed salary of Rs. 750 a year, although a suit on that claim would, on the date of the amendment, be time barred. In second appeal the defendant contended that the amendment ought not to have been allowed.

Held, that the plaintiff's claim was in no way changed, but was still a claim for a sum of Rs. 1,500, that the difference between the suit upon an agreement recognising service and the suit upon the service itself when service was held to be proved, was no more than a technical difference, and the defendant was not entitled to rely on a plea of limitation at the stage on a ground which was purely technical. The amendment was therefore within the powers of the Court under O. 6, R. 17, C. P. Code, and was rightly allowed. (Macklio, J.) BAI KAMAIA v. SHANKERRAO LAX BANKAO. 209 I.C. 445=16 R. O. 7, R. 6-Applicability-Mortgage suit-Personal remedy—Bar of limitation—Grounds of exemption from limitation—If to be stated in plaint itself—Statement at time of application for personal decree-Sufficiency.

O. 7, R. 6, makes it incumbent on a plaintiff seeking exemption from limitation to state the ground or grounds of exemption, but this does not mean that he must state the ground before the occasion arises for seeking exemption. In a mortgage suit if the mortgaged property, when sold is sufficient to discharge the debt due to the mortgagee, it would not be necessary to apply for a personal decree at all or to show a ground of exemption from limitation in respect of the personal decree. Of course, the suit itself must be in time; but if the suit is brought in time, the plaintiff can plead the ground of exemption when it becomes necessary to apply for a personal decree (that is, after the mortgaged properties are sold and have not realised sufficient to pay off the mortgage). (Leach, C. J. and Lakshmana Rao, J.) GOPALASWAMI RAJA-(1944) Mad. 572=211 I C 630=16 R.M. 559= 1943 M W.N. 698=56 L.W. 649=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 65= (1943) 2 M.L.J. 501.

O. 7, R. 6-Exemption from limitation-

New plea in second appeal—Permissibility.

O 7, R. 6, C. P. Code, enjoins on the plaintiff instituting a suit after the expiry of limitation the duty of stating in his plaint the grounds on which experts from the design of the which exemption from limitation is claimed. The plaintiff cannot claim such exemption at a late stage as e.g., in second appeal. (Grille, C. J. and Puranik, J.) GIRDHARILAL v. RANOO RAGHOJI. I. L.R. (1943) Nag. 764=213 I.C. 23=16 R.N. 251=1943 N.L. J. 611=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 37.

O. 7, R. 6-Exemption from limitation not pleaded cannot be allowed.

Exemption from limitation should not be allowed on a ground that has not been pleaded. No issue arises except when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by one party and denied by the other, and unless the plaintiff set tout in his pleadings the grounds on which he claims exemption from limitation no issue on the point arises and it is not open to the Court to look into evidence in proof of something that has not been pleaded. Where however there was an oral statement by the plaintiffs' pleader that the plaintiffs relied on the debtor's admission before the Debt Conciliation Board as saving limitation it will be unduly technical to hold that the plain-tiff cannot rely on that ground of exemption in second appeal more particularly when no objection was taken in the lower appellate Court. An appellate order setting aside an order for return of plaint for presentation to proper Court and directing the Court to decide the suit according to law is not open to a further appeal. O. 41, R. 23, C. P. P. Code. The order that the lower Court had C. P. Code. The order that the lower Court had jurisdiction is merely an interlocutory order which does not decide or terminate the suit and hence there is no room for the application of S. 115 of the C. P. -0.7. R 11-Applicability-Non-production of document under R. 1+-Rejection of plaint-Legality.

A Court has no power unler O 7, R. 11, to reject a plaint for failure to produce a document on which the plaintiff relies and which the Court directs him to produce under O. 7, R. 14. punishment for non-production of such a document is not the rejection of the plaint but that set out in R. 18 of O. 7 (Horwill, J.) Munuswamy Mudaliar v. Chengalvaraya Naicker. 210 I.C. 13=16 R.M 350=56 L.W. 396=1943 M W N. 436 (2)=A.I.R. 1943 Mad, 645 = (1943) 2 M L.J. 133.

-O. 7, R 11 -Applicability-Suit by one indeterminate body against another similar body of the same community.

Where a suit is by one indeterminate body of one community against a similar body of the same community, and no attempt is made to explain to the Court the true position of the respective bodies, the plaint is bad and should be rejected under O 7, R 11, C. P. Code. (Davis.) ROOF CHAND v. ONKAR LAL. 1941 A.M.L.J. 15.

O. 7, R. 11—Costs—Appeal—Rejection for non-payment of additional Court-fee within time fixed—Costs of preliminory hearing in order for additional Court-tee—Right of respondent. See BOMBAY HIGH COURT RULES (A.S.), R. 130. 43 Bom. L.R. 475.

-O 7, R. 11 and O. 41, R 23—Order dismissing suit after deciting preliminary issue as to its maintainability—Nature of—Remand by appllate Court for further proceedings—Appeal.

The trial Court framed the following two preliminary issuess:—(1) Has this Court jurisdiction to hear this action and grant the plaintiff the relief claimed against defendant No I. (2) Do not the allegations in the plaint disclose a cause of action? After deciding them it dismissed the suit with costs which were taxed on the ordinary scale applicable to the decision of the suit on the merits. On appeal by the plaintiff, the appellate Court remanded the case to the trial Court for further proceedings.

Held, that the trial Court dismissed the suit as being not maintainable and did not merely reject the plaint under O 7, R. 11, C. P. Code, and that consequently an appeal is competent against the remand order under O. 43, R. 1 (u). (Abdul Rashid, J.) ROYAL CALCUTTA TURF CLUB, CALCUTTA v. KISHEN CHAND 201 I.C. 619 =15 R. L. 53=44 P.L.R. 236=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 179.

-O. 7, R. 11—Plaint not disclosing cause of action-Proper order.

If a plaint does not disclose a cause of action, the only legal order that can be passed in the circumstances is one of rejection of plaint under O. 7, R. 11, and not of dismissal. The difference is obvious, as in case of rejection by virtue of R. 13 of the same order the plaintiff is not precluded from bringing a fresh suit on the same cause of action, and this highly prejudices the case of the plaintiff while in case of dismissal this course is not open to him. (Din Mohammad, J.) MUNILAL RAM CHAND v. KALAM SINCH. 210 I.C. 91=16 R.L. 151=45 P.L.R. 133=A,I.R. 1943 Lah. 121.

—O. 7, R. 11—Procedure—Failure to pay additional court-fee—Correct order to pass—

Dismissal of suit-Propriety

Under O. 7, R. 11, C. P. Code, where the plaintiff fails to pay the additional court-fee, required of him within the time fixed, the correct order is to reject the plaint and not to dismiss the suit, though there is very little difference between an order rejecting a plaint and an order dismissing the suit. O. 7, R. 11—Return of plaint—When justified and when not.

When once a plaint has been presented, that is final and unless it is rejected or returned according to O. 7, R. 11, C. P. Code, it is to be immediately registered and a copy of it forwarded with notice to defendant. Return of plaint for without notice to defendants is not proper inasmuch as the defendant is denied any benefit that might accrue to him from the mistake of the plaintiff. (Davies.) Shiam Sunder v. Hari Kishen. 1940 A.M.L.J. 129.

O. 7, R. 11-Scope of Court's powers in regard to improper valuation.

O. 7. R. 11, C. P. Code indicates that if a wrong or an arbitrary valuation is made by the plaintiff the Court can compel him to correct it on pain of dismissal of suit. But the Code does not afford any warrant for the Court itself to amend the valuation put upon the claim by the plaintiff. (Misra and Koul, JJ.) BHAGWATI PRASAD MISRA v. Dy. #### C. P. CODE (1908), O. 8, R. 1.

It cannot be said that in a suit for contribution praying for relief against specified properties on which the plaintiffs claimed a lien, no personal decree can be given to the plaintiffs in the absence of a specific prayer therefor. Such a contention ignores the provisions of O. 7, R. 11, C. P. Code, under which a personal decree may be given on the analogy of a personal decree given in a suit in a mortgage. Code, asking the Court to accept the deficit Court-fee and restore the suit to its original number, there is no bar to the Court treating it as a fresh plaint under R. 13 of O. 7 even though there was no such specific prayer in the application. -O. 8, Rr. 1 and 10-Failure to file written statement on the date of first hearing-Discretion of Court—How to be exercised.

The policy of the law is not to dispose of a case on mere technicalities but decide it as far as possible on merits after hearing parties. Hence though a Court would be within its rights in permitting or not permitting the written statement to be filed, when the party had failed to so file it on the day of the first hearing, the discretion should be exercised judicially. (Sathe, S. M. and Ross, A. M.) HAR CHARAN v. RAI RAM KISHORE. 1943 R.D. 537=1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 324=1944 A.L.J. (Supp.) 17.

According to O. 8, R. 1 (2) (Oudh) it is the bounden duty of the defendants to file a list of the documents to be relied upon on the date of the written statement and to summon the documents, at any rate for the date of issues. If they are unable to procure the documents by that date they could ask leave of the Court to produce them at a later stage. Not doing any of these things where a defendant seeks to file two documents on the date fixed for evidence, the trial Court has perfect discretion to disallow the production of those documents. It is well settled that the provisions of 0. 8. R. 6, C.P. Code, are not exhaustive because apart from a legal set-off expressly provided in regard to an ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by the defendant from the plaintiff, an equitable set-off may also be pleaded in the Indian Courts if the defendant's claim is shown to have arisen from the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim. Where set-off is claimed on the basis of an agreement, no set-off can be allowed outside the terms of the agreement which the Court finds to be proved. The question of set-off can arise only in regard to dues which are outstanding and have not been adjusted in the past. (Fast Ali and Chatterji, JI.) Shiva Prasad Singh v. ——O. 8, R. 6—Right to set-off—Suit by receiver appointed ünder S. 69-A, T. P. Act—Prior debt due to defendant from mortgagor—If can be set-off.

If the defendant is sued by the agent he cannot set-off a debt due from the principal, unless it can be shown that the agent has assented to such a set-off. A receiver appointed under S. 69-A of the T. P. Act is an agent of the mortgagor, and if he sues the defendant to recover a sum of money on the basis of a new contract entered into by him, the defendant cannot seek to set-off against the plaintiff's claim a debt incurred by the mortgagor prior to the date of his appointment. Such a debt is not legally recoverable by the defendant from the plaintiff-it is recoverable from the plaintiff's principal who is not a party to the suit. (Derbyshire, C. J. and Mukherjea, J.) less than or equal to the plaintiff's claim in the suit, it is a plea of set off pure and simple, but if it exceeds the plaintiff's claim it is to the extent of the excess a cross claim, for, for the excess he is to be given a decree against the plaintiff in the same action. By the terms of O. 8, R. 6, C. P. Code, the claim must be legally recoverable, that is, must not be a dead claim. If the defendant does not claim a sum in excess of the plaintiff's claim, on principle the relevant enquiry would be whether it was a dead claim at the date of the plaintiff's suit. Where however the defendant pleads for a sum of money which is in excess of the plaintiff's claim, he occupies to the extent of the excess the position of a plaintiff in a cross suit, and in such a case and for the excess amount time is to be reckoned not from the date of the plaintiff's suit but from the date when he filed his written statement. accounts or no matter what other form it may take it must be accurately assessed by the defendant and thereon an ad valorem court-fee will be payable. In money suits according to R. 6 of O 8, C. P. Code, only an ascertained sum may be set-off. In such suits the written statement is precluded from taking the form of a suit for accounts or from taking any form whatever except that of a claim for an ascertained sum to be credited to the defendant. The court-fee will be payable ad valorem on the ascertained sum claimed and the defendant will be precluded from obtaining any greater amount in the decree. In Indian law no such thing as equitable set-off exists. It is only a legal fiction. (Davies.) BEGUM BIBI v. ONKAR 1945 A. M.L.J. 16. LAL.

In the case of a regular set-off, such as is con-templated by O, 8, R. 6, C. P. The summons issued to the defendants fixed the 25th Eebruary for filing the written statement and the 5th of March for the settlement and framing of issues. The defendants did neither appear on the 25th February nor file the written statement. The suit was decreed ex parte on the 28th February. On an application to set aside the exparte decree on the 5th of March,

Held, that the defendants were not compelled to file a written statement as they were not definitely directed to do so by the Court. In the circumstances the defendants were not bound to appear on the 25th of February. The Court was not entitled to pass a decree against the defendants on the 28th February. ____O. 9 and S. 151—Restoration of execution application dismissed for default after fresh ap-

Although O. 9, C. P. -O. 9, R. 2-Powers of Court-Plaintiff not depositing full process-fee for service on all defendants-Court, if bound to serve some defendants only with process-fee at its disposal—Defendants not served and absent on date fixed for hearing— Dismissal of suit—If without jurisdiction.

If a plaintiff does deposit sufficient processfees for service on all the defendants and fails to deposit the balance of fee before the date fixed for the hearing of the suit, the Court will be justified in dismissing the suit for default. The fact that the defendants are not present on the date of hearing makes no difference, because their absence is due to the non-payment of the process-fee. It is not open to the plaintiff to contend that the Court should serve at least the defendants for whose service the money paid will be sufficient. If the plaintiff wishes the Court to issue process to some of them he must specify which of them he desires to serve. It is not for the Court to decide which of the defendants are to be served, because the plaintiff must afterwards complain that the Court had exercised an unwise discretion by serving unsubstantial defendants and omitting to serve notice on substantial defendants. The plaintiff cannot be allowed to put the Court in such a position. (Agarwala, J.)

Legality.

O. 9, R. 3, C. P. Code, has no application unless a date has been fixed for the appearance of the defendant and neither party appears when the suit is called on for hearing. Where a date is fixed merely for proof of service on the defen-dant if the proof is not forthcoming on the date so fixed, an order dismissing the suit on that date for default on the ground that the plaintiff does not appear and has not taken steps, is illegal. comply—Plaintiff absent when suit called on—

Dismissal for default-Propriety.

The word "hearing" in R. 3 of O. 9, C. P. Code, cannot be read as meaning hearing of the evidence in the case. It is used to indicate that when a summons has been issued upon the defendant calling upon him to appear on a particular date, if the parties fail to appear when the suit is called on for hearing on that date, the plaintiff's suit is subject to dismissal for default. Summons were issued to the defendants in a suit fixing 17-7-1940 for settlement of issues, By that date the summons had been returned as served and the plaintiff was called upon to prove service and to file registered cards by 29-7-1940. On that date the plaintiff filed hazri but did not comply with the order of 15—7—1940. He was directed to comply with that order by 1—8—1940 positively. On that date the case was called out, but the plaintiff did not appear and no steps were taken on his behalf. The suit was then dismissed for default. It was contended that the Court should have proceeded under O. 9, R. 5.

Held. (1) that R.5 of O.9 applied only when summons had been returned as unserved and as in this case the summons had been returned as served, R.5 had no application; (2) that as neither of the parties were present, the conditions requisite for an order under O. 9, R. 3 were present and the suit was rightly dismissed for default, (Agarwal, I.) -O. 9, Rr. 3 and 1-Dismissal of suit for default-When can be made.

A suit cannot be dismissed for default unless and until a date was fixed for the appearance of the defendant and the plaintiff did not appear on that date. (Mir Ahmad, J.) MT. HAMIDAN v. MT. SHARIFAN. 207 I.C. 174=16 R. Pesh. 1 =A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 51.

ouit under O. 9, R. 3 and O. 22, R. 4-Dismissal of suit under O. 9, R. 3-Death of defendant prior to-Restoration and substitution-Time for.

Where after a suit was dismissed under 0.9, R 3, it was found that the defendant had died a day earlier and application for restoration and substitution was made more than 30 days after the dismissal but within 90 days of the death of the defendant and it was allowed in the lower Court, held, that in the circumstances of the case there was no reason to interfere in revision with the order passed. (Shirreff, J.M.) UMMAT-UL-HABIR BEGUM v. IMTIAZ BEGAM. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 609=1941 R.D. 662 (2)=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 669.

- O. 9, Rr. 3 and 4 and S. 151-Suit stayed under S. 10 C. P. Code-Neither party appearing on date subsequently fixed-Order dismissing suit -Application for its revival-Remedy of ptaintiff.

If a Court has made an order under S. 10, C. P. Code, staying the proceedings in a suit. it has no jurisdiction to fix further dates for the hearing of the suit unless moved to do so by either party. If therefore neither party appears on adate subsequently fixed, the Court cannot dismiss the suit under O. 9; R. 3, C. P. Code. The remedy of the plaintiff to revive the suit is, therefore, not by an application under O. 9, R 4, but under S. 151, C. P. Code. (Bobde, J.) GOVERDHAN v. HEMPAJ SINGH. I.L. R. (1944) Nag. 408=

Although a defendant is not entitled as of right to a notice of an application for restoration of the suit made by the plaintiff under O. 9, R. 4, C. P. Code, it is but equitable to hold that if such an application is made and allowed, the Court should fix the case for hearing parties and give notice of the hearing to the defendant, and not proceed ex parte against him. If however, the Court proceeds ex parte against the defendant and pass a decree against him, an application in revision filed by him within time from the date of his knowledge of such decree is not barred by time, atthough it is long after the date of the decree. (Puranik. J.) RAMCHANDRA v. SARADEO. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 312=1945 N.L. J. 156=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 185.

O. 41, C. P. - O. 9, Rr. 6 and 8-Calling of the case and disposal in the absence of parties-Proper procedure.

When a case is called on in its turn and all the parties are not present, it should be put aside for sometime and then called on again, though there is no legal obligation to do so. -O. 9, R. 7—Applicability—Defendant declared ex parte and case adjourned for evidence -Application on adjourned date to set aside exparte proceedings-Duty of Court.

Where after declaring a defendant ex parte the case is adjourned for evidence the defendant applies on the adjourned date to set aside the ex parte proceedings, the case is governed by O. 9, R. 7, and the Court is bound to give the applicant an opportunity to support his contentions There is no reason why a defendant should ordinarily not be allowed to take part in the proceedings of pending case from the stage at which he puts in his appearance. (Shirreff, S.M. and Sathe, J.M.) RAM SARUP SINGH V. MAHABIR SINGH. 1942 R.D. 722=1942 A.W. R. (Rev.) 395 (2)=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 594= 1942 O.A. (Supp.) 42 (2).

—0. 9, R. 7—Applicability—Soldier defendant declared ex parte—Right to intervene and defend suit thereafter—Conditions—Suspension of proceedings—When to be ordered—Soldiers Litigation Act, Ss. 6 and 10.

A defendant who has made default in appearance and against whom the Court has decided to proceed ex parte is not entitled to appear and defend the suit at any subsequent time (before suit) as of right and without assigning good cause. The fact that he is a soldier serving in the Army, makes no difference. The position is the same both under O, 9, R. 7, C. P. Code and under S. 10, Indian Soldiers Litigation Act. The words of O. 9, R. 7 are unequivocal and make it plain that the only circumstance in which a defendant who has omitted to obey the summons can be heard in answer to the suit is when he appears and assigns good cause for his previous non-appearance. A soldier defendant who has been declared ex parte cannot also succeed in obtaining suspension of proceedings under S. 6 of the Indian Soldiers Litigation Act, while the defendant in the proceedings is "merely of a formal nature" within the meaning of the second part of proviso (b) to S. 6, and therefore the Court will not suspend the proceedings under S. 6. It is always a serious step to suspend litigation indefinitely and the Act is designed to ensure that a suit shall not be held up unless justice really requires it. (O'Sullivan, J.) HARIRAM v. -O. 9, R. 8—Dismissal for default of transferred cases-Duty of transferring Court.

If a case is transferred during the course of the day, from the principal Court to the extra Court, the fact must be announced in the original Court and if names are called out, they should be called out by the Court peon of the Court from which the case has been transferred. It is obviously necessary to take great care in this connection for parties can hardly expect that their cases will be transferred without warning. Where such a procedure is not followed an order of dismissal for default by the transferee Court is liable to be set aside. (Davies, C.J.) ABDUL RASHID v. NASIRABAD URBAN BANK, LTD. 1943 A.M.L.J. 62.

-O. 9, R. 8-Non-appearance of plaintiff-Day fixed for written statement—Dismissal if justified.

On the date fixed for the filing of written statement there is no necessity for the plaintiff to be present. A dismissal for his absence on that date is illegal (Davies.) BISAL SINGH v. BAJ MAL. 1941 A.M.L.J.39.

9, R. 9-Applicability - Appeal-Pleader for appellant absent—Procedure—Dismissal for default=Presence of party—Effect.

Where the pleader authorized to appear for the appellant in an appeal is absent, the Court is bound to treat the appeal as one in which the appellant is absent, though he may be physically present in Court and to dismiss it for default. The appeal cannot be disposed of on the merits in such a case. (Horwill, J.) China Basava Satyanarayana v. H. R. E. There is no provision in the Madras Village

Code, does not apply to proceedings under the Village Courts Act and S. 141, C.P. Code, cannot be invoked in order to enable an applicant to avail himself of the remedy under 0, 9, R. 9, C. P. Code. Where an adjournment of a petition under S. 73 so as to enable the petitioner's pleader to be present is refused and the petition is dismissed for default, such a refusal will be an error in the exercise of jurisdiction and the order of dismissal may be interfered with by the High Court under S. 115, C. —O. 9, R. 9—Applicability—Civil Revision Petition—Dismissal for default—Jurisdiction to restore S. 151.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to restore to the file Civil Revision Petitions which have been dismissed for default of appearance. O.9. R. 9. C. P. A Court has no power under O. 9, C. P. Code, to restore an execution petition which has been dismissed for detault of the decree-holder in remedying the defects as ordered by the Court. Nor can the inherent power of the Court under S. 151, C. P. Code, be utilised for this purpose. The proper remedy of the decreeholder in such a case is to file a fresh execution application within the period of limitation or to apply for review. Even in the case of a review notice has to go to the judgment-debtor. The Court has no jurisdiction at all to restore the application without notice to the judgment-debtor. If it does so, it acts legally in the exercise of its jurisdiction and the High Court can interfere in revision. (Agarwala, J.) RAJ KISHORE PD. NARAIN SINGH v. MOJIBUL RAHMAN. 22 Pat.L.T. 965.

If on the facts and circumstances which the lower Court has itself accepted there is sufficient cause for non-appearance, the High Court in revision has the power to set aside the order dismissing the application for restoration. -O. 9, R. 9-Cause of action-Meaning-Dismissal of suit for ejectment for default-If bars subsequent suit for arrears of rent

'Cause of action' means the whole bundle of material facts necessary to maintain a suit. The dismissal of a suit for ejectment for default cannot bar a subsequent suit for arrears of rent though the issue whether the defendants were sub-tenants of the plaintiff was common to both the suits. The cause of action is different in the two suits. (Shirreff, S. M. and Sathe, J. M.) SHEO HARAKH v. DWARIKA KURMI. 1942 A.W. R. (Rev.) 329=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 355=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 541.

-O. 9, R. 9-Dismissal for default-Procedure to be followed.

It is not right to say that orders of dismissal in default should not be passed till the end of the day when the Court rises when only there can be a default. Litigants are ordinarily required to attend the Court at 10 A.M. and when they fail to do so without sufficient cause, there is no reason why they should not be penalised. To reason why they should not be penalised. To allow them to attend at any time of the day before the Court rises, might make it impossible to carry on the work of the Court properly, by putting it in the power of litigants to obstruct it. A batch of rent suits was dismissed both on the ground that the plaintiff had not taken out process to the defendants and also on the ground that neither the plaintiff nor his pleader was present. An application to set aside that order was dismissed. On the question of appealability

Held, the wording of the Madras Estates Land Act, S. 192 (as amended) does not suggest that the provisions of the C. P. Code can be applied only with regard to purely procedural matters and there is nothing in that section even when read with S. 189 which suggest that an application under O. 9, of the Code would be precluded. Accordingly an appeal would lie from the order dismissing the application to set a side the order of dismissal. (Horwill. J.) VENKATARAMIAH CHETTI. v. VENKATASWAMI CHETTI. I.L.R. O. 9, R. 13—Applicability—Defendant's application for further adjournment refused— Decree after hearing plaintiff's evidncee—If ex parte—Remedy of defendant.

In dealing with an adjourned case under O. 17, R. 2, C. P. If the latter course is adopted, the defendant is entitled to apply to get the decree set aside under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code. The Court can hear the evidence of the plaintiff in the absence of the defendant and make such order as that evidence justifies. Where on the date to which the hearing of a suit is adjourned, the defendant applies for a further adjournment which is refused, and the Court hears the evidence of the plaintiff and gives a decree in his favour, the decree is one made ex parte and the defendant therefore is entitled to apply under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, to have it set aside. It is not necessary for him to appeal against the decree, treating it as one passed on the merits. (Beaumont, C.J. and Wassoodew, J) GURUNATH EKNATH v. considerations.

In disposing of a restoration application the question whether the plaintiff had taken any steps to discharge the onus placed on him for proving the issues in the main suit is quite irrelevant. The only grounds which can be considered in disposing of it are the excuses put forward by the applicant for his non-appearance on the date fixed for the hearing of the suit. (Sathe, S.M.) Under that rule the Court has no power to set it aside except on the grounds stated in that rule. Where an order setting aside an ex parte decree is made without consideration of the question whether it had jurisdiction or not, it is made illegally or with material irregularity within the meaning of cl. ### C. P. CODE (1908), O. 9, R. 13.

In order to determine whether a decree is exparte or not, the facts of each case have to be considered. The mere non-recital in the court's order that a decree is ex parte is not conclusive that it was not ex parte. Where one of the defendants is not properly served and an exparte decree is passed against him, and the other defendants appeal, it is open to the defendant against whom the exparte decree was passed to apply under 0.9, R. 13 to the court which passed the decree originally, even though the appeal by the other defendants is dismissed by the appellate court. So far as he is concerned there can be no merger of the trial court decree in that of the appellate court. (Ross. J.M.) BAL KARAN PANDE In re. 1945 R.D. 222=1945 A.W.R. (Rev.) 108.

O. 3, R. 1, governs O. 11, R. 1, C. P. Code. The former order is a general one and has general application. Therefore, unless there is something specific to show that its provisions are not intended to apply to some act or appearance in some particular case, it ought to be applied. If a party to a suit is ordered to answer interrogatories, he is not bound to answer personally in the absence of a special direction to that effect, and he can answer through some recognised agent, who knows the facts. In other words, an affidavit need not be sworn to by the party himself and this can be done by a recognised agent. (Bose, J.) K.C. MAJUMDAR SURAJ SINGH. I.L.R. O. 11, Rr. 12 and 15-Relative scope-Right of defendant to discovery and inspection of plaintiff's documents before filing written statement.

Under R. 15 of O. 11, C. P. Code, the rights of parties are not the same as under R. 12. Under R. 15, notice may be given at any time for production of documents for inspection, but the rule only refers to a document to which reference has been made in the pleadings or affidavits of the party to whom notice is given. To bring his application within the rule a defendant applicant must show that the plaint has referred to any such document. In the case of documents referred to in the plaint, the defendant can inspect them even before filing his written statement. But he is not so entitled to inspect, before filing his written statement, documents which are not referred to in the plaint, under R. 12 of O. 11, even though they relate to a matter in question in the suit. ——0. 11, R. 14—Discretion of Court—Order directing defendant to apply for certified copies of income-tax returns and profit and loss statements and produce them at plaintiff's cost—Legality—Income-tax Act, S. 54.

An order under O. 11, R. 14, C. P. Code, is a discretionary order, and the power should be exercised with great caution. Further the rule deals only with existing dycuments and documents which at the time of the application are in the possession or power of the party against whom the order is sought to be made. On an application by the plaintiff in a suit, the lower Court ordered the defendant to apply for a certificate copy of his income-tax returns and profit and loss statements with particulars submitted by him to the income-tax department and to produce them at the plaintiff's cost.

Held, (1) that there being no document in existence, it could not be in the power of the defendant; (2) that the Court was prohibited from ordering a defendant to produce his income-tax returns in view of S. 54 of the Income-tax Act; (3) and that the order was therefore contrary to law and should be set aside. O. 11, R. 21, C. P. Code, gives the Court power to make such a penal order as striking out the defence only in the case of non-compliance with an order to answer interrogatories or for discovery or inspection of documents, and not where there has been a failure to carry out an order for production. In the latter case, it is very doubtful whether the Court can pass such an order in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction in view of the express provisions contained in O. 11, R. 21. ——O. 11, R. 21—Scope—Penalty when to be imposed—Failure to produce document before Commissioner—No application for production before Court—Presumption under S, 114. Evidence Act—If must be drawn.

O. 11. R. 21, imposes a penalty which is of a very drastic nature, and before it is imposed it is just that the procedure laid down in O. II should but be complied with. Where in an injury as to mesne profits on the basis of a decree, the defendant applies to the Commissioner conducting the inquiry for calling upon the plaintiff to produce certain documents but the plaintiff does not produce the same, in spite of the direction by the Commissioner to produce the documents it is still open to the defendant when the Commissioner's report comes before the Court to press for the production of the documents by following the procedure laid down in O. 11, for the discovery of documents. When the defendant does not do so and does not ask the Court not to decide the case until the discovery has been ordered he cannot ask the Court to apply R. 21 of O. 11, or to draw an inference adverse to the plaintiff from the fact of non-production of the documents, because it cannot be said in such a case that the plaintiff has been legally required to produce them. The Court is not in error in not drawing the presumption under S. 114 of the Evidence Act when the procedure indicated in O. 11 has not been complied with. S. 114 of the Evidence Act is not mandatory and merely enables the Court tomake a certain presumption in certain circumstances and though S. 114 of the Evidence Act is quite independent of the provisions of O. 11, the Court may refuse to draw the inference. Cl. III of R. 6 of O. 12, C. P. Code, does contemplate an order having the status of a decree being passed on an application under O. 12, R. 6, C. P. Code. Such a decree may be either preliminary or final, and may be partly preliminary and partly final. Where in a suit for a share in the family properties by a Hindu widow basing her right under the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, and a decree, which is partly preliminary and partly final, is made, allotting certain properties to each of the parties, on the basis of the admissions contained in the written statement of the defendant on the representations of the advocate of the defendant, subject to a reservation as to re-allotment of the properties if considered necessary or desirable at the final decree stage in order to provide for family debts or maintenance claims, etc., there can be no variation of that decree afterwards either by consent of parties or by order of Court so far as the conceding of the right of the plaintiff to a share in the divisible properties. The existence of the reservation as to re-allotment does not detract from its character as a decree. It would not be open to the defendant to amend his written statement so as to embody contentions directly opposite to what had been urged in the original written statement. When the admissions made by the defendant have gone beyond the stage of a decree duly passed, it would not be open to the defendant to apply for an amendment thereafter. ing and recording the proper issues has been placed on the Court by C. P. Code. In framing such issues Courts of law should exert themselves so as to make them sufficiently expressive of the matters which they desire to consider under such issues. Where in a suit filed under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, the issue raised was: "Is the suit maintainable according to law and in its present form?"

Held, that the issue did not cover the point whether the decree sought to be executed was not available against the execution debtors named in the application for execution, as it was not a defect in the frame of the suit and did not touch the maintainability of the suit.  $\mathbf{O.14}$ ,  $\mathbf{R.1}$  (5)—Issues raising questions of relevancy of evidence—If may be framed—"Material proposition"—Meaning.

It cannot be the object of a proceeding under O. 14, R. 1 (5), C. P. Code, to find out what evidence would be necessary. The question of relevancy of evidence cannot be determined before the issues have been framed, nor can issues be framed merely for the purpose of determining in advance what evidence may or will have to be given or allowed. That is a matter which must be left to the trying judge to determine if and when evidence is offered in accordance with the provisions of the Evidence Act. The issues must be confined to the real questions in controversy. The mere fact that certain allegations are made on the one side and denied on the other does not make them "material" for the purpose of the framing of issues. (Biswas and Latifar Rahman, JJ.) -O. 14, R. 5—Adding new issue on date of hearing—Propriety—Appellate courts powers.

There is nothing extraordinary and still less improper in the framing of a new issue on the day of the hearing. If this had the effect of taking a party by surprise, that might be a good reason for giving him time to collect evidence to meet the new issue. It is not a ground for setting aside a dicree on appeal and ordering the case to be retried. The really material question with which the appellate Court is concerned with is to see whether the parties had gone to trial knowing what the really material question between them was and had an opportunity of giving evidence on that question. R. I. of O. 16, C. P. A decree passed by the Court on evidence led by the plaintiff after the defendant's pleader has withdrawn from the case for want of instructions is an ex parte decree and not a decree on the merits. It falls under O. 17, R. 2, and therefore an application to set it aside under O. 9, R. 13, is maintainable. Mere withdrawal from the case would not be sufficient to attract the application of O. 17, R. 2, read with O. 9, R. 6. The withdrawal must be on account of the pleader being not duly instructed and able to answer all material questions relating to the suit as provided in O. 5, R. 1. Under O. 17, R. 3, C. P Code, it lies with the Court to decide the case on the merits on the postponed date of hearing, but as will be manifest from the rule itself, the absence of the party or his failure to produce evidence must be with-out reasonable excuse. When after dismissing a suit under O. 17, R. 3 the Court becomes aware of the existence of 'reasonable excuse' for the party's absence, the Court itself has no jurisdiction to set it aside, inasmuch as it was not an order passed under R. 2 of O. 17 but was one passed under R. 3 of that order. When the matter comes upon appeal it would be open to the appellate Court to take note of the "reasonable excuse" and set aside the decision. (Allsop and Sinha, II.) UDAI RAM GOPI RAM v. Remedy open.

Where a case is adjourned to another date at the request of defendants to enable him to produce certain witnesses and on the adjourned date the defendant is absent but the plaintiff is however present and the Court after recording the evidence produced by him proceeds to dispose of the case on the merits and writes a considered judgment, the order must be held to be one under 0.17, R.3 and not under either the first or second paragraph of R.2 of O.17. The only remedy the defendants can have against such an order is by way of appeal and not by way of a restoration application. (Shirreff, J. M. and Sathe, A. M.) (1941) A.W.R. SURYAPAL SINGH v. BAKHARI. (Rev.) 1096=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 889.

C, P. CODE (1908), O. 18, R. 18.

The order in which evidence is led is not invariable and depends upon the issues in the case. If the cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses has been left out inadvertently the Court has inherent power to allow the cross-examination at a later stage after the closing of the defence evidence. The failure of an Assistant Collector to maintain a memorandum in English of the evidence taken by the Court Ahalmad is an irregularity, but where it has not prejudiced the case of either party it may be condoned under S. 99, C. -O. 18, R. 18—Object of local inspection— Time for local inspection-Inspection after whole arguments are over-Propriety-Duty of judge to record facts observed by him without recording impressions or opinions-Proper procedure-

Evidentiary value.

It is always desirable in cases where local in-spection is necessary that the Judge should carry out the inspection at any stage before the arguments are heard and if he conducts the inspection at the request of the parties it should be made clear whether the parties have left the matter to be decided as he thinks proper from his inspection or that he is merely inspecting under O. 18, R. 18, C. P. Code. If the Judge records his impressions or opinions in his notes of inspection, the parties must have an opportunity to urge their arguments on those notes at the time when the case is generally argued before the Court. It would generally be desirable for the Judge to confine his notes to the facts which he observes without recording his impressions or opinions. His notes are not only a relevant but an important piece of evidence in the case and his findings based on his local inspection are entitled to great weight by the Court of appeal in the same manner in which findings based on appreciation of oral evidence would be. The Judge is entitled to form his impressions, but if he records them in the notes, the parties should have an opportunity to meet them in their arguments and he should not decide the case merely from his impressions without giving due weight to the evidence. The Court of appeal would no doubt give due weight to what the Judge observes in his inspection, but the purpose of local inspection is not to make it a substitute for the evidence but to assist in its appreciation. To make a local inspection after the arguments of both sides are over without an opportunity to the parties or their pleaders to challenge the notes before judgment is pronounced is not a proper procedure. -O. 20, R. 3-Dating of judgment-Duty of Court.

Judgments in judicial proceedings are of permanent value and can be quoted at any time in future. Where a case is complicated, it is desirable that a Judge of the Court of Small Causes should briefly state the reasons for his decision and the process by which he has reached the conclusion, in order to enable the High Court to decide under S. 25 of the Prov. S. C. Courts Act whether the decision is according to law. (Sen. J.) Noorbux v. Kalyandas. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 475=1945 N.L.J. 267=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 192.

-O. 20, R. 4 (1)—Small cause judgment— Contents—Reasons for decisions—When to be given—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, S. 25.
O. 20, R. 4 (1), C. P. Code, should be considered along with the provisions of S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and the latter provision impliedly requires the Judge deciding a small cause suit to make his judgment suffi-ciently intelligible to enable the High Court to be satisfied that his decision is according to law. O. 20, R. 4 (1) does not debar the Judge from making his judgment intelligible by giving a few reasons, if he thinks it necessary, especially when complicated questions of law are raised. On a reasonable interpretation of O. 20, R. 4 (1) and S. 25, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, in a small cause suit, on a question of fact, the Judgeneed not give more than a clear statement of the points which he has to decide and his decisions thereon, and if he thinks them to be sufficiently intelligible, he is not bound to give his reasons for those decisions. But on a question of law, if

——O. 20, R. 4 (2) and O. 41, R. 31—Judgment—Contents—Desirability of omitting summaries of oral evidence and arguments.

The practice of giving in the body of the judgment a summary of the oral evidence, and counsel's arguments or of a tabular list of documentary evidence filed, is to be deprecated. A trial Court must after giving a general narrative of the case and detailing the issues framed consider the evidence both oral and documentary on each issue separately and give its own findings thereon. Similarly an appellate Court should after giving a general narrative of the case state the points pressed in the appeal before it and give its own findings on each point separately after considering (1) the views of the lower Court, (2) the arguments of counsel, and (3) the evidence on record. If in any special case a tabular list or summary has to be given it should generally form an appendix or schedule to the judgment instead of being incorporated in the body of the judgment. (Shirreff, S.M. and Sathe, J. M.) Jokhu Mal v. Sheo Ghulam Mal. 1942 R.D. 971=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 538=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 512=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 789.

Where a judgment does not contain a concise statement of the case, the points for determination the decision of the Court and the reasons for such a decision but merely gives reference to the report of the Ahalmad and relies on it entirely it does not satisfy the requirements of law. findings on all issues to avoid remand by appellate Court.

In all cases open to appeal the trial judge should determine and give findings on all issues, so that the appellate Court may have the benefit of the view of the evidence taken by the trying judge and need not remand the case. (Divatia and Sen, II.) SHIVSHANKAR CHHAGANLAL v. LAXMAN CHIMANLAL. I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 441=206 I.C. 318=15 R.B. 393=45 Bom.L.R. 78=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 83.

The normal practice for Courts in trying suits is to decide all the issues which have been framed so as to make it unnecessary thereafter for the appellate Court again to refer the matter to the trial Court and to require the parties to adduce fresh evidence. It is not in accordance with the correct practice to limit the decision of the suit out of which an appeal, and possibly an appeal to the Judicial Committee as well, lies, to some of the issues only. —O. 20, R. 5 and O. 41, R. 31—Judgments of trial and appellate Court—Contents—Examination of evidence—Necessity.

Though R. 5 of O. 20 does not specifically state that the trial Court must also examine the evidence led on each issue, it is implied in the direction contained in the rule which requires that the reasons of the Court must be stated in the judgment. The reasons can depend only upon an examination of the evidence and the law on the subject. Hence an examination of all the evidence on record whether oral or documentary is essential before a trial Court comes to decide the case. Similarly under O. 41, R. 31, the appellate court must examine the evidence on both sides before arriving at a decision and the judgment itself must contain the reasons for the decision and indicate that the Court has applied its mind to an examination of the evidence. (Sathe; S.M. and Ross, J.M.) MANSINGH v. JUGUL. S.M. and Ross, J.M.) Mansingh v. Jugul. Kishore. 1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 29=1944 R.D. 78.

——O. 20, R. 5—Procedure—Court disposing of suit on one issue only—Duty to record findings on all relevant issues.

The Subordinate Courts in all appealable cases should pronounce their decision on all the relevant issues so that if the superior Courts take a different view upon the issue which alone has been decided by the Subordinate Court, the parties litigant would be saved from the harassment of a consequent remand. —O. 20, R. 6 (2)—Decree—Contents—Preemption decree.

Decrees of Court should be drawn up by Judges in such a way as to make them self-contained and capable of execution without referring to any other document. Where a pre-emption decree merely reproduces the words of an order as to amendment of the order as to costs it is not a self-contained decree; but far from it. The Court should clearly specify the cost and also how it should be adjusted with reference to the pre-emption money. (Ghulam Havan, I.) MAHOMED ZAFAR v. -O. 20, R. 13-Administration suit-Nature and incidents of-Duty of Court-Receiver in-Status and powers of-Property-If vests in Court or receiver.

An administration suit under O. 20, R. 13, is in essence a suit for an account and application of the estate of a deceased debtor for the satisfaction of the dues of all his creditors. The entire administration and settlement of the estate are assumed by the Court. The assets are marshalled and a decree is made for the benefit of all the creditors. For this purpose the Court has to appoint a receiver, but that receiver has no better status than that of a receiver appointed under O. 40, R. 1. The property does not vest in him as it does in a receiver appointed in an insolvency proceeding. O. 20, R. 13 (2) has nothing to do with the vesting of the property in the receiver. The receiver's possession is the possession of the Court which takes upon itself the management during the continuation of the litigation. The interest in the property is not thereby transfer-red either to the Court or to the receiver. It is, however, the duty of the Court to see that all the assets are realised and equitably distributed among all the creditors. (Lokur, J.) Abdul Rahim v. Where in respect of property capable of symbolical possession only, the pre-emptor deposits the purchase money into Court within the allowed time, then under O. 20, R. 14, he acquires automatically a title to the property from that date. Hence his subsequent failure to obtain symbolical delivery under O. 21, R. 36, or failure to take further steps like mutation or correction of names cannot defeat the title so acquired. In a suit for accounts the Judge must first of all make up his mind whether the defendant is an accounting party. If he is, then the Judge must next determine whether the defendant has already accounted or is relieved from accounting, If he decides that an account has to be rendered, then he should pass a preliminary decree in accordance with R. 16 of O 20, and when doing so it is of the utmost importance that he should bear in mind that in most cases special directions are necessary. A compromise decree in a partition suit allotting specific properties to the parties and specifying the properties allotted to share of each party is not a preliminary decree contemplated by O. 24, R. 18, C. P. Code, but is the final decree in the suit, and nothing more remains to be done except to engross it on a stamped paper under Art. 45 of the Stamp Act. There is no time limit for so engrossing it on stamp of the requisite value. The decree to be engrossed will bear the date of the decree and will declare the position of the parties in respect of the properties on that date. Mere engrossment of the decree on stamp of the requisite value will not in any way affect the interests of the parties though changes may have occurred in respect of the properties after decree and before engrossment. The question whether a decree was adjusted by a compromise as alleged by an applicant under O. 21. R. 2, C. P. It cannot be said that the Court which passed the decree and which is hearing an application under O. 21, R. 16, C. P. Code, is not a Court executing the decree within the meaning of O. 21, R. 2 (3). An application by the assignee of a decree to the Court which passed the decree under R. 16 of O. 21, C.P. Code, is an application for leave to execute the decree. The Court which passed the decree and which hears the application under R. 16 is hearing it as an executing Court and is accordingly bound by the prohibition in O, 21, R. 2 (3). It cannot therefore recognise or give effect to an uncertified payment or adjustment. (Beaumont, C.J., Macklin and Sen, J.) KRISHNA GOVIND PATIL v. MOOLCHAND KESHAVCHAND. I.L.R. for delivery of possession—Plea by judgment-debtor that he was to be in possession under agreement between him, decree-holder and third party—If open.

O. 21, R. 2, C.P. Code, is concerned only with satisfaction and adjustment of a decree and the manner in which it should be brought to the notice of the Court and the consequences of failure to do so. It cannot possibly apply to a situation in which the decree-holder has realised his money by selling the judgment debtor's property in execution and receiving the sale proceeds either in cash if some one else has purchased the property or by set off if he has purchased it himself. A clear distinction has to be drawn between prooceedings for execution of the decree and the proceedings in execution. Where a decree-holder purchaser's application for delivery of the property parchased by him under O. 21 R. 95, C. P. Code, is resisted by the judgmentdebtor, his plea being that under an agreement between him, the decree-holder and a third person he was to be let in possession of the property sold in execution, the Court cannot refuse to consider such a plea by reason of O. 21, R. 2 (3). Since at such a stage, execution in the strict sense of the term is over before an application for delivery of possession is made the plea is open to the judgment debtor and the Court should consider the plea on its merits. -0. 21, R. 6-Failure to send decree in time-Irregularity.

Where the decree-holder has applied for transfer of the decree in time, the failure of the Court which passed the decree to send the decree in time to the transferee Court is a mere irregularity. (Henderson, J.) HOSAI-NALI RAJ v. BARISAL RINDAN SAMITY, LTD. 219 LC. 112=18 B.C. 77=79 C.L.J. 110=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 141.

The transfer of a decree to another Court for execution comes into effect from the date when the order of transfer is made and when once such an order is made the Court to which the decree is transferred has jurisdiction to entertain the application for execution even though a copy of the decree has not been received by it. Hence, when an execution application is presented to the transferee Court after an order for transfer of the decree had been passed, but the order of transfer is not filed, that Court is not justified in dismissing it even without registering it on that ground. It is open to the Court to receive it and give time for furnishing the necessary papers and to dismiss the application if they are not filed even then. (Yahya Ali, J.) PERUMAL CHETTIAR 2. If a decree is assigned jointly in favour of several persons such assignees may be deemed as joint decreeholders for the purpose of the application of O. 21, R. 15, C.P. Code. Though Rr. 15 and 16 of O. 21, C.P. Code, do not in terms apply to the execution of a decree hy only one out of several assignees of that decree. S. 151, C. P. Code, empowers the executing Court to apply principles analogous to those rules. Where rights are conferred by the Code and no provision is made for a particular set of facts, the Courts ought to apply the provisions which are nearest in point with such modifications as may be necessary, not refusing relief on the ground that the Legislature has not in terms made provision for a particular case. The object of S. 151, C. P. Code, is to give such power to Courts and to prevent a failure of justice. Reading O. 21, Rr. 15 and 16 with Ss. 146 and 151, C.P. Code, there can be no objection to one of the assignees of a decree being allowed to execute it on behalf of himself and the other assignees. The Court may impose under O. 21, R. 15 (2), C.P. Code, such terms for the conduct of the execution as may be necessary for the protection of the interests of the other assignees. The proper course in such a case would, no doubt, be to require the other assignees to be brought on the record of the execution proceedings. (Macklin and Lokur, JJ.) SHANKAR HARI v. It is not open to one of two joint decree-holders to certify satisfaction of the whole decree so as to bind the other decree-holder; he can only certify satisfaction in respect of his own interest in the decree. A decree in favour of two persons jontly cannot be executed by one of them in respect of what he considers his share of the decree, nor can the whole decree be executed by one of the decree holders alone unless he complies with the provisions of O. 21, R. 15, C.P. The object of R, 15 of O. 21, C.P. Where one of several decree-holders applies for execution and the others do not object, it is not for the judgment-debtor to plead that sufficient steps have not been taken to safeguard the interest of the other decree-holders. One of two decree-holders applied to execute the decree and in the appropriate column of the application, the names of both were mentioned. The other decree-holder actually appeared in the execution proceedings. The Court also took steps to protect the interest of the latter.

O. 21, Br. 15 and 16—Scope—Right to apply for execution—Hindu co-parcener—Right to apply for execution of decree not made in his favour—Procedure.

It is only a decree-holder who can ordinarily apply for execution of his decree. If there are more decreeholders than one, it is competent to one of the several joint decree-holders to apply for execution under R, 15 of O. 21, C.P. Code, under R. 15 a transferee can also apply for execution. A decree-holder entitled to execute the decree as such must appear to be a decree-holder on the face of the decree itself. The executing Court cannot look to anything outside or beyond the decree in order to satisfy itself that the person who is applying for execution is the decree-holder. A co-parcener in a Hindu joint family in whose favour a decree is not passed can never be a decree-holder though he may become a transferce of the elecree by operation of law and then execute it under O. 21, R. 16, C.P. Code. But he must first apply to the Court which passed the decree to recognise him as transferee. (Stone, C.J. and Chagla, J.) KIRTILAL JIVABHAI v. CHUNILAL MANILAL, 47 Bom. L.R. 728.

A decree declaring title to the money obtained or due under another decree does not ipso facto constitute an assignment; at best it creates a right to obtain an assignment of the decree for the purpose of realisation of the debt to which the title is conferred. No particular form of words is required to constitute an "assignment" but three must be some written authority proceeding from the transferor of the decree and operating so as to vest the decree in the transferee. A decree based on an award in arbitration declaring that a partner in a firm is entitled to all the outstandings of the firm including a decree for money obtained by the firm against a party, is not an assignment within the meaning of O. 21. R. 16, C. P. Code. Where an application for execution of a decree is made by a transferee of the decree, he has to establish his title in the first instance under O. 21, R. 16, C.P. Code, he has to apply to the Court which passed the decree and on the notice being issued on this application the Court will decide if the applicant is the person entitled to execute the decree. The exent of his right and the conditions on which he may in fact proceed with the execution are not touched by this decision, because the Court does not at this stage decide how far the decree can be executed, or the objections, if any, to the decree being executed. It only decides that the decree may be executed as if the application were made on behalf of the decree-holder himself. On this notice being made absolute, the only right which the transferee acquires is the right to execute the decree in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as the decree-holder himself had. Any objections raised by the judgment-debtor or his legal representatives to the execution of the decree on the score of limitation or satisfaction of the decree, etc., cannot be considered at that stage. The transferee of a decree does not as a result of the assignment in his favour become a "decree-holder". It may be that after recognition is accorded by the Court to the transferee of a decree, and the transferee is allowed to execute it under 0.21 R. 16, C.P. Code, the Court will not entertain an application by the original decree-holder for the execution of the same decree. But so long as this is not done, the decree-holder's right to apply for execution of his decree remains unaffected. (Thomas. C. J. and Koul., J.) MOHD. ISHRAT ALJ v. MOHD. SAVED RAZA. 1945 A.W.R. -0.21, R. 16—Non-service of notice—Judgmentdehtor appearing and objecting to execution—Proceeding, if vitiated.

The object of O. 21, R. 16, C.P. Code, is to give the indgment-debtor an opportunity to object to execution by the assignee. The rule does not enact a formalistic but essential ritual, and if the judgment debtor appears and objects to such execution, the proceeding is not a nullity merely because he has not been served properly with the piece of paper informing him of his opportunity to object. This is so, particularly having regard to the rule as ameneded by the Calcutta High Court. (Razeureh and Blank, II.) ARIUN I AL AGARWALLA T. RANAEPPARI CHATTERIFE. 77 C.L.J. 434—A.I. Mortgage decree—Decree-holder adjudged trialized by foreign Court—Receiver as pointed by foreign Court

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 16.

The expression "by operation of law" in O. 21, R. 16. C. P. Code, means by operation of the appropriate law, but the law in force in a foreign system is not one which Courts in British India will recognise. No Court will recognise the transfer of immovable property situate within its own jurisdiction by the operation of a foreign system of law. The title to immovable property is always governed by the lex loci. To transfer a decree which operates upon immovable property in British India cannot be transferred by the operation of a system of law other than that of British India where the immovable property is situate. A mortgage decree was passed in favour of H. N. against the respondents on 1st February, 1932, by a Court in Bombay. The decree directed payment to the plaintiff of a sum of Ks. 13,000 by instalments and it was provided that in default of payment of any two instalments, the plaintiff could recover the whole amount by sale of the mortgaged properties. The plaintiff H. N. was in 1936 declared insolvent by a Court in a foreign State, and the appellant was appointed Receiver. The latter in his own name applied to the Bombay Court to execute the decree by sale of the mortgaged properties.

Held, that it would be wrong in principle to allow title to land in British India to depend on the state of some foreign law, and that the title of the receiver appointed by the foreign Court to execute the decree could not be recognised and that he could only enforce the decree by obtaining from the insolvent (H. N.) an assignment of the insolvent's interest in the decree in British India. (Beaumont C.J., and Macklin, J.) HARILAL PANNALAL v. VISHNU RAMCHANDRA. LLR. -Notice issued under 0.21, R. 22 containing particulars required by R. 16—Sufficiency—Omission of ind general debtor to raise objection to assignment on ground of invalidity or non-proof or inadmissibility of assignment deed—Effect—Res judicata.

The purpose of giving a notice to the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 16, C. P. Code, is to acquaint him with the fact that the darkhas purports to execute the decree on behalf of the assignee from the judgment-creditor and to ask him to show cause why the assignee should not be allowed to execute the decree. Where on a darkhast filed by the decree-holder and the assignee jointly, a notice was issued to the judgment-debtor, purporting to be one under 0. 21, R. 22, and the notice stated that the assignee had filed a darkhast on the ground that he had purchased the decree in writing from the decree-holder and asked the judgment-debtor to show cause why the transferee should not be allowed to execute the decree along with the 'judgment-debtor, it must be held, that the notice is a good and sufficient notice both under O. 21, R. 16 and O 21, R. 22. If the judgment-debtor does not raise any objection then to execution of the decree on the ground that the assignment should not be recognised, or that the assignment deed has not been produced in Court, or proved or that it is unregistered and hence inadmissible, and allows execution to proceed, he cannot afterwads in a subsequent darkhast raise these objections. The omission on his part to raise the objections would debar the judgment-debtor on the principle of constructive res judicata from raising or urging the same, in a subsequent SUNDARABAI BALAPPAdarkhast. Under O. 21, R. 16, which provides for notice to the judgment debtor or judgment-debtors, there is no necessity for the issue of notices on those judgment-debtors against whom the decree is not going to be executed and who are not interested in the execution proceedings. Therefore absence of notice to such judgment-debtors will not affect the validity of the order recognising the assignment of the decree or the proceedings in execution. Where the Court does not carry out the duties imposed upon it by this rule and fails to discover the fact that the principal amount of the decree has not been entered in Col. The adjustment contemplated in O. 21, R. 18, C.P. Code, does not come into being automatically the moment there are two applications for execution of cross-decrees between the same parties. The satisfaction of the smaller decree and the part satisfaction of the larger decree are the result of an act of the Court making orders in the two execution applications and until those orders are made the two decrees do not become adjusted one against the other. When a stay application intervenes, it is not within the competence of the executing court to proceed with what is essentially a process of execution ignoring the stay. Appellant who had taken assignment of a decree against the respondent applied for execution after adjustment of the decree which the respondent held against him which was for a smaller amount, and to record full satisfaction of the. latter decree and part satisfaction of his decree. In the meanwhile the respondent applied under Madras Act IV of 1938, claiming that he was en titled to its benefits as an agriculturist, obtained a stav of execution and applied under S. 19 of the Act for scaling down the decree against him held by the appellant.

Held, that once the proceedings in execution of the decree of the appellant had been stayed, it was not possible to adjust the two decrees or to the decree of the decree.

O 21, R. 19, C. P. Code applies when there is a claim by a defendent against a plaintiff personally and a claim by the plaintiff against the defendant as legal representative of another deceased defendant. The mere fact that there has to be some enquiry under S. 50 C. P. Code as to the extent of the property of the deceased in the hands of his legal representative or that the sum may be limited by the provisions of S. 50 does not make 0.21 R. 19 C.P. Where a decree provides for the payment of sums by two parties one against the other, if the holder of the larger decree seeks to execute his decree without deducting the amount due to the other party, the latter party can claim a set-off. The fact that in a prior application by the Government for execution in respect of Court-fee due from the holder of the larger decree, the holder of the smaller decree fails to prove a right to adjust his decree against larger decree, will not prevent him from putting forward his claim to adjust his decree against the holder of the larger decree when the latter claims to execute his decree at a later date. O. 21, R. 19, C.P.Code, does not debar the judgment-debtor liable to pay a larger sum than that to which he is entitled from paying the larger sum and then seeking execution of his sumaller amount. Where in an execution taken out against another the latter claims to set-off costs due to him not individually but jointly with another, O. 21, R. 19, has no application. O. 21, R. 19, C.P. Code, provides that when two parties to a decree are given a right to recover sums of money under the decree against each other and the sums are unequal, then execution can only be taken out by the party who has to receive the larger amount and only in respect of the balance left after setting off the smaller sum against the larger. It has the effect of extinguishing the smaller debt the moment the decree is passed which in turn has the effect of leaving only the balance available for attachment by any other Where in a decree for specific performance the plaintiff was directed to deposit Rs.825 in Court and the defendant was directed to pay Rs. 473 to plaintiff for his costs and the plaintiff deposited the Rs. 825 a creditor of the defendant could attach that amount only to the extent of Rs. 825 minus Rs. 473 due to plaintiff for his costs for which he has a priority. ——O. 21, R. 19—Scope—Execution of lesser decree —Limitation—Starting point—Set-off—Claim by lesser decree-holder in execution by holder of larger decree —Limitation.

Under O. 21, R. 19, C.P. Code, where a decree provides for the recovery of sums by two parties one against the other it is only the party to whom the larger amount is due who is entitled to execute the decree. Hence limitation cannot run against the person who is entitled to the lesser decree at a time when that decree is not executable having regard to O. 21, R. 19, C. P. Code. The fact that more than three years have elapsed cannot prevent the holder of the lesser decree to claim set-off when the holder of the larger decree seeks to execute his decree. The appellant obtained a decree against the defendants for recovery of possession and mesne profits, past and future, at the rate of Rs. 60 per vear on condition that she should pay the defendants the sum of Rs. 350-1-0 within three months. The defendants were ordered to pay the appellant a sum of Rs. 301 within three months. When worked out, the appellant in the result was entitled to recover from the defendants Rs. 571-10-11 against Rs. 551-5-0 which she had herself to pay to them. The appellant who was thus entitled to recover Rs. 24-5-11, after setting off the amount due to herself did not pay the amount directed to be paid by her under the decree within the period of three months but applied to execute the decree. The lower Court dismissed it on the ground that the appellant had forfeited her right to execute the decree by reason of her omission to pay the amount directed to be paid by her within the period of three months limited by the decree.

Held, (1) that though in terms the decree did not direct any set off, in view of the directions contained in the decree, it could never have been the intention of the Court to place the appellant under a liability to pay the amount within the period mentioned, while she herself was entitled to recover a larger sum from the defendants: (2) that O. 21, R, 19 (b) applied to the case, and the defendants were never in a position to take out execution of the decree in so far as it gave them a right to claim money from the appellant; (3) that the appellant was never under any obligation to pay the sum of Rs. 350-1-0 into Court, and her omission to pay the money within the time limited by the decree was entirely without consequence: (4) that the appellant, even apart from O. 21, R. 19 (b), had the right to set-off the amount due to her under the general law, and (5) the appellant was therefore entitled to exe-Cycle the decree. Effect on sale—If void—C. P. Code, O. 21, R, 90.

There is no doubt that where no notice under O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, has been issued or served, a sale in execution is wholly without jurisdiction. The mere issuing of a notice is not sufficient. The Court has to be satisfied that notice has been served on the person whom the Court regards as the proper recipient of the notice. If no notice is served at all, the sale is wholly ineffective. The failure to serve the notice is not a mere irregularity in the publication or conduct of the sale. A sale without the notice is in the eye of the law a nullity. (Harries, C. J. and Fazi Ali. J.) The delivery of symbolical possession of land in execution of a decree for possession amounts to delivery of actual possession so far as the judgment-debtor and his representatives are concerned. It breaks the continuity of the adverse possession of the judgment-debtor in spite of the technical irregularities, if any, committed in the delivery of possession. A transferee of the land during the pendency of the suit, being a representative of the judgment-debtor, is under the rule of lis pendens as much bound by the the symbolical possession delivered as the judgment-debtor himself. The only question then before the Court is one between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor tand it the property to be attached is specified by the decree-holder in his application as the property of the judgment-debtor, the Court is bound to make an order for attachment as if the attachment was being asked for in the ordinary course of execution of a decree for the payment of money, leaving it to the parties concerned to prefer such claims or objecttions after the attachment as were open to them under the provisions of O. 21, R. 58 or otherwise. As the mortgagee did not appear, though noticed, the debt was discharged. In a suit on the mortgage by the auction-purchaser of the mortgagee rights ignoring the discharge of the debt as not binding in as much as it was made during the subsistence of the attachment.

Held, that O. 21, R. 46 did not vest the attaching creditor with any right, title or interest in the debt except the negative right to see that it was not paid (except into Court) without an order of the Court and that the attachment could not prevent a conciliation of the debt between the creditor and the debtor before the Board. It was further held that both S. 64 and O. 21, R. 64 were limited so far as the debt was concerned, to its payment and not to its settlement, and that the statutory extinction of the debt in the interval could not be prevented. O 21, R. 48—Locus standi of disbursing officer to fite objections.

The disbursing officer is in a sense a person affected by the order of the Court; for the direction of the Court is sent to him, and under 0. 21, R. 48 (3), C. P. A usufructuary mortgage is a debt within the meaning of O. 21, R. 46. When such a debt is sold delivery of it is made in the manner prescribed by O. 21, R. 79 by the issue of written order prohibiting the creditor from receiving the debt and the debtor from making payment thereof. Delivery cannot be made by putting the auction-purchaser in possession of immovable property. (Almond, J. C.) DEVI DAS v. NATHU KAM. 204 1, C. 138=15 R. Pesh. 68=A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 66.

——O. 21, B. 46—Scope—Exact amount of debt—If to be specified,

It is not necessary under O. 21, R. 46 for the purpose of attaching a debt that the exact amount should be ascertained or stated, but before the attached debt can be made the subject of execution, it must be ascertained. Moreover, where there is an attachment before judgment O. 38, R. 5 (2), C. P. Code, requires at least the approximate value of the debt should have been, ascertained and specified. (Davis, C. Effect on attachment. (2)-Scope-Non-compliance-Attachment itself is something separate from the mere order and is something to be done and effected before attachment can be declared to have been accomplished. There will be no attachment of a debt if some only of the provisions of Cl. (2) of R, 46 O. 21 C. P. Code are complied with while others are not. (Weston and Tyabii, J.).) DECCAN CO-OPERATIVE BANK, LTD. v. PARSRAM TOLARAM. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 203=202 I.C. 183=15 R.S. 25=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 96.

—O. 21, R. 46 (3)—Scope—Order for payment— Failure of garnishes to pay money in Court—Remedy of decree-holder.

Under O 21, R. 46 (3), C. P. Code, a garnishee is given the option to pay the amount into Court. There is nothing in the rule which authorises the Court to pass an order by which the garnishee can be compelled to deposit the amount of his debt in Court. If the garnishee does not pay the amount of the debt in accordance with O. 21, R. 46 (3) as ordered by the Court, the decree-holder may adopt the procedure laid down in Rr. 63 A and 63-B, inserted by the Patna High Court, to O. 21, C. P. Code. (Chatterji and Shearer, J.) KAMESHWAR SINGH v. KULESHWAR SINGH. 21 Pat. 287=202 I.C. 533=15 R.P. 124=9 B.R. 14=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 508.

Garnishee proceedings cannot be taken under O. 21, R. 46-A, C. P. Code, in respect of a debt which cannot be attached under O. 21, R. 46. A debt due to a firm from a customer is the property of the firm within the meaning of O. 21, R. 49 and it cannot be attached in execution of a decree obtained not against the firm or the partners as such but against one or some of them in his or their individual capacities. A garnishee order in respect of that debt made in execution of such a decree is, therefore. illegal. (Mitter and Kundkar, J.). KURSEONG HYDRO ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO. LTD. v. LAKSHMI NARAYAN. I.L.R. Q. 21, Rr. 46-A and 46-B (Sind)—Scope—Application for notice under R. 46-A—Procedure to be followed.

Per Davies C.J.—When an application is made for a notice under R. 46-A. the Court should require the decree-holder either to specify the debts or apply under O. 21, R. 41 for an examination of the judgment-debtor. It is plain that R. 46-B is complementary to R. 46-A. and the order under R. 46-B must follow, so far as the debt is concerned, the terms of R. 46-A and must be capable of execution. An order to sell an unspecified or unascertained debt is not capable of execution. The debt must, therefore, at some stage of the proceedings be specified or ascertained, and it must be specified or ascertained independently of whether the garnishee should or should not appear and show cause. A debt, the amount of which is not specified or ascertained, may be made the subject of a valid attachment, but it cannot be made the subject of a valid execution in the terms of R. 46-B. Further R. 46-A requires that an application shall be supported by an affidavit verifying the alleged facts and stating the belief that the garnishee is indebted to the judgment debtor. This again gives the decree-ho:der an opportunity of giving the garnishee notice of the value of the debt which is to be the subject of execution. A Court which directs execution to issue against a debt, which are the value of which is not specified, wrongly exercises the power which R. 46-B confers.

Per Weston, J.—The notice under R. 46 A follows attachment under 46. It is open to a decree holder to attach a debt, the amount of which is unknown to him. When he has done so R. 41 of O. 21 affords him facilities for ascertaining the amount and if he wishes the proceedings to have practical result, ordinarily he will be well advised to take steps to ascertain the amount of the debt before seeking the issue of notice under R. 40-A. (Davies, C. J. and Weston, J.) BEHARILAL TEK CHAND v. RAMGOPAL. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 173=202 I.C. 329=15 R.S. 31=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 87.

(f), T.P. Act—Public policy—C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 58.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 48.

A public officer whose salary is exempt from attachment under S. 60 (i), C.P. Code, cannot contract himself out of this statutory provision. This exemption cannot be waived, because there is a question of public interest and policy involved. The privilge being one conferred for reasons of public policy, it cannot be waived. If the public officer whose salary is attached in contravention of S. 60 (i), C.P. Code, submits to the attachment or agrees to a deduction of a part of the salary which is below the minimum prescribed by S. 60 (i), C.P. Code, the disbursing officer can object to the attachment and apply to the Court to vacate the order of attachment, and the Court can give effect to the objection. Every Court trying civil causes has inherent jurisdiction to take cognizance of questions which cut at root of the subject-matter of controversy between the parties. Where an order is made against Government or a public body, and when the law imposes liability in case the order is not obeyed, it would be unreasonable and unjust to hold that it is not open to Government or to the public body, as the case may be, to move the Court and contend that the order is not justified by the law, and there must be inherent power in the Court to consider such an application. A creditor got a decree for Rs. 236 against a postal peon drawing a salary of Rs. 41 per month, and had him arrested in execution. In order to escape from such arrest he agreed with his creditor that a sum of Rs. 6 per mensem should be deducted from his pay until the debt was paid. The executing Court, acting on this agreement, made an order under O. 21, R. 48, C.P. Code. This was objected to by the Postmaster-General, but the objection was overruled on the ground that the exemption could be waived and that the Postmaster-General had no locus standi to contest the order of attachment.

Held, (1) that O, 21, R. 48, C.P. Code, was expressly subject to S. 60 (1); (2) that the agreement between the creditor and the judgment-debtor (public servant) was obnoxious to the provisions of S, 6 (/) of the T.P. Act, as it was to all intents and purposes a transfer of the judgment-debtors's salary as it fell due in the future; (3) that the agreement must also be regarded as void under S. 23 of the Contract Act; (4) that the objection by the Postmaster-General would fall under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code; it could not be said that he had no grievance and it must therefore be held the he had a locus standi to make the objection application; (5) that the legislature having fixed the amount of salary to be exempted in the interests of public policy, it was not for the Courts to say that it was sufficient to reserve a lesser amount; and (6) that the attachment of the salary and the transfer thereof were both illegal and opposed to public policy, (Broomfield and Divatia, J.) - O. 21, R. 50 (2)-Application for leave -Nature of - Decree, if may be executed without leave-Application for leave and for execution-If may be combined-Practice of Calcutta High Court.

An application for leave under O. 21, R. 50 (2), C P. (b) and (c) of O, 21 R. 50 (1). An application for leave under O. 21, R 50 (2) is not the same as an application for execution under O. 21, R. 11, but the two applications are in reality and substance two different and separate applications, and the logical course is to apply for leave first and to apply for execution of the decree afterwards. Though it may be possible in some circumstances to combine the two applications, yet in reality and substance they are and remain two applications and the better practice ordinarily will be to make two applications in the sequence mentioned above. (The need for alteration of the practice relating to applications for leave under O. 21, R. 50 (2) prevailing on the original side of the Calcutta High Court, was emphasised.) The adjudication of questions of this kind is limited to the Court which passed the decree and the Court to which the decree has been sent for execution has no jurisdiction to decide them. (King, f.) It is not necessary that leave to execute a decree against an alleged partner under O. 21, R. 50 (2), C.P. Code, should be asked for in a separate petition before filing an application for execution. It is permissible to make one application combining both the prayers, and it is not even required to ask for leave separately as the application for execution against a particular person necessarily implies such a prayer, (Mukherlea and Ellis, J.). C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 53.

O. 21, R. 52, C. P. Code, is only a mode of attachment of property in the custody of the Court. It does not deal with the leave necessary to be obtained for proceeding under R. 52. The rule is not confined to property other than immovable property, and it cannot be held that when the property is immovable the procedure prescribed by R. 54 of O. 21, may be adopted without proceeding under O. 21, R. 52. (Kania, J.) CENTRAL BANK OF INDIA, LTD. v. PRABHAKAR ANANDRAO. 198 I.C. 285=14 R.B. 288=43 Bom.L.R. 995=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 53.

The words used in O. 21, R. 52 cannot be read as permissive. They are imperative for the judgment-creditor. He has to apply for attaching the property in the custody of the Court, such as property in the hands of a receiver. While making the application, he may put before the Court sufficient grounds to prevent the Court from making the ordinary order prescribed by the rule or limit the operation of such order to a named property or a named period. The Court has jurisdiction to place such restrictions on limitations, O. 21, R. 52 cannot, however, be read as permitting the judgment-creditor to proceed under O. 21, R. 54, merely after he obtains leave to proceed to execute the decree on the ground that the property is in the possession of a Court officer. In the case of a decree for sale the only procedure laid down for its attachment and realisation is that contained in O. 21, R. 53 (1). Such a decree cannot be sold, but the decree itself is to be executed and the assets realised to be made available to the person entitled to attach the decree. The attaching creditor of a preliminary decree for sale is entitled to apply to make the decree final. (Grille, C. f. and Sen, f.) KRISHANA BAI v. PARVATI BAI. I.L.R. Under O. 21, R, 53 (1) (b) attachment of a decree is made by the issue of a notice from the attaching Court to the Court which passed the decree. On proof of the issue of such a notice the presumption would arise that the Court which passed the atached decree would have given notice to the judgment debtor under that decree. Any private adjustment thereafter of such a decree would be in contravention of the order of attachment and cannot be recognised. (Shirreff, S.M. and Sathe, J.M.) MAHABIRYA v. small cause suit—Both decrees passed by the same District Munsiff—Application for execution of small cause decree by attachment of decree in original suit—Order allowing—Failure of Munsiff to issue a notice in writing in his capacity as Small Cause Judge to himself exercising original jurisdiction—Effect—Right of attaching decree holder to execute the attached decree in the arramstances.

A obtained a mortgage decree against B and C in the original side of the District Munsiff's Court. In a small cause suit in the same Court D obtained against A a decree which he sought to execute by the attachment of the mortgage decree. On D's application for execution the District Munsiff as Smali Cause Judge issued an order on A prohibiting him from receiving the decree debt until further orders of the Court and an order on B and C prohibiting them from paying the debt. The Munsiff then ordered the mortgage decree to be attached and ultimately after the parties in the mortgage suit had been served with the prohibitory orders he made the attachment absolute. D applied in due course in execution to the District Munsiff as exercising ordinary original jurisdiction for leave to proceed to execute the attached decree. The objections raised by B and C were overruled and an order permitting D to execute A's decree was passed. The order was confirmed on appeal and on second appeal it was again contended that there was no sufficient compliance with the provisions of O. 21, R. 53 of the C. P. Code in that no notice in writing was issued to the Court in which the decree sought to be executed was passed, and that therefore there was no valid attachment which will enable D to proceed with the execution of the mortgage decree.

Held, the object of O. 21, R. 53 of the C. P. Code is to prevent the holder of a decree executing it to the deteriment of the person who has obtained a decree against him. The notice contemplated by O. 21, R. 53 (1) merely prevents the execution being proceeded with until the notice contemplated by this clause is cancelled or the holder of the decree sought to be executed or his judgment-debtor applies to the Court receiving the notice to execute the attached decree. The position in the present case was that D applied to the proper Court for an order of attachment of the decree and he applied to the proper Court to be allowed to execute the attached decree. Supposing the Munsiff as the Judge of Small Causes had served upon himself as Munsiff having original jurisdiction, a written notice under R. 53 (i) (b) the notice would have expired as soon as C applied in that suit to be allowed to proceed in execution. To say that there was no valid attachment because there was no written notice issued by the Munsiff as the Judge of Small Causes to himself as the Munsiff having original jurisdiction would be pushing technicality beyond all reasonable limits especially when the mortgage decree-holder was a consenting party to the action of his creditor. Accordingly D is entitled to execute the attached decree. (Leach, C.J. Mockett and Lakshmana Rao, JJ.) GANESHMUL SAIT v. MAHOMED ISMAIL SAHIB. I.L. R. Thereafter the decree holder applying for attachment may apply to the Court for the issue of a notice to the judgment debtor bound by the decree attached; and if such notice is issued or if such judgment debtor receives notice otherwise or has knowledge of the order of attachment, then no payment or adjustment in respect of that decree shall be recognized by the Court. The addition made by the High Court of Bombay to O. 21, R. 54 (1), C. P. Code, does not affect the provisions of R. 54 (2). The object of adding the new sub-rule is to protect a transferee without notice during the interval between the date of making the order of attachment and the date of its proclamation and not thereafter. Hence, in the case of a transfer of the attached property for considerations, the order of attachment takes effect as against the transferee from the date when such order comes to his knowledge or from the date when the order is proclaimed under R. 54 (2), whichever is earlier. O. 21, R. 57, C. P. Code, as it stood before the amendment made cessation of attachment a necessary consequence of a dismissal of an execution application due to the default on the part of the decree-holder. If, therefore, there is no default on his part and the Court dismisses the application suo motu, the rule has no application. In such a case, an order keeping the attachment subsisting, though not regular, is not illegal. (Puranik, J.) GOVIND v. DHONDBA. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 571 = 1945 N.L.J. 352.

Where there is nothing on the record to show that the decree-holder failed to do anything which may be regarded as a default on his part and which would justify the inference that the darkhast was dismissed for default, 0. 21, R. 57 will not apply especially when the darkhast is seen to have been disposed of on the merits and to have been partially successful, the decree-holder getting his costs as against the judgment-debtor. ---- 0. 21, R. 57-Applicability to attachments before fudgment.

The provisions of R. 57 of O. 21 cannot be extended to cases of attachment before judgment and hence such an attachment would not cease when an application for execution is dismissed for default. (Mulla, J.) BUD-HOO LAL v. SOBHA RAM TEWARI. 1943 A.L.W. 390 = 1943 O.W.N. (H.C.) 233.

—0.21, R. 57—Applicability—Attachment before judgment of two sets of properties in different jurisdictions—Decree—Application for execution by sale of one set of property—Dismissal for default of decree-holder—Attachment in respect of other property not covered by application—If terminated—C. P. Code, 0,38, R. 11—Scope.

The attachment which is terminated on dismissal of an application for execution under O. 21, R. 57, C. P. Code is only in respect of the property that came to be attached in pursuance of an application for execution but which could not be proceeded with on account of the default of the decree-holder. The penalty is not to be imposed in regard to properties which were not attached by means of a prayer contained in the application for execution. O. 38, R. 11, has to be read with O. 21, R. 57 and attachment before judgment becomes attachment in execution for purposes of O. 21, R. 57 and if the application for execution in regard to property attached before judgment happens to be dismissed on account of the decree-holder's default, the attachment in regard to that property would cease to exist. But there is no warrant for holding that a decree-holder's default in the conduct of an execution application for the sale of one property situate within the jurisdiction of one Court would entail the consequence of the termination of the attachment of another property situate within the jurisdiction of another Court in regard to which no execution is taken out, simply because both the properties situated within the jurisdiction of two different Courts happened to be attached by one order passed before judgment. There is no reason or justification for extending the scope of the last sentence of R. 57 of O. 21. C. P. Code, which is clearly limited to the property covered by the application for execution which is dismissed. It does not entail the consequence of discharging the attachment in regard to properties to proceed against which there is no application before the Court and which the Court cannot, for want of jurisdiction, enter tain. (Abdur Rahman, J.) NATESA NILANGIRIYAR v. RAJU MUDALIAR. 213 I.C. 41=17 R.M. 6=1943 M.W.N. 101=A.I.R. 1943 Mad 322=(1943) 1 M.L.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 57.

O. 21, R. 57, C. P. Code, does not apply to a case where on the decree-holder accepting instalments, the executing Court strikes off the execution application as infructious but at the same time says that the attachment is "reserved." The rule is limited to cases in which the execution application is dismissed by reason of the decree holder's default. It is impossible to say that there is any default on the part of the Jecree-holder when he accedes to his indemnmediation's request for time or for instalments. (18-2, 1) Rukmani 7, Ramsaroop. —0. 21, R. 57—"Default"—Meaning of Decree holder restrained by infunction from proceeding with execution—Court, if bound to dismiss execution petition—Sale if nullity.

-Sale if nullity.
O. 21, R. 57, does not refer to the inability of the decree-holder to go on with the execution but to the inability of the Court to proceed further with the application for execution by reason of his default. Default in the rule means default not merely in the sense of non-appearance or non-payment of process fee, etc., but includes the case of non-prosecution as well. But the default must be such as would render the executing Court unable to proceed with the execution. Even a decree-holder restrained by an injunction from proceeding with the execution may choose to float the order of injunction; in that case he may be hauled up for contempt of Court or proceeded against under O. 39, R. 2 (3), C. P. Code. But the executing Court is not bound to dismiss the execution petition under O. 21, R. 57 "for default," and the sale held in due course would not be a nullity merely because the decree-holder had been restrained by an injunction from proceeding with the execution, (Lokur, J) ABDUL RAHIM v. An order dismissing an execution application for non-payment of process-fees and for non-prosecution falls under O. 21, R. 57, C. P. Code and the attachment therefore terminates in spite of the fact that the Court orders that the attachment will continue. The order continuing the attachment in such a case is illegal and invalid. There is no legal and valid attachment after that dismissal, and if the judgment-debtor alternates the property the alienation would not be void by reason of the attachment, because the attachment has ceased. The fact that the Court passed the order of dismissal under a misapprenension because the execution application only contained a prayer for attachment and not any prayer for sale does not make the order of dismissal any the less binding on the decree-holder. If it is not set aside by appeal or review, it stands as a final order and binds the decree-holder and would operate as res indicata, in subsequent applications for execution. (Divatia, J.) O. 21, Rr. 58 to 63, C. P Code, would apply where the "existence of the debt" is admitted by the garnishee, the expression "existence of the debt" being interpreted to mean "existence of facts from a consideration of which it follows in law that the garnishee is indebted." Where the garnishee in essence claims that he was entitled not to refuse payment altogether but only to defer it, his debt is attachable, and if the executing Court raises the attachment on a denial of liability by the garnishee, the decree-holder is entitled to bring a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P Code. Defendants 2 to 4 sold certain properties to 1st defendant in December. 1929. Under the terms of the sale deed the consideration of Rs. 2,050 was retained in the hands of the 1st defendant for discharging two debts due to the plaintiff, one on a 1st mortgage and the other on a promissory note. The property sold was also subject to two subsequent mortgages which the vendors themselves undertook to discharge. The 1st defendant did not discharge the debt due to the plaintiff under the promissory note and the plaintiff therefore sued in 1931 on it and got a decree against defendants 2 to 4. In execution he attached the debt which he alleged to be due from the 1st defendant to defendants 2 to 4 as unpaid purchase money. The 1st defendant denied his liability to pay the amount until the vendors had cleared off the subsequent mortgages. The executing Court accepted this plea and raised the attachment on 1-8-1935. The plaintiff thereupon brought a suit under O. 21, R. 63, impleading all the 4 defendants,

Held, (1), that the suit was maintainable, since 1st defendant admitted that he had purchased the property and had not paid for it and in essence only claimed a

Subject to the doctrine of res judicata in any particular case, an order on a claim petition filed under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code, or a decree in a suit filed under R. 63, does not extend beyond the execution of the decree which has given rise to these proceedings, R. 58 of O. 21, C. P. Code, only applies to a claim preferred or an objection made to the order of attachment in the particular execution proceedings. R. 63 has to be read in conjunction with R. 58, and an order passed on the claim or objection is not conclusive for all purposes inside and outside the particular execution proceedings. It is conclusive between the parties to the suit or their representatives so far as the execution of the particular decree is concerned; but where the property is sold in execution proceedings arising out of an entirely differ ut decree, the claimant will not be precluded from setting up his title as against a stranger purchaser. If he attachment has not led to the sale of the property, a those concerned, even if there had been a suit under R. +3, will be left in the same position as they were before the attachment, except that the decreeholder will be at liberty to institute fresh proceedings in execution of the same decree without any right remaining in the claimant to re-agitate his claim. O 21, R. 58, C. P. Where in execution of a decree for money the decree holder attaches property usufructuarily mortgaged by the judgment-debto; and not merely the equity of redemption in such property, the usufructuary mortgagee is entitled to object to the attachment and apply under O. 21, R. 58, C. When the liquidators of a company attached certain shares belonging to a contributory it was found that the son of the contributory was registered as the holder of those shares and in actual possession of them. The liquidators sought to prove that the transfer by the contributory to his son was a fraudulent one.

Held: In such proceedings the executing Court is concerned only with the question of the possession of the property and cannot embark upon enquiries involving a decision as to the real as opposed to the apparent title to the property. The proper course for the liquidators to follow is to proceed by way of a regular suit under R. 63 of O. 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure if they have reason to believe that the transfer by the contributory was for any reason ineffective, inoperative and void as against the creditors in the winding up. 39 M.L.J. 350: I.L.R. 43 Mad. 760, dist. Where after a claim is allowed against the decree-holder and judgment-debtor and no suit is filed the claimant relinquishes the property in favour of the judgment-debtor and that property is subsequently attached by the decree-holder, it is not open to the judgment debtor to plead that in the absence of a suit under O. 21, R. 63 to contest the claim order, the latter had become final and that the property could not be attached as his. -0.21, Rr. 58 and 68—Objection by mortgagee to attachment of property dismissed—Suit not filed within one year—Effect.

An objection by the mortgagee to the attachment of the mortgaged property in execution of a money decree against the mortgagor falls under 0. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code. If the said objection is dismissed as filed too late and the mortgagee does not institute a suit within one year under 0. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, a subsequent suit by him to enforce the mortgage is barred. The fact that the mortgagee prayed only for the release of the mortgaged property from attachment, and not for its sale subject to the mortgage, makes no difference, (Puranik, J.) GOVIND v. DHONDBA. ____O. 21, Rr. 58 and 90—Person objecting to sale of his property for debt of another—Proper remedy.

S. L. being in debt assigned his Immovables to his brother M, by deed reserving only a main-tenance allowance to himself, and M became recorded proprietor of the estate. In 1928 an execution application was made in respect of a money decree passed in 1926 in favour of S.B., against S. L, M was added to the application as a "judgment-debtor" although no judgment had ever been obtained against him. Part of the estate having been attached in execution of S, B's estate naving been attached in execution of 3, 2 and decree, M applied for release of the attached properties under C. P. Code, O. 21. R. 58 on the ground that he was no party to the decree. The Subordinate Judge held M to be a representative of the judgment-debtor S, L and dismissed the application. On the day of the Judge's order a compromise petition was filed in the Court, M undertaking to pay S, B the sum due by way of an immediate cash payment and the balance by fixed annual instalments. The instalments not having been paid as agreed, the decree-holders applied for execution, M again being cited as judgment-debtor. Part of the estate was again attached and then sold. M then applied under O. 21, R. 90 to have the sale set aside on eleven grounds nine of which were allegations of various irregularities in and about the sale, the tenth and eleventh alleging absence of jurisdiction to hold the sale. The Subordinate Judge found against M on the first nine grounds, but held that the sale was without jurisdiction because the compromise deed was unenforceable in execution against in the absence of any decree against him. The High Court allowed an appeal holding that the Subordinate Judge's decision on the first execution application that M was a representative of S, L the judgment-debtor concluded the case against M on the principle of res judicata. On appeal to His Majesty, Held, (without deciding whether M had been rightly or wrongly held to be a representative of the judgment-debtor); that the application under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, was misconceived, since an application lased on the allegation that the properties of M had been wrongfully sold in execution for S L's debt must be made under R. 58 and not R. 90 of the C. P. Code, which was concerned with irregularities in publishing and conducting the sale.

If a judgment debtor makes an objection which does not come under O. 21, R. 58 and it is disallowed he is not bound to bring a suit under O. 21, R. 63. He can seek his proper remedy by an objection under S. 47 C. P. Code. O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code can apply only where an objection which could be made under O. 21, R. 58 is made and disallowed. D. 21, R. 63-Applicability-Application by mortgagee for directing sale subject to mortgage—Court directing issue of sale proclamation mentioning that mortgage was alleged by decree-holder as collusive—If "order against" applicant—Failure to sue on mortgage within one year—Effect—Limitation Act, Art. 11—Applicability. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 11. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 438.

——O. 21, R. 63—Applicability—Claim to attached property preferred before sale—Order after sale dismissing same as not tenable after sale—If against claimant—Suit within one year—If necessary—Limitation Act, Art. 11.

The dismissal of a claim petition preferred under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Code, on the ground that it was not tenable after the execution sale had taken place, is not an order falling under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, and the failure to file a suit within one year as provided by Art. 11 of the Limitation Act, would not debar the claimant from setting up his rights afterwards. Where an order is passed either on the merits or on the acquiescence of the applicant or claimant, before the sale takes place, it is an order falling under R. 63 of O. 21. But where in the case of a claim presented before the sale, an order is passed after the sale has been held and proceeds on the ground that the application is not tenable because the attachment has come to an end or that the claim cannot be adjudicated upon after the sale R. 63, of O. 21 can have no application. An order, to fall under R. 63, must relate to the merits of the claim and must not be passed on the preliminary ground that the Court cannot enquire into the merits of the claim. (Divatia, J.) NINGAUDA GIRI MALLAPPA V. NABISAHIB ABALAL. I L.R. (1942) Bom. 636=202 I.C. 416=15 R.B. 163=44 Bom.L.R. 543=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 263.

O. 21, R. 63, C.P. Code, applies when a claim to a property attached before judgment is either allowed or rejected, and a suit must therefore be instituted under this rule. Art. 13 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a suit, as that article does not apply where the order sought to be set aside by a suit had been made in a suit. The competition is between Art. 11 and Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. As an attachment before judgment is not an attachment in execution of a decree, Art. 11 will not on a plain reading apply. As there is no other specific article, Art. 120 would apply to such a suit. (Mitter and Sharpe, J.) DHAN BIBI v. MRINALINI GHOSHAL. 79 C.L.J. 181=49 C.W.N. 111.

Where a proceeding for execution is sent to the Collector, the Collector or a Mamlatdar executing the decree is not a Court and hence O. 21, Rr. 58 and 63, C. P. Code, will not apply. and R. 63 of O. 21, C. P. Code, cannot therefore be invoked so as to make the order passed by the Collector or Mamlatdar final. Though the Collector or Mamlatdar may be said to act under the Code when exercising the powers conferred by the Code, he has no power to consider objections to an attachment. Where a person applies to the Collector and Mamlatdar to make a sale subject to a mortgage in his favour and that application is dismissed by the Collector or Mamlatdar without investigation, the order is not one against the applicant under R. 63 of O. 21, C. P. Code, or within the meaning of Art. 11 of the Limitation Act. The applicant is not therefore bound to bring a suit under O. 21. R. 63. C. P. Code, within one year of the order as prescribed by Art. 11, Limitation Act. (Broomfeld and Macklin, JJ.) Ganesh Ram Chandra v Gopal Larshman. I. R. (1943) Bom. 104=204 I. C. 402=15 R. B. 319=44 Bom. L. R. 819=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 12.

dismissing claim—Subsequent withdrawal of attachment—Suit for declaration of title beyond one year—Maintainability—Limitation Act, Art. 11.

The conclusiveness of an order in a claim case contemplated by O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, is conditional on the continuance of the execution proceedings and the attachment issuing therefrom. Consequently, where a claim is dismissed, but the execution proceedings terminate and the attachment ceases in any manner to have effect, the parties are put back in the same position as before, and the failure of the defeated claimant to sue within one year does not preclude him from afterwards bringing a suit for a declaration of title in respect of the same property beyond one year. It makes no difference whether the attachment terminates within one year or beyond one year. Art. 11 of the Limitation Act will not apply in such a case. (Sinha and Pande, II.) RAMCHANDRA v. KHODAIJATUL KUBRA. 24 Pat. 462 = 1945 P.W.N. 430 = 26 P.L.T. 245 = A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 369.

-O. 21, R. 63-Burden of proof.

Where a suit is one to set aside the decision of an executing Court under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. ——O. 21, R. 63—Burden of proof—Plaintiff relying on document to prove title.

Per Khundkar, J.—In a suit under O. 21, R. 63, where the plaintiff relies on a document to prove his title and the circumstances surrounding the execution of that document are not free from suspicion, it is clearly for him to establish the genuine nature of the transaction of which that document is evidence. On matter not decided either expressly or by implication—If bar to plea in proceedings under R 100.

O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, should not be read in such a way as to make the order in a claim case conclusive on any point which was neither expressly nor by implication decided in such order. The rule raises no bar against the raising of such questions in subsequent proceedings under O. 21, R. 100, C. P. Code. (Manohar Lall and Beevor, JJ) SUNDER DEBI v. Where a claim petition falling within the purview of O. 21, R. 58, objecting to an attachment is dismissed as not pressed, the order is one "against" the claimant even though there has been no investigation of the claim and an adjudication on the merits. It is necessary for such a claimant to file a suit within one year of such order as provided under O. 21. R. 63 if he wishes to reopen the matter. (Leach, C. -0. 21, R. 63-Decision of executing Court-How far conclusive.

The effect of O. 21, R. 63, C. P. There is no valid reason for holding that this interpretation should be applied only so far as the interests of an outside claiment are concerned and should not be applied to a decree holder. O. 21, R. 63-Scope and form of relief comtemplated by Suit by mortgagees on dismissal of claim-Express declaration of mortgagor's title-If can and should be asked.

O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, does not lay down any specific form of the relief that a person whose claim or objection is dismissed is entitled to claim. All that it requires is that he should institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute. It does not contemplate that there should be a suit for declaration simpliciter. The words to establish his right to the property' in the rule are wide enough to cover a suit not only for a declaration but a suit for a declaration and consequential relief. Where in a suit by the mortgagees on the dismissal of their claim in respect of the mortgaged property, they maintained that they had a right to enforce the mortgage against the auction purchaser on the distinct averment that the property comprised in the mortgage was owned by the mortgagor and nobody else but failed to ask for an express declaration of their mortgagor's title to the property.

Held, Such an omission was only an error of form and a technical defect which could not and ought not to affect the substance of the claim. for a suit under the rule. The fact of the claim being peculiar nature of the suit they could raise it. C P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 63.

——O. 21, R. 63—Scope—"Conclusive' character of order—Extent of and limits to—Suit to set aside order disallowing claim — Attachment coming to end pending suit—Effect—Suit proceeded with and decided—Decision—If conclusive—Res judicata.

What is made conclusive by R. 63 of O. 21. C. P. Code, is the order passed under R. 60 or R. 61, which only decides the liability or non-liability of the particular property to the attachment already effected. The order is only of limited effect. The conclusiveness exists only as regards the particular property in dispute. R. 63 does not require the plaintiff in a suit under that rule to establish his ownership of the property attached, but only "the right which he claims to the property in dispute." What he has to establish is the claim to have the property attached if he is the decreeholder, or to have it released from attachment if he is the claimant. Subject to the decision in the suit the order of the executing Court is conclusive. But that order must be subsisting at the date of the decision of the suit. If the order upholds the attachment, but, for some reason or other the attachment comes to an end, the order upholding it becomes defunct, and then there is no purpose in filing a suit to have it set aside or in proceeding with the suit if one has already beenfiled or with an appeal from the decision in the suit. If there be no effective order of the executing Court existing it can in no way be affected by the decree in the suit or appeal one way or the other. Yet, after the order upholding the attachment has become defunct, the parties might choose to fight out the suit or appeal on its merits to its end, not for the purpose of giving finality to the order of the execut-ing Court which had already spent itself but to have their dispute about the right to the property settled once for all; the decision then will debar the parties from agitating the same question again on the ground of res judicata, if the other conditions of S. 11, C. P. Code, are satisfied and not because of the finality of the previous order of the executing Court. (Divatia and Lokur. JJ.) RADHABAI GOPAL v. In execution of a decree obtained against a father and his son, certain properties were attached as joint family properties. The father had been adjudicated an insolvent, and the Official Receiver put in a claim petition alleging that the properties were the self acquisitions of the insolvent (father) and that the son had no share in them. This was dismissed on the ground of undue delay. The Official Receiver did not file a suit within one year but sold the property. In a suit by the son claiming partition, the Official Receiver pleaded that the properties were self-acquisitions of the insolvent. The son pleaded that the question as to the properties being self-acquisitions was concluded against the Official Receiver by reason of the order on the claim petition, in view of O. 21, R. 63. C. P. Code. It appeared that no notice was served on the son in the claim proceedings, and that the decree-holder alone was served.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 21, R. 63.

Held, that since no notice was served on the son at the time when the order on the claim petition was made, he could not be considered to be a party to that order, and therefore the order on the claim petition did not preclude the Official Receiver or the purchaser from him raising the question of the self-acquisitions against the son in the suit by the latter. The words "the right which he claims to the property in dispute" as used in O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, refer to the right which the party claims in the execution proceedings. Where a holder of a decree obtained against a firm sought to execute it against a property belonging to the joint family of the members of the firm, and a claim preferred by a third party who asserted a title to the property in himself on the basis of a purchase was allowed, and the decree-holder thereupon filed a suit under O. 21, R. 63. C. P. Code, against the claimant.

Held, that the plaintiff decree holder was entitled to succeed in the suit, on establishing the right which he claimed to the property in dispute in his execution case and that therefore the only relevant point for decision in the suit was whether the property belonged to the joint family or to the defendant claimant, and that the latter should not be allowed to raise the question whether the decree could be executed against that joint family, particularly when the members themselves did not contest the claim of the plaintiff decree-holder, although he was alleged to be the benamidar of the execution-debtors named in the execution case. which he had preferred the claim ceases to exist. O. 21, R. 63, creates no bar against the claimant if the attachment is withdrawn within one year of the dismissal of his claim. This principle, however, does not apply to an unsuccessful decree holder against whom an order allowing a claim is made. If a decree-holder fails to bring a suit under O. 21, R. 63, to set aside an order allowing the claim, then the order becomes conclusive against him and he can no longer assert the right he claims against the property released from attachment by the order on the claim petition. holder—If limited to determination of right of particular claimant.

Where a decree-holder files a suit under O. 21, R. 63. C. P. Code, after a claim petition in respect of the property in suit preferred by the judgment debtor as shebait of a deity was allowed, the scope of his suit is not limited to the determination of the question whether that particular claimant has any right or not. The right which the plaintiff asserts is that the property belonged to the judgment-debtor and was consequently saleable in execution of the decree obtained by him. If it is held by the Court that the property is trust property and does not belong to the judgment-debtor personally, then also the plaintiff's suit must fail. The deity in that event would be regarded as one of the beneficiaries under the trust and it is enough that one of the beneficiaries pre-ferred a claim under O. 21, R. 58 of the Code and disputed the alienability of the property which was attached by the decree holder. In a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C.P. The plaintiff in a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, has the initial burden upon him to show that the property is not liable to attachment, for the reason that it has in fact been attached by the order of a Court, just as he would have an initial burden upon him to show that he had a right to property which he was seeking to recover from the possession of another, but there is no reason why the burden should be greater in the former case than in the latter. The plaintiff discharges his initial burden by showing that there has been in his favour a transfer which makes him the ostensible owner of the property in suit. If there is nothing else, there is no reason why a Court should make a presumption in favour of fraud. On the other hand, if circumstances are Court is competent to give.

In a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, the plaintiff could obtain only a declaration about the interest which he claimed in the attached property. The Court trying the suit is not to sit in some way in arpeal over the executing Court, but it is only to give a declaration that certain property is not to be attached in execution of certain decree; it is required quite independently to give a declaration about the rights of the parties in the property sought to be attached. It is no part of the business of such a Court to decide what the execution Court ought or ought not to do. A wrong order of the execution Court is to be set right in an appeal against it. The Court has no doubt a discretion to order the sale of part only of the property. Where the Court is not asked to act under O. 21 R, 64, by exercising its discretion to sell part only of the property attached, it is not open to the judgment-debtor to raise that point in second appeal and complain that the executing Court has failed to exercise its discretion and therefore the case should be remanded. In order to arrive at the valuation of house property in a city the test is to ascertain its annual rent or income and to arrive at a valuation of the house according to the market rate prevalent at the time. The omission to state such annual rent in the sale proclamation is a breach of the statutory obligation resting on the Court under the provisions of R. 66 (2) (e) of O. 21, and amounts to a material irregularity in the publication of the sale and vitiates the same. (Thomas, C.). and Ghulam Hasan, J.) S. L. SWING v. BRIJ GOPAL 18 Luck. 647=205 I.C. 58=15 R.O. 383=1943 O.W. N. 15=1942 O.A. 641=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh, 204=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 363.

Contents—Inclusion of estimated value according to both parties—Desirability.

It is desirable that the sale proclamation shall include the estimate, if any, given by either or both the parties. It would be a reasonable method to enable the purchaser to judge the value of the property. (Shirreff, S.M., and Sathe, J.M.) SAJJABI BEGUM v. DWARKA DASS. 1942 R.D. 697=1942 O.W.N. 569=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 431=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 457.

The omission to file a sale statement as required by R. 66 (3) of O. 21, is no more than a mere irregularity and in the absence of an objection under R. 90 of that order the sale cannot be set aside on that ground steing void ab initio. Ordinarily, the omission to affix the sale proclamation in the Collector's office as prescribed in C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 54, read with R. 67, would be a material irregularity. But where the Collector's office and the Court are situated in the same compound and a copy of the proclamation was duly affixed in the Court, it can hardly amount to a material irregularity. (Sir Madhavan Nair.) NAGANNA NAIDU v. VENKATRAYULU NAIDU. 58 L. W. 451=49 C. W. N. 820=1945 P.W.N. 377=1945 M.W.N. 620=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 178=(1945) 2 ML.J. 259 (P.C.).

-0.21, Rr. 68 and 90-Sale within 30 days of proclamation-Legality.

A sale within 30 days of the proclamation is contrary to R. 68 of O. 21 and is likely to result in substantial injury to the debtor and is liable to be set aside. (Sathe, S.M. and Ross, A.M.) GHANI HAIDER v. ABDUL BAQAR. 1943 O.W.N. (B.R.) 90=1943 O.A. (Rev.) 41(2)=1943 R.D. 90=1943 A.W.B. (Rev.) 41(2).

——O. 21, R. 69—Acceptance of amins proposal to postpone sale to afternative dates without fixing any time —Material irregularity.

Obiter: Where the Court merely allows a proposal of the amim to postpone a sale to alternative dates without fixing any time, the Court fails to comply with the requirements of R. 69 of O. 21 and it amounts to a material irregularity. (Yorke, J.) MAHABIR PRASAD v. SARJU DEVI. 1943 A.L.W. 323.

—O. 21, Rr. 69 (1) and 90—Adjournment of sale—Non-compliance with statutory obligation to specify date and time of the adjourned sale—Material irregularity.

Under O. 21, R. 69 (1), there is a statutory obligation on the Court when a sale is adjourned to specify not only the day but the hour also of the adjourned sale and any breach of such a requirement would amount to a material irregularity in the conduct of the sale. (Thomas, C. J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) S. L. SWING v. BRIJ GOPAL. 18 Luck. 547=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 363=205 L.C. 58=15 R.O. 383=1943 O.W.N. 15=1942 O.A. 641=A.J.R. 1943 Oudh 204.

An execution sale could not be held on the date specified in the sale proclamation. On that date the Court stayed the sale until further orders and directed the matter to be put up before it on a later date, when the Court vacated the stay order and fixed a date for sale. As the bid was too low on the date so fixed, the sale was held on the following day.

Held, that the sale was not a nullity out and out, but that there was undoubtedly a material irregularity which would entitle the judgment-debtor to get the sale set aside in an appropriate proceeding under O. 21, R. 90, C.P. Code. (Mukherica and Roxburgh, J.). ASALATA BOSE V. MANINDRA NATH, I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 570=201 I.C. 150=15 R.C. 141=45 C.W. N. 987=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 275.

A breach of the provisions of O, 21, R. 69, C.P. Code, e.g., adjournment of a sale for more than 14 days does not involve any question of jurisdiction of the Court to hold the sale so as to render the sale void and a nullity. (Fast Ali and Meredith, J.). SBEO DAYAL NARAIN v. MOTI KUER. 21 Pat. 281=200 I.C. 782=15 R.P. 9=8 B.R. 720=1942 P.W.N. 202=23 Pat.L.T. 139=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 238.

It is a material irregularity to adjourn a sale for more than 30 days in contravention of 0.21, R. 69 (2), as amended in Madras, and to hold the sale again without a fresh proclamation. If there was a proper proclamation to start with, and if the only ground of attack is that the total period of adjournments exceeded the period of 30 days fixed in 0.21, R. 69 (2), (Madras Amendment), and that the sale was held without a fresh proclamation, it cannot be held that the sale is illegal or a nullity; the sale will be set aside only if substantial loss is proved. O. 21, B. 71—Applicability—Resale by order of Court on report by plaintiff due to purchaser's default to deposit 25 per cent.

O. 21, R. 71, applies to all cases in which a sale is necessitated by the default of the auction purchaser. (Almond J.C.) DURANI BIBI v. HAJI GHULAM SHAH. 214 I.C. 97=17 R. Pesh. 5=A.I.R. 1944 Pesh. 27.

Neither the absence of a certificate of the officer conducting the sale as to the amount of default nor the furnishing of a certificate in an improper form would prevent the court from recovering the deficiency on a resale from the auction purchaser. (Almond J.C.) DURANI BIBI v. HAJI GHULAM SHAH. 214 I.C. 97 = 17 R. Pesh. 5 = A.I.R. 1944 Pesh. 27

It is true that a decision under O. 21, R. 71 C.P. Code, is ordinarily subject to appeal where the dispute lies between either a judgment debtor or a decree-holder and the defaulting purchaser, and the interest of either the decree-holder or the judgment-debtor has suffered by the default of the previous purchaser. If however, the matter is one between two rival decree-holders, and the judgment-debtor does not enter into the picture at all and the decree-holders themselves are the purchasers one in the earlier sale and the other in the latter, the matter must be treated as one in revision. The right of a decree-holder auction purchaser to set off the deposit as well as the purchase-money against the debt due to him, under O. 21 R. 72, (2) is subject to the provisions of S. 73. Hence when other decrees against the same judgment-debtor are under simultaneous execution, the auction purchaser should be asked to deposit the purchase-money according to Rr. 84 and 85 of O. 21 and it is only if he tails to so deposit, the Court can order resale. If no such application is filed within the time limited, the purchaser is entitled to realise his rights under the sale, and it is not open to the judgment-debtor to plead O. 21, R. 72 in bar of a suit for possession irrespective of limitation and of the Court which tries that suit. O. 21, R. 77 and S. 151—Sale of movable property—When becomes absolute—Refusal to confirm sale completed by Kurk Amin, if canbe justified under S. 151, C.P. Code.

Under O. 21, R. 77, the sale of movable property becomes absolute on the granting of a receipt for the purchase-money. Hence when a kurk Amin accepts the highest bid and the sale price and issues a formal receipt to the purchaser the sale becomes complete and absolute and it is not open to the Court when the matter comes betore it on report from the Kurk Amin to refuse to confirm it. Where a Court does so refuse and order resale its action cannot be justified under S. 151, because it could neither be invoked to set at nought the express provisions contained in O. 21, R. 77 (2) nor to validate an order which is clearly against the provisions of law. O. 21, R. 89—Applicability to sales in execution of mortgage decrees on Original side of Bombay High Court.

R. 89 of O. 21 are not inapplicable to sales held in execution of mortgage decrees on the original side of the Bombay High Court. The duty of the Court is to apply O. 21 R. 89 so far as the rules in Ch. XXVII of the Bombay High Court Original side rules will permit. The liberty to make an application under O. 21 R. 89 is a concession to the judgment-debtor and in the case of a mortgagor it is a still greater concession for the period of redemption is extended. It is not unreasonable therefore to call for strict compliance with the provisions of the rules. If no deposit is made of the decretal amount within thirty days, the application to set aside the sale will not be entertainable even by consent of parties to record an adjustment of the decree so as to deprive the auction purchaser of his bargain. The applicant is not bound to O. 21, R. 89, merely because his counsel proceeded on that basis or because he has offered to pay 5 per cent, of the whole of the purchase money as required by that rule and not 5 per cent. of the purchase money actually paid into Court as required by O. 34, R. 5, or because he has not specifically asked for return of the title deeds and a reconveyance. An applicant under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, must strictly comply with the terms of the rule and deposit the sums of money required by the rule. The fact that he is interested only in one of the several lots in which the properties were sold in execution would not entitle him as of right to apply to set aside the sale on deposit only of the sale price of that particular lot plus the five per cent, thereon. The circumstance that the decreeholder does not object to that course will not help the applicant, because the auction-purchaser becomes entitled to the properties the moment the properties are sold and if the conditions laid down in the rule are not complied with, he gets an indefeasible right to the properties and it is open to him to insist that the amount specified in the sale proclamation should be deposited in full. A deposit under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Where therefore by a subsequent judicial proceeding, e.g., under Madras Act IV of 1938, the amount of the decree is reduced, the decree-holder cannot claim the right to draw out the deposit which is totally in excess of the amount due to him under the decree on the ground that the deposit is unconditional. A judgment-debtor making a deposit under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, for setting aside an execution sale can pay the money through an agent who must pay it as such agent. It is not necessary that the agent must hold a power of attorney in order that the deposit may be a legal or valid deposit. must be in the properties the sale of which is sought to be set aside. It is impossible to envisage that any person who has at any time derived title in any property from the judgment-debtor should by reason of that fact be qualified to make applications with regard to a totally different property. The interest held by the applicant must be an interest in the property itself under R. 89, and it is not enough that the party should be indirectly affected by the sale when he has no interest in the usual sense such as the interest of a judgment-debtor, mortgagee or even a lessee, in some cases. Certain properties of the judgment-debtor were sold to the appellant and the purchaser was directed to pay the purchase price towards the decree. He paid a part of the amount and this was paid to the decree holder and part satisfaction was entered. But as he did not pay the balance, the decree-holder brought to sale certain other properties of the judgment-debtor and these were sold. The appellant applied under O. 21, R. 89 (1), to have the latter sale set aside on depositing the amount payable under the decree with the necessary charges into Court.

Held, that the appellant had no locus standi to make the application because he was not a person deriving title from the judgment-debtor, or a person holding an interest in the property sold (Mockett and Happell, J/.) —O. 21, R. 89 (1)—Scope—Compliance with— Necessity far strict compliance—Amount deposited falling short by small amount due to bona fide mistake in calculation—Deficiency made good after thirty days—Jurisdiction to set aside sale.

A Judgment-debtor seeking to set aside an execution sale under O. 21, R. 89, C. P.Code, is bound to strictly comply with the provisions of O. 21, R. 89 (1), before he can take advantage of the concession. Both the application and the deposit specified in clauses (a) and (b) of O. 21, R. 89(1) must be made within 30 days of the sale. If the amount deposited within the time limited is short even by a small amount by reason of a mistake in calculation, the executing Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the application and to set aside the sale, even though the mistake is bona fide and the applicant makes good the deficiency as soon as the mistake is found out. Equitable conisderations cannot override the imperative provisions of O 21, R. 89, (Lokur, J.) AMRITLAL NARSILAL v. SADASHIV ANNA. 46 Bom.L.R. 432= A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 233 (2).

Where without previous notice to the parties under R. 66 (2) of O. 21, and without any previous enquiry from the parties a sale proclamation is prepared and issued it is a serious irregularity entitling the party affected to apply for setting aside the sale under R. 90 of the same order. means any of those persons to whom the right to share in the rateable distribution of assets realised in execution is given by S. 73, C. P. Code. Creditors proving in insolvency do not come within the category of such persons, and an interim receiver in insolvency who represents the creditors is not entitled to apply to set aside an execution sale under O. 21, R. 90, C. - O. 21, R. 90-Applicability and scope-If exhaustive.

R. 90 of O. 21 which taken with the three subrules of R. 92 gives the general ground on which the executing Court, (and that Court alone is specifically empowered and required to set aside a sale) is confined to "the ground of a material irregularity or traud in publishing or conducting As regards material irregularities or fraud committed otherwise than in publishing or conducting an execution sale, traud would, generally speaking, make the sale voidable only, and if the question should arise in the conditions laid down in S. 47, C. R. 507=199 I.C. 169=14 R.P. 557=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 566.

—0.21, R. 90—Applicability—"Any person whose interests are affected by the sale"—Person claiming by title adverse to and paramouni to that of judgment-debtor—Right to apply.

Persons claiming by title adverse to and paramount to that of the judgment-debtor are not persons whose interests are affected by the sale within the meaning of O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, and such persons are not therefore entitled to maintain an application under O. 21. R. 90, to set aside the sale. The undivided share of the judgment-debtor in certain properties was attached in execution of a decree against him. After the attachment in pursuance of an agreement between the judgment-debtor and his co-sharer to refer the matter to arbitration, there was an award by which the properties were divided into three shares and some of the items which formed the subject of the attachment exclusively fell to the shares of the co-sharers of the judgment-debtor. Subsequently the execution sale took place and the co-sharers applied under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, to set aside the sale in regard to the properties which fell exclusively to their shares.

Held, that the co-sharers were not in any way affected by the sale, which was only of the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor, i.e., his undivided interest in certain items; if the purchaser wanted to realise the fruits of his purchase he would have to file a suit for partition and separate possession of the share purchased by him and it would then be open to the co-sharers to resist his claim and hence they were not in any way hurt by the execution sale. The sale so far as the co-sharers were concerned was a nullity and there was no question of setting it aside under O. 21, R. 90. (Venkataramana Rao, J.)

The omission to issue or serve the notice contemplated by O. 21, R. 22, C. P. Code, is not a mere irregularity in publishing and conducting a sale falling under O. 21, R. 90. There can be no sale without such notice, and if a sale is held under such circumstances, it is a nullity being a case of no sale at all in the eye of law. A separate suit therefore lies to declare the sale void and ineffective. (Harries, C.J., and Fazi Ali, J.) DURGA SINGH v. R. 90-Discretion of Court-Amount of deposit or amount for which security can be demanded—Extent of.

Under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, the Court is given the option of taking one of three courses; either it may demand no security at all, or it may demand the deposit of money in Court, or it may call for security in some other form. In either of the two latter alternatives it is clear that the amount of the cash or the amount for which security can be called for must be one of two definite sums, viz., either the amount mentioned in the sale warrant or that realised by the sale. The third sub-section of the rule does not in any way modify or govern what is laid down in the second sub-section and the execution Court has no discretion to call for security for any amount it pleases. -0. 21, R. 90 -- Duty of Court-Grant of relief to judgment debtor-Requirements of section satisfied.

A judgment-debtor has as much claim on the sym pathy and consideration of the Court as a decree-holder or an auction-purchaser, and if it is proved that his interests have materially suffered and that requirements of O. 21 R. 90, for setting aside sale of his properties in execution are satisfied a Court of law should not hesitate in granting him the relief asked for (setting aside the sale) even if his case as regards the technicalities of law hangs on the border line. Courts exist for doing justice between man and man and a rigid insistence on technicalities should not deter them from redressing the legitimate grievances of the persons aggrieved. (Din Mahomed, J.) An execution sale was proclaimed duly and fixed to be held on 8-7-1935. As no bid was forthcoming on that day, the sale was by order of court continued from day to day up to 29-7-1935 and on that day an order was made directing the sale to be continued till 5-8-1935. On 2—8—1935, he filed an appeal and prayed for interim stay of sale pending disposal of his appeal. On 3-8-1935, an agreement was entered into between the advocates of the respective parties and it was endorsed on the petition for stay to the effect that the petition was not to be pressed and that the sale was to be continued from day to day till 12-8-1935, which was the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal. On 5-8-1935, the decree-holder's pleader lodged a memo, in the executing court reciting the agreement and paid the necessary fee for continuing the sale for one week from that date. No order was made by the executing court that day but on 8-8-19.5 it made an order that the sale be continued till 12-8-1935. On 12-8-35, the appeal was heard and dismissed, the sale was held and the property was sold at a price which was found to be the full value. The judgment-debtor applied to have the sale set aside on the ground that it was illegal for the sale to have taken place on 12-8-1935, when the latest day for closing the sale had been fixed to be 5-8-1935, and also on the ground that there had been no fresh proclamation of the sale for 12-8-1935.

Held, (1) that in view of the agreement of the parties' advocates and the order of the Court, there was neither material irregularity in the proceedings nor any illegality; (2) that the agreement come to on 3-8-1935 coupled with the order of the Court of 8-8-1935 effectively continued the sale to 12-8-35; (3) that the sale was never adjourned but was all along continued from day to day and therefore no fresh proclamation ever became necessary; (4) that no injury had resulted to the jndgment-debtor as the full value of the property had been realised by the sale. Omission to specify hour of sale.

Under O. 21, R. 69 C. P. Code, it is incumbent upon the Court to specify both the day and the hour of sale. Where the order of Court was that the sale would be held on a certain date after a miscellaneous case started by the judgment-debtor was disposed of, it is a material irregularity. O. 21, R. 66, C. P. Code, imposes upon the Court the duty of causing a proclamation of the intended sale to be made and the proclamation must specify, among other things, any encumbrance to which the property is subject. The Court ought, as far as possible, to bring its mind to bear apon the contents of the proclamation and not act blindly on information supplied by the parties. Where material is readily available to check such information the Court ought to avail itself of such material, and when it fails to do so, it amounts to carelessness on its part. Apart from the duty cast on the Court, the applicant for sale or somebody on his behalf, has to file a verified statement containing the matters required by R. 66 (2) to be specified in the proclamation which are either known to, or could be ascertained by him. Where a Court sale takes place at a serious under value occasioned by the failure on the part of the Court and the decree-holder to discharge their obligations under O. 21, R. 66, of C. P. Code, in regard to the fixing of the proper value of the property to be sold, after allowing for the correct amount due under a prior charge, the judgment-debtor, sustains substantial injury thereby, and the case falls within the language of O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, and the sale has to be set aside, if the judgment-debtor, however dilatory or unsatisfactory his conduct may have been, has not otherwise debarred himself of his right to have it set aside. security under the proviso to R. 90 and he was ordered to furnish the security by a certain date. On that date he applicant tendered a draft security bond and without testing the security or considering its adequacy, the Court ordered notice to the respondent who appeared and took the objection that the property offered as security was not sufficient. The Court thereupon ordered the security to be tested. Since it was found to be wholly inadequate, the Court dismissed the application without condidering it on the merits on the ground that the applicant had failed to furnish security. On appeal from the dismissal the applicant (appellant) contended that by issuing the notice to the respondents the Court had admitted the application and had thereby precluded itself from dismissing it except after consideration on the merits.

Held, that there was no principle of law by which the Court should be deemed to have done what it consciously did not intend to do The security having been called for before issue of notice to the respondent, the subsequent issue of notice before the secueity was tested should be deemed to be provisional and in issuing the notice in the circumstances, the Court did not intend to deprive itself of its power of deciding whether the security to be eventually furnished was adequate on not and when it was found to be inadequate the Court was entitled under O. 21, R. 90 as now amended, to dismiss the application without any consideration of the merits. —O. 21, R. 92 (2)—Order setting aside sale without notice to person affected thereby—Validity.

An order setting a sale under O. 21, R. 92 (2), without notice to a person affected thereby, is not a nullity but requires to be set aside by an application made for the purpose. A petition of objection containing a prayer that the order may be set aside may be treated as such an application, (Mukherjea and Pal, JI.) Mohesh Chandra Land Reclamation and Agricultural Improvement Co., Ltd. v. Darapali Molla. 47 C.W.N. 539.

—O. 21, R. 92(2), proviso—"Persons affected thereby"—Meaning of—Landlord for whom transfer fees had been deposited under S. 26-E, B. T. Act—If entitled to notice.

In order to be affected by an order setting aside a sale, a person need not take any interest in the properly sold. Any valuable interest arising from the sale and liable to be defeated by the setting aside of that sale will make him a person affected by that order within the meaning of the proviso to R. 92 (2) of O. 21. Consequently, a landlord for whom trasnfer fees had been deposited under S. 26-E. B. T. Act; is a person entitled to a notice under the above proviso, when an application for setting aside a sale under O. 21, R. 90, is made after confirmation of the sale. The fact that the landlord's fees were not paid to him when such application was made, is immaterial. (Mukherjea and Pal, JJ.) Mohesh Chandra Land Reclamation and Agricultural Improvement Co., Ltd. v. Darapali Molla. 47 C.W.N. 539.

The bar of a suit under O. 21, R. 92 (3) does not require that the application on which the order is made should have been heard on the merits and disallowed. The reason for the disallowance of the application is immaterial. Even a dismissal on the ground of limitation would attract the bar under O. 21, R. 92 (3). (Lokur, J.) ABDUL RAHIM v. ---- O. 21, Rr. 97 to 99 -- Application under-Court's duty to hold inquiry.

The execution Judge on an application under O. 21, R. 97 C. P. Code should make an inquiry before he comes to the conclusion that action should be taken or otherwise. very will be a continuation of the earlier application only and not a fresh application. Failure to apply for removal of obstruction is not a default of the auction-purchaser, which would necessitate the dismissal of his application for delivery ordinarily. A decree holder is not bound to apply for removal of obstruction under O. 21, R. 97 and it cannot be said that there has been default on the part of the decree-holder because he failed to apply for removal of obstruction under O. 21, R. 97 (Horwi'l. It follows, that if the obstruction is not at the instigation or on behalf of the judgment-debtor the decree-holder has to file a suit for possession and cannot be given any relief under O. 21, R. 98 C. In order to make an application under R. 100 of O. 21, it is essential that the applicant must be a person other than the judgment-debtor. A person who has bought in Court auction the judgment-debtor's property in execution of a money decree when a suit on foot of a mortgage over that property is pending is not entitled to apply under O. 21, R. 100. When the mortgage decree is executed and the property is bought by the decree-holder himself and possession also is obtained by him, he is only, so far as the mortgage decree-holder-purchaser is concerned the representative of the judgment-debtor and any order passed on such an application would be without jurisdiction and cannot bo pleaded to

The scope of a suit under O. 21, R. 103, C. P. Code, is not the determination of the mere question of possession of the parties concerned, but the establishment of the right or title by which the praintiff claims the present possession of the property. Where an order is made dismissing an application for removal of obstruction to delivery of possession to the holder of a decree for eviction that order must be deemed to have been passed under O. 21, R. 99, C. P. Code, such an order operates as a conclusive adjudication of the right to the property, if one year is allowed to elapse without bringing a suit as provided by O. 21, R. 103, C. P. Code. A suit for declaration of title and possession brought several years later, is therefore barred. There are certain types of wrongs which, though a remedy for them is available against the wrongdoer during his lifetime, does not permit of a remedy against his representatives after his death. By English law an executor represents the debts and the property of his testator but not his person. And that in general, is true of the position of a legal representative in India. Generally the only cases, apart from cases of contract in which a remedy for a wrongful act can be pursued against the estate of a deceased person is one in which the wrong consits of the appropriation by the deceased of property, or the value of property belonging to another. To those special types of wrongs which have produced for the wrongdoer either property or money which has accrued to his estate, the English law has refused to apply the maxim of actio personalis moritur cum persona'. These principles are applicable to India as well. Wherever it is found that a deceased person has by his wrong diverted either property or the proceeds of the property belonging to some one else into his own estate, recourse can be had to that estate, through his legal representatives when he is dead, to recover it subject, of course, to the limitation that any decree obtained will be limited to the assets of the deceased wrongdoer's estate. Further wherever a relationship based on contract, quasi contract or fiduciary relationship or some obligation to perform a duty is found to exist that also is alone sufficient to entitle a remedy to be pursued against the legal representatives of the wrongdoer.

Where a plaint charged the defendant with having disposed of various parts of the plaintiff's estate during his minority and of appropriating monies derived from the estate by putting them into his own pocket, and then went on to ask for an account the plaint contained a distinct allegation that the defendant owed a duty to the plaintiff and that in breach of that duty, he appropriated to himself either the property of the minor or else its value and on the death of the defendant the suit did not abate and right to sue survived. Death of landlord respondent—Appeal if abates.

During the pendency of an appeal filed by a tenant against an order settling rent in respect of his tenure in a suit by the landlord under S. 105 of B.T. Act, the landlord granted to another person a putni which included the suit lands also. The putnidar was then added as Respondent No. 2, the landlord being retained as Respondent No. 1. Thereafter landlord respondent died and no substitution was made in his place. It was contended by the surviving respondent that the appeal became incompetent as against him, it having abated against the deceased respondent.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 22, R. 3.

Held, that the right to appeal survived the deceased respondent and survived against the surviving respondent alone within the meaning of O. 22, R. 2, C. P. Code, and that, therefore, the appeal was competent without the legal repesentative of the deceased respondent being brought on the record. (Sen and Pal, J.) HARAD-HONE v. PANCHANAN. I.I. R. —0. 22, Rr. 2 and 3—Applicability—Test—Legal representative already on record—Application for substitution—If necessary.

In order to determine whether R. 2 or R. 3 of O. 22, C. P. Code, applies, it is necessary to see whether or not the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone. There is nothing in R. 2 to support the contention that it does not apply where the legal representative is on the record not as such but in his individual capacity. When the legal representative is already on the record and the right to sue survives to the remaining plaintiff, the case comes within R. 2 and not within R. 3 and no application for substitution is necessary. — 0.22, Rr. 2 and 3—Legal representative of one of the deceased appellants already on record as respondents—Failure to formally apply for their substitution—If latal.

The object of filing an application for substitution of heirs of a deceased party is to intimate to the Court the fact of death of the party and to place the legal representatives on record in time. If such persons are already parties to the case, the mere non-filing of an application is not fatal to the maintainability of the suit or appeal. Hence where one of the appellants died, but his heirs were on record already as respondents, and no application for substitution was made within time it is not fatal to the maintainability of the appeal. ## --- O. 22, Rr. 3 and 4-Abatement-Effect of.

The effect of abatement is that the plaintiff in the suit abated or those claiming under him are prevented from suing again on the same cause of action. The order of abatement does not extinguish the title of the plaintiff in the suit abated and he is not debarred from defending his possession or rights by relying upon his true title. But if the defendant continues in possession then of course the plaintiff cannot be allowed to set up his possession in a subsequent suit. (Mathur, J.) BIJAI RAGHO NIWASJI v. Where on the death of plaintiff appellant in a suit for the recovery of mesne profits from a trespasser only one of the two heirs is brought on record as the legal representative, the appeal does not abate as regards the share of the other heir, because, when one of the heirs is added as legal representative, it must be taken to be for the benefit of the entire inheritance which opened on the death of plaintiff appellant. Although O. 22, Rr. 3 and 4, C. P. R, a Hindu widow, filed a suit against B, who claimed to be her adopted son, for a declaration that she had not taken the defendant B in adoption and that he was not her legally adopted son. R died pending suit, and her husband's cousin W applied to be brought on the record to continue the suit as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff. The defendant opposed the application on the ground that as adopted son of R, he was her legal representative and the right of suit did not therefore survive.

Held, that since the subject-matter of the suit was the validity of the defendant's adoption itself, the defendant was not R's proper legal representative for continuing the suit and W was the proper legal representative to continue the suit. If a mortgagee dies pending his suit to bring the mortgaged property to sale, a person claiming under his will can be brought on the record as a legal representative without taking out probate first. O. 22, R. 3 - Representative suit - Death of one of the representors-Procedure to be followed.

In a representative suit when one of the plaintiffs dies, the duty of the parties is to bring this fact to the notice of the Court and ask for directions. Generally a new name would be suggested and the Court will agree to the substitution of this name in the place of the deceased. Where it is stated that the plaintiffs severally represent the whole community, a decree in favour of one would bind the whole community and in the case of death of one of them, a decree against the remaining representative will not be infructuous, and hence the suit will not abate as a whole on the death of one of the representatives. In a suit by several plaintiffs, one of them being a Hindu claiming to be the purchaser of a half share of the interest of the other plaintiffs who were all Mahomedans for partition, the share of none of the plaintiffs except that of one was specified. It was not clear on the plaint what share any of the other plaintiffs claimed; it appeared from the plaint that the plaintiffs were claiming jointly to have joint shares in ten annas eight pies share of the land in suit. In the prayer clause a share was claimed for plaintiffs 1 to 5, 7 and 8 as also for the purchaser; but it was no-where stated, nor could it be ascertained from the plaint, what the shares of the plaintiffs were. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court and by the first appellate Court as barred by limitation. A second appeal was preferred against the dismissal. One of the appellants, a necessary party, died, and his legal representatives were not brought on the record and suit therefore abated at least as regards him. It was contended that this abatement operated to make the appeal incompetent as a whole.

Held, that the cause of action of all the plaintiffs was joint and the same and that to a proper decision of the dispute all the co-owners were

If after the suit and before the decree is made one of the shebaits dies, and no substitution is made within the time limited by law, there can be no question of abatement. The deity is sufficiently and substantially represented by the remaining shebaits, who are parties to the decree passed and the decree is a good decree. The suit does not abate. A Hindu widow suing to recover a mortgage debt due to her husband sues as a representative of her husband's estate. If she dies pending the suit, the right to sue survives and devolves on the reversioners who are her legal repre-sentatives within the meaning of S. 2 (11), C.P. Code, inasmuch as the estate vests in them on her death. If the reversioners do not apply to be substituted in time, the suit abates under O. 22, R. 3 (2) and they are, therefore debarred from instituting a fresh suit on the mortgage under O. 22, R. 9. A purchaser of their interest is under the same disability. (Sen. J.) ABDUL RAHAMAN MIA v. BALAIPADO SETT. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal 137 = 195 I.C. 728 = 14 R.C. 131 = 45 C.W.N. 105= A.1.R. 1941 Cal. 347.

If in a suit by the plaintiffs as joint tenants of a single tenancy, for a declaration of the rate of rent payable by them, one of them dies and his heirs are not substituted in time, the suit will abate as a whole. But it does not necessarily follow that an appeal by the plaintiffs will also abate as a whole if one of the plaintiff-appellants dies pending the hearing of the appeal and his heirs are not substituted. Under O. 41, R. 4, C. P. Code, the appellate Court has the power to reverse or vary the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs including a plaintiff who has not been made a party to the appeal, if the decree in the Court below has proceeded on a ground common to all the plaintiffs. It can exercise the same power necessary parties both to the suit and to the in favour of the heirs of a plaintiff who was an

O. 22, R. 3 (2), only requires an application to be made by a person claiming to be the legal representative, to prevent the order of abatement being made. When once an application is made by a legal representative to be brought on record and that application is granted and such legal representative is brought on record then the Court shall proceed with the suit or appeal and the appeal will not abate. The rule does not require that all the legal representatives should be on the record and if one of them alone is separately brought on record as legal representative, there would be no abatement. A Hindu who along with his wife and only son constituted a joint Hindu family brought a suit for an injunction against certain persons to secure certain easement rights and other amenities for his house. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court and the plaintiff appealed. The appellant, however, died on 2-10-1940, pending appeal and the only son of the deceased appellant made an application to be brought on the record and his name was placed on the record as legal representative. His mother who was also an heir under the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act was not brought on the record as his legal representative.

Held, that though it would have been proper if both the son and the widow of the deceased had applied to be brought on record as legal representatives of the deceased appellant, the appeal did not abate merely because the son alone applied and was brought on record as legal representative since the son would sufficiently represent the estate. In case of death of one of the respondents where his legal representative is not added, it cannot be said that in all such cases where the allowing of the appeal would result in conflicting decrees it is necessary for the whole appeal to abate. Mere inconsistency is not sufficient nor is it an absolute test to find out whether an appeal is to abate in toto or partially. Where in a suit to declare certain property not liable to attachment, the person attaching the property and persons claiming rateable distribution were added as defendants and during the pendency of an appeal by the plaintiff from the decision in the suit, one of the respondents died and his legal representa-

The question of a will is a single subject-matter and a will must be either good or bad against all the world. It is not possible for a will to be good against some persons and bad against others. Where pending an appeal from a decree dismissing an application for the revocation of the grant of probate of a will, some of the respondents die and the appellant fails to substitute their legal representatives and the appellant also gives up her appeal against certain other respondents owing to difficulties in effecting service, the appeal as a whole abates and not merely as against some of the respondents. The decision of the Court is one and indivisible as the will must be either good or bad against all the world, and, therefore the appeal cannot proceed and is liable to be dismissed. presentative—Abatement, if whole—When interests of respondents are separable—Test.

Where in an appeal one of several respondents dies and his legal representative is not brought on record the test whether an appaal abates as a whole or not should be (1) whether the interests of the respondents are joint and inseparable and (2) whether in the event of the appeal being allowed as against the remaining respondents there would or would not be two conflicting decrees in the same case with respect to the same subject matter. Hence where the interests of certain respondents were separable and there was no danger of them coming into conflict with any recognized principle of law if the appea were allowed against the remaining respondents, the appeal does not abate as a whole. O. 22, R. 4 and U. P. Encum. Estates Act (1934), S. 4—Death of one of the respondents—Legal representatives not added in time—Appeal, if abutes in toto.

The question whether on the failure to add the legal representatives of one of the respondents within time the appeal abates in toto or not, depends on the facts of each case. The test in such cases should be (1) whether the interests of the defendants in the suit are joint and indivisible so that the interest of the deceased cannot be separated from those of the rest, and (2) whether in the event of the appeal being allowed as against the remaining respondents there would or would not be two inconsistent and contradictory decrees in the same case with respect to the same subject-matter.

Where during the pendency of an appeal by an applicant under the U.P. Encumbered Estates Act, one of the creditors opposing the debtor's application died the interests of the deceased creditor could not be separated from those of the rest and the heirs of the deceased are necessary parties and when they have not been added in time, the appeal abates as a whole. —0.22, R. 4—Death of one of three defendants who were brothers—Widow of deceased not impleaded at legal representative—Representation by other defendants that they formed foint family—Plaintiff acting in good faith—Decree, if binds legal representatives.

A suit was instituted against three brothers on the basis of a mortgage effected by them. One of the defendants died pending the suit but he had admitted the mortgage in his written statement. The plaintiff applied for his widow being brought on record as his legal representative but subsequently did not pursue the matter as the other defendants stated that they were members of a Joint Hindu family and had succeeded to the interest of the deceased by survivorship. The suit was eventually decreed. It was found that the defendants had separated in status before the suit.

Held, that the decree was binding on the widow as the legal representative of the deceased inasmuch, as the plaintiff had acted in good faith in not insisting upon impleading her and as the estate was effectively represented by the surviving brothers. On the death of the respondent the manager of a joint Hindu tamily during the pendency of an appeal, his sons alone were brought on record as his legal representatives. On a contention that the appeal abated by reason of the failure to implead the deceased widow also as his legal representative. Held, that the appeal did not abate. Although under the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, the law now vests in a Hindu widow the limited interest of her husband in the joint property, it does not operate to alter the Hindu Law of joint family so as to make her a member of the co-parcenary. Even if she is a legal representative of her husband the appeal would not abate for the reason that the list of legal representatives mentioned in the application under O. 22, R. 4 read with R. 11 was not exhaustive. -0.22, Rr. 4 and 5—Decree against wreeg legal representative—When binds true representative—Absence of bona fides on part of plaintiff—Effect.

The appellant had settled his land with one J who he alleged, was a tenant-at-will. On J's death, he settled the land with J's sister P and K who was the daughter of G, P's daughter, as joint tenants. The appellant sued to eject J and K on the ground that they were not rendering service as agreed to. Pending the suit P died; the appellant applied to nave K recorded as the legal representative of P. This was done and a decree was passed in the appellant's favour. G brought a suit for declaration that the decree was not binding on her and for an injunction restraining the appellant from interfering with her possession in execution of the decree. It was found that G was in possession of the property and that the appellant made no attempt to give any explanation of his omission to implead G in his suit.

Held, that a decree obtained against a wrong legal representative might bind the true representative who was no party to the decree, it it be shown that the plaintiff had acted bona fule and was ignorant of the true facts, that there was no fraud or collusion and that the person wrongly impleaded was impleaded in a representative capacity, the decree also being passed against him as representing the state. Since the appelant had made no attempt to explain his act in not impleading G, daughter of the defendant P, he could not claim to have acted bona fule. The decree therefore did not bind G. Where a Court appoints one of the heirs of deceased respondent to represent the interests of the deceased during the pendency of the appeal, he represents the estate of the deceased and any decree that may be passed against him would be binding on all those who claim the property in suit through the deceased. Where some of the heirs have been impleaded as the representative of a deceased respondent the appeal does not abate against the heirs who had not been so impleaded. Though Mahomedan heirs succeed to separate shares in an estate and one litigating about his share could not produce any effect on the share of another who was not impleaded where one of the heirs is impleaded not as owner oi a share in his own right but in a representative capacity as the person best suited to represent the estate, any decision against him would bind the others also. Where some of the legal representatives have been brought on the record on an application made within limitation, a subsequent application for bringing other persons on the record as legal representatives is not governed by the 90 days rule but is governed by the limitation of three years as provided for under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act. favour of several vendees jointly in specified shares—Death of one of vendees pendente lite—Suit, if abates in toto.

A right of pre-emption is a right of substitution and if a person wishes to get himself substituted for the vendee in exercise of that right, he must claim the whole of the property over which C. P. CODE (1908), O. 22, R. 4 (2).

he has a right (and in cases where the vendee happens to be a pre-emptor as well a superior right) of pre-emption and cannot leave out any portion thereof at the peril of losing his right altogether. If a person cannot sue for a part of the bargain where he is entitled to sue for the whole, it would not be open to him to sue in respect of the shares of certain vendees only when the bargain entered into between the vendor on the one hand and all the vendees on the other is joint and the cause of action indivisible. It would make no difference if the shares of the various vendees, it they happened to be more than one, were specified as long as the sale was for a consolidated price and it was open to the vendor to call upon all the intending purchasers to perform their contract jointly and to recover the whole of the price from any one of them. Specification of shares in such a case could not make such a contract of sale to be divisible or to consist of a number of transactions embodied in a single document. It follows therefore that a suit for pre-emption in respect of sale in favour of several vendees jointly although in specified shares would abate in its entirety and not against one of the vendees only who dies pendente lite but whose legal representatives are not brought on the record within the period of limitation. It is only when it is not possible to go on with the appeal in the absence of the heirs of a deceased party that the whole appeal must fail. -O. 22, B. 10—Aphlicability—Decree under U.P. Encumbered Estates Act sent to Collector for execution-Transfer of part of the decree-Substitution of names if permissible.

Where after the passing of the decree by the Special Judge under the U.P. Encumbered Estates Act, it is sent to the Collector for execution, the proceedings under the Act are still pending. Hence where there has been a transfer of a part of such decree after it is sent to the Collector, an application for substitution of names could be ordedred. To refuse it on the ground that after decree the suit is not pending is putting too limited an interpretation on the words (during the pendency of a suit) in O 22, R. 10 C. P. Code. (Harper. S. An assignee pendente lite is not bound to file an application during the pendency of the suit if his interest is protected. It is only when he finds that his interest is in jeopardy and not likely to be protected by the assignor that it is necessary for him to apply for leave to continue the suit by or against him. Therefore an assignee during the pendency of a suit in the trial Court who has failed to make an application for his substitution during the suit is not precluded from filing the application at the stage of appeal if he finds only at that stage that his interest will not be protected by the assignor. R. 10 is not one of the rules in O. 22, C. P. It is merely a permissive provision for the henefit of an assignee and not a punitive one to the detriment of the assignor. There is no provision in the Code which shows that a plaintiff who has assigned his interest in the property in suit during the pendency of the suit or an appellant who has assigned his interest in the property being the subjectmatter of the litigation during the pendency of the appeal, loses his right of further prosecuting the suit or Where a plaintiff after dismissal of his suit and before filing an appeal against it, assigned his interest in the subject matter of the suit, it is not incompetent for him to prefer an appeal against the dismissal. In ordinary cases of devolution by death, R. 4 applies. In case of assignment, creation of interest or devolution of an interest other than by death, it would normally be the party in whose favour the assignment has been made or the interest created or had devolved who would apply under R. 10. Generally speaking it would not ordinarily be open to the opposite party to apply under R. 10. (Yorke, J.) AMAN ULLAH KHAN 7. It cannot be held that what O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code, contemplates is a fresh suit in the sense of a freshly instituted suit against all the parties to the suit. It is quite sufficient if the suit is instituted against a particular party after leave has been obtained under O. 23, R. 1. A suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, was filed against defendants 1, 2 and 3 after obtaining the consent of the Advocate-General. On a plea of misjoinder raised by the defendant the 4th defendant was added as a party but consent of the Advocate-General was not taken prior to his being added. On this ground the fourth defendant pleaded that the suit was not maintainable against him. as he was added without the consent of the Advocate-General having been obtained as against him. The plaintiffs therefore applied for leave to withdraw the suit against him under O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code, with liberty to bring a fresh suit against him on the same cause of action. This was granted and the fourth defendanf's name was struck out. Subsequently the plaintiffs obtained the consent of the Advocate-General to sue the fourth defendant and applied to have him added and he was made a party to the suit again. The fourth defendant now pleaded that this course was illegal and that a new suit should be filed against him because O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code, would not permit the same party against whom the suit had once been abandoned to be impleaded over again.

Held, that by bringing the fourth defendant on record again after obtaining the consent of the Advocate-General under S. 92, C. P. Code, the plaintiffs had instituted a fresh suit against him, and having obtained

Where on an application by the plaintiff under O. 23, R. 1, C.P. Code, asking for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, the Court after holding that "the plaintiff was entitled to withdraw from proceeding with the suit" allows him to do so with liberty to bring a fresh suit, and also adds that "the suit of the plaintiff be consequently dismissed", the order is in fact and substance one allowing the suit to be withdrawn under O. 23, R. 1, and its real character cannot be changed by these words. These words are a mere surplusage and have no real meaning. Obviously a suit cannot be allowed to be "withdrawn" and "dismissed" at the same time. Consequently such an order is not appealable, and a revision lies from that order. (Tek Chand and Blacker, JJ.) KHAN SINGH SOMA SINGH v. BALDEV SINGH, I.L.B. An order under O. 23, R. 1, C.P. Code, permitting the withdrawal of a suit with liberty to file a fresh suit must contain the facts, in sufficient detail, to enable a Court to know the case of the parties, the lacuna which is the immediate cause of the application for withdrawal and the reasons of the learned Judge for holding that a case within the meaning of R. 1 of O. 23, C.P. Code, has been made out. In the absence of these details the order is liable to be set aside in revision. (Sinha J.) RIAZUDDIN v. MIR SAJID HUSAIN. I.L.R. (1944) A. 396=215 I.C. 107=1944 O.W.N. Where a suit dismissed by the trial Court is allowed by the appellate Court to be withdrawn with liberty to file a fresh suit on the ground that there were certain formal defects, when as a matter of fact they were material defects, the lower appellate Court must be held to have acted with material irregularity in allowing the withdrawal of the suit and its order can be set aside in revision. -0. 23, R. 1—Scope—Order permitting with drawal of suit with liberty-Subsequent application for revival of suit on ground of non-acceptance of terms or to alter or vary terms-Maintainability.

If a plaintiff simply wishes to withdraw from suit he can do so without asking for any permission from the Court. But if he wishes to withdraw his suit with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the same subject matter, he has to ask for permission from the Court, and it can be given only on such terms as it thinks fit. It is clear that the permission relates not to the withdrawal of the suit but to the filing of another suit when once the suit is withdrawn it is no longer pending. After the order is made permitting the withdrawl of the suit on certain conditions, it is not open to the plaintiff to ask the Court to modify or to annul the conditions, the suit having already ended when the order is made. Once the order for permission to withdraw is made and the suit has ceased to exist it is not open to the plaintiff to revive the suit on the ground of non-acceptance of the terms. This should be before and not after the order of withdrawal is formally made. (Divatia, J.) Jaijibai Modi v. Bhikhibai Chandulal. I.L.B. (1941) Bom. 570=196 I.C. 333=14 R.B. 121 =43 Bom. The Court however, gave him leave to withdraw the suit under O. 23 R. 1, C. P. Code, with permission to file a fresh snit within one month and awarded costs to the appellant (defendant). The Court also expressed its opinion that S. 14 of the Limitation Act would apply to the case and that the respondent would not be prejudiced on the question of limitation. The respondent paid the cost to the appellant and filed a fresh suit which was beyond one year of the dismissal of his claim petition. The appellant pleaded limitation but his plea was overruled.

Held. (1) that S. 14 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case; (2) that any statement made by the Court granting leave to withdraw the suit under O. 23. -0.23, R. 1 (1) and (4)—Construction and scope—Several plaintiffs—Right of one to withdraw from suit without consent of others-Question of prejudice-Inconvenience to other plaintiffs-Relevancy.

Sub-R. (4) of R. 1 of O. 23. C.P. Code, does not govern an application for the unconditional with-drawal of a suit under sub-R. (1) of R.1. But it does not follow that one of several plaintiffs has an unconditional right to withdraw from a suit though it may be that for such a purpose the consent of the other plaintiffs may not be necessary. The question of prejudice has to be considered by the Court. The 1st and 2nd plaintiffs along with the third plaintiff-a financierbrought a suit for specific performance of an agreement to re-convey property by the defendants. The 3rd plaintiff deposited in Court the necessary amount of money but owing to differences among the plaintiffs the 3rd plaintiff filed a petition for leave to withdraw from the suit so far as he was concerned and also to withdraw from Court the amount which he had deposited.

Held, (1) that since the 3rd plaintiff was not a necessary party to the suit for specific performance of an agreement to which he was not a party, though the grant of leave to him to withdraw from the suit might cause inconvenience to the other plaintiffs, yet such inconvenience was not a legal obstacle to the continuation of the suit and cannot be regarded as a prejudice to the other plaints which should prevent the Court from granting the petition to withdraw; (2) that the withdrawing plaintiff could take back from Court the money deposited by him which was still his, and his right to withdraw the money could scarcely by doubted. (Krishnaswam: Ayyangar, J.) TULSIDAS SAIT v. SETHURAMASWAMI IYER. 204 I.C. 460=15 R.M. 765=55 L.W. 385=1942 M.W.N. 58=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 373=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 190.

O. 23, R. 1 (1) and (4)—Scope and effect— Several plaintiffs-Unconditional withdrawal of suit by some without consent of rest-Right ofimposition of restrictions-Inherent power of such a case express leave of the Court is necessary and even if there are circumstances present which would justify the Court in granting leave under Sub-R. (2), Sub-R. (4) imposes a restraint upon its authority and prevents it from granting permission to one of several plaint tiffs to withdraw from a suit if the other plaintiffs do not consent to this course. But if the withdrawing plaintiff does not want to reserve any right to renew the suit on his own account in future and is prepared to take the consequence indicated in Sub-R. (3) it cannot be said that his right of withdrawal is dependent on the consent of the other plaintiffs. The Court has, however, an inherent power quite apart from Sub-R. (4) to impose restrictions upon the right of one of the several plainliffs to withdraw from a suit when such course is detrimental to the interest of the other co-plaintiffs even though the withdrawing plaintiff does not want any liberty to renew his suit.

Per Mukherjea, J.—The operation of Sub-R.(4) of O. 23, R. 1, is confined to cases where permission of the Court is necessary in order to enable the plaintiff to withdraw from a suit; or in other words, it is applicable only when the plaintiff wants to have the liberty of instituting a fresh of the first suit be allowed to be withdrawn with suit in respect of the same subject-matter. In C. P. CODE 1908, O. 23, E. 1 (2).

Per Pal, J.-Suh-R of O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code. Code, gives a plaintiff the right to withdraw only his suit or abandon his claim. This can be done only by the entire hody of the plaintiffs when they allege that the right to the relief exists in them jointly. The suit and the claim in such a case are the suit and the claim of these plaintiffs collectively. But as persons may join in one suit as plaintiffs even when they claim severally or inalternative, their several or alternative reliefs will be their own respective suits or claim they will be entitled to withdraw or abandon them under Suh R. (1). No leave of the Court will be needed for this purpose. In this view no right of withdrawal is given by this rule to some of the plaintiffs in a case where they allege the right to the relief as existing in them jointly without the leave of the Court. Even the Court's power under the rule is limited to the case of withdrawal with liberty to bring a fresh suit. When such liberty is not sought for, the Court is not authorised by the rule to allow withdrawal. It is only in exercise of its inherent nower that the Court can move in the matter. When therefore such a plaintiff wants to withdraw without such liberty his only remedy is to invoke the in-herent power of the Court. The exercise of the inherent power is not hampered by the provisions of this rule. But certainly all considerations of justice and prejudice will be open to it while called upon to exercise its inherent power. consent of the other plaintiffs in such a case is not at all required. Sub-R. (4) has no application here. The consent is material only so far as the consideration of their prejudice is concerned. If they are sui juris and give their consent, the court need not trouble itself with the question of their prejudice. Still the question of prejudice and harassment of the defendants remains and hefore exercising the inherent power in favour of withdrawal the Court will weigh them properly (Mukherjea, and Pal, Jl.) BAIDYA NATH NANDY v. SYAM SUNDER NANDY. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 205-208 I.C. 323=16 R.C. 166=76 C.L.J. 211= A.T.R. 1945 Cal. 427.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 25, R. 1 (2).

Before permitting a plaintiff to withdraw a suit under O. 23, R. 1 (2), C. P. Code, with liber tv to bring a fresh suit, it is incumbent upon the Court to issue notice to the defendant and to record its reasons for granting permission to withdraw the suit. Where the order granting permission is made without notice to the defendant and is not supported by reasons, it is vitlated by material irregularity, which would justify the High Court in setting aside the order under S 115, C. P. Code. (Lobo and O'Sullivon, II.) SONAKHAN YAR MAHOMED v. MST. BACHT. I.L. R. (1944) Kar 169=216 I.C. 212=17 R.S. 63= A.I.R. 1944 Sind 192.

-O. 23, B. 1 (2)—Grant of leave—Discretion of Court.

The grant of leave under (). 23, R. 1 (2), is a matter within the discretion of the Court. Where the plaintiffs are not withdrawing from the suit because of any formal defect or because of any ground analogous to a formal defect, but because they find that they cannot sustain the judgment of the lower appellate Court and cannot succesfully challenge that of the trial Court, it is not a fit case for granting leave to withdraw with permission to bring a fresh suit. An order for withdrawal of a suit with leave to institute a fresh suit made in circumstances not within the scope of O. 23, R. 1 (2), C. P. owing to abundant caution—It could be granted.

The main object of sub-R. (2) of R. 1 of O. 23, C. P. Code is to prevent the defeat of justice or technical grounds and the words 'sufficient grounds' refer to some defect in the suit, which had the effect of shutting out a fair trial on the merits and arose out of some error made in good faith by plaintiff or by the Court at the instance of either party which could only be effectively set right by a trial de novo 'n a case where there was no defect which shut out a fair trial, but the plaintiff's cause of action disarpeared and he out of abundant caution to meet a possible claim by the other side made a request for permission to bring a fresh suit permission ought not to be reserved to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit. (Clarke, I) JAMNADAS v. BEHARILAL. 196 I.C. 544=14 R.N. 110=1941 N.L. J. 382=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 258.

O. 23. R. 1 (3)— Applicability — Application under para. 20. Sch. II—II suit, for purposes of O. 23, R. 1—Withdrawal without liberty—II bars subsequent suit to enforce award or suit on original cause of action apart from award—"Subject-matter."

An application under Sch. II, para. 20, C. P. Code, to file an award, though it is numbered and registered as a suit, is not a suit for all purposes. In respect of a promissory note executed by the defendant to the plaintiff in June 1933, there was a reference to arbitration without the intervention of the Court in 1935, and an award was made. On 14—6—1935, the plaintiff applied to file the award under para. 20, Sch. II, C. P. Code and on 18—9—1936, he applied for permission to withdraw the application on the ground that he had to file a separate suit, but did not specifically ask for liberty to bring a separate suit. The Court made an order permitting the withdrawal. On 28—10—1936, the plaintiff filed a suit to enforce the award and secondly to recover the amount due on the promissory note. It was pleaded that the suit was barred under 0, 23, R. J. (c), as no leave to bring a fresh suit had been granted.

Held, (1) that an application to file an award and a soit to enforce an award were not in part materia, and O. 23, R. I could not be construed to mean that the withdrawal of an application without liberty reserved was a bar to the institution of a suit, as the word "suit" in the rule if it could mean an application to file an award at all, must mean that wherever that word occurred; (2) that even if it be held that the withdrawal of an application to file an award without liberty to apply again barred a suit, it would only bar a suit on the san' subject-matter; (3) an application to file an award and a suit afterwards brought to enforce the award were not proceedings in respect of the same subject-matter (4) that a fortiori, the plaintiff's claim for relief on the original cause of action apart from the award was not on the same subject-matter, and hence the suit was not barred, as the plaintiff's failure to obtain leave of the Court to bring the suit was not fatal to his suit.

Ohiter.—O. 23, R. 1 is essentially a rule of procedure, and it would seem that it would under S. 141, C. P. Where the plaintiff was given liberty to withdraw a suit with permission to institute a fresh suit if not otherwise barred by limitation, and costs were directed to be paid to the defendant as a condition precedent to the institution of such suit, but the plaintiff instituted the new suit without paying the costs and deposited them after evidence was taken on the day fixed for hearing arguments on which day the suit was barred by limitation.

Held, that the new suit was time-barred as it must be taken to be instituted only on the day when the condition of the payment of costs was complied with. (Mukherjea and Pal, J.). AMIR HUSAIN v. ABDUL BARIKHAN. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 286=211 I.C. 24=16 R.C. 486=47 C.W.N. 709=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 560.

The adjustment contemplated by O 23, R. 3, C. P. Code, is an adjustment of the suit by any lawful agreement or compromise. To amount to an adjustment the agreement or the compromise must be capable of being embodied in a decree forthwith. —0.23, R.3—Adjustment—Arbitration pending appeal—Award not filed in time and not signed by one of arbitrators—Validity.

A petition was filed by both parties to an appeal to the effect that they had agreed that their dispute should be referred to three named arbitrators, who were to submit their award within a certain time. The appealwas then adjourned by the Court to enable the parties to compromise. Long after the time fixed for the submission of the award, a so-called award was put in by two of the arbitrators without the signature of the third who filed an affidavit saying that the arbitrators never met and discussed the matter, and he had had no notice from the other arbitrators;

Held, that in the circumstances the suit could not be treated as having been adjusted under 0. 23, R. 3 C. P. Code, upon the basis of the so called award. Even if the petition originally filed by both parties could be regarded as a valid agreement to refer the case to arbitrators subject to certain conditions, those conditions were never fulfilled and became impossible of performances the agreement, if any, became nugatory. There is nothing in O. 23, R. 3. C.P. Code, which restricts the relief granted in a compromise decree to the relief prayed for in the plaint. The fact that a compromise relates to property not the subject matter of the suit is not in all cases decisive of the question whether the compromise does or does not relate to the suit. Where a suit relates to possession of a specified plot of land, and the compromise effected by the parties relates to terms on which the same land shall be possessed and cultivated, it cannot be said that because the plaintiff is given a relief he did not ask for, that necessarily brings the compromise outside the scope of the suit. The proceedings must be looked at as a whole. The frame of the suit, the plaint, the written statement, the consideration for the compromise, etc.. have to be looked at as a whole (Davis, C.J. and Tyabji, J.) GODHUMAL v. MST. BHAMBHO, I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 326=205 I.C. 256=15 R.S. 118=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 11.

A compromise between a trustee and the beneficiaries whereby an item of trust property was agreed to be treated as the property of the trustee is not prima facie being trust property. When a compromise or agreement has been set up, the Court must satisfy itself that it has been made and once it has been made, it must be recorded, provided it is lawful on the face of it. But this does not mean that it must necessarily be embodied in a decree of the Court. If the Court directs the compromise in writing to be filed with the record it means that it has been recorded. Then it is for the Court to decide what form the decree will take. It is not proper for the Court to include in the decree any matters which are outside the scope of the suit. (Allsop and Malik, //.) KASHI PRASAD v. SATWANTI. I.L.R. (1945) All. 197=1945 A.L.J. 68=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 48= 1945 A.L.W. (H.C.) 57=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 57= A.I.R. 1945 All. 136.

-0.23, R.3-Decree in terms of compromise-How to be drawn up.

Where a compromise covers both matters relating to the suit and also others extraneous to it, the decree should either recite the whole of the agreement and then conclude with an order relative to that part that was subject of the suit or introduce the agreement in a schedule to the decree. (Clarke, J.) SHANKER BALKRISHNA v. SHREE GOPAL KRISHNA. 196 I.C. 232=14 R.N. 91=1941 N.L.J. 207=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 197.

-0.23, R. 3-Duty of Court.

When a compromise is alleged to have been entered into by the parties and the compromise agreement is filed in Court it is the primary duty of the Court to get it verified by the parties and then if it is satisfied that the parties have really come to terms it must dispose of the suit in accordance with the terms of that compromise. (Sathe, S.M.) BHAGWAN DIN v. RAMDHAR. 1945 R.D. 91=1945 A.W.R (Rev.) 55.

-O.23, R. 3-Duty of Court-Compromise including term beyond scope of suit-Decree in terms-If nullity or ultra vires-Proper remedy -Objection in execution—Sustainability.

Under O. 23, R. 3, C.P. Code, a Court is bound to record a compromise in accordance with the terms "so far as it relates to the suit". . Whether the compromise relates to the suit or not is a question which the Court which tries the suit has jurisdiction to decide. Even in cases where a part of the compromise does not, strictly speaking, relate to the suit, and nevertheless the Court decides that it does relate to the suit and incorporates it in the operative portion and passes a decree in terms of it, the decree is not a nullity and one passed without jurisdiction, but would be binding upon the parties to the decree; and its validity cannot be questioned in execution, nor can any title derived under it be attacked. It is the duty of the Court under O. 23, R. 3 to see that although the whole of the compromise between the parties is recorded, the operative portion of the decree is confined to that part only which relates to the suit. But it does not necessarily follow that if the Court does not strictly follow this direction, it is acting without jurisdiction. The objection that one of the terms of the compromise decree is outside the scope of the suit is not for the executing Court to consider. If the Court is not right in including that term in the operative part of the decree illegal. Hence it is not for the Court to go into the it should be challenged either by way of review question of fact as to the nature of the property involved or by way of appeal, but the executing Court and to refuse to record it on the ground of the property cannot go behind the decree. O. 23, R. 3—Duty of Court—Procedure—Suit under S. 92 for removal of trustee, for breach of trust, incompetence, matfeasance, etc., and for framing of scheme—Proper procedure—Reference to arbitration—Award without inquiry and finding on charges against trustee—If can be made a decree of Court.

Where in a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, for a declaration that detendant (mahant) was guilty of breach of trust, malfeasance, misfeasance, misappropriation and illegal alienation of math properties, was incompetent to manage the affairs of the math and that he should be removed from the trusteeship, for settling a scheme for the duc administration of the trust and for appointment of new trustees, an award is passed in arbitration on a reference through Court, the Court should not as a matter of course pass a decree in terms of the award without inquiry. If the suit is in respect of a public endowment, it is to the interest of the public to have it determined whether the defendant has been guilty of the charges alleged against him and whether he is at all competent to manage the affairs of the math and whether he should be removed from the mahantship. The Court is bound to decide that question; and if it decides that the detendant has not been guilty of breach of trust, etc., as alleged the suit should be dismissed. But if on the other hand, it decides that the defendant has been guilty, then the Court with the agreement of the parties, may take the help of arbitrators to settle a scheme and to appoint another trustee or a committee of trustees. If the scheme for the management of the trust property thus proposed then is sound and trustworthy, the Court can accept it and dispose of that part of the suit under O. 23, R. 3. But when the question as to the competency or fitness of the defendant to continue as a trustee is not at all decided, and the agreement arrived at as the result of the award avoids an inquiry into that matter and the interests of the institution 15 wholly ignored and neglected by the parties, the arbitrators and the Court in that a decree is passed in terms of such an award the decree so passed cannot be allowed to stand and must be set aside. O. 23, B. 3—Procedure under—Agreement recorded—Decree, if can be passed any time.

The procedure under O. 23, R. 3 consists of two steps: first the agreement or compromise has to be recorded, and secondly a decree must then be passed in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit. The decree which follows upon the agreement can be passed at any time. (Roberts, C. J. and Dunkley, J.) V. M. R. P. CHETIYAR FIRM v. HAJEE MAHOMED SULTAN. 1941 Rang. I. A mortgage suit does not come to an end until the mortgage property has been duly sold and the sale proceeds dealt with, or if there is a right to a personal decree under O. 34, R. b, C.P. Code, until that personal decree has been passed, and therefore any agreement or compromise relating to the whole of the subject matter of the suit which is entered into by the parties before the conclusion of the proceedings in a mortgage suit is an adjustment of the suit which falls to be dealt with under O. 23, R. 3 and not under O. 21, R. 2, C.P. Grounds of Divorce suit—Plaintiff deliberately seeking jurisdiction of particular Court knowing that all evidence has to some from another prevince—If ground for order.

An order for security for costs can only be made in accordance with some established principle. If a petitioner for divorce is entitled to file his petition in a particular High Court, the fact that he might have filed it in another High Court is no ground for requiring him to turnish security for the costs of the co-respondent, when the petitioner resides in British India. Where the petitioner resides in British India. plaintiff files a suit for divorce in Madras on the ground that he and his wife last resided together in Madras, the fact that he deliberately seeks the jurisdiction of the Madras High Court knowing that all the evidence would have to come from elsewhere, such as Bombay or Calcutta, and thereby deliberately increasing the costs of the parties involved, cannot be made a ground for ordering him to furnish security for costs of the Under R. 7 of O. 26 the evidence taken on commission only forms part of the record in the same way as pleadings, affidavits, and other documents of a suit form part of the record of that suit. Both on the proper construction of Rr. 7 and 8 of O. 26, and according to the long and well-established practice on the Original Side of the High Court, the depositions of witnesses taken on commission have got to be tendered as evidence and admitted by the Court as evidence before they become evidence in the case. A party who examines a witness on commission is not bound to and cannot be compelled to tender the evidence of the witness examined on commission. No Court can compel a party or his counsel to lead any particular kind of evidence or tender any evidence if he does not wish to do so. If such party does not wish to tender the evidence taken on commission, the other party is entitled to tender that evidence and make that part of his own case. (Chagla, J.) VITHALDAS DAMODAR v. Under O. 27, R. 3 C. P. Code, in suits by the Crown it is sufficient to insert as plaintiff the words "Governor-General in Council." The Governor-General need not be consulted as to whether such a suit should be brought. A suit brought by the Governor-General in Council through the rost Master-General is brought in the name of the correct plaintiff, and the words 'through the Post-Master General' are merely surplsuage. Under O. 29, R. 1, C. P. Defending an action. The latter step requires initiative which should certainly come from the Municipality itself and not from its agent. Therefore although a special authorization by the Municipality is necessary for instituting suits, such authorization is not necessary for defending suits. (Mir Almas, J.) Tha Mahomed v. Municipal.

A firm consisting of several members of a family entered into a partnership with another firm in 1900. During the course of the partnership some members died or retired and the firm was carried on by the remaining members of it. In 1931 the family firm sued as plaintiff for the dissolution of the partnership with the other firm. At the time of the institution of the suit, of the four members of the family who had any interest in the partnership, two had been declared insolvent and one being a minor who was only admitted to the benefits of the partnership, there was only a single effective member of the fim. On a contention that the suit in the form in which it was brought was not maintainable.

Held, that the objection was not technical as it touched the very foundations of the case and affected the validity of the suit itself and that in the circumstances, the suit as brought was not maintainable. The firm would be properly represented for carrying on the suit is the minor, who had now become a major, was joined as a party to the suit as the legal representative of his father and also in his personal capacity as a co-plaintiff.

Held, further, that as the partnership went on as a living concern continuously since the time it was started, the separation or death of some members of the family firm could not amount to a dissolution of the partnership as, in the circumstances, the remaining members of the firm or such members as were added to it from time to time must be taken to have been treated as partners. out naming firm-Competency.

O. 30, R. I, C. P. Code, is permissive and not mandatory. It provides one mode of procedure but it does not take away any existing right of suit. Since the partners in a firm are jointly and severally hable for the debts of the firm, they can be sued individually even without naming the firm as one of the defendants. The Code, while it merely provided a new procedure, did not affect in the slightest degree the right of a plaintiff to bring on record the different members of the firm. (Meredith and Shearer, II.) O. 30, R. 3, C. P. Code, does not contemplate that a person, who is served as a partner, must be served at his residence. It enables service to be effected at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on and enables it to be effected upon any person having control or management of the partnership business. The words "any person" include partners. Accordingly where a plaintiff obtains leave to serve the writ of summons on a partner of the defendant firm the summons may be properly served on the partner by affixing a copy thereof on the outer door of the premises where the defendant firm is carrying on business. A suit can, therefore be instituted against such a family in the assumed name in which they are carrying on business, and a decree obtained in that form will not be a nullity but will be binding on all the persons interested in the business carried on under that name and style. Where a next friend so brought on record fails to sign and verify the plaint it is a mere irregularity which could not, in any case, justify the dismissal of the suit. (Yorke, J.) RAM SEWAK v. C. P. CODE (1908), C. 32, R. 2.

If a Court finds that a plaintiff is a minor and has sued without a next triend, the correct procedure is not to dismiss his suit forthwith but to give min a reason the opportunity of remedying the defect. It during the course of the suit he attains majority he can elect to ratify the proceedings taken during his minority and continue the suit. (Almont, J. C. and Mir Ahmid, J.) ABDUL HAKIM KHAN v. 'Act' in the matter of dower, divorce, etc., mentioned in S. 2 of the Majority Act means something done personally and not by the Court. Hence in the case of a divorce by a woman it would be the right of divorce outside a Court such as the woman has by an agreement with her husband. However that may be, as the C.P. Code being of later date clearly lays down in O. 32, R. 2 that when the plaintiff is a minor the suit must be instituted through a next friend and as there is no exception made for a Mahomedan female or anyone else, a suit by a Mahomedan minor girl for dissolution of her marriage without a next friend would not be maintainable. In cases where in fact a guardian was appointed in fact the guardian had acted for the minor the appointment may not be capable of being called in question, on the ground of any irregularity. But where no one has appeared for the minor at all and there has been no valid appointment and the notices sent to the nominated guardian have been refused, any decree that may be passed against the minor in such circumstances cannot be regarded as a mere irregularity. It is a wholly illegal procedure and no minor can be bound by such a decree. (Dar, J.) SHAH UDEY RAM v. KANCHAN SINGH. 1941 R.D. 658=1941 A L.W. 740=1942 O.W.N. 118=1942 A.L.W.

Consequently the only person who is competent to prefer an appeal on behalt of a minor is the person who has been appointed by Court as a guardian ad litem. The presentation of an appeal by any other person is void ab initio and it cannot be validated by the guardian ad litem merely empowering the pleader of that person to represent the minor after the appeal has become barred by time. guardian appointed for three minor defendants—Preliminary decree—Two minors becoming majors—Final decree with Court guardian on record showing all three as minors—If null and void,

A decree cannot be regarded as a nullity merely because certain defendants who were minors continued to be shown as minors represented by their guardian ad litem though they had attained majority at the time of the decree. The appointment of a guardian ad litem, unless terminated earlier by some order of Court would continue to be in force for appellate and execution proceedings under O. 32, R. 3 (5), C. P. Code. Three of the defendants in a mortgage suit were minors represented by a Court guardian at the time of the preliminary decree. In an appeal on behalf of the defendants the minors were represented by one of them who was the father of two of the minors and a relation of the third. He also represented the minors in a second appeal. Subsequently in the final decree proceedings the minors (two of whom had then become majors) were again represented by the Court guardian an final decree was passed with the Court guardian on record as representing the three defendants. The two who had become majors did not apply to be declared minors or to discharge the Court guardian. In execution proceedings it was contended that the final decree passed in such circumstances was a nullity.

Held, that the decree could not be regarded as a nullity merely because the parties who had become majors continued to be shown as minors. (Harries, C. J. and Dhavle, J.) GULAB CHAND v. KISHORI KUER. 199 I.C. 625=14 R.P. 591=8 B.R. 584=23 Pat. L.T. 162=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 348.

An application for setting aside an exparte decree does not come within the scope of 'proceedings arising out of the suit' as contemplated by sub-rule (5) of rule (3) of O. 32, but it is an independent proceeding altogether for the purposes for which the appointment of the guardian for the suit does not continue automatically. Hence such an application when it is made by one other than the guardian appointed in the suit cannot be said to be made by one not competent to make it. (Vorke, 1.) MAHADEO v. SUBEDAR SINGH. 1943 A.L.W. 544.

Suit on debt incurred by father—Father appointed guardian ad litem of minor son—Decree against minor's interest—If nullity.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 32, R. 4.

It cannot be laid down as an absolute rule that that the father in a joint is indu family, although a natural guardian of his minor son, should not be appointed as his guardian ad litem in a suit brought on a dept incurred by the rather as manager of the family, and it so appointed the decree in such a suit is a nullity as against the minor's snare. There is no doubt that a person whose interests appear to be adverse to mose of a minor should not be appointed his guardian ad utem, and if there is an adverse interest in fact, a decree would not be binding on the innor at his option. But where a person, especially a natural guardian, is appointed as guardian ad litem in the absence of anything to show that his interest conducted with that of the minors, and a decree is then passed against the minor's share, the question as to the binding nature of the decree against the minor cannot be decided without determining whether on the facts proved there is a conflict or interest between the guardian and the minor, and that cannot be done without going into the merits of the case. The appointment of a father as guardian ad litem of his minor son is not itself sufficient to set aside the decree on the ground of conflict of interest apart from any prejudice caused to the minor. In the case of a joint Hindu family where the manager has the power to bind the minor members of the co-parcenary by an alienation for legal necessity, it is open to the son to challenge it in a suit brought to enforce the alienation on the ground that although it may be binding on the manager, it is not binding on the minor. His interest may, therefore, conflict with that of the manager as the defences of both may be separate and even antagonistic, if the manager wants to throw the burden of his private debt on the family. In such a case it would be undesirable to appoint the manager as the guardian ad litem of the minor in the suit, but if he is so appointed and a decree is passed against the minor's interest in the property it cannot be said, in the absence of fraud or collusion on the part of manager, that the decree is a nullity merely because the manager ought not to have been appointed as his guardian. If the minor subsequently sues to set aside the decree, he must show that the alienation was not, in fact, binding on him. This would be especially so where the manager is the father who is the natural guardian of the minor and whose personal debts are also binding on the son if they are antecedent to the alienation and are not illegal or immoral. Where there is no real defence to the suit, it is not the father's duty to create and manufacture evidence in order to support the case of the minor. (Divatia and Lokur, JJ.) MAHADEV SHANKAR V. SHANKAR SWAMIRAO. 213 I.C. 112=16 R.B. 11=45 Bom.L.R. 782=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 387.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 32, R. 4-A.

A ilindu father executed a mortgage on benalt of nimself and his minor sons. In a suit on the mortgage, the rather, who was suggested by the mortgagee as the guardian for his minor sons refused to receive notices to act as such and hence a pleader was appointed guardian for the minors. The mother of the minors was alive. The suit was decreed in spite of a strenuous contest by the pleaser guardian. There after the mother or the minors filed a suit on their behalf to set aside the decree as against them and contended that the appointment of the pleader as guardian ignoring the existence of the mother was improper and that the debts in question were incurred by the father for immoral purposes—a contention not put forward by the guardian in the suit,

Held, that as there was no evidence that the mortgegee concealed the fact of the existence of the mother from the Court in the mortgage suit or practised any species of traud or concealment and as the pleader guardian had done all that he properly could, no case of fraud or negli-gence could be maintained. The mother was not the natural guardian of the ininors and the Court might very properly regard her as being like her husband a person with an interest adverse to the minors, unlikely as a pardanashin to be capable of handling troublesome litigation. In the circumstances the appointment of a pleader guardian was the most sensible and proper course to take in the interest of the minors. The charge of immorality against the tather would not have been of any use to the minors in the mortgage suit and in any event the absence of this line of defence is not to be attributed to the irregularity in the appointment of the guardian. No good reason had been shown for setting aside the decree. (Sir George Rankin.) Krishna Kant Prasad v. Dhanu Lal. 212 I.C. 226=57 L.W. 217=1944 A.L.J. 151=1944 O.A. (P.C.) 26=1944 A.W.R. The failure to observe the provisions of R. 4-A of O. 32, C.P.Code, by a Court in appointing a person other than the guardian appointed by competent authority to represent a minor in the course of a suit or other proceedings is a mere irregularity and does not vitiate the whole proceedings. It is one thing to say that a minor is not represented at all if represented by a person who is absolutely disqualified from representing him and quite another to say that he is not represented at all if represented hy a person whom the Court in its discretion could appoint to represent him but might not have appointed, if it had been aware of all the relevant facts. It would throw an impossible burden upon the parties to proceedings in which a minor was involved if those proceedings were to be regarded in certain circumstances as void if the person appointed to represent the minor was not the person appointed by competent authority to be the guardian of the minor under the Guardian and Wards Act. The provisions of R. 6 of C. 32, C. P. Code. are mandatory and the Court is directed to take certain precautions for the protection of the interest of a minor litigant. It is true that in a joint Hindu family a karta is vested with very wide powers over the property of the joint family. He may bring a suit for money due to the joint family without even impleading the other co-parceners but once a minor member of the family is joined as a party and a guardian ad litem is appointed to represent him the directions laid down in R. 6 of O. 32 have to be followed. The ordinary rule of Hindu I aw which empowers the manager of the family to deal with the property of the entire joint family is subject to the restrictions laid down in R. 6 of O. 32, C. P. Code. -O.32, R. 7—"Agreement or compromise with reference to the suit'- Meaning of-Transfer of decree to third party-Leave of Court-Neces-

The phrase "agreement or compromise with reference to the suit" in O. 32, R. 7, means agreement with a party to the suit; it does not cover a transfer of a decree to some one unconnected with the suit ever assuming that such transfer can properly be described as an agreement. It cannot have been intended to require the leave of the Court to an agreement, for example made with a non-party to finance a suit, whether with a stipulation to receive part of the proceeds or not. -O. 32. Rr. 7 and 15-Applicability-Agreement to refer to arbitration where minor or lunatic is concerned-Leave of Court-Materials to be furnished.

An agreement to refer to arbitration in a case where a minor or lunatic is concerned is an 'agreement' within the meaning of O. 32, R. 7 C. P. Code, and hence before the matter could he referred to arbitration, the leave of the Court must be expressly got recorded in the proceedings. Before granting the leave, the Court should exercise a judicial discretion as to propriety of the reference to arbitration in the interests of the minor or lunatic. All available materials should be placed before the Court and the materials must satisfy the mind of the Court that the action proposed is for the renefit of the mirer or lenatic. Though it is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule as to what s' ould be done in such matters, this much can be said, that all facts necessary for the exercise of O. P. CODE (1908), O. $2, R. 7.

a judicial discretion by the Court should be placed hefore it and nothing should be concealed, for where the matter is being referred to arbitration and one of the parties is a lunatic, there should and one of the particles and mark, there should be abundant good faith. Execution proceedings are a continuation of the suit and hence O. 32, R. 7 is applicable to an agreement or compromise made in course of execution proceedings. Where there is no sanction as required by sub-R. (1) of R. 7 of that order, under sub-R. (2) of the same order the compromise is voidable against all parties other than minors. It is only the minor who can sue to avoid it and the adults have no such right to avoid it on the ground of want of leave. But when a minor sues to avoid it, it is voidable against all parties. By virtue of para 93 of the Revenue Court Manual, O. 32, R. 7, C. P. Code, applies to proceedings under S. 36 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act and hence a compromise in such proceedings on behalf of minors entered into by the guardian without the consent of the Court is altogether null and void. O. 32, R. 7-Application for leave under-Duty of Court-Materials to be placed before Court.

The Court, when considering an application for leave to compromise on behalf of a minor, has a very serious function to perform, namely to guard the interest of the minor and this duty is not one which ought to be performed in a perfunctory way. It is obviously difficult for the Court itself to go into every matter meticulously and to assess the value and so forth. In simple cases there are however at least two things which the Court ought to have before it-the first is an affidavit from the guardian himself that he, at any rate, has considered the matter carefully from the minor's point of view and has formed a considered opinion that the proposed transaction is for the minor's benefit. That should be indispensable in every case. The second item of assistance to which the Court is always entitled is a statement at the bar from the advocate or professional gentleman who represents the minor that he in his professional capacity has examined the matter and has formed an opinion that that it is one from which the infant will benefit. (Braund, J.) AKBAR HUSAIN KHAN v. RUDHU. I.L.R. (1941) All. 677=197 I. C. 814=14 R.A. 245=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 308= 1941 A.L.W. 997=1941 A.L.J. 605=A.I.R. 1941 All. 431.

-O. 32, R. 7—Duty of Court—Record that compromise is for minor's benefit-If obligatory.

Under O. 32, R. 7, the Court must not grant leave to a guardian to compromise a suit on behalf of the minor unless it is satisfied that the compromise is for the benefit of the minor. The rule makes it obligatory upon the Court only to record the fact that it has granted leave. It does not require that the Court must in every instance expressly record that it is of opinion that the compromise is for the benefit of the minor. J.) GANESH CHANDRA DAS v. JOGENDRA NATH NAYABAN. 47 C.W.N.1258.

-O. 32, R.7—Duty of parties submitting compromise on behalf of minor-Omission to disclose material information—Effect—Fraud.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 32, R. 7.

When a proposed compromise on behalf of a minor is submitted to Court for its sanction, a high degree of good faith is required on the part of those who submit the same, and a duty lies upon them to take care that the Court should have unimpeachable material before it on which to form its judgment. If in fact the material placed before the Court is not unimpeachable or parties having further important information in their possession withhold it improperly or without justification that in itself would amount to constructive fraud, even though the Court may not have called for the information. (Lobo and Tyabii, 17) MOULEDINO 7, PARCHOMAI. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 223=219 I.C. 139=18 R.S. 34=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 209.

——O. 32, R. 7—Grant of leave—Interference by High Court.

Whether or not a compromise is for the minor's benefit, is a matter which the Court granting leave should decide, and if it has decided the matter it is not open to the High Court to revise that decision. (Sen, J.) GANESH CHANDRA DAS v. JOGENDRANATH NAYABAN. 47 C.W.N. 258.

——O. 32, R. 7—Guardian of minor appointed next friend—Power to compromise suit.

A mother of a minor who occupies the dual capacity of guardian and next friend in a suit to which the minor is a party, cannot rely on her position as guardian for power to compromise the suit. When she is appointed as next friend, her powers as guardian are controlled by the provisions of law which come into operation on her appointment. (Diebr. 1) TULSIRAM P. KEWAL-RAM. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 131=208 I.C. 175=16 R.N. 63=1943 N.L.J. 273=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 231.

- O. 32, R. 7 - Leave of Court not expressly recorded—Suit for declaration by minor - Duty of Court.

If a minor brings a suit for a declaration that a decree passed on the basis of a compromise in a previous suit is not binding upon him as the leave of the Court for the compromise had not been obtained and expressly recorded in the proreedings as required by O. 32, R. 7. the Court is not bound to automatically decree the suit without determining whether the minor has or has not in fact been prejudiced by the compromise. The Court is entitled-indeed it is bound-to determine whether in the circumstances of the case before it the declaration asked for should or should not be granted and for this purpose the benefit of the minor is of paramount importance. If the Court trying the suit finds that the compromise was for the benefit of the minor it must dismiss the suit. If, however, it is established that the compromise was prejudicial to him the suit must be decreed, the effect of the decree being to restore the original suit or proceedings in which the compromise had been arrived at. —0.32, R. 7—Leave to refer to arbitration on hehalf of minor—Form of order granting—Failure to give reasons—Effect—Suit to avoid agreement offending against 0.32, R. 7—Maintainability.

No particular formula is required for the express recording of the leave of Court to refer a matter to arbitration when a minor is involved. Where the Court is informed about the proposal and about a minor being involved and grants time to get the express consent of the guardian concerned and after satisfying itself about this it makes the reference, it satisfies the conditions of 0. 32, R. 7 and it amounts to an 'express recording' of the leave of Court within the meaning of that provision

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 32, R. 7.

It is a salutory rule that the Judge must on the face of his order show that he has considered the question of the minor's benefit and give reasons for his thinking that it is. But the omission to record reasons will not make the order a nullity. O. 32, R. 7 does not give the minor an unqualified right to have the matter avoided but vests the Court with the discretion to avoid or not to avoid it. An agreement which offends O. 22, R. 7 in that the Court had not given reasons for its granting leave, cannot be avoided by a separate suit in the absence of fraud upon the Court for there is only an irregularity and not an illegality. (Stone, C. J. and Bose, J.) MADANLAL v. RAMCHANDER SWAMI, I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 642=192 I.C. 749=14 R.N. 240=1941 N.L.J. 601=A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 26.

——O. 32, R. 7—Next friend and guardian ad litem—Distinction—Application by mother for substitution of minor transferce under O. 21. R. 16—Subsequent compromise—Leave of Court—Necessity.

There is a distinction drawn throughout O. 32, C. P. Code, between a 'next friend' and 'the guardian for the suit'. While the latter is constituted by an order of the Court, the former automatically constitutes himself by taking steps in the suit. It is too narrow a view to take that the expression 'next friend' in O. 32, R. 7, is confined to a person who is acting on behalf of a minor who has already assumed the position of a plaintiff. It applies to any person who makes an application to the Court on a minor's behalf in relation to a suit. Where on the transfer of a decree to a minor, the mother applies to the Court under O. 21, R. 16 for his substitution, she becomes his 'next friend' by that very act and hence any compromise of the matter after that date if it should bind the minor must be with the sanction of the Court. (Braund, J.) AMARCHAND v. NEMCHAND, I.L.R. (1942) All. 144=200 I.C. 434=14 R.A. 435=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 99 (1)=1942 A.L.J. 89=1942 A.L.W. 44=1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 37= A.I.R. 1942 All. 150.

granted before actual recording of compromise—Suffic

The prohibition contained in R. 7 of O. 32, C. P. Code, against a next friend or guardian ad litem of a minor entering into a compromise or agreement without the leave of the Court being expressly recorded, does not go to the length of saving that a compromise entered into by the adult members may not be sanctioned by the Court even if the application for recording the compromise is accompanied by an application on behalf of the guardian ad litem for leave of the Court. The rule does not require or insist that the guardian ad litem must first obtain the leave of the Court to negotiate the terms of the compromise itself. If leave is applied for and granted before the compromise is actually recorded, the terms of O. 32, R. 7 are substantially complied with. (Chatterji and Sinha, 11.) DHARNIDHAR o. — O. 32, R. 7—Scope—Non-compliance—Effect on compromise decree—Leave of Court sanctioning compromise—If to be expressly recorded.

The fact that the Court does not expressly record an order to the effect that the compromise has been sanctioned in respect of the minor parties would not render the decree passed on the compromise a nullity. No particular formula is required to be used by the Court in granting leave to a guardian ad litem to compromise a suit on behalf of a minor. Where it is shown that an application for such leave was made by the guardian and noted by the Court, a decree passed on such a compromise is binding on the minor. It is well-settled also that mere non-compliance with O. 32, R. 7, C. P. Code. will not make the compromise decree a nullity. The decree would merely be voidable, and the executing Court cannot disregard the decree. (Fazl Ali and Meredith, JJ.) SATINDRA PRASAD SUKUL PADUMNABH PRASAD. (1944) P.W.N. 108.

Where an application is made to a Court after the final decree in a suit has been passed by the mother of the judgment-debtor for appointing a guardian ad litem for the judgment-debtor who is alleged to be mentally infirm and unable to manage his affairs for the purpose of enabling the guardian to ask the Court to apply the provisions of Madras Act IV of 1938 to the decree passed in the Court, the Court should hold a judicial inquiry as contemplated by O. 32, R. 15. C. P. Code. It is not proper for the Court to dismiss the application by merely relying on the previous history of the litigation and on its opinion after looking at the judgmentdebtor and questioning him. When the applicant is desirous of adducing evidence such as a doctor's certificate, an opportunity must be given to adduce such evidence. Since the consequence of the dismissal of the application would be to prevent the application of the provisions of the Madras Act IV of 1938, to a case to which they may apply it is incumbent on the Court to ——O 82. R. 15—Procedure—Suit on behalf of person of unsound mind—Enquiry into competency of next friend—When to be held.

In cases coming under O. 32, R. 15, C. P. Code, it is desirable that the Court should, before admitting the plaint, insist upon an independent application and an affidavit disclos no the facts relating to the unsoundness of mind of the person on whose behalf the plaint is presented; it is also open to the Court to direct the next friend to produce witnesses before it in order that it may satisfy itself as to the mental capacity of the person on whose behalf the plaint is presented. All that is needed is that there should be some prima facie proof to satisfy the Court that the person was, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, incapable of protecting his interests, because an order permitting the next friend to represent such a person is not final. It is always open to the defendant to take out an independent application to have the said order revoked, when the Court can go fully into the matter. But when once the Court permits the next friend to sue on behalf of such person, it is not open to the Court to raise an independent issue in the trial as to the competency of the next friend to represent the plaintiff in the suit. Held, that the claim for damages for slander being one in which the damages were at large, the damages could not be ascertained until there had been an examination of all the evidence; nor could it be said that they could not in any event exceed any particular sum, and therefore the summary dismissal of the application for leave to sue as pauper was wrons. The word 'person' hos not been defined by the C. P. Code, but it cannot be deried that the right to sue and the liability to be sued inheres equally in natural as well as juridical persons. There is obviously nothing inherent in the nature of a juridical person to lead to an inference that the Legislature intended to deprive all plaintiffs other than natural persons from the benefit of the privilege by O. 33. All persons who can sue as plaintiffs can also sue as paupers, provided the other conditions imposed by O. 33 are satisfied. (Thomas, C. J. and Misra, 1.) SRIPAL SINGH v. THE U. P. A Court has no power to admit an application by a respondent in an appeal for review of judgment in forma pauperis, having regard to S. 4 of the Court-Fees Act. There is no procedure which will entitle the Court to make an inquiry in regard to a respondent's pauperism after the appeal in regard to which he is to make the application has been brought to a close. The words of O. 33, R. 1. C. P. Code, are unambiguous and cannot be construed so as to cover a defendant (or respondent) or a defence. There is nothing in O. 33, which car help a defendant (or a respondent) in asking for the indulgence granted to persons who wish to file suits in forms pauperis, except perhaps in cases where the defendant or respondent may, for the purposes of the suit or appeal, be regarded as a plaintiff (or an appellant). The Court has no powers to exempt a defendant or a respondent from paying the necessary Court-fee. even temporarily. when they are required to pay the same at the time when proceedings are initiated by them except perhaps when they really stand in the position of plaintiffs or appellants. A petition for review by a respondent in an appeal cannot be regarded to be in the nature of a continuation of the suit at least up to the time that it is not granted, (Abdur Rahman, J.) per obtaining sufficient means before disposal of enquiry as to pauperism—Date of filing of appeal—Limits to the right of the other party to challenge the admission.

In determining the question whether an applicant for leave to appeal in forma pauperis is possessed of sufficient means to pay the court-fee, the Court can take into consideration the possibility of the applicant raising money on the security of his interest in the subject matter of the proposed appeal and his other joint properties such possibility does not establish the mala fides of the applicant. Nor is the search by him for a financier to conduct the appeal on terms of sharing the subject matter of litigation in case of success any evidence of bad faith or fraudulent intention on his part. Where on his obtaining sufficient means to pay the courtfee during the pendency of an enquiry into his pauperism, the applicant is allowed time under S. 149, C. P. Code to pay the court-fee and it is paid within the time allowed, the appeal must be considered to have been filed when it was preferred without court-fee with the application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. The admission of the appeal, if it had been made exparte may be challenged by the other side at the hearing of the appeal, if not before. But it can be successfully done only on the ground that the original pauper application was malafile or fraudulent. (Bennett and Ghulam Hasan. II.)

Under R. 4 of O. 33, C. P. This examination must necessarily be directed to ascertain whether the allegations in the plaint do or do not show a cause of action for the suit. The Court is hence justified in taking into consideration the applicant's statement in addition to the plaint allegations for determining whether the applicant had a subsisting cause of action. — O. 33 Rr. 7 and 15—Scope and applicability of—Dismissal of application as withdrawn after notice and prior to hearing—Second application—Maintainability.

R. 7 of O. 33 C.P. Code, contemplates an enquiry into the fact of pauperism upon the evidence that may be produced by the parties and after hearing their arguments. Until the stage contemplated by R. 7 is reached and an order is passed by the Court under that rule, the provisions of R. 15 of that order do not come into operation. The crucial test for determining the applicability of R. 15 of O. 33, is whether the previous order dismissing the application for pauperism was passed under R. 7 (3) of O. 33 after satisfying the conditions laid down in that rule. Where it is prayed that a nauper application may be permitted to be withdrawn for the removal of certain formal defects and it is dismissed as withdrawn after issue of notice to the opposite party but before the actual date fixed for the hearing of the application, it cannot operate as an order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper within the meaning of R. 15 of O. 33, so as to constitute res indicata. There is no enquiry into the merits of the application and much less any adjudication of the matter by the Court and hence a second application is maintainable. (Thomas, C. J. and Ghulam Hasan. J.) ——0.33, K. 8 and Limitation Act, S. 3 Expl.

—Scope—Application for leave to sue as pauper—Order refusing leave—Subsequent grant of time for payment of court-fee for regular suit—Effect

—Date of institution of suit.

If an application to sue as a pauper is granted, then under 0.33, R. 8, the application itself is deemed to be the plaint in the suit, and under the explanation to S. 3, Limitation Act, the suit is deemed to have been nled on the day on which the application for leave to sue as a pauper is made. Even before deciding whether to grant the application or not, the Court may, at any time during the pendency of the proceedings, treat the application as a plaint and allow the applicant to pay the requisite court-tees and give up his request to be allowed to sue as pauper. Even if the Court decides to reject the application under 0.33, K. 5, or to refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper under O. 33, R. 7, it may treat the application as an unstamped plaint, and either before or at the time of passing the order under R. 5 or R.7, the Court may in its discretion under S. 149 C.P.Code, allow the applicant time to pay the requisite Court-fees and upon such payment within the time allowed number and register the plaint. But in doing so, the Court should have regard to R. 15 of O. 33 and make the payment of costs a condition precedent. In all these cases for purposes of limitation the suit will be deemed to have been instituted on the day on which the application for leave to sue as a pauper is made. But if once the Court passes an order rejecting the application under R. 5 or refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper under R. 7, without keeping the application alive as an unstamped plaint and granting the applicant time to pay the requisite Court-fees, the proceedings came to an end and the Court has no power to grant time by a separate and subsequent order. In that case the only remedy of the applicant is to file a suit regularly under O. 33, R. 15, and, for purposes of limitation, the suit must be taken to be instituted only on the day on which it is actually filed; and the applicant cannot avail himself of the time spent in the pauper proceedings to save the bar of limitation. The grant of time to pay court-fee after the termination of the pauper proceedings cannot revive the application which had already been disposed of.

A pauper suit was filed for partition of family properties and a preliminary decree was made declaring that the plaintiff was entitled to a one-tourth share in the suit properties. There was a direction that the plaintiff should pay the courtiese amount due to the Government. Subsequently a final decree was passed, but before that the plaintiff, finding that he had to pay a greater amount for his share of the family debts than the value of the properties which he would get in partition, gave up his claim for his entire share in the tamily properties in favour of some defendants.

Held, that the plaintiff had succeeded in the suit and the fact that he voluntarily gave up his share after the preliminary decree was no ground for holding that he had not succeeded in the suit. The Government would therefore be entitled to a first charge on the share given up by him and to proceed against that share in the hands of the detendants for recovery of the amount of the court-fee payable by the plaintiff. (Divatia and Weston, JJ.) Government of Bombay v. Mohanlal Vajechand. 220 I.C. 364—46 Bom. L.R. 439—A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 239 (1).

-0.33, R. 10-Construction and scope-First charge for court-fee-If limited to subject matter of

The first charge referred to in O. 33, R. 10, C. P Code, is not limited to the subject-matters of the suit which the party ordered to pay costs has recovered. The provision that there shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit is a distinct provision. Where by consent, a suit in forma pauperis is decreed with a direction that the second plaintiff therein should receive a certain portion of the properties in the suit and that the first plaintiff should pay the costs of suit and the courtfee payable to Government, it is open to the Government to realise the court-fee on the plaint from the properties awarded to the second plaintiff, as O. 33, R. 10 is wide enough to allow a charge in favour of the Government on the properties received by the second plaintiff under the consent decree. Hence where a pauper plaintiff gets his valuation amended to a figure less than that given originally in his plaint, and the suit is compromised subsequently the Court-fee payable to the Government is to be calculated

O. 33, R. 11, must be construed in the light of S. 35 and on the principle underlying O. 32, R. 14. S. 35 gives wide discretion to the Court and full power to determine by whom or out of what property and to what extent costs are to be paid. The Court would, therefore, be justified in making the next friend of a minor plaintiff personally liable to pay the court-tees and costs of a suit instituted in forma pauperis, if it thinks that the suit is false and it is unreasonable and improper to have launched it. ——0. 33, R. 12—Applicability—Court passing decree making order for payment of Court-fees—Application by Government for fresh order—Competency.

R. 12 of O. 33, C. P. Code, is intended to enable the Government to ask the Court to make an order for the payment of Court fees where no such order has been made. But it does not enable the Government to dictate to the Court in what terms the order should be passed or to apply for such an order again when the Court has already made an order. R. 12 is confined in its application to cases in which there is a distinct omission to pass orders under Rr. 10 and 11 suo motu by the Court which passed the decree. (Wassodew, J.) GOVERNMENT OF BOMEAY v. BAI BAIBA KHAMDABHAI. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 456=202 I.O. 781=15 R.B. 191=44 Bom.L.B. 518=A.I.B. 1942 Bom. 274.

O. 38, R. 15—Applicability—Notice served only on some of the respondents—Dismissal of application for default—If order refusing to allow applicant to sue as pauger—Fresh application—If barred.

An order refusing to allow an applicant to sue as a pauper falling within O. 33, R. 15, C. P. Code, must be an order passed under R. 7 (3) of O. 33, and R. 7 has to be read with R. 6. It is clear that, having regard to Rr. 6 and 7. the stage of R. 7, is not reached unless notice is given to the opposite party and the Government pleader as provided in R. 6. When there are several res. pondents, all the respondents must be served with notice. The Court cannot hear evidence as to pauperism and decide the question as against some only of the whole body of opposite party or respondents. When the application is rejected for default without notice being served on all the respondents (only some of them being served) it does not amount to an order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as pauper so as to attract the operation of R. 15 of O. 33, C. P. Code A fresh application is therefore not barred. (Dhavle and Chatterii, II.) PROVINCE OF URISSA v. DEBYA SINGH, 20 Pat. 765 =197 I C. 726=14 R.P. 348=8 B.R. 283=22 Pat. —0. 33, B. 15—Construction and scope—If mandatory—Payment of costs of pauper application—If condition precedent to institution of sust with courtiee.

Where an application for leave to sue as a pauper has been refused and subsequently a suit is filed on payment of court-fees under O. 33, R. 15, the payment of the costs of the pauper application directed to be paid is not made a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain such ordinary suit. The costs, however must be paid, and if they are not paid and the matter is brought to the notice of the Court, and the payment is not waived the Court should reject the plaint on presentation, or subsequenly stay the suit pending payment, but the Court is not bound to dismiss the suit. (Beaumont, C. J. and Sen, J.) ABDUL RAHMAN v. AMINABI. I.I.B. (1943) Bom. 525=210 I.C. 495=16 R.B. 224=45 Bom.I.R. 768=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 409.

O. 33, R. 15, C. P. Code, applies only to cases in which permission has been refused after the issue of notice under R. 7 of the same order, and does not apply to cases in which the application has been summarily rejected under R. 5. An order of rejection under R. 5. although passed on the merits, does not operate as a bar to the presentation of a fresh application. (Tek Chand and Beckett, J.) ARYA SAMAJ, CHAORI BAZAAR DELHI v. RAM GOPAL I.I.R. (1941) Lah. 709=195 I.C. 717=14 R.L. 85=43 P.I.R. 257=A.I.B. 1941 Lah. 253.

The refusal which is contemplated by R. 15 of O. 33, C.P. Code, is a refusal to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper under sub-R. (3) of R. 7 of that order which must be the result of an inquiry into the merits of the application as directed by sub-Rules (1) and (2) of R. 7. Dismissal for default of appearance of applicant cannot amount to such a refusal. R. 15 of O. 33 only authorises the application of the principle of res judicata to an application to sue in forma pauperis and prohibits the entertainment of a fresh application when the first has been dismissed on the merits. It does not contemplate that a summary order passed without inquiry or contest should be given the force of res judicata. (Mullah, /.) NIMAR PANDEY v. JAGDISH PANDEY. I.L.B. An application for leave to sue in froma pauperis can only be treated as a plaint if it is granted; but it it is rejected, the only remedy open to the applicant is that provided by O. 33. R. 15 C. P. Code, i.e., the ning of a tresh suit after first paying the costs incurred by the Provincial Government and the opposite party in opposing his application for leave to sue. The date of the institution of such suit will, for purposes of limitation, be the actual date there of, and the provisions of S. 149, C. P. Code, cannot be availed of or invoked. It is not open to the Court to allow the applicant the benefit of S. 149, C. P. Code, and simultaneously refuse his application to sue as a pauper, or to treat the application, after it has been refused, as a plaint or a potential plaint which can be allowed to be converted in to a regular plaint by the payment of court-tees. When the Court refuses to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper, the matter would be governed solely by O- 33 R, 15, C. P- Code, and it would no longer be open to the applicant to say that the plaint is still on the record as the suit is still pending so that he is entitled to pay the court-fee under 5. 149. Explanation to S. 3, Limitation Act, cannot be relied on to enable the applicant to treat the application as the plaint. The explanation is intended to show when limitation begins to run on a suit being instituted, and not to affirm that an application for leave to sue as pauper is tantamount to the filing of a suit, (Sen, 1.) Under O. 33, R. 15, it is obligatory on the plaintiff that he should first pay the costs in the pauper petition incurred by the Provincial Government and by the opposite party the right of suit recognised by the rule is made expressly subject to the condition that he should pay the said costs before the institution of the suit. Where the costs are paid long after the presentation of the plaint on insufficient stamp paper but before the deficiency is made up it must be held that the provisions of O. 33, R. 15 have not been complied with. In a suit to enforce a mortgage executed with the sanction of Court by a receiver appointed under O. 40, R. I., C. P. Code, the receiver may be a proper party, but the owners of the property who have interest in the right of redemption are also necessary parties. in view of the provisions of O. 34, R. 1, C. P. Code, it is doubtful whether it would be within the competence of the Court appointing the receiver to make an order directing him to represent fully the right of redemption.

C.P. CODE (1908), O. 34, R. 1.

Even assuming that the receiver would normally represent the owners in a suit of this character, he cannot do so it contiston is proved between him and the mortgagee. A decree obtained in such circumstances against the receiver, in the absence of the owners of the property will not affect their right of redemption. (Akram and Pil, J.) Annapurna Dasi v. Sarat Chandra. 207 I.C. 461—16 R.C. 68—16 C.W.N. 355—A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 394.

In a mortgage suit no question of title arises. The only question with which parties are concerned is the question of retemption. It is only those who are interested in paying in order to save the property who are necessary parties to the suit. A person who claims a paramount title is not a necessary party in as much as he disclaims all interest in the equity of redemption. (Bose, f.) SHAKUNFALABAI v. —0.34, R. 1—Necessary and proper party —Distinction—Suit on mortgage against one of several heirs of mortgagor—Other heirs impleaded after limitation—Effect.

There is a distinction between 'necessary party' and 'proper party'. A proper party is not necessarily a necessary party and he may be impleaded even after limitation had expired but a person who is a necessary party must be impleaded within the period of limitation and if he is not the entire suit tails. If a suit is brought against one of the several heirs of a mortgagor and the other heirs are impleaded after the expiry of the period of limitation, the suit against the heirs subsequently impleaded would be parred by time unless it can be shown that those heirs were represented by the person against whom the suit was originally instituted within time. Though it is a general rule that a person setting up a paramount title should be discharged from or not joined in a mortgage suit, it is not an absolute one. Questions of title may be investigated in a mortgage suit where it is necessary to give complete relief to the plaintiff or secure to him as a result of the decree in the mortgage suit, a quiet and unobstructed possession. In a suit on mortgage, a lambardar who had subsequently obtained a decree for arrears of land revenue against the property mortgaged and in execution of which he had purchased the field himself and obtained possession can be joined as a party and questions of priority in respect of land revenue and redemption of charge by mortgagee on payment could be decided in the mortgage suit. Where in a suit on a prior mortgage against the mortgagor and puisne mortgage it is declared that the mortgage sued on was not genuine, the prior mortgage ceases to be interested other in the mortgaged security or in the right of redemption and hence is not a necessary party in a subsequent suit by the puisne mortgagee on his mortgage and need not be joined, (Thomas, C.J. and Agarwat, J.) Where in a mortgage suit the puisne mortgagees impleaded as defendants ask for a decree in form No. 9 of Appx. D, the suit for purposes of jurisdiction has to be valued ad valorem on the amount due on the plaintiff's prior mortgage and jurisdiction is not lost if the amounts claimed on the prior and subsequent mortgages taken together exceed the pecuniary jurisdiction of that Court. The relief which the puisne mortgagees ask for does not require to be stamped at all. (Polluck and Gruer, J.) GANPATRAO v. SHAMRAO. I.I.B. security—Application to be impleaded as party to suit and claiming adversely to plaintiff—Duty of Court to implead.

Although it is ordinarily undesirable to implicate in a mortgage suit persons claiming adversly to either the mortgagor or the mortgagee, this does not apply to the case of a person who has an interest in the mortgage security and whose claim is not in any way in derogation of the rights of the mortgagee or the mortgagor, notwithstanding that his claim is adverse to the plaintiff in the mortgage suit. If the person applying to be impleaded as a party in a mortgage is interested in the mortgage suit, he should be added as a party before a decree is given in the suit. O. 34, R. R was the mittadar, i.e., the owner of the melwaram right in a village. He mortgaged his rights in the village and other villages to the plaintiff under three mortgage deeds of 1921, 1922 and 1923. The defendants were maindars of the village and were entitled to receive from R one-third of the sum payable by R to Government as peshoush and had in respect of that right a first charge on R's interests in the village. On 30-6-1933, they sued R for arrears of their dues and for enforcement of their charge and got a decree on 10-4-1934; and in execution brought the village to sale on 24-10-1934 and having themselves purchased the property, obtained delivery on 4-12-1934. The plaintiff, who was in the position of a puisne mortgagee, was not made a party to this suit. On 12-10-1933, the plaintiff sued on their mortgages, got a decree on 25-7-1934, sold the property on 3-10-1935, and purchased the property at the execution sale. The sale was confirmed on 6-3-1936. He did not implead the plaintiff in the suit or in the execution proceedings. When he sought delivery of the property, ne was obstructed by the defendants and thereupon the plaintiff applied for removal of obstruction; his application was, however, dismissed on 18-8-1938. In August, 1939 he filed the present suit to set aside the adverse order. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court, out on appeal the appellate Court passed an order of remand which provided that (1) the plaintiff should pay the defendants the amount due on their decree with interest, and that the detendants should give credit for income received by them from the village for the period of their possession of it; (2) the defendants should pay the plaintiff the proportionate amount due to him on his decree in respect of the suit village, and that these sums were to be set off against each other and the exact amount found due by the detendant should be paid by them to the plaintiff; (3) that if the defendants paid that amount they were not to be disturbed in their possession, their ownership being resognised; but if they did not pay, the property was to be sold and the sale proceeds were to be distributed in a particular manner. Both sides appealed against this order to the High Court.

Reading O. 34, R. 4 (4), C. P. Code, with Forms Nos. 9, 10 and 11 in Appendix D to the Code, it is clear that in a suit filed by the first mortgagee against the mortgagor and the second mortgagee, it is the Court's duty, when passing the preliminary and final decree, to adjudicate upon the respective rights and liabilities of all the parties to the suit in the manner set forth in the forms. It is not necessary for the second or puisne mortgagee to file a substantive suit or counter-claim to get his rights ascertained. The question of ascertaining the amount personally payable to the mortgagees who have not received satisfaction is deferred till the property is sold and the deficit ascertained. On that being done, the rights of the mortgagees, who have not received satisfaction, for a personal decree have to be considered by the Court and if the claim is found to be valid and not barred the Court would pass a personal decree. The relevant time for consideration whether an application for a personal decree under O. 34, R. 6, C. P. Code, is barred or not is not the date on which the application is made to the Court, but the date of institution of the suit by the plaintiff. In the case of a puisne mortgagee the latest date would be the date when he files his written statement in the suit. (Kania, A. C. J. and Chagla, J.) AMRATLAL AMARCHAND v. ——0.34, R. 5—Applicability—Sale by Registrar under Chap. 27, Calcutta High Court, Original Side Rules and Orders—Application by mortgagor—Deposit of costs Procedure.

The provisions of O. 34, R. 5, C. P. Code, are applicable to a sale by the Registrar under Chapter 27 of the original side Rules and orders of the Calcutta High Court. A mortgagor applying for relief under O. 34, R. 5, need not deposit costs along with the application. In most cases the mortgagee can furnish an estimate of his costs and that estimate can be accepted or modified by the court and the court may direct that a sufficient sumshould be deposited when the application is made, or before the order is made on the application, provided the attorney for the mortgagee gives the usual undertaking to refund any balance that may ultimately be found due. But this course is unnecessary in a case where the mortgagor and the mortgagee have agreed that the mortgagee should retain the title deeds of the mortgaged property until the costs have been taxed and the amount of the taxed costs have been paid to him. (Mc Nair, J.) SHAMANGINI ROY " MAHATAKSHI RAKSHIT. 201 T.C. 464 = 15 R.C. 203 = A T.R. 1942 Cal. 44.

An order on an application under O. 34, R. 5, C. P. Code, by a creditor who has attached the preliminary decree to make the decree final, is an interlocutory order and it does not amount to a decree. An appeal against the order is, therefore, incompetent. But a revision application is maintainable where it involves a question of iurisdiction. (Grille, C. I. and Sen. I.) KRISHNA-BAI & PARVATI BAI. I.T.B. (1944) Nag. 885=1944 N.L.J., 479=A.I.B. 1944 Nag 298.

The Legislature has not considered it necessary to provide for a notice to the defendant on an application by the plaintiff under O. 34, R. 5 (3) C. P. Code, for the passing of the final decree. The fact that as a matter of practice courts do issue a notice, does not entitle the defendant to claim a notice. As a notice is not necessary, the defendant can not of right claim that an exparte decree should be set a side. (Mir Ahmad, J.) SADHU SINGH v. LACHHMAN SINGH. 206 I.C. 315 = 15 R. An attaching creditor of a preliminary decree for sale is entitled to apply to make the decree final. R. 5 of O. 34, when it speaks of a defendant, means a 'defendant' and does not mean anyboby who has an interest in the equity of redemption. But R. 5 must be read in conjunction with R. 1 and the practice which exists under R. 1. It is well settled that where the manager of a joint Hindu family is made a defendant in a mortgage suit, he sufficiently represents the other members of joint familiy, so that the other memhers are regarded, for purposes of R. 1 as being joined as parties through the manager and as being sufficiently before the Court to enable them to be bound by an order for sale. Hence they must also be regarded as sufficiently before the Court to enable them to exercise the privilege of stopping the sale, conferred on *defendants' in the manner provided in O. 34, R.5, If an applicant shows that he is a member of the joint family which is represented by the manager who is sued as defendant, he is sufficiently a defendant under R. A final decree should, no doubt, be made in accordance with the preliminary decree; but where there is an obvious mistake in the preliminary decree, the Court is not bound to repeat that mistake, when passing the final decree. Particularly in the case of a final decree for sale in a mortgage suit, the Court must not direct the sale of any mortgaged property which is no longer available for sale under the mortgage, though it is wrongly included in the preliminary decree. A mortgage suit must be considered to be pending till a final decree under 0. 34, R. 5 (1) or (3) is passed, and it is open to the plaintiff to ask for a final decree to be made for the balance due to him under the preliminary decree. The fact that a final decree has been once refused on the ground that decree has been discharged under S. 19 of the Madras Act IV of 1938, and that the order of refusal has not been appealed against within the period prescribed for appeal, does not preclude an application for a final decree for the balance, if any, found to be due to plaintiff. O. 34, R. 5—Sub-mortgagee made defendant in suit by original mortgagee for sale—Preliminary decree—Right of sub-mortgagee to apply for final decree—C. P. Cole, S. 146.

Having regard to the derivative character of a submortgage as an assignment of the mortgage right by the original mortgagee by way of charge, there is no obvious reason why the sub-mortgagee, as a person claiming under the original mortgagee, hould not, on the general principle recognised in S. 146, C. P. Code, be entitled to apply for a final decree for sale of the mortgaged property where the original mortgagee plaintiff fails to make such application. A sub-mortgagee made a defendant in a suit for sale brought by the original mortgagee is entitled to apply for a final decree, where the preliminary decree for sale has ascertained the amount due to him but contains no provision authorising him to make such an application on default of payment by the mortgagor, of the amount due to the original mortgagee. chaser. It follows, therefore, that under this provision a stranger purchaser can get five per cent only on the amount he has actually paid into Court and not on the amount of the accepted final bid, and that a decree-holder purchaser who sets off his decree against the price can get nothing on the amount set off. ——O. 34, R. 5 (3)—Execution of mortgage decree -- Decree-holder's right to troceed against separate items of property at different times.

The intention of the legislature in enacting O. 34, R. 5 (3). C. P. Code, is to confer a right upon the mortgagee ordinarily to realise his security by bringing only a part of the mortgaged property to sale provided that he is satisfied that the sale of a portion of such property will be sufficient for the purpose of enabling him to realise his dues. If in execution proceedings against a portion of the mortgaged property only, the mortgagee fails to realise his full dues, there is no reason why he should not proceed against some other items of the mortgaged property; and it certainly cannot be said that by failure to proceed against the entire property he waives his right to do so in a subsequent execution case. (Fd gley, 7.) ABDUR ROUF v. ABDUR RAHIM. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 520—195 I.C. 134=14 R.O. 48—A.I R, 1941 Cal. 205.

Where mortgaged property has already been sold in execution of a prior claim and the surplus sale proceeds are lawfully payable to the plaintiff mortgagee, there is no reason why the Court should not pass a final decree declaring the right of the plaintiff to recover the surplus sale proceeds. O. 34, R. 5, would be enough to empower the Court to do so, but if that rule be considered not wide enough to cover such a case, the Court may act in the exercise of its inherent powers under S. 151, C.P. Code. (Chatterii, J.) KUNJA REHARI MISRA v. BENUDHAR PANDA. 7 CULLIT. 49=197 I.C. 739=14 R.P. 350=8 B.R. 291=23 Pat. L.T. 412=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 185 (2).

A decree which directs payment of the amount is prima facie a personal decree. O. 34, C. P. Code, regulates the enforcement by suit of mortgages. The Court must read the decree as a whole, and if a preliminary mortgage decree provides in the first instance that the mortgagor should pay the amount, not into Court but to the mortgagee, the Court would not be justified in construing the decree as an executable decree for payments because, taking the decree as a whole, it provides that there is not to be a personal decree for payment until the mortgaged property has been sold and a deficit has resulted. But there is no reason why one should apply the analogy of a mortgage decree to a consent decree which must be construed according to the language used. In the case of a consent decree, there is no justification.

C. P. CODE (1908). O. 34, B. 6,

for holding that by taking a charge upon specific property, the primary object of which is to secure the creditor against other creditors, the creditor abandons his right to proceed against other property of the debtor. Such an abandonment should not be presumed in the absence of language making clear the intention to abandon. To hold that the creditor can only attach other property after obtaining a fresh order for payment is to ignore the fact that the decree already contains an order for payment. A consent decree directed the defendant to pay to the plaintiff a lump sum of Rs. 9,000 by yearly instalments of Rs. 2,000. There was a default clause making the whole amount payable on default of payment of two instalments. Then it provided that a charge in favour of the plaintiff for the decretal amount of Rs. 9000 was given on certain shares belonging to the defendant; it then went on: "If the defendant fails to pay the monies in time, the same should be recovered by sale of the said shares. The defendant committed default, and the shares were sold and realised Rs. 4,350. Subsequently the plaintiff took out a drakhast to recover the balance of the debt by attachment and sale of a house of the defendant. The latter contended that the plaintiff having taken a charge on specific shares, had adandoned his right to recover the money by any other means. He also pleaded alternatively that if the plaintiff desired to proceed against other properties and had a right to do so, he must first of all proceed to get a personal decree for payment.

Held, that the decree amounted to an order for payment and could be enforced by attachment and sale of anv of the defendant's property; and merely because the plaintiff protected himself against other creditors by taking a charge on part of the defendant's property, he could not be held to have impliedly deprived himself of his right to proceed against any property or delayed its enforcement. The plaintiff, having failed to realize the whole amount of his debt by sale of the charged shares, could proceed under the decree to attach any other property of the defendant which might be available. That the decree did not in terms restrict the right of the plaintiff to proceed against any other property and it did contain a decree for personal payment and could therefore be executed against the house of the judgmentdebtor. The lessees of minerals hypothecated certain property to secure sums due by way of royalty; in a suit by the lessor for royalty against the lessees and sub-lessees praying for a decree for sale of the hypothecated property, a preliminary decree was passed and then a final decree also was made. The hypothecated property was brought to sale but the amount fetched at the sale was not enough to satisfy the whole decree. The lessor applied under O. 34, R. 6, C.P. Code, for a personal decree against both the lessees and the sub-lessees, Held, that no personal decree could be passed against the sub-lessees merely because they were interested in the property. They were in no way personally liable to the lessor and therefore there could be no personal droree against them. (Harries C. J. and Manohar Lall, J.) JOYRAM NARAYAN V. SHIVA PRASAD SINGH. 193. ——0. 34, R. 6—Mortgagee purchasing property in execution of mortgage decree—Title to property—Right to apply for personal decree.

It is a well-recognised rule that when mortgaged property is sold in execution of the mortgage decree, the interests of both the mortgagee and mortgagor pass to the purchaser. The same result is brought about by the sale of the mortgaged property free of encumbrance in accordance with S. 138 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act. A mortgagee decree-holder who purchases the property obtains an absolute and unqualified title free from all encumbrances. But he is not debarred from applying for a personal decree for the balance of the decretal amount. (Grille, C. J. and Niyoi, J.) RATANLAL v. SAGARBAI. I.L.R. —— O. 34, R. 6—Personal decree hofore mortgaged property is exhausted—Validity.

It is true that normally a personal decree should not be passed at all until the mortgaged property has been exhausted, but if such a decree is passed it is not invalid. (Almond, J.C. and Mahomed Ibrahim. J.) HAJI NATHU v. NIKKI DFVI. 204 I.C. 509=15 R. Pesh. 79=A.I.R. 1942 Pesh, 85.

O. 34, R. 6—Preliminary decree in suit on mortgage against mortgagor and tansferee of the equity—Liberty to apply for personal decree clause—Transferee of equity, if can plead that he is not a person from whom the bolance is recoverable.

Where a preliminary decree in a suit on a mortgage against the mortgager and a transferee of the equity provided that the 'plaintiffs shall be at liberty to apply for a personal decree for the amount' if the sale proceeds are insufficient, it was held that the liberty to apply clause did not prejudge or decide what will happen when application was made, at any rate, where the application could be against either of two (B, or C.) and must in law fail as against C, but would succeed, prima facie against B, and that it was open to the transferee of the equity to contend that he is not a person from whom the balance is recoverable. — O. 34, R. 6—Personal decree—Right to—When arises—Plaint in mortgage suit not proving for personal decree—Preliminary decree not reserving right to apply—If bars right to apply on proceeds of sale proving insufficient.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 34, R. 6.

An application for a personal decree in a suit on a mortgage is an application in the suit and only arises when it is found that the mortgaged properties have not realised sufficient to pay off the mortgage. The mortgagee has a right to apply for a personal decree in such circumstances and his application can only be made in the suit. The Court has no power to pass a personal decree until that eventuality has happened. Merely because the plaint in the suit does not contain prayer for a personal decree, and the preliminary decree, does not reserve a right to apply for a personal decree, the plaintiff is not precluded from applying for and obtaining a personal decree when the contingency happens, (Teach, C.I. and Lakshmana Rao, I.) Where in a sale of mortgaged property, in the consideration the mortgage money due to the mortgagee is made dehanced to him and the vendee fails to pav it, the latter does not by virtue of the sale-deed become a trustee for the payment of the dehanced money to the mortgagee so as to clothe him with the rights to obtain a personal decree against the vendee. But, if there is a subsequent agreement between the vendee and the mortgagee for the navment of the mortgage money, then it could be made the basis to fasten the personal liability on the vendee. So long as the suit is pending, the mortgagor has the right expressly given to him under O. 34. Rr. 7 (2) and 8 (1), C. P. Code. The rights under these provisions are available to a mortgagor in the case of redemption of a usufructuary mortgage also. Courts should, if it is possible to do so, construe both these rules as applicable to suits for redemption of usufructuary mortgages as well. The mortgagor is not hound to take out an application within three years of the time fixed for payment under the preliminary decree, and he can deposit the amount at any time so long as a final decree has not been passed, Art. 181, Limitation Act, has no application. In a redemption action the Court is hound to give the mortgagee his costs of the suit unless the Court is of opinion that his conduct has been vexatious or unreasonable so as to disentitle him thereto. Nor can he, when his conduct was neither vexations nor unreasonable, be made to nay the costs of the person suing for redemption. The fact that a prior mortgagee refused to accent a deposit made by a subsequent mortgagee under S. 83, T. P. Act, when it is found that the deposit under S. 83 were not full and correct and that the mortgagors were not made parties to the application under 5- 83 cannot amount to vexatious or unreasonable conduct on the part of the prior mortgagee so as to disentitle him to costs in a later suit for redemption by the subsequent mortgagee, (Abdur Rohman and Somavya, II) MIMAKSHI AYYAR 2' JANAKI R ACHAITER, T.L.R. O. 34. R. 11 C. P. Code which must be read with Rr. 2 and 4, gives a discretion to the Court to allow interest up to the date for redemption on the amount found or declared due by the preliminary decree. The interest must be calculated at the contract rate unless the Court finds that such a rate is penal or excessive. The Court has no option to disallow interest at that rate, even if it be compound interest unless of course the rate is found to be penal. For the period subsequent to the date of the preliminary decree, however, the Court has under the rule the option to allow or refuse interest. (Chatterii and Meredith, IJ) MAPHO PRASAD SINGH v. MAKUTDHARI SINGH, 193 I.C. 661=15R. P. 637=7 B.R. 641=22 P.L.T. 317=A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 378.

——0.34, R, 11—Discretion of Court—Mortgage's inaction—Delay in suing—If ground for disallowing interest before suit.

O. 34, R. 11, C. P. Code, does not deprive the Court of its discretion to refuse interest in appropriate circumstances. Where a mortgagee has been inactive for a long time and has not satisfactorily explained such inaction for several years, the Court in a suit for sale can properly refuse interest prior to suit. (Weston and Trahii, II) HUNDALDAS 2. RAITIKHAN I.L.P. (1942) Kar. 459=204 I.C. 574=15 R.S. 101=A.I.R. (1943) Sind 59.

O. 34, R. 11, C.P.Code, makes a clear distinction between two stages or periods, namely, the period between the date of the decree and the date fixed for redemption and the period between the date fixed for redemption and the date of realisation. During both these periods the mortgagee is not as of right entitled to interest. During the first period the agreement between the parties as to paymant of interest has no inviolable sanctity of its own. If the interest is legally recoverable and the Court in its discretion thinks fit to allow it, then it has to be calculated at the agreed rate. In the second period (i.e.) after the date of redemption, the

In a suit for sale brought by a puisne mortgagee to which the prior mortgagee is made a party, when the prior mortgagee consents to have the property sold free from his incumbiance on condition that he should be paid first out of the sale proceeds, the Court under 0. 34 K. 12, can pass a preliminary decree for sale free of the first mortgage. It is not necessary that a decree for sale should have been passed before the date of the consent of prior mortgages. The consent may precede the sale, (Abdur Kahman, 1.) KRISHNASWAMI PILLAI v. ——0.34, R. 13—Applicability—Realisation under mortgage decree—Method of appropriation.

O. 34, R. 13 of the C. P. When moneys are realised in execution of a mortgage decree, in the absence of something in the decree itself to indicate that a contrary appropriation or application of the sale proceeds was intended or directed, the amount realised should first be appropriated towards interest and costs of the suit and the appeal and the balance alone should be applied to the payment of the principal amount. No appeal lies against an order passed under the provisions of R, 13 of O, 34. A revision also will not lie as in majority of the cases no question of law would probably be involved. An order under this provision might be gravely prejudicial to the parties concerned and in such a case it might be possible for the aggrieved parties to take action under the provisions of S, 151, C. -0.34, R. 13 (1) -Person "interested in property"-Calcutta Corporation having statutory charge for unpaid taxes-Liability to pay such taxes.

The fact that the Calcutta Corporation has a statutory charge upon the property sold for the unpaid taxes does not give them an interest in that property within the meaning of sub-S. (1) of R. 13 of O. 34, C. P. Code. The liability to pay the taxes does not rest on the mortgagee but lies on the mortgagor who is in possession of the property, and the auction purchaser after his purchase will take the property subject to this statutory charge. The Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to order the retention in Court of a portion of the sale proceeds in a mortgage sale for payment to the Calcutta Corporation. (Ghose and Mukherjea, J.). — 0. 34, R. 14—Applicability—Conditions—Mortgage suit for sale—Decree for sale refused—Attachment and sale of mortgaged property in execution of money decree—If carred.

The plain language of O. 34, R. 14, C, P. Where a suit for sale on the basis of the mortgage has already been brought and a decree for sale has been refused, it is impossible to hold that in such a case the provisions of O. 34 R. 14, can have any application, (Chatterti and Meredith, J.). Where there is a mortgage and a lease back forming parts of the same transaction and a decree for rent is obtained by the mortgagee against the mortgager it is a decree for an amount arising under the mortgage and hence according to O. 34. revenue—If trustes for purchaser of other items—Furchase if invalid under O. 34, R. 14—Trusts Act, S. 90.

C. P. CODE (1908), U. 31, E. 14,

The only limitations which fetter the power of a mortgagor to purchase the mortgaged property are those contained in O. 34, R. 14, C. P. Code and S. 90 of the Trusts Act. The former aims at affording to the mortgagor a measure of protection against the mortgaged property being sold at a disadvantage, while the latter is much wider in scope preventing, as it does, persons standing in a special relationship to certain others, from taking advantage of their position to secure a benefit to themselves in derogation of the rights of those others. Where a mortgagee who has obtained a decree for sale of two items of mortgaged properties, the decree directing that the first property should be sold first and then only if it is necessary the second property should be sold, purchases the first property at a sale for arrears of revenue for a very low price it cannot be said that the purchase by him at such sale can be ignored either on the ground of its being prohibited by O. 34, R. 14, C. P. Code, or on the ground that the mortgagee in purchasing it is only a trustee for owner the purchaser of the second item from the mortgagor. It cannot be said that the mortgagee owes a legal duty to the purchaser of the second item which would stand in the way of his acquiring the property for himself at the revenue sale with the object of getting round the restrictions placed on him by the decree. The mortgagee decree holder is in no sense in a fiduciary position in so far as the purchaser of the second item is concerned, and in purchasing the first property he cannot be deemed to have availed himself of any special position he held. When these two conditions are not satisfied, the fact, that he gains an advantage to the prejudice of the purchaser of the second item cannot afford any ground of relief to the purchaser of the second item. So long as the revenue sale is not due to any wrongful conduct on his part, there is no reason why the mortgagee should be held to be in a worse position than a stranger purchasing at the revenue sale and obtaining a clear title incapable of being assailed by anybody. When he is under no duty to pay the revenue due on the first property and when he does not scheme to bring about a default in its payment, his position is not different from that of a second mortgagee, who purchases the mortgaged property at a sale by the first mortgagee in exercise of a power of sale. The law does not, subject to certain well-known exceptions, prevent the wary and the diligent from taking advantage of their less fortunate tellowmen, if the latter do not exhibit that degree of alertness which is necessary for the protection of (Krishnaswamy Ayyangar, and their interests. Where a mortgagor after mortgaging his house with possession takes the property back on lease for rent undertaking to pay rent every month and agrees that on default in payment of rent the mortgagee would be competent to realise the rent by suit, a decree obtained by the mortgagee in a suit for rent cannot be executed by attachement and sale of mortgaged property. O. 34, R. 14 applies so as to bar the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of the decree on the lease, (Fasl Ali and Varma, J.). NANEKESHWAR PRASAD v. NANEKESHWAR PRASAD v.

— O. 3±, R. 1±—Applicability—Usufructury mortgage—Lease back to mortgager—Kent due under tease—Decree for sale of equity of redemption in mortgaged property—If barred—Mortgage and lease—If one transaction—Question of law.

It is true that O. 34, R. 14, has been enacted for the benefit of mortgagors. But it does not mean that a mortgagor should be entitled to pray in aid the provisions of the rule in all cases in which the mortgagee has entered into some sort of arrangement with his mortgagor with respect to the properties mortgaged. There is no warrant for the contention that simply because a claim has arisen between two parties who happen to be mortgagor and mortgagee in respect of certain dues arising from the possession of the mortgaged property such a claim can be said to have arisen under the mortgage. The rule will apply and the mortgagor can secure the benefit of the rule only in those cases where it can be reasonably interred that a decree for payment of money has been passed against the mortgagor in satisfaction of "a claim arising under the mortgagor," in other words, only in those cases in which the Court is satisfied that the transaction in question was a part and parcel of the mortgage, transaction itself. Where a mortgagor executes a usufructuary mortgage and then takes the mortgaged property on lease under a patta agreeing to pay rent to the mortgagee annually if it appears on a reasonable construction of the documents that the properties are given in security not only for the principal amount secured but also for the interest accruing thereon and that the second document, lease, is in reality only a device to ensure regular payment of interest which also is secured on the same mortgaged properties, it may generally be said that the two documents are parts of the same transaction. In such a case if the mortgagee obtains a money decree against the mortgagor as lessee for rent in arrears under the lease patta, such a decree cannot be executed by attachment and sale of the equity of redemption in the mortgaged property. O.34, R.14 applies to such a case and is a bar to the mortgagee executing his money decree by attaching and selling the equity of redemption of the mortgagor in the mortgaged property. The mortgagee has to bring a suit for sale for payment of the principal sum as also all the interest que after the lapse of the period axed for the payment of the mortgage dues. The question whether the two transactions are part and parcel of the same transaction is not a question of fact, but one of law which can be raised in second appeal, (Fast At: C. J, and Sinha, J.) Where after the execution of a usufructuary mortgage the mortgagor does not deliver possession of the khudkhaut, though he had not acquired any exproprietary rights in them and the mortgagee thereupon obtains a decree for his ejectment and also damages, the damages merely represents compensation for the usufruct to which the mortgagee was entitled and hence he cannot bring the equity of redemption to sale in execution of the decree for damages by virtue of O. 34, R. 14, C. would make a transaction subsequent to the institution of the suit a condition precedent to the application of Rr. 5 and 6. R. 5 refers not to the past but to the future. It refers to a defendant who with a particular intent is about to dispose of the whole or part of his property. The fact that he has done so after the institution of the suit may be strong evidence of the future intention provided he has any property left. But transfers before the institution of the suit may, as evidence of conduct, be evidence of intention after the institution of the suit.

Weston, J.—Action under R. 5 of O. 38, C. P. Code, is preventive to provide against future attempts of the defendant to place his assets beyond the reach of the potential decree-holder, and is not punitive in order to punish such acts of the defendant committed either before the suit was filed or before presentation of the application under the rule. An application under R. 5 may be made at any stage in the suit; if a defendant, having knowledge that a suit will be filed against him begins disposal of his property with the intention of obstructing or delaying the execution of a decree likely to be passed against him, there is nothing in R. 5 which debars the plaintiff from applying under that rule at the time he files his suit, and from relying in support of his application not on disposals made subsequent to the filing of the suit or subsequent subsequent to the filing of the suit or subsequent to service of suit on the defendant, but on disposals made before the suit has been filed. There is no doubt that when a matter is in dispute in a trial Court and the property concerned is in the possession of a third party it is necessary for the preservation of the property pending the determination of the rights of parties to appoint a receiver in the common interest of both parties. But when the trial Court has determined the rights of parties and the matter is pending in an appeal, it cannot be said that it would be still just and convenient to keep the property in the custody of the Court by either appointing a fresh receiver or continuing the old receiver. The property should be handed over to the party found by the Court to be entitled, no doubt, with sufficient safeguards. (Thomas, C.J. and Misra, J.) PARTAB BIKRAM SINGH v. O. 40, R. 1-Mortgage executed by receiver under Court's order—Order sanctioning loan on first charge—Precedence of mortgage over earlier encumbrances created by parties.

In those case where the order of the Court simply sanctions a loan by the receiver on a first charge of the properties, but does not indicate the purpose for which the loan is sanctioned, the creditor who advances the money is entitled to assume that everything was in order and so he ought to get what the Court had promised to give him, precedence over earlier encumbrances created by the parties. In such cases the Court cannot break faith with him. In cases, however, where the order itself recites the purpose of the loan, different considerations should apply. the purpose of the loan as set out in the order is for preservation or protection of the property committed to the care of the receiver, or if the order is made in an administration suit or in a partition suit for working out the rights, liabilities and obligations of the co-sharers of joint properties in the course of partition, the mortgagee from the receiver would have first charge in accordance with the order. The principle seems to be this. By the appointment of the receiver the Court takes upon itself the duty of protecting and preserving the subject-matter of the suit, which it discharges through its own officer, namely, the receiver. It must therefore have all powers which are incidental and necessary for the discharge of that duty. It will have therefore the power to sanction loan to be raised by the receiver, and if ncessary, to direct the mortgage to be executed by him for securing it to have precedence over earlier mortgages executed by the parties. He may be unaware of such prior mortgages or even if aware, may not give notice to those mortgagees. This power of the Court being thus incidental to and necessary for the performance of its duty to protect and preserve the subject-matter of the suit, which it has taken upon itself by appointing a receiver, must be measured and limited by its duty, where its exercise comes into conflict with the rights of third parties which are not before it and to whom no notice had been given, or who had not consented. In such a case the principle breach of faith cannot be the decisive factor. It is a question of power or jurisdiction of the Court. If the Court arrogates to itself a power which it does not possess and does an act affecting persons not parties to the suit, its acts cannot prejudice the rights of such persons. In such a case the mortgagee from the receiver cannot protect himself on the presumption that the Court had acted within its powers, for the order on the basis of which he acted ex facie would indicate want of power in the Court. ---O. 40, Rr. 1 and 2 and O. 43, R. 1 (s)-Order fixing remuneration of receiver

-Applicability.

Though the Court has the power to make the order fixing the remuneration of a receiver appointed by it at any time, nevertheless it must be regarded as part of the order of appointment. When it is made subsequent to the order of appointment it is really a continuation of the original order of appointment, at any rate it is so closely connected with the original order that it must be regarded as part and parcel of that order and hence such an order as to remuneration would be appealable under O. 43, R. 1 (s). (Stone, C.J. and Bose, J.) BUDHULAL JACANNATH v. THE HIRDAGARH COLLIERIES, LTD. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 671=199 I.C. 874=14 R.N. 305=1942 N.L.J. 191=A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 64.

perties in suit. The parties have, therefore, the power to deal with their shares without reference to Court, provided that their acts do not interfere with possession of the receiver. The receiver could exercise the powers of the owners in the matter of execution of documents and if the Court sanctions a loan on mortgage, he could validly execute the mortgage instrument so as to bind the shares of the parties. ——O. 40, R. 1—Partnership—Suit for dissolution—Receiver appointed — Judgment-creditor's remedy—Charging order—Application for—Proper forum—Effect of such order.

A.I.R. 1942 Sind 60.

Where in a suit by a partner for dissolution of partnership a receiver is appointed of the assets of the partnership, the remedy of the creditor who had obtained a decree against the partnership firm is either to apply to the Court which appointed the receiver for leave to attach some specific property or for an order charging the assets in the hands of the receiver on giving an undertaking to deal with the charge according to the orders of the Court. There is no doubt that the appplication for a charging order must be made to the Court by which the receiver was appointed. But where the Court which appointed the receiver in the partnership suit and passed the decree in the creditor's suit is the same, and all the parties in both suits are present, including the receiver, there can be no objection to a charging order being made on an application made in the creditor's suit, instead of in the partnership suit, and the cause title can be formally amended. The effect of a charging order will be to give the judgment creditor's priority over creditors who have not proceeded to judgment. (McNair, J.) SURESH CHANDRA ROY v. PRAKASH KRISHNA. 45 C.W.N. 1104.

receiver can, however, only be appointed when a special case is made out for putting the property in charge of an officer of the Court. Where, e.g., the Court is satisfied that the value of the security has diminished by act of the mortgagor or otherwise, or where the entire dues of the mortgagee cannot be liquidated by the mortgage security, the Court would be in-clined to appoint a receiver so as to place the rents, issues and profits of the property in the hands of the Court to be dealt with in accordance with the justice and the equity of that particular case. -O. 40, Rr. (1) and (4) and O. 43, R. 1 (s)—Receiver, appointment of—Appealagainst person not a party to suit-Order

In considering the right of appeal under O. 43, R. 1 (s), the distinction between an order appointing a receiver and an order removing a person from the possession or custody of the property should not be lost sight of because an order merely appointing a receiver does not affect the person in possession of the property directly whereas an order for the removal of any person from possession or custody of the property affects him directly. If the order appointing a receiver is made against a party to the suit, then he would have a right to appeal under O. 40, R. 1 (a) read with O. 43, R. 1 (s); if the Court orders the removal of a person from possession he would have a right of appealing against that order under O. 40, R. 1 (b) read with O. 43, R. 1 (s). But where an order is made against a person not a party to the suit, refusing to direct the receiver to release the property there is no appeal against it by the third party. His remedy is by suit. The rights of a Receiver who is a party to the suit do not stand on any higher footing than those of one who is a complete stranger to the litigation. His liability to account for the receipts from the property in his charge is much greater than that of a third party Receiver, because an additional duty is cast on him to safeguard the rights of his adversary—a duty which very often is more readily accepted than discharged. It is manifest that beyond his legitimate remuneration as a Receiver, and incurring such expenses in the management and preservation of the property in his charge as may be deemed fit and proper in the circumstances, the Receiver would not be entitled to make any profit out of the property in his charge. It is true that when a receiver is appointed the actual appointment operates as an injunction restraining the parties to the suit from interfering with the property, but it does not affect outsiders. So far as third persons are concerned, the appointment of a receiver does not affect them until the receiver has actually taken possession. The appointment of a receiver does not affect the right of a creditor to proceed to execute a decree by attachment of the property intended to be received until and unless the appointment of the receiver has been perfected and he is actually in possession. The ownership remains in the parties to the suit, and the Receiver takes charge of and holds the property as an officer of the Court during the litigation. The mere fact that the Receiver is authorised to defend suits under O. 40, R. 1 (d), C. P. Code, does not entitle a third party plaintiff to bring a suit against the Receiver alone ignoring the persons who are the owners of the property and who are in law necessary parties to such suit. The only difference that the appointment of a Receiver makes is that if the property in the hands of the Property in the hands of the Receiver is intended to be affected by the result of such a suit, the Receiver has got to be made a party after obtaining leave from the Court and this is to be by way of addition to and not in substitution for the parties who are primarily responsible. In the face of the clear language of O. 40, R. 1 (2), it must be held that a Court has no power to appoint a receiver of the raiyati holdings held by a judgment-debtor in Chota Nag-pur, a sale of which is prohibited by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. The general power given to the Courts under O. 40, R. 1 (1) is curtailed by sub-R. (2). Both the sub-rules have to be read together as forming part and parcel of one rule. (Agarwala, J.) -O. 40, R. 4—Question of wilful default and gross negligence of Receiver—Enquiry into—Jurisdiction of Court—Such enquiry, if confined to accounts not yet passed—Death of Receiver pending inquiry—Proceeding, if can be continued against his legal representatives.

The Court which appointed a Receiver has jurisdiction to make an enquiry into allegations of wilful default and gross negligence with regard to the administration of the property placed in his charge in a summary proceeding under O. 40, R. 4, and the filing of a separate suit is not essential. Such an inquiry need not be confined to the accounts of those years only which have not yet been passed by the Court but may extend to matters covered by the accounts of the previous years which had already been passed by it. The question of wilful default and gross negligence is not a matter directly of accounts. It is a liability which attaches to the receiver outside the accounts and consequently the question as to whether or not the accounts of particular years were formally passed by the Court, is immaterial for the purpose of determining whether the charges of default or negligence could be brought home against the receiver. If the receiver dies during the pendency of the enquiry, the proceedings can be continued against his legal representatives, as an order of attachment, if made, can be directed against the property of the receiver in their possession. (Mukherjea and Blank, JJ.) SAFARADDI GAZI v. RAHIM BAKSH. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 204=207 I.C. 609=16 R.C. 125=47 C.W.N. 400=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 244.

O. 40, C. P. Where the allegation in an application filed against a receiver under O. 40, R. 4 (2), C. P. Code, is that he had been guilty of fraudulent conduct and misappropriation, the Court should not refer so serious a matter to a commissioner, but should refer the parties to a regular suit. No other procedure is suitable in such a case. (Mockett and Bell, J.) SOMASUNDARAM CHETTLAR v. KANNAMAL. ACHI. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 47=57 L. O. 41, R. 1 is applicable to appeals under the Land Revenue Act and hence the production of the copy of the judgment appealed against can be dispensed with by the appellate Court. (Sathe, A.M.) KANCHAN SINGH v. ISHWAR KIRPAL SINGH. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 993=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 837.

O. 41, R. 1 and O. 43, R. 2—Combined effect of—Failure to file copy of formal order in appeal from an order—Effect.

The combined effect of O. 41, R. 1 and O. 43,

R. 2, C. P. Code, is that the procedure laid down in R. 1 of O. 41 to the effect that the memorandum shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed from, must be held to apply in the case of appeals from orders as distinguished from decrees. Hence in an appeal from an order it is obligatory upon the appellant to file along with the memorandum of appeal a copy of the formal order also without which the appeal is clearly not competent. (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) Durga Prasad v. Rampal. 200 I.C. 479=14 R.O. 607=1942 A.L. W. 221=1942 O.A. 158=1942 A.W.R. (C. C.) 161=1942 O.W.N. 213=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 349.

Where all the issues in a case excepting one are disposed of on a particular day while the one remaining issue is decided and judgment pronounced on a later date and an appeal is preferred against the decree it cannot be said that it does not satisfy the requirements of O. 41, R. 1, because the copy of the earlier order disposing of the several issues is not filed. Even if it were a defect it would be a read a if it were a defect it would be cured by its subsequent production. (Ghulam Hasan, J.)

trial Court on the ground of the printing charges not having been paid within 7 days after they were called for, the appellant preferred an appeal with a certified copy of the decretal order, and a manuscript certified copy of the judgment was also filed. Along with the appeal, the appellant filed an application for dispensing with the production of printed copies, undertaking to file them later. This was granted and the ap-peal was taken on file and numbered and notice went to the respondent. The appellant then applied to the trial Court for printed copies for being filed in the appeal, but his application was dismissed by the trial Court on the respondent's opposition on the ground that a second applica-tion for printed copies did not lie under the Civil Rules of practice. When the appeal was taken up for hearing, the appellant, represented his difficulty, but the appellate Court, instead of having the judgment printed in that Court, dismissed the appeal on the ground that the appellant had failed to fulfil his undertaking to file printed copies.

Held, (1) that there was nothing in the Civil Rules of practice prohibiting a second copy application, and that in any case the trial Court had power to restore the first copy application to file and grant copies; (2) that the appellate Court had power to order printing to be done in that Court and that O. 41, R. 1, clearly gave power to that Court to dispense with the production of a copy of the judgment, and in dismissing the appeal had shown utter disregard of its duty; (3) that the denial by the first Court of copies and the dismissal of the appeal by the appellate Court, amounted to a travesty of justice and a gross abuse of the Rules of Court. -O. 41, R. 1 and O. 3, Rr. 1 and 4-Presentation of appeal without vakalatnama owing to a bona fide mistake—Subsequent filing of vakalatnama after limitation-Appeal if rendered incompetent.

Where there has been a presentation of an appeal by an Advocate without a vakalatnama owing to some wrong impression that it has been already filed in the lower Court and the vakalatnama is filed immediately on the mistake being discovered but after the period of limitation for filing the appeal, it amounts only to a defect of procedure due to a bona fide mistake and is not procedure due to a vona hae mistake and is not so vital a defect as to render the appeal incompetent. The rectification could be permitted to be made under the discretionary power of the Court. (Koul and Misra, JJ.) Kodi Lal v. Ahmad Hasan. 20 Luck. 356=1945 O. A. (C.C.) 121=1945 A.L.W. appointed pleader or agent, can be validly presented by any person without a written authority from any one of them. O. 3, R. 1, C. P. Code, in terms refers only to appearances, applications and acts in or to any Court, as that term is used or understood in the Code, but the persons deputed by the Court to receive plaints or the boxes provided for that purpose cannot be held to be Crurts. (Harries, C.J. and Abdur Rahman, J.) BARKATE v. FEROZ KHAN. 216 I.C. 5=46 P.L.R. 96=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 131.

— O. 41, R. 2—Appeal—New ground— Leave to raise—Conditions. Under O. 41, R. 2, C. P. Code, the appellate Court has no doubt authority to grant leave to urge a fresh ground. But such a ground must have been foreshadowed in the discussions in the lower Courts. There is no justification for an appellate Court to subject a party, after he has obtained a decree, to the brunt of a new attack on which he had never had notice during the hearing of the suit. Hence it is wrong to grant leave where the party concerned never raised the question in the pleadings nor made it any part of his case in the lower Court. (Dible, J.M. and Ross, A.M.) -O. 41, Rr. 4 and 33—Applicability and scope—Powers of appellate Court under.

The provisions of O. 41, Rr. 4 and 33 are wide and give the appellate Court ample powers to pass such orders, as it may deem just and proper and necessary, to do full justice having regard to all the circumstances of the case. But these powers must not be so applied as to disregard other provisions of law, such as the Court-Fees Act and the Limitation Act. Where there is a distinct and separate decree against some defendant or persons who have not chosen to appeal, neither R. 4 nor R. 33 should be applied. In the absence of good and sufficient reasons, a right of appeal should not, after it has lapsed, be handed out gratuitously to persons who have themselves neglected to avail of it, especially when they have not asked for it, and the interests of the case do not require it for the purpose of doing justice to the persons who have appealed. An appellate Court hearing an appeal from an order refusing to set aside an ex parte decree under O. 9, R. 3, C. P. Code, cannot order stay of execution of the decree itself. O. 41, R. 5, C. P. If the appellate Court in such a case orders stay of execution of the decree, it is wholly without jurisdiction and is null and void. If execution is proceeded with and a sale takes place in spite of the illegal order of stay, the sale cannot be sale is valid and will stand. When the Appellate Court passes an order for stay, the proceedings are not withdrawn from the lower Court. They still remain pending in that Court, only the matter which is covered by the stay order is kept in abeyance during the period of its operation. The lower Court does not lose jurisdiction over those proceedings. An order passed by a Court, or an act done by it, in contravention of the stay order would be an irregular one, may even be regarded as illegal, but it would only be an order passed or an act done in the illegal exercise of its jurisdiction, and so would not be a nullity. It will have to be set aside by appropriate proceedings. The Court aside by appropriate proceedings. which passed the order or did the act may itself recall it, or the Appellate Court may set it aside, but till recalled or set aside it cannot be totally ignored in another or other independent proceeding. Court may be revived by a mere application to that Court. Where a decree is affirmed in appeal, the result is not to wipe out the decree of the trial Court for all purposes. Where the terms of the decree of the trial Court are not in any way affected by the appellate decree, the fiction of merger should not be carried so far as to lead to such a palpably absurd and inequitable result that the decree-holder should be put to the inconvenience of filing a fresh application in the Court which originally passed the decree, getting a fresh transfer certificate to another Court and pursuing the proceedings for execution in that Court. An attachment effected by a court after an order staying execution is passed by the appellate court but before it is communicated to the executing court is valid. An order staying execution, in the nature of a prohibitory order to the lower court becomes effective only on com-munication. Till it is communicated by the superior court, steps in execution taken by the lower court must be treated as legally valid. The mere passing of a stay order, without communication, would not make the lower court functus officio (Sonayya, J.) Subbayya v. NAGARATHNAMMA, (1945) M.W.N. 256=A. favour of the surety as the benefit should be given to the surety. Pending an appeal to the High Court by the defendants from a decree for money, the plaintiff applied for execution of the trial Court's decree and furnished sureties under O. 41, R. 6, to the satisfaction of the trial Court for being allowed to execute the decree. The sureties executed a bond which, after referring to the appeal pending in the High Court (which was described by the number), inter alia, provided that if in the said appeal the decision went against the plaintiff, then he would pay into Court the entire amount payable to the defendant, but that if he failed to do so, the sureties and their legal representatives would be personally liable to pay the amount or balance due up to Rs. 40,000. The appeal was dismissed by the High Court which confirmed the trial Court's decree. But on appeal to the Privy Council, the decree was reversed and suit was dismissed. The defendant sought restitution under the decree of the Privy Council, and sought to make the sureties liable under the bond executed by them pending the appeal in the High Court.

Held, that the bond referred only to a particular appeal pending in the High Court and the sureties' liability could not be extended to a decision given by the Privy Council reversing the decree in that appeal.

Held further, that the words "by the appellate Court," in Form 3 of Appendix G, C. P. Code, would not necessarily cannote "by all further appellate Courts." (Divatia and Lokur, I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 636=208 I.C. 161=16 R.B. 108=45 Bom.L.R. 510=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 243.

A mortgage decree for sale is not separable or divisible, and when the Court which has ordered the sale has taken security for further interest pending appeal from the decree, it is bound to stay the sale under O. 41, R. 6 (2), C. C. P. CODE (1908), O. 41, R. 20

O. 41, R. 19, C. P. Code, does not exhaust the powers of the Court in a proper case to re admit an appeal or an application dismissed for default or want of prosecution. The Court has inherent powers under S. 151, C. P. Code, to make an order restoring an appeal or application for the ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court, without any reference to the period of limitation fixed for applications to re-admit appeals or to restore any other proceeding dismissed for default. Where an appeal is dismissed for non-prosecution, for failure of the appellant to deposit within time of the appeal the Court can under its inherent powers under S. 151, C. P. Code, restore the appeal. (Divatia, I.) NINGAPPA NARASINGAPPA V. CHANDRA JAKAPPA. 201 I.C. 653=15 R.B. 103=44 Bom.L.R. 367=A.I.R. 1942 Bom.

The provisions of O. 41, R. 19, read with Art. 168, Limitation Act, are exhaustive; there is no inherent power remaining in the Court ex debito justitiae to allow appeals which are timebarred or to set aside an order of dismissal of an appeal under O. 41, R. 18. Neither S. 151, nor O. 47, can be invoked to set at nought the provisions of the code or any provision of the Limitation Act. An appeal dismissed for default under O. 41, R. 18, cannot therefore be re-admitted under R. 19, if the application for such restoration is not made within the time limited. The Court has no inherent power. (Davis, C.J. and O'Sullivan, J.) MAHO-MED SHAH 2. ABDUL JABAR MAHOMED YAKUB. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 409=209 I.C. 326=A. I.R. 1943 Sind 132.

When once time for an appeal has run out, it is not possible for an appellant subsequently to implead those defendants who were not originally impleaded as respondents in the appeal. Meither O. 41, R. 20, nor O. 1, R. 10 read with S. 107, C. P. C., nor S. 151, C. P. C., nor S. 5 of the Limitation Act could be invoked by the appellant for the purpose. The power conferred on a Court of appeal by O. 41, R. 20, C. P. C., can be used in favour of that person alone who is interested in the result of the conferred on the conferred alone who is interested in the result of the appeal, and a defendant against whom the right of appeal has become barred is not a person so interested. What the appellate Court is not empowered to do under O. 41, R. 20, it cannot do under O. 1, R. 10, read with S. 107. The power to add parties to an appeal in certain circumstances is specially provided for in O. 41, R. 20, and this being so, this special provision alone can be invoked in this matter and not the general provision. Similarly S. 151, C. P. C. too cannot be invoked in such cases. This is a residuary section, and not an overriding provision of law. In other words, it comes into play only where no specific provision is made to meet an exigency that arises and cannot be relied upon to enable a court to disregard a clear provision of law and to perform an act which may otherwise be illegal. (Din Mahomed, Sale and Abdur Rahman, J.). Labhu Ram v. Ram Partap. I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 18=213 I.C. 278=17 R.L. 39=46 P.L.R. 148=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 76 (F.B.).

Where a respondent in an appeal proposes to file a memorandum of cross-objections against a person who is not a party to the appeal two distinct operations are necessary; he must first implead the person in question as a party under O. 41, R. 20, and then, he must put in his memorandum of cross-objections under R. 22 of O. 41. In order that he may succeed under R. 20, he must bring his application within the time allowed for filing an appeal against the person sought to be impleaded. -O. 41, R. 20—Parties in appeal—Addition-Conditions.

It is clear that under O. 41, R. 20, it is not necessary that every individual party should be impleaded in the appeal unless their impleadment would lead to the likelihood of their losing by the success of the appeal. (Sathe, S.M.) DHONE BARHAI v. GURU BUX SINGH. 1943 A.W.R. (Rev.) 313 (2)=1943 R. D. 475.

——O. 41, R. 20 and S. 151—Person against whom appeal has become time-barred—Addition of as respondent—Inherent power of Court.

It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule that no person against whom the right of appeal has become time-barred can ever be added as a respondent under O. 41, R. 20. The question whether the interest of the respondent proposed to be added still survives in the appeal depends on the nature of the litigation, the decree passed, the subject-matter of the appeal, and the effect of the decision in appeal in his absence. Apart from this, the language of O. 41, R. 20, does not show that it is exclusive or exhaustive so as to deprive a Court of any inherent power which it may possess and can exercise in special circumstances and which has been saved by S. 151. The Courts have therefore inherent powers to add a party to an appeal even after the expiry of the period of limitation if they think fit to do so. (Teja Singh, J.) Munshi Ram v. Where a person filing a cross-objections having not chosen to file an appeal against some of the respondents seeks in the cross-appeal to agitate his rights against them only and his cross-objection has nothing to do with the appeal filed by the appellant, such a cross-objection is not maintainable under R. 22 of O. 41, C.P. Code. (Bennett and Ghulam Hasan, JJ.) SARAN DAS v. RUDRA PRATAP NARAIN SINGH 20 Luck. 45=215 I.C. 295=17 R.O. 55= 1944 O.W.N. 50=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 22 =1944 O.A. (C.C.) 22=1944 A.L.W. 96= A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 130.

-O. 41, R. 22—Cross-objections—Filing before service of notice on respondent-Permissibility.

Although cross-objections cannot be presented after the expiry of one month from the date of the service of the notice on the respondent or his pleader, it is not necessary for the respondent to wait until the service is actually effected on him, as the right to submit his cross-objections accrues to him as soon as an order is made issuing notice of the date of hearing of the appeal to him. It is even open to him to appear in a Court of appeal on the date of hearing and present his objections there and then though not Rahman, JJ.) Labhu Ram v. Ram Partap.

O. 41, R. 22—Cross-objections—Filing of—Omission of some respondents in list of parties—Defect, if fatal.

The fact that the list of parties attached to the cross-objections does not contain the names of some of the respondents, is not fatal to the cross-objections. The cross-objections are always preferred to an appeal that is pending and the title of the cross-objections remains the same as that of the appeal. (Din Mahomed, Sale and Abdur Rahman, II.) LABHU RAM v. RAM PARTAP. I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 18=213 I.C. 278=17 R.L. 39=46 P.L.R. 148=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 76 (F.B.).

-O. 41, R. 22—Cross-objections—Necessity-Adverse finding favourable decree.

Where a suit for arrears of rent is dismissed but a finding is given as to amount of rent, there is no need to file a written cross-objection under O. 41, R. 22, C. P. Code, as cross-objections are filed only against decrees and not against individual findings. (Harper, S.M. and Sathe, J.M.) Mahadeo v. Ghurpattar. 1941 R.D. 299=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 401=1941 O.A.
